Conveys Message of Good-will From President to Japs.

Nothing in Current Events But That Can be Adjusted.

Speech Received With Greatest Enthusiasm by the People.

Tokio, Oct. 1.—Secretary of War Taft aroused the wildest enthusiasm and loud cheers when, in the course of his speech at the banquet given in his honor by the municipality of Tokio and chamber of commerce, he declared that war between the United States and Japan would "be a crime against modern civilization, and as wicked as it would be insane," adding that neither people desired it and that both governments would do their utmost to guard against such an awful catastrophe. The secretary spoke with intense earnestness, after careful deliberation and preparation.

The banquet took place in the assembly room of the Imperial hotel, Viscount Shibusawa presiding, and was attended by prominent omcials and many of the leading business men of Tokio. Mr. Taft sat on the right of Viscount Shibusawa, and Mr. O'Brien the new American ambassador to Japan, was seated on his left. The decorations of the hall were magnificent and a good band furnished the music. Among those present were many ladies, including Americans.

Viscount Snibusawa, in welcoming Mr. Taft, paid a glowing tribute to the greatness of the nation which the secretary represented, the friendliness which the United States had always displayed for Japan and the influence which America exerted throughout the world.

In replying, Mr. Taft spoke with deep feeling and positiveness. He asserted that the talk of unfriendliness between the United States and Japan was "due entirely to the commercialism of the newspapers in America." The secretary declined to discuss the immigration question, saying that he would not trespass upon the field of the state department. Mr. O'Brien would say that the entire matter was "easy of sensible arrangement between sensible men."

Continuing, Mr. Taft said:

"Americans will always be proud of the part President Roosevelt was able to play in hastening the end of the war and bringing about peace under circumstances honorable to both Japan and Russia. Japan, having proved her greatness in war, has taken a stand in the first rank of the family of nations. You have concluded treaties with your former antagonist and the wounds caused by the war are healed.

"The growth of Japan, from a hermit nation to her present position, in the last fifty years, is a marvel to the world. Americans are proud to record the fact that Japan has always had the cordial sympathy and at times the effective aid of the United States. For a moment—for a moment only—a little cloud came over the sunshine of the fast friendship of fifty years. Only the greatest earthquake of the century could cause even the slightest tremor between such friends. I do not intend to consider the details of the

ATTORNEYS DISCUSS THE REGULATION OF TRUSTS

HERBERT S. HADLEY, Attorney General of Missouri, Who Called the Meeting of the Attorneys From All Over the United States and Who Is Presiding Over Their Deliberations.

There is No Economic Subject of Such Vast Interest.

Attorney General Young's Paper Attracts Much Attention.

St. Louis, Oct. 1.—The national conference of attorneys general held its final session today. The program comprised papers by Attorney General Wade H. Ellis of Ohio; Attorney General Dana Malone of Massachusetts and Attorney General W. S. Jackson of New York, followed by general discussion of the topics presented in the papers.

Attorney General Jackson, in his address, said:

"At this particular time no economic subjects are of such vital concern to the people as the regulation and control of what are known as trusts and of what are commonly called public utilities, and the question of the state regulation of public utilities is one of particular interest at a time when the limitations and functions of state and federal government seem to be almost as highly comprehended, as widely construed as in the beginning of our constitutional history.

"Yet in the evolution of public sentiment in relation to civic affairs the problem of the fundamental right of government to regulate and control its public utilities fortunately has passed beyond the stage of mere academic discussion.

"It is an encouraging evidence of an aroused public conscience and intelligence that in nearly all of the states efforts are being made to insure effective and intelligent regulation of public utilities, without regard to legal quibbles or absurd precedents.

"Many of the remedies proposed seem worse than the evils which they seek to overcome and this will be true in degree of any remedy that violates the principle of home rule.

"Whatever may be the ultimate solution of the public service corporations problem—whether it shall be private ownership with public regulation and control, or within their respective limits, federal, state, municipal ownership of all the utilities, which in their nature are essential monopolies—the obligation devolves upon the attorneys general of all the states vigorously and efficiently to enforce the laws now existing for the curtailment of corporate aggrandizement and the protection of public rights."

Attorney General Dana Malone of Massachusetts said:

"Massachusetts, so far as I can ascertain, was the first state to prevent by legislation the issuance of capital stock by public service corporations unless the corporation received a full equivalent in actual tangible property for every share issued. The right to thus regulate corporations must rest upon one general ground of the regulation of a natural

TAFT HAS BUSY DAY

Secretary Receives the American Residents at Yokohama.

Tokio, Oct. 1.—(Noon)—Secretary Taft's busiest day in Japan began with a reception and a luncheon given in his honor by Foreign Minister Hayashi at the Koshikawa, Korekyen arsenal, which were attended by all the officials of the government departments, making it the most brilliant function of his visit. Replying to the speech of welcome delivered by the war minister, Lieut. Gen. Terauchi, who expressed the pleasure felt by the Japanese at the secretary's visit, Mr. Taft reiterated his previous acknowledgements of the courtesies extended to him and the delight which he experienced at being once more in Japan.

Immediately after the luncheon Mr. Taft, accompanied by the staff of the American embassy, left Tokio for Yokohama, where he held a reception of the American residents at that port. The secretary and his party will return to Tokio later in the day and will be the guests tonight at dinner of H. Percival Dodge, first secretary of the American embassy. Covers will be laid for thirty persons.

Mr. Taft, who is in splendid health, is delighted with his reception here and with the enthusiam aroused by the speech which he delivered yesterday evening.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—The newspapers here today devote considerable space to discussing the relations between the United States and Japan which also is the subject of much comment in the government offices at Berlin, incidental to Secretary Taft's arrival in Tokio, his reception there and the recent occurences in British Columbia, which are regarded as being embarrassing for Japan and as placing it beyond her power to ask anything from the United States which she does not ask from Great Britain.

A private report from Vancouver received here says that a quiet movement is under way there to show the Dominion government that British Columbia might prefer an attempt at secession rather than submit to unrestricted Japanese immigration.

Husband of Countess Montignoso Refuses Offer for Five Concerts.

Florence, Oct. 1.—Enrico Toselli, the Italian pianist, who on Sept. 25 was married in London to the Countess Montignoso, the divorced wife of the crown prince of Saxony, now King Frederick Augustus of Saxony, has refused an offer made him by a Hamburg impressario to give five concerts for $3,400, saying he had not married his wife to use her as an advertisement.

The population of Fiesole, where the couple are residing, suspects all German speaking strangers of being Saxon detectives planning to carry off Princess Anne Monica Pia, the youngest daughter of the countess.

ONE FATALLY SHOT, OTHER TAKES LIFE.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The hunting season got a good start in this section yesterday, so far as the list of killing goes. Hugo Cottini, a young Italian, was fatally shot at Quincy, and John Lauri shot and killed himself at Boston Dam.

STEEL MEN DROP BESSEMER RAILS

Open Hearth to Take Place of the Present Process.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 1.—The United States Steel corporation and the other concerns in the country engaged in the production of steel rails, will spend a sum estimated at $60,000,000 in carrying out their plans of changing their plants from the Bessemer to the open hearth process. Work already has begun on this task and many of the new style furnaces are expected to be in operation before spring.

This change, it is said, has been decided upon in anticipation of the finding of investigators appointed by the national railway commission to inquire into the causes of railroad wrecks throughout the country, which reports that in many cases the crash could be blamed on the small percentage of iron contained in the Bessemer process rails.

Bessemer ore of the olden time contained 61 per cent iron, but it now contains 50 per cent, too little to meet the requirements of the railmakers.

E. H. Harriman is alleged to have got wind of this decision and to have changed his plans for the building of an extension on his lines, cancelling a huge contract which had been placed with the Bessemer process plant and awarding it to a Southern foundry, in which the open hearth process was used. At the time of the cancellation of this contract it proved a puzzle to railroad men throughout the country.

Within the last few days there has come to the Pittsburg district absolute proof that there is little hope for Bessemer ores. Though the Pittsburg steel men had expected the ultimate failure of Bessemer ore, they had chosn to view it as due far in the future, but the falling off in the quality of ore has alarmed them.

BATTLE IN DAY COACH

Harvest Hands Returning to Duluth Fight With Knives.

One Man Has His Throat Cut From Ear to Ear.

One man is supposed to be mortally wounded at Glyndon, Minn., and another, who was badly cut up, is at Staples, Minn., under arrest, as the result of a free for all fight among a party of harvest hands in one of the day coaches of the Northern Pacific trains from Fargo, which arrived in Duluth this morning. The story of the mixup was told by a Duluth man, who was a passenger on the train.

The men composed a party which had been working in the Dakota harvest fields. They all had money, and had been spending it freely for drinks. Several had bottles filled with liquor, and were indulging quite freely before the mixup began.

Just how the fight began, the Duluth man could not learn, but two of the men began quarreling, and in a moment bottles were flying in all directions in the car. The two principals in the argument attempted to get near each other in order to fight it out.

Several of the men drew knives and for a while there was a riotous scene in the car. Trainmen finally got the men quieted down, and an examination of the wounded men was made. One was found to have his throat slit from ear to ear, and was bleeding badly. His name is Arret Tekkanere, and he was placed in charge of Dr. Lowe, the railroad physician at Glyndon. The doctor stated that the man could not live.

Another of the men, Jelma Sevala, had his face frightfully cut up, but was not seriously injured. Tekkanere, when questioned, could not tell who had used the knife on him. The sheriff of Lac Que Parle county, who happened to be on the train, could find no knives on the car, and it is supposed the men threw them out of the window.

A message was sent on ahead of the train to Staples, where the Northern Pacific deputy took charge of Sevala, who will be given a hearing in a couple of days.

Neither of the injured men have been long in this country, and the authorities have not been able to locate any of their relatives.

FORTY-TWO KILLED IN WRECK IN KOREA.

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 1.—Forty-two persons, including thirty Japanese soldiers were killed or injured by the derailment of a southbound train from this place early today. The responsibility for the wreck has not been located.

BOOKBINDERS STRIKE.

Boston, Oct. 1.—About 200 bookbinders and stampers, employed in shops in this city, Cambridge and Norwood, went on strike today in an effort to secure a work day of eight hours. The movement among the bookbinders for an eight-hour day is national in its extent.

PHILADELPHIA IS THE WINNER

Made Four Runs to Nothing For Cleveland.

Detroit Also Wins and White Sox Defeated.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—Scarcely less important in the American league race than yesterday's sensational tie game at Philadelphia, are the games being played today at Philadelphia and Washington.

Philadelphia opens a hard series with Cleveland while Detroit has what should be an easier mark in Washington. This is the last home series for the Athletics. After three games with Lajoie's men they will go to Washington for the last games of the season, while Detroit will switch to St. Louis. Meanwhile Chicago will have two hard series with New York and Cleveland.

Cleveland has always been a hard nut for the Athletics, and Lajoie's men are out to put Philadelphia out of the running if possible.

Dygert went in again today for the Athletics, having been used for but one inning yesterday, when he gave place to Waddell. Schreck is catching, while Berger and Bemis are the battery for Cleveland. Connolly and O'Loughlin are the umpires.

Berger was batted hard by the Athletics. They scored one run in the first inning and two in the second. Berger was then taken out of the box, and Rhoades took his place.

In the meantime Cleveland could do nothing with Dygert's curves and were blanked in the first three innings.

Rhoades began pitching in good form and in the third and fourth innings the Philadelphia team failed to score. Cleveland was also retired in quick order in the fourth. Score: Cleveland, 0; Philadelphia, 3.

Neither side scored in the fifth or sixth innings, but in the seventh Philadelphia scored another run. Score: Cleveland, 0; Philadelphia, 4.

Neither team scored in the eighth inning. Cleveland was blanked in the ninth and Philadelphia did not have to play. Total score: Philadelphia, 4; Cleveland, 0.

DETROIT WINS.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Detroit and Washington clubs of the American league started a series of three games this afternoon. Siever and Schmidt were the battery for Detroit, while Johnson and Warner were the opposing battery. The umpires were Hurst and Bennett.

Detroit started the run getting in the first inning, getting one man across the plate, while Washington was blanked.

Neither side scored in the second inning. Washington began to bat Siever in the third inning, scoring one run and getting two more runs in the third.

The Tigers took a batting streak in the sixth inning and landed heavily on Johnson, scoring three runs. Score: Detroit, 4; Washington, 3.

In the seventh Detroit made another run. Score: Detroit, 5; Washington, 3.

The eighth inning resulted in no runs, and the ninth resulted the same. Score: Detroit, 5; Washington, 3.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON ABANDONS CHALLENGE

London Oct. 1.—Sir Thomas Lipton has telegraphed to the Royal Irish Yacht club expressing regret that his challenge for a series of races for the American cup must be abandoned.

PRESIDENT SAYS POLICY AS TO RICH WRONGDOERS WILL UNDERGO NO CHANGE

Believes Business Will Not Suffer Any Permanent Damage.

Honest Man Has Nothing to Fear From Administration.

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 1.—From 6 o'clock this morning, when the president was awakened at the small Illinois town of Meridosia by the strains of a village band, he was seldom out of hearing of a cheer of some kind, for the country people, as well as the villagers, lined the roadway and all were in a cheering mood. He did not, however, respond to any of the many calls for a speech, and thus allowed the forenoon run, which ended here on schedule time, to proceed without note.

The president spent the early morning reading, and when he stepped off the train here, appeared in the highest spirits.

Secretary Loeb left the party here and will proceed west from this point to Wyoming, whither he goes for a month's hunt.

The president began his river trip from Keokuk this morning. He arrived here at 9:10 and was met at the depot by the governors of Iowa, Florida, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, both Dakotas, Oregon, Wyoming, and Illinois, and by three companies of militia.

The morning was fair, but it began sprinkling shortly after the presidential party started in carriages to Rand park, where the president and others spoke. The president said in part:

Ours is a government of liberty, but it is a government of that orderly liberty which comes by and through the honest enforcement of and obedience to the law. At intervals during the last few months the appeal has been made to me not to enforce the law against certain wrongdoers of great wealth because to do so would interfere with the business prosperity of the country. THE MONEY SUBSCRIBED; SWEDES TO CHALLENGE

Has Royal Support and Best Wishes of the Ruler.

Stockholm, Oct. 1.—After many years given to the consideration of the subject, the financial and other difficulties have been overcome and Sweden again is about to challenge for the American cup, which she competed for in 1852. This project has the warm support of King Oscar, who is honorary admiral of the Royal Swedish Yacht club, through which the challenge is being issued. Two prominent millionaire yachtsmen, William Olsson and Goesta Kylberger, have subscribed $135,000 toward the expense of the undertaking, and they have engaged the services of the best yacht designers and builders in Sweden. Should the challenge be accepted, John Carlsson, one of the oldest Swedish yachtsmen, and a winner of many European races, will have command of the challenger.

New York, Oct. 1.—It is thought that the idea of a Swedish challenge for a race for the America's cup was prompted by the visit of Prince Wilhelm to this country recently. The prince was much interested in maritime affairs and met among others some yachtsmen and through them became interested in the America's cup.

Axel Josephson, a Swedish lawyer, was with the prince a good deal of the time while he was here and talked things over with him. Mr. Josephson lectured before the members of the Royal Swedish Yacht club on the America's cup and urged them to try for the trophy.

Baron Herman de Lagercrantz, Swedish minister, who is here, said when he heard of the contemplated challenge: "I hope it is true and that they are really going to challenge. It would really be fine. Our sailors, you know, have done good work in sailing the defenders to victory."

THREATENED WITH CHOLERA.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 1.—The entire section through which the Chinese Eastern railroad runs, has been officially declared to be threatened with cholera.

PREDICTS END OF THE WORLD

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 1.—Bishop Walter Sellow of Jamestown, N. Y., who has been presiding at the Free Methodist conference of Northern Indiana, greatly excited the members of the local Free Methodist church, by a sermon predicting the end of the world within a few months.

He did not mean, he said, that the planet was to be destroyed, but that all the works of man were to be swept away and Christ was to come a second time to rebuild it and make it a fit place for the dwelling of the Holy Spirit.

The bishop minced no words in describing the certainty of destruction by flames to those who do not repent. He gave these reasons for his belief that the end of the world is near.

First, the conditions are now similar to those that prevailed when Christ was born, men have set up false gods.

Second, the strain upon matter has reached the breaking point.

BELL TONGUE FALLS, CREATING A PANIC.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 1.—The tongue, weighing 1,600 pounds, of a bell in the steeple of the Church of the Resurrection, here, fell during the morning service today, creating a panic and endangering the chapel recently erected over the spot where Emperor Alexander II was assassinated in 1881.

PRINCE ARRESTED.

Luga, Russia, Oct. 1.—Prince Peter A. Kropatkin, the Socialist leader, has been arrested here on the charge of participating with a band of revolutionists in the robbery of the country house of the metropolitan Antenius.

RAILWAY CLERKS WEIGHING MAILS

All Matter Handled to be Recorded for Thirty Days.

New York, Oct. 1.—At one minute past midnight this morning, railway mail clerks throughout the country began the work of weighing of mails in obedience of a general order of the postmaster-general. Congress is responsible for this. In the regular appropriation bill for the postal service, approved March 1st., the clause requiring the weighing for thirty days was inserted. It was the first time in the history of the post-office department that the weighing of all mail matter in all trains over all routes on which mail clerks are employed was required.

The object of the thirty days' trial is to give the department and congress reliable statistics to determine the cost of handling and transporting different classes of mail matter.

YOUNG MINER HURT.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.—Herman Selden, son of Cashier Selden of the First National bank, was injured Saturday while working at the Mohawk mine. In some unaccountable manner he slipped and fell on the machinery. His left arm was caught and so badly mangled that amputation of the hand was necessary a few hours later. The young man is 18 years of age and he is very fortunate in escaping with the injuries he did.

TOLAPAGIN EXECUTED.

Moscow, Oct. 1.—Tolapagin, the revolutionist, who on Sept. 21 was for the third time sentenced to death by court-martial, for participation in a series of robberies and other crimes committed, he claimed, as an agent of the secret police, was executed here today.

Made Four Runs to Nothing For Cleveland.

Detroit Also Wins and White Sox Defeated.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—Scarcely less important in the American league race than yesterday's sensational tie game at Philadelphia, are the games being played today at Philadelphia and Washington.

Philadelphia opens a hard series with Cleveland while Detroit has what should be an easier mark in Washington. This is the last home series for the Athletics. After three games with Lajoie's men they will go to Washington for the last games of the season, while Detroit will switch to St. Louis. Meanwhile Chicago will have two hard series with New York and Cleveland.

Cleveland has always been a hard nut for the Athletics, and Lajoie's men are out to put Philadelphia out of the running if possible.

Dygert went in again today for the Athletics, having been used for but one inning yesterday, when he gave place to Waddell. Schreck is catching, while Berger and Bemis are the battery for Cleveland. Connolly and O'Loughlin are the umpires.

Berger was batted hard by the Athletics. They scored one run in the first inning and two in the second. Berger was then taken out of the box, and Rhoades took his place.

In the meantime Cleveland could do nothing with Dygert's curves and were blanked in the first three innings.

Rhoades began pitching in good form and in the third and fourth innings the Philadelphia team failed to score. Cleveland was also retired in quick order in the fourth. Score: Cleveland, 0; Philadelphia, 3.

Neither side scored in the fifth or sixth innings, but in the seventh Philadelphia scored another run. Score: Cleveland, 0; Philadelphia, 4.

Neither team scored in the eighth inning. Cleveland was blanked in the ninth and Philadelphia did not have to play. Total score: Philadelphia, 4; Cleveland, 0.

DETROIT WINS.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Detroit and Washington clubs of the American league started a series of three games this afternoon. Siever and Schmidt were the battery for Detroit, while Johnson and Warner were the opposing battery. The umpires were Hurst and Bennett.

Detroit started the run getting in the first inning, getting one man across the plate, while Washington was blanked.

Neither side scored in the second inning. Washington began to bat Siever in the third inning, scoring one run and getting two more runs in the third.

The Tigers took a batting streak in the sixth inning and landed heavily on Johnson, scoring three runs. Score: Detroit, 4; Washington, 3.

In the seventh Detroit made another run. Score: Detroit, 5; Washington, 3.

The eighth inning resulted in no runs, and the ninth resulted the same. Score: Detroit, 5; Washington, 3.

STEEL MEN DROP BESSEMER RAILS

Open Hearth to Take Place of the Present Process.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 1.—The United States Steel corporation and the other concerns in the country engaged in the production of steel rails, will spend a sum estimated at $50,000,000 in carrying out their plans of changing their plants from the Bessemer to the open hearth process. Work already has begun on this task and many of the new style furnaces are expected to be in operation before spring.

This change, it is said, has been decided upon in anticipation of the finding of investigators appointed by the national railway commission to inquire into the causes of railroad wrecks throughout the country, which reports that in many cases the crash could be blamed on the small percentage of iron contained in the Bessemer process rails.

Bessemer ore of the olden time contained 61 per cent iron, but it now contains 50 per cent, too little to meet the requirements of the railmakers.

E. H. Harriman is alleged to have got wind of this decision and to have changed his plans for the building of an extension on his lines, cancelling a huge contract which had been placed with the Bessemer process plant and awarding it to a Southern foundry, in which the open hearth process was used. At the time of the cancellation of this contract it proved a puzzle to railroad men throughout the country.

Within the last few days there has come to the Pittsburg district absolute proof that there is little hope for Bessemer ores. Though the Pittsburg steelmen had expected the ultimate failure of Bessemer ore, they had chosn to view it as due far in the future, but the falling off in the quality of ore has alarmed them.

Husband of Countess Montignoso Refuses Offer for Five Concerts.

Florence, Oct. 1.—Enrico Toselli, the Italian pianist, who on Sept. 25 was married in London to the Countess Montignoso, the divorced wife of the crown prince of Saxony, now King Frederick Augustus of Saxony, has refused an offer made him by a Hamburg impressario to give five concerts for $3,400, saying he had not married his wife to use her as an advertisement.

The population of Fiesole, where the couple are residing, suspects all German speaking strangers of being Saxon detectives planning to carry off Princess Anne Monica Pia, the youngest daughter of the countess.

PRESIDENT SAYS POLICY AS TO RICH WRONGDOERS WILL UNDERGO NO CHANGE

Believes Business Will Not Suffer Any Permanent Damage.

Honest Man Has Nothing to Fear From Administration.

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 1.—From 6 o'clock this morning, when the president was awakened at the small Illinois town of Meridosia by the strains of a village band, he was seldom out of hearing of a cheer of some kind, for the country people, as well as the villagers, lined the roadway and all were in a cheering mood. He did not, however, respond to any of the many calls for a speech, and thus allowed the forenoon run, which ended here on schedule time, to proceed without note.

The president spent the early morning reading, and when he stepped off the train here, appeared in the highest spirits.

The president began his river trip from Keokuk this morning. He arrived here at 9:10 and was met at the depot by the governors of Iowa, Florida, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, both Dakotas, Oregon, Wyoming, and Illinois, and by three companies of militia. The morning was fair, but it began sprinkling shortly after the presidential party started in carriages to Rand park, where the president and others spoke. The president said in part:

Ours is a government of liberty, but it is a government of that orderly liberty which comes by and through the honest enforcement of and obedience to the law. At intervals during the last few months the appeal has been made to me not to enforce the law against certain wrongdoers of great wealth because to do so would interfere with the business prosperity of the country. THE MONEY SUBSCRIBED; SWEDES TO CHALLENGE

Has Royal Support and Best Wishes of the Ruler.

Stockholm, Oct. 1.—After many years given to the consideration of the subject, the financial and other difficulties have been overcome and Sweden again is about to challenge for the American cup, which she competed for in 1852. This project has the warm support of King Oscar, who is honorary admiral of the Royal Swedish Yacht club, through which the challenge is being issued. Two prominent millionaire yachtsmen, William Olsson and Goesta Kylberger, have subscribed $135,000 toward the expense of the undertaking, and they have engaged the services of the best yacht designers and builders in Sweden. Should the challenge be accepted, John Carlsson, one of the oldest Swedish yachtsmen, and a winner of many European races, will have command of the challenger.

New York, Oct. 1.—It is thought that the idea of a Swedish challenge for a race for the America's cup was prompted by the visit of Prince Wilhelm to this country recently. The prince was much interested in maritime affairs and met among others some yachtsmen and through them became interested in the America's cup.

Axel Josephson, a Swedish lawyer, was with the prince a good deal of the time while he was here and talked things over with him. Mr. Josephson lectured before the members of the Royal Swedish Yacht club on the America's cup and urged them to try for the trophy.

Baron Herman de Lagercrantz, Swedish minister, who is here, said when he heard of the contemplated challenge: "I hope it is true and that they are really going to challenge. It would really be fine. Our sailors, you know, have done good work in sailing the defenders to victory."

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 1.—Bishop Walter Sellow of Jamestown, N. Y., who has been presiding at the Free Methodist conference of Northern Indiana, greatly excited the members of the local Free Methodist church, by a sermon predicting the end of the world within a few months.

He did not mean, he said, that the planet was to be destroyed, but that all the works of man were to be swept away and Christ was to come a second time to rebuild it and make it a fit place for the dwelling of the Holy Spirit.

The bishop minced no words in describing the certainty of destruction by flames to those who do not repent. He gave these reasons for his belief that the end of the world is near.

First, the conditions are now similar to those that prevailed when Christ was born, men have set up false gods.

Second, the strain upon matter has reached the breaking point.

RAILWAY CLERKS WEIGHING MAILS

All Matter Handled to be Recorded for Thirty Days.

New York, Oct. 1.—At one minute past midnight this morning, railway mail clerks throughout the country began the work of weighing of mails in obedience of a general order of the postmaster-general. Congress is responsible for this. In the regular appropriation bill for the postal service, approved March 1st, the clause requiring the weighing for thirty days was inserted. It was the first time in the history of the post-office department that the weighing of all mail matter in all trains over all routes on which mail clerks are employed was required.

The object of the thirty days' trial is to give the department and congress reliable statistics to determine the cost of handling and transporting different classes of mail matter.

DEMOCRATIC GATHERING

Held at St. Paul and Various Rumors Are Afloat.

St. Paul, Oct. 1.—The Dispatch says: "It is reported that a meeting is in progress at the Frederic hotel here, this afternoon, between T. T. Hudson, the Democratic national committeeman of Minnesota; James R. Bennett of St. Cloud, Bert Fesler of Duluth, C. E. Vasaley of Little Falls and Frank Larrabee of Minneapolis, and several of the other old-line Democrats of Minnesota, the majority being from Duluth and Minneapolis, which has for its purpose the taking possession of the party machinery in Minnesota in order that Bryan may be assured of the party's support in the next presidential campaign. It is said that a fight similar to that of 1904 is foreshadowed by this meeting. It is also said that, if the nomination of Bryan cannot be secured, the machine will work for the nomination of some other radical Democrat. Governor Johnson is said to be too conservative for this wing of the Democratic party, and that so far as those present are concerned he is not considered in the running.

"Bennett, when asked concerning the meeting, denied that any such plan as outlined above was in contemplation. He also denied that a call for a meeting has been issued. He said it was simply a getting together of those interested, as they happened to be in St. Paul at the same time on other business. Hudson would neither deny nor affirm, but spoke clearly in favor of Bryan's candidacy, and had nothing to say in favor of Governor Johnson. On the other hand, the state administration crowd at the capitol is entirely upset by the presence in the city of this gathering, and scouts are said to be posted on all corners to gather information of the doings of the meeting.

"Labor Commissioner Williams declares that a call for this meeting was issued and that he received a letter Saturday asking if his service were available on Oct. 1. Others say that they have seen a copy of the call. It is said to be a part of the plan to capture all the country strongholds for the Bryanites, and that plans will be prepared today for that purpose and that work will begin at once."

THE WRONG WAY.

James E. Brown of Washington, D. C., is the only man in the world who ever had his leg broken by $1,000,000. Mr. Brown is a clerk in the treasury department, and a $1,250,000 bundle of greenbacks, falling on him from a trunk, fractured his thigh.

"Yes, the money came to me," said Mr. Brown the other day; "but I got it in the wrong way, didn't I? Thinking of afterward, it seemed to me I resembled a good deal the hunter who went out after panther. He, too, got something, but it him, too, it came the wrong way. Listen.

"A hunter set out one day to hunt, and a panther set out at the same time to eat.

"'I must have a fur overcoat,' said the hunter.'

"'I,' said the panther, 'must have a dinner.'

"Some hours later, in a lonely wood, the panther and the hunter met.

"'Aha,' said the hunter gally, leveling his gun, 'here is my fur overcoat.'

"And he shot, but the panther, dodging behind a tree, escaped unhurt.

"Then the panther rushed forth before the hunter could reload.

"'Aha, here's my dinner,' said the panther.

"And he fell upon the hunter and devoured him.

"Thus each got what he wanted, the hunter getting his fur overcoat, and the panther getting his dinner."

MOFFETT BEFORE THE GRAND JURY

President of Indiana Standard Oil Explaining Statement.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—James A. Moffett, president of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, went before the federal grand jury today to explain his published statement that other concerns besides the Standard Oil company had been guilty of rebating with the railroads at Whiting, Ind.

When the grand jury adjourned at noon for a recess until 2 o'clock Mr. Moffett was still being questioned by District Attorney Sims and Assistant District Attorney Wilkerson. Immediately after the adjournment, District Attorney Sims issued a subpoena for F. S. Hollands, chief rate clerk for the Chicago & Alton railroad. Hollands' is expected to testify this afternoon. It was rumored that Hollands would be asked to furnish information following up that supposed to have been given by Mr. Moffett concerning alleged concessions to other shippers than the Standard Oil company.

THE BILLBOARD CRUSADE.

In the vigorous campaign against the billboards inaugurated by the American civic association, says Park and Cemetery, credit for the most substantial actual results thus far must be given to California.

Los Angeles has passed an ordinance imposing a tax of 1 cent a square foot, and a court decision from Santa Clara county, to the effect that a billboard may be declared a nuisance, is a distinct advance over any ruling thus far secured from the courts.

Billboards have hitherto been successful in sheltering themselves behind the specious plea that a nuisance is not a nuisance when it affects only the eye, and courts have held that objections to billboards were "aesthetic" objections and not subject to legislative action.

The decision referred to is the first strong evidence that this feeling is passing out of the legal mind, and foreshadows the time when an offence to the eye will be regarded as much a nuisance as an offence to the nose. It is the first recognition of the right to prohibit billboards under the police power.

The question raised in the Santa Clara case was not one of the power to impose a license, or in any manner to regulate the erection of billboards, but concerned the power of absolute prohibition on the ground that they were offensive to the sight and good taste.

The decision of the court was oral, but was conclusive on the points raised. The court held that under Section 3479 of the civil code anything that was offensive to the senses could be declared a nuisance and prohibited, and that an offence to the sense of sight might be included with nuisances offensive to other senses. Moreover, the degree of offensiveness might not be equal to all individuals, but being within the statutory definition of a nuisance the municipal authorities had the right to declare offensive object to be a nuisance, and with the discretionary power of the board of trustees the courts would not interfere.

A bill recently passed in the upper house of the Iowa legislature to give cities power to license or regulate skating rinks, dance halls, clairoyants, and like things and persons was amended on the floor to include bill boards and give to city councils the power to prohibit them.

An ordinance regulating the erection of signs has been passed by Atlantic City, N. J. Some of the terms are as follows: No structure shall be used as an advertising sign attached to a building whose surface exceeds fifty square feet, without permit from the building inspector; detailed plans must acompany applications for signs; the inspector is given authority to inspect and condemn unsafe signs; a certificate of approval shall be given for all signs properly erected; fees shall be charged for signs at rates ranging from $2 for 100-foot signs up to $20 for 600-foot signs; a penalty, not to exceed $100 may be imposed for violation of the ordinance.

New York city through its assistant corporation council, is waging a war on illegal billboards. Five suits have already been entered against the O. J. Gude company. The chamber of commerce of the city of Pittsburg is undertaking the restriction of billboards in that city and similar action is being taken in Cincinnati. Boston is in the throes of a protest against a beer sign on the Hotel Pelham, fronting the Boston common, for which the erecting concern pays the owner of the premises $5,000 a year, notwithstanding which the said owner has succeeded in having the assessment on his building for tax purposes reduced $1,900 within the year. The situation in Boston is made rather amusing by the fact that Donnelley, the boss bill boarder, has been disciplined by the National Bill Posters' association for erecting this sign against the desires of the national association. The legislatures of the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts have each billboard restricting and taxing acts before them now, with the billboard men fighting any taxation, regulation or supervision.

A SUNDAY BABY.

The Why and Wherefore of a Number of Strange Superstitions.

There are few corners of modern life into which a trace of superstition does not penetrate. Most people accept a few relics of it playfully. On some of the more simple it still has a living influence. In the remote, out-of-the-way parts of the country it is almost as powerful a force as it was in mediaeval days, says London Answers.

Of course, each place has its distinctive forms of superstition, but a few are common everywhere. They cover the "four ages" of man. It is generally thought lucky to be born on a Sunday. Every day of the week has its special measure of good or ill, but it is regarded as inevitable that "Thursday's child" should turn out a thief.

Cats are supposed to be the hereditary enemies of children. Babies and kittens cannot thrive in the same house. Some peasant women believe that they inhale the breath of children and so cause them to die; others that they possess the evil eye—and the evil eye is still believed in in other places than Ireland. In some parts of Northumberland the sickness of cattle is put down to its malign influence.

The origin of this dislike for cats may be put down to the old belief that witches were accustomed to take feline form. On the other hand, dogs were regarded as the guardians of mankind against supernatural evils. Many instances are related by Northern farmers of how watch dogs have shown signs of great distress in growling and whimpering immediately before their master's death, as if they detected some presence that was invisible to human eyes.

Long before palmistry had become a pseudo-science, old women believed that a child's future could be told by marks on the hands, and by little specks on the finger nails. A hand with a tendency to close was supposed to be the index of a grasping nature. When the first two fingers were the same length, it was the sign of a predestined pickpocket. Even now many mothers shrink from cutting thir child's nails lest it should bring bad luck.

There are few boys who do not hold that they can split their master's cane by inserting a small hair in it before a thrashing. Another way of working the miracle is to sprinkle the hands with a thin layer of rosin. It is to be feared that there is no evidence to support the efficacy of these expedients. They are probably superstitions that have been handed dwon through generations of boys.

Superstition also comes hand in hand with Cupid. The young girl of today is often found throwing the peel of an apple over her shoulder—as did her prototype two centuries ago—to find out the initials of her lover. To see his face they still peer into the glass at Hallowe'en. In olden days, to find out his name, a girl generally wrote the names of a dozen or so of her acquaintances on little pieces of paper, covering each with a ball of snow and dropping them together in a tub of water. The paper that rose to the top first was supposed to bear the name of her future husband. Friday is looked upon as the luckiest day for a wedding in Scotland, but in England it is Wednesday that is regarded as most auspicious.

In the acceptation of certain physical traits as indices of character, it is hard to distinguish between the creations of superstition and scientific observation. In some parts of England heavy eyebrows that meet together are looked upon as a sign of good fortune, but generally they are supposed to denote a cunning nature. There seems, however, to be little division among the superstitions about moles. One on the throat signifies luck, and on the left forehead the reverse. On the chin, the ear and the neck they foreshadow great wealth for their possessor.

The common antipathy to red hair seems to have been handed down through the centuries. A red haired man is generally regarded with a certain amount of distrust, and a few cling to the proverb, "Never trust a red haired woman or a chestnut horse," as if it were inspired by divine wisdom. Probably it had its foundation in a hereditary dislike for the fiery haired Danes who ravaged the English coast.

WISE MONEY CHANGERS.

New York Sun: "I never realized until today," said a man who had just returned from Europe, "what an undertaking it is to be a money changer.

"I came back with about $20 in foreign money, principally French and Italian. This I took to a money changer's to cash in.

"He looked over the coins rapidly, throwing them into little piles and putting down notes on a slip of paper. When he had cleared up the lot he said I had $10.25 coming to me.

"At first I thought he was doing me. But he was not. He showed me a dozen or so Italian coins that had been demonetized and were worth about 40 cents on the dollar. There was a nice little pile of counterfeits that were not worth a cent, and altogether only about a third of the coins that I brought home were worth their full value.

"The only consolation I had was that I thanked my stars I am in the insurance business and not in the exchange business, for my poor little brain could not carry half the things that those fellows have to remember."

The man with the coins did not exaggerate. There are thousands of different coins floating about that a money changer has to know. He has to keep in mind every demonetized coin made within the last hundred years.

In addition to that there are counterfeits. The immigrants bring over heaps of bad coins. Many of them buy un counterfeits cheap with the hope of exchanging them at Ellis island.

Then there are the coins of the South American countries. They are worse than those of the European countries. Brazil, for instance, has a scheme all its own. Certain notes are good for ten years, after that time for every year they lose 10 per cent of their face value until the whole value is used up and they are worth only the paper they are printed on.

As one man expressed it you have to know the history of the world to be a money changer. A peculiar part of the business is the reshipment of coins back to the countries whence they came. Often during the rush season one firm sends back a million coins, while it is estimated that in the course of a year $10,000,000 in foreign money is reshipped to Europe and a million to the rest of the world.

Money changing is a business just like any other. They do not exchange money. They buy it. When you go there with foreign coins they buy them from you at a stated price. When you go there to get foreign coins you buy from them at a certain price just as you buy eggs and cigars.

Caught Stealing

A few days ago we had a dealer arrested and are now prosecuting him for putting another—cheaper—beer into our bottles and selling it as Schlitz.

Substitution robs you as well as us.

Our yeast is distinctive; no other brewery's is the same. It is developed from an original mother cell brought to this country by one of the founders of our business.

Our grain and our hops are selected from the best that is grown. We pay more than our "just as good" imitator to get a quality better than he thinks is "good enough" for his beer.

The theft of our name—giving you another beer when you think you are getting Schlitz—is what robs us.

You think you have had Schlitz—are disappointed and may not ask for it again—therefore, we are most anxious that you get our beer and not a substitute. So we say

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
See that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

SECRETARY TAFT

events at San Francisco; I cannot trespass on the jurisdiction of the department of state. It is for my colleague, Mr. Root, or my friend, Mr. O'Brien, to discuss this matter.

"I say that there is nothing in these events that cannot be honorably and fully arranged by ordinary diplomatic methods between the two governments, conducted as they both are by statesmen of honor, sanity and justice.

"War between Japan and the United States would be a crime against modern civilization. It would be insane. Neither the people of Japan, nor the people of the United States, desire war. The governments of the two countries would strain every point to avoid such an awful catastrophe. Neither would gain anything.

"Japan has undertaken, with the legitimate interests of so close a neighbor, to reform and rejuvenate the kingdom that is governed, or misgoverned, by fifteenth century methods. His majesty the emperor has shown his appreciation of the difficult task by sending to Korea Japan's greatest statesman. No matter what the reports may be, no matter what criticism may be uttered, the world will have confidence that Prince Ito and the Japanese government are pursuing a policy in Korea which will make for justice, civilization and the welfare of a backward people. Why should Japan wish for war? It must stop, or seriously delay the execution of her plans for the reform of Korea.

"Why should the United States wish for war? It would change her in a year or more into a military nation. Her great resources would be wasted in a vast equipment, which would serve no good purpose, but would tempt the nation into warlike policies. Why should she wish for war, in which all the evils of society flourish and all vultures fatten? She is engaged in establishing a government of law and order in the Philippines, fitting those people by general education to govern themselves.

"It has been suggested that we might relieve ourselves of this burden by the sale of the islands to Japan or some other country. The suggestion is absurd. Japan does not wish for the Philippine islands; she has problems of a similar nature nearer home. More than this, the United States could not sell the islands to another power without the grossest violation of its obligations to the Philippine people.

"Under all these circumstances then, could there be anything more wicked, more infamous than the suggestion of war between two nations who have enjoyed such time-honored friendship, and who have nothing to fight for?

"Some one asks why such reports and rumors of war? The capacity of certain members of the modern press by sensational dispatches to give rise to unfounded reports has grown with the improvement of communication between distant parts of the world. The desire to sell papers, the desire for political reasons to embarrass the existing government, or other and even less justifiable motives have led to misstatements, misconstructions and unfounded guesses, all worked into terrifying headlines which have no foundation whatever.

"In each country, doubtless, there are irresponsible persons, that a war would or might make prominent, who try to give seriousness to such discussions. But when one considers the real feelings of the two peoples as a whole, when one considers the situation from the standpoint of the sanity and real patriotism of each country, it is difficult to characterize in polite, moderate language the conduct of those who are attempting to promote misunderstandings and ill-feeling between the two countries.

"It gives me pleasure to assure the people of Japan that the good-will of the American people towards Japan is as warm and cordial as ever. The suggestion of a breach in the amicable relations between them finds no confirmation in public opinion in the United States."

Mr. Taft then said it gave him great pleasure to bring this message of good-will from President Roosevelt.

In conclusion, the secretary said he felt that the fact that the Japan emperor had for the second time honored him with an invitation to an audience was due to his majesty's desire to send a message of good-will to the United States and show to the world that Japan was friendly to the Americans.

Mr. Taft's speech was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

After the banquet, the assembly room was the scene of a remarkable manifestation of good-will, everybody congratulating everybody else on what was considered to be a complete removal of the "little cloud" which had been hanging over the fifty years of friendship between the United States and Japan, and rejoicing that a final damper had been put upon sensational utterances regarding the possibility of strained relations between the two countries.

An especially pleasing effect was produced by the secretary's concluding remarks about the Japanese emperor's intention to send a message of good-will to the United States.

During the course of the banquet fire broke out in a large building in the rear of the hotel, which caused some alarm, but did not interfere with the function.

THE RECORD IS BROKEN

Missabe Road Exceeds All Previous Ore Shipment Totals.

Although no work was done at the docks Labor day or on Sundays, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road broke all its own records for ore shipments during the month of September, the total shipments for the month being 2,203,638 tons.

This is the largest amount of iron ore the Missabe has ever sent from its huge ore docks in Duluth in any one single month. The previous high record was made in June, which the total shipments aggregated 2,156,215 tons. The total shipments by the road in August were 2,051,280 tons and those of September 1906, 1,750,117 tons.

Not only did the Missabe road break its own record last month but the world's record for iron ore shipments, as well. In June, when the road made such a showing, the world's record was beaten, but September's figures put those of June in the shade.

The Duluth & Iron Range road broke its record of September a year ago, shipping 1,291,044 tons during the month which ended at 12 o'clock last night. The shipments for September a year ago, were 1,179,634 tons. The Iron Range is still about 300,000 tons behind in its season's shipments to date, as compared with last year.

The Great Northern beat its record of a year ago, by a good margin. During last month, the road shipped 1,155,464 tons from its docks at Allouez, as compared with 869,678 tons for the same month last year. The Great Northern is also more than a million tons ahead of last season on its shipments for the season, up to date.

There was much bad weather during September, but the ore roads did not seem to mind it in the least. Each successive day saw an increase over the previous one, so that the totals for the month were in big figures.

Following is a comparative table of the shipments by the three ore carrying roads:

	September 1907.	September 1906.
D. M. & N.	2,203,638	1,750,117
D. & I. R.	1,291,044	1,179,634
Great Northern	1,155,464	869,678
Totals	4,650,146	3,799,429

Following are the season's shipments up to date:

	1907.	1906.
D. M. & N.	9,406,283	8,324,388
D. & I. R.	6,043,110	6,841,357
Great Northern	5,550,081	4,418,174

LORD MAYOR A DRUMMER.

The Strand: Lord Mayor of London, Sir William Treloar, president of the London branch of the United Kingdom Commercial Travelers' association, attended the annual dinner of that association he told a story of his early travelling life:

"Forty years ago," he said, "I called on an upholsterer in Southampton, whose daughter, a very nice looking girl, rang the bell for her father. As soon, however, as she recognized the visitor she gently called up the stairs:

"'You need not come down, pa; it's only a commercial.'"

"When she returned to the shop the girl remarked, with a pleasant smile, 'I took you for a gentleman.'

"I apologized," added the story teller, "and expressed my regret that my appearance should have deceived her. And so we became excellent friends."

WEST END

AN ANNUAL RECEPTION

Norwegian-Danish Epworth League Will Give Big Affair.

Other News of the West End of the City.

One of the big events of the year in the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, will be held in the parlors of that house of worship this evening, when the annual reception of the Epworth league takes place.

Members of the Young People's society will turn out in force and more than 200 invitations have been sent out to their many friends in and out of the church.

Officers and members of the league have been busy for several days preparing for the reception and it is expected to be the most brilliant affair in the history of the society.

An elaborate program has been arranged, in which many members of the league will take part. There will be a number of short talks by the pastor, Rev. H. K. Madsen, the officers of the Epworth league and members, besides some recitations and vocal and instrumental musical numbers.

The church will be handsomely decorated for the occasion and refreshments will be served.

The reception will take the place of the regular Tuesday evening meeting of the league.

IMPORTANT MEETING.

Swedish Sick Benefit Society to Consider Much Business.

The Swedish Christian Sick Benefit society will hold an important meeting Friday evening at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. This is the last session before the annual meeting and the officers are anxious to have all the year's business disposed of and put in proper shape before the annual gathering, when the reports covering the past twelve months will be heard.

An effort will be made to have all the quarterly dues in by Friday evening.

An auditing committee, which will go over the society's books, will be appointed and the committee appointed at a previous meeting to plan for a ten years' anniversary jubilee will make a report. Considerable routine business will be disposed of.

Death Claims Mrs. Turnel.

Mrs. Mabel Christina Turnel of 2223 West Sixth street, died last night at St. Luke's hospital, at the age of 75 years. She had been a resident of Duluth for the past fifteen years and was well known in the West end.

Mrs. Turnel leaves four daughters, Mrs. Dora Cummings, Mrs. Walter Juline, Mrs. Ivan Gordon and Mrs. J. W. Stockholm, all of whom reside in Duluth except Mrs. Stockholm, whose home is in Pine City, Minn.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

West End Shortrails.

Rev. John A. Anderson, pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church, conducted services at Cloquet last evening.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Swedish M. E. church will meet this evening in the parlors of the church.

Gustav Kvisgaard leaves today for Evanston, Ill., where he will resume his studies at the Norwegian Methodist Episcopal seminary in connection with Northwestern university. Mr. Kvisgaard is studying for the ministry.

The building committee of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church held a meeting last evening in the parlors of the church, to consider some work in connection with the new church.

The interior of the Swedish Mission church is being handsomely redecorated. After these improvements have been made, new seats will be installed. This work will be completed as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. John Simons have returned from Chicago and have taken a house on Eighteenth avenue west.

Kenneth Whitney of the West end has accepted a position with the Wisconsin Central road.

Dr. C. L. Haney has moved into the office with Dr. Braden, vacated by Dr. Coventry, who has moved his office uptown. In announcing Dr. Coventry's removal up-town in this column last week, it was stated that he was going to give up his practice in the West end. This was incorrect. Although he has removed up town, Dr. Coventry will continue to look after West end patients.

Rev. John A. Anderson, pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church, will conduct services at Fond du Lac Friday evening.

Alfred Swedberg, Dr. Eklund, William Eklund and the doctor's niece, who is visiting him, and George Johnson are planning an automobile trip to Thomson and Cloquet, next Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Gust Jacobson, 929 Garfield avenue.

Mrs. P. Newlander, 1030 Garfield avenue, is seriously ill at St. Luke's hospital.

Adeline D. Hutchins, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hutchins of 10½ Fifteenth avenue west, died yesterday. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the residence and the interment will take place at Calvary cemetery.

John Bewanl, a laborer, looked too long upon the wine when it was red, yesterday, and fired by booze, he entered an empty house near Twentieth avenue west, and began delivering an eloquent speech to its empty walls. His pargon finally drew an audience of small boys, who hooted and jeered. Finally, he was taken in tow by friends and carried off home.

of that kind of fright, which when sufficently acute, we call panic, this appeal has been made to me even by men who ordinarily behave as decent citizens. One newspaper which has itself strongly advanced this view, gave prominence to the statement of a certain man of great wealth to the effect that the so-called financial weakness "was due entirely to the admitted intention of President Roosevelt to punish the large moneyed interests which had transgressed the laws." I do not admit that this has been the main cause of any business troubles we have had; but it is possible that it has been a contributory cause.

> If so, friends, as far as I am concerned it must be accepted as a disagreeable but unavoidable feature in a course of policy which as long as I am president will not be changed.

In any great movement for righteousness, where the forces of evil are strongly intrenched, it is unfortunately inevitable that some unoffending people should suffer in company with the real offenders. This is not our fault. It is the fault of those to whose deceptive action these innocent people owe their false position. A year or two ago certain representatives of labor called upon me and in the course of a very pleasant conversation told me that they regarded me as "the friend of labor." I answered that I certainly was, and that I would do everything in my power for the laboring man except anything that was wrong. I have the same answer to make to the business man. I will do everything I can do to help business conditions, except anything that is wrong. And it would be not merely wrong but infamous to fail to do all that can be done to secure the punishment of those wrongdoers whose deeds are peculiarly reprehensible because they are not committed under the stress of want. Whenever a serious effort is made to cut out what is evil in our political life, whether the effort takes the shape of warring against the gross and cordid forms of evil in some municipality, or whether it takes the shape of trying to secure the honest enforcement of the law as against very powerful and wealthy people, there are sure to be certain individuals who demand that the movement stop because it may hurt business.

> In each case the answer must be that we earnestly hope and believe that there will be no permanent damage to business from the movement, but that if righteousness conflicts with the fancied needs of business, their the latter must go to the wall.

We can not afford to substitute any other test for that of guilt or innocence, of wrongdoing or well doing, in judging any man. If a man does well, if he acts honestly, he has nothing to fear from this administration. But so far as in me lies the corrupt politician, great or small, the private citizen who transgresses the law—be he rich or poor—shall be brought before the impartial justice of a court. Perhaps I am most anxious to get at the politician who is corrupt, because he betrays a great trust; but assuredly I shall not spare his brother corruptionists who shows himself a swindler in business life; and, according to our power, crimes of fraud and cunning shall be prosecuted as relentlessly as crimes of brutality and physical violence.

Folowing the address, which was heard by 20,000 peope, the president was driven to the lower lock of the government canal, and shortly before 11 o'clock boarded the steamer Mississippi for the trip south. He reviewed the display of 100 pleasure launches in the river and departed leading the flotilla of twenty big steamboats and the launches.

Ten special excursion trains brought in great crowds just before the president arrived, and the city was full of strangers. The city of Keokuk was decorated in the most lavish manner in its history and entertained the greatest crowd ever here. The inland waterways commission arrived last night on the steamer MacKenzie, joining President Roosevet here.

Before leaving, the president was presented with a gold-headed cane by Keokuk negroes.

LAWYERS WANT MORE.

Decline to Permit Client to Accept Tender of Railroad.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local counsel for Mrs. Harry Adams of Rock Lake, who has sued the Great Northern railroad for $25,000 for the loss of her husband who was killed in the wreck of the Oriental Limited train near Bartlett, last winter, are opposed to her accepting the offer of the company to pay her $4,300. The attorneys claim she should receive a larger sum and will probably resist her accepting the amount named on the ground they as counsel were not consulted. There were several lives lost in the wreck, among them being Adams, but his death was not established until some time after, through the recovery of some of his personal effects.

LARGE FIRE AT SCANLON

N. C. Folger's Store and Marshal Sloan's Residence Destroyed.

Oil Stove in Store Explodes, Fire Spreading Very Rapidly.

Scanlon, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The general merchandise store belonging to N. C. Folger of this city, and the residence of Marshal Charles R. Sloan, were burned to the ground yesterday afternoon, between 5:30 and 6 o'clock. Mr. Folger was lighting an oil stove, when suddenly it exploded, sending the burning oil throughout the rear portion of the building, and burning Mr. Folger in a number of different places about the face and hands.

Before the fire could be brought under control, the Sloan residence, which adjoined the store, took fire and was almost completely burned.

The firemen, however, succeeded in saving the greater part of the furniture and other personal belongings. A few hours later, when the safe was opened by means of chisels, the papers contained therein were found not to have been harmed in the least. The loss is estimated at about $8,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

ENGINE HITS CATTLE.

Animals Are Killed and Locomotive Goes Into the Ditch.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The locomotive hauling the southbound passenger over the Red Lake railway, while running between Nebish and Puposky, ran into three head of cattle that were standing on the track, Monday. One of the animals was killed outright and ground to pieces under the engine, another sustained a broken leg, and was shot, and the third injured internally and had to be killed.

The engine was derailed and went into the ditch. The engineer and fireman saw it was impossible to stop the train, and they jumped from the locomotive. The coaches remained on the track, but the passengers were quite severely shaken up. There was no one injured.

SELLING BAD EGGS.

Dairy and Food Department Looking into Cases That Are Reported.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sale of bad eggs over the state is engaging the attention of the dairy and food department and violations are being punished without fear or favor. Saturday the Minneapolis branch of the Northwest Produce company was fined $50 for having 191 dozen of stale fruit in their possession, and a few days previous a Minnesota dealer suffered a fine of a like amount.

In order to get at the source of the trouble the dealers are being advised to go after the parties who sold them the eggs. This the two dealers are now doing. Farmers who make a practice of selling bad eggs are being hunted for and fines may follow.

ARE GETTING WORK.

Striking Boilermakers Claim They Are Finding Other Employment.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—All of the striking boilermakers who desire to secure employment have gone to work with railroads and firms not affected by the strike, according to a statement given out at the headquarters of the striking boilermakers. It was asserted that some had left the city and gone into shops which are not "unfair." Others are said to be enjoying the vacation which the strike gave them an opportunity to take. One striker stated that it was the first time he had laid off in thirteen years and he was having a good rest.

An official of the boilermakers' union stated positively that there had not been a single desertion from the ranks of the strikers since the strike commenced. He said further that many of the foremen who did not go out when the strike first began had now joined the body of the strikers.

"They have even been offering our men as high as $250 a month to go into the shops and instruct the strike breakers, but not one has accepted," he continued.

TRAIN WOULDN'T STOP.

Duluth Boy Hurls Stone Through Window and is Arrested.

Carlton, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Johnnie DeVitt of Duluth was arrested there a few days ago for throwing a stone through a window in a Northern Pacific passenger train. His father came up and paid the costs in the case and took his son home.

FERGUS FALLS LUCKY.

Barn Surrounded by Wooden Buildings, is on Fire, But Extinguished.

Fergus, Falls, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fergus Falls had a very narrow escape from a serious fire Sunday night. An explosion of gasoline in an old barn started a big blaze at once, and the whole building was a mass of flames before an alarm could be given. The burning building was entirely surrounded by wooden buildings, some of them very close. The Fergus Falls National bank stands only a few feet away, a fine brick structure, but it was a still night and the wind did not spread the fire until the fire company had time to get it under control.

Ashland Dye Works Man Dies From Gasoline Burning.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Hall, proprietor of the Ashland Dye works, died this morning from injuries received in a gasoline explosion yesterday afternoon. Ten employes were in an adjacent room when the explosion occured. Two of them jumped from upper windows and the others narrowly escaped with their lives. Mr. Hall rushed from the building with his clothes in flames, threw himself on the ground and tried to tear off his burning clothing. Bystanders attempted to remove his clothing, but the flesh came with it. The dye works was entirely destroyed and Hall died from his injuries fifteen hours later.

TROLLY LINE IS SOLD FOR SONG

Sheboygan, Wis., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A "trolley line" for $67.42. That is what the Manitowoc-Sheboygan "line," promoted by O. C. Beknke of Sheboygan was bought for at sheriff's sale on the steps of the Sheboygan courthouse. The property, which represents a strip forty feet wide along the right of way of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad of rather dubious title, was bid in by Otto C. Bassuener for the creditors, who have lost hundreds of dollars in the venture. There are no rails, no ties, nor rolling stock. There was only one bid on the property.

FORMER MINER QUITE A FARMER

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fourteen years ago employed underground in an Ishpeming mine at $2 a day, John Hutula now is one of the biggest and most successful farmers in Upper Michigan. Leaving the Marquette iron district in 1883 and going to Covington, some miles west, in Baraga county, he purchased a small tract of land and started to hew out a home in a veritable wilderness. Now he has 1,500 acres under cultivation, and some 9,000 acres of timber land besides. He is continually adding to his holdings, as well as disposing of tracts as he clears them of their trees, and he has established a considerable agricultural community which is attaining large proportions, farms being sold to settlers on the installment plan.

On his own farm and in the woods, Mr. Hutula employs upwards of 100 men the year around. He cuts and ships more hardwood than any other operator in the upper region. He operates a saw mill and he has a creamery, blacksmith shop, wagonshop and other buildings necessary for the successful operation of his business. A wind mill is used to raise water for irrigating purposes, as well as to supply his own home and those of his men. His big farm is equipped with all the latest appliances for economical and rapid work. He has a model house, provided with every convenience possible at a place of the kind, and during the past few years he has erected a number of comfortable houses for his employes.

A "Different Shoe" for Women

This splendid shoe, while easy and comfortable from the first moment you put it on, is at the same time one of the shapeliest and neatest-looking shoes made this year.

The secret of its wonderful attraction for women is its flexible sole that bends with every movement of the foot, giving a sense of buoyance and freedom never found in stiff sole shoes, and affording instant relief to tender, burning or aching feet.

No shoe ever introduced has met with such undoubted welcome as the Red Cross Shoe. The factory is working nights to supply the demand.

If you have trouble in "breaking in" stiff sole shoes, the Red Cross will appeal to you as a blessed relief. You will like its light, comfortable feeling and its neat, trim appearance, fitting the most delicate foot as a glove fits the hand.

All sizes—all widths—all the newest shapes of toe and heel.

We are the sole agents in Duluth for this fine shoe.

Coroner L. D. Miller is summoning the jury and the jury will go to the scene of the crime for the purpose of investigating the house and its surroundings preliminary to holding a formal inquest in Sioux Falls.

O'Grady's shotgun was found in the house. It was unloaded, but bore the appearance of having been fired recently. The dead man was about 60 years of age.

HEIRS ARE GIVEN ESTATE OF WALSH

Court Decides Two Beneficiaries Cannot Have the Property.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Charles F. Templeton has reversed the decision of the probate court in the case of Mary E. Finn and Mary M. Carney, petitioners, vs. John Walsh, George W. Walsh, Josephine Walsh, Mary Keyes, Elizabeth Portre and all other persons interested, respondents, involving the possession of $3,500 of insurance, which the late Martin Walsh carried in the Yeomen and Loyal American lodges, and decided that the respondents, the brothers and sisters of Walsh, were entitled to the money. Judge L. K. Hassell had decided that the money should go to Miss Finn and Miss Carney, who were named as the legatees, but who were not related to the deceased.

Mr. Walsh was engaged to be married to Miss Carney, and Miss Finn was a friend of Walsh and Miss Carney for several years. Miss Finn and Miss Carney cared for Walsh during his illness of several months before his death. He was afflicted with paralysis. They advanced their own money and gave him all the comforts possible.

Following the decision of Judge Templeton, yesterday morning, Attorney George A. Bangs, counsel for Miss Finn and Miss Carney, made a motion for a stay of sixty days. The stay was granted and the case will at once be appealed to the supreme court. It will probably be argued at the March term.

COWS FEED ON FISH.

London Correspondent Chicago Inter Ocean: A correspondent, writing to a London paper, says:

"You mention the case of a cow having eaten a salmon, a fact which seems to be cited as a novelty in the twenty-fifth annual report of the forestry board of Scotland.

"That cattle will eat fish, however, has been long known. When I was in Baluchistan in 1872 I stayed for some time near a fishing village, where the beach was always strewn with fish refuse in a more or less advanced stage of putrefaction. During the autumn months, when all the verdure has been burned up by the blazing sun of those latitudes, the miserable cattle of the vicinity used to make their way to the beach regularly and consume whatever they found in the way of fish.

"As a consequence of this unnatural food the animals were dreadfully emaciated, and their milk had a strong fishy flavor. Nevertheless, it is a striking instance of how nature can provide within very wide limits for the wants of its creatures."

MANIAC FOR COMPANION ON JOURNEY TO EUROPE

A trip of between 6,000 and 7,000 miles with a violently insane Austrian was begun yesterday by Sherman A. Paddock, a Herald reporter.

The Austrian is Luke Devic and his home is in Krasno, a little village in the interior of Austria. He has been ordered deported by the immigration authorities, and it was necessary, under the new ruling of the immigration department, to turn him over to the authorities of his own city.

It was necessary for a guard to accompany him, and Mr. Paddock was appointed to the position. He left with his prisoner for New York last evening, accompanied by Immigration Inspector Dean. Mr. Dean will see them safely aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse at New York, and Mr. Paddock will be alone with the insane man for the remainder of the trip. The man is quite violent at times, and the task of watching him will be no child's play. The deputy is well supplied with handcuffs, foot irons and a straight jacket, and the prisoner will be kept shackled if he shows any signs of violence.

Mr. Paddock's troubles will not really begin until he lands in Europe. On board the vessel the man can be kept locked up, but traveling through strange countries with a violently insane man on one's hands is not a job to be relished.

Mr. Dean will investigate the case in New York, and it may go hard with the steamship company which brought the man to America.

JOHN JOHNSON, COLORED, ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Death By Hanging Will be His Fate If Convicted.

THE JURY.

Edward H. Willis, shipping clerk Zenith Paper company.
Frank R. Cowden, driver for People's Moving company.
Ole O. Caistad, motorman for street railway company.
David H. Kerr, carpenter for Kelly Furniture company.
V. A. Talafous, superintendent of sash and door factory.
Ernest C. Peterson, dealer in teas and coffees.
John A. Swanson, miller.
John Larkin, manager of n clothing store.
Robert H. Weston, car checker for Northern Pacific Railway company.
Friedland Wirth, butcher.
James J. Hughes, car starter for street railway company.

John Johnson, a young colored man, formerly employed as a porter in Parker's barber shop, is on trial for his life, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Patterson, a colored woman, at 23 Fifth avenue west, last July.

Johnson is indicted for murder in the first degree, the punishment for which, in case of a conviction, is death by hanging, without the alternative of a penitentiary term.

County Attorney John H. Norton is prosecuting the case for the state, and Judge John Martin of Virginia, appeared for the defense at the examination of the jurors this morning.

The jury was complete just before the noon hour and those chosen were excused until afternoon when it was expected that the state would begin the examination of witnesses.

The triers appointed by the court were Judge Edson, Victor Stearns and A. G. McKnight. They had to pass on the qualifications of two or three of the jurors under challenge.

Twenty talesmen were examined in all before the jury was complete.

Mrs. Eva Patterson, the victim in the tragedy, enacted in the negro rooming house on Fifth avenue west, figured prominently in the Carrie Buchanan assault case. The Buchanan woman was given a penitentiary term for attempting to kill Mrs. Patterson with a razor. The latter is said to have been the housekeeper in charge of the rooming house.

One night last July while there were several occupants of the rooms in the building, the Patterson woman was shot and killed at the head of the stairs leading up to the rooms from Fifth avenue west.

Shortly after the shooting John Johnson and a woman with whom he has been living, styled Amanda Johnson, were taken into custody by the police and put through the sweatbox. It is alleged that Amanda Johnson, who is to be the state's star witness, confessed that John Johnson told her that he had killed Eva Patterson.

A revolver with one cartridge discharged was found in Amanda Johnson's trunk, but she claims to have put it there after the shooting, at the request of Johnson.

The accused has steadily maintained that he did not kill the Patterson woman and that the story told by Amanda Johnson is untrue.

So far as the evidence is concerned it is understood that the matter of fixing the crime depends on the credence that the jury will give the conflicting stories of the Johnsons.

AUTOISTS WILL COME NEXT WEEK

Plans Completed for Run From Twin Cities to Duluth.

St. Paul, Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The finishing touches are now being put on the new clubhouse of the Automobile club of St. Paul, on East Fourth street, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy before the end of October. The exterior of the building has been completed. The annual election of officers of the Automobile club will take place Nov. 2, and the club does not expect to go into its new quarters until after that time.

The next thing which will occupy the attention of the Twin City autoists will be the run from here to Duluth, which is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 11.

When the run to Duluth was first proposed, it was intended to hold it under the auspices of the State Automobile association, but it has now been decided to make it a Twin City affair. All of the autoists in the two cities are welcome to join in the tour, regardless of whether or not they are members of the club in either city.

It is understood that the Minneapolis club adready has sixteen members pledged to make the trip, and it is to be hoped that the St. Paul motorists will come to the front and join in the tour with equal numbers.

It is proposed to make the trip in two days. The start will be Friday morning, at about 9 o'clock, and it is expected that the party will arrive in Duluth Saturday afternoon. Sunday will be spent in that city, and the return trip will be made Monday morning. Those who would rather ship their cars back from Duluth can do so.

The roads are said to be in very good condition, except for a few sand hills. Any car of over 15-horse power would have no difficulty in making the trip. A repair car will accompany the tourists to look after the minor repairs while en route.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c

WHY SOLDIERS DESERT.

The number of men who desert from the army is large, and the fact constitutes a serious factor in our military establishment today. No locality is especially favored, no section of the country is immune; it is everywhere present, and being on the increase must continue to be a matter of utmost concern until remedied.

Why then do so many soldiers regard their oats so lightly and honor the flag of their country to so slight a degree? asks a writer in the Outlook. This question has yet to be answered satisfactorily, and in place of holding this evil in check it seems to be growing each year, and to be absolutely general throughout the army.

It must be understood from the first that the army is primarily an American institution, with good old American names furnishing the bulk of the muster rolls, for nowhere is the great influx of foreigners less noticeable, so that the problem is essentially an American problem, and not one brought over with the Socialists of Europe.

The soldier is, as a rule, a clean, self-respecting man; and few are inherently bad, and they do come, notwithstanding opinions to the contrary from the better class of young Americans.

Desertions, then, are not confined to the worst element in the army alone; it takes toll both from the good and the bad, seemingly without rhyme or reason, and in the great majority of cases without causation from within. The experienced captain of twenty years service may lose as many men as the young lieutenant fresh from the Point or from the ranks; the best disciplined companies and regiments drop as many as others in which the standard is not so high. Nevertheless there is a certain proportion of desertions caused by the soldier himself forcing out undesirable characters; but today this forms a small minority.

In a general discussion of the causes of desertion from influences without the army it is at once apparent that a high place must be given to impatience of restraint so characteristic of the present generation of young Americans.

There has been a marked decline in martial spirit of the American people. No one can doubt this if a close analysis is made of the class of men, with few exceptions, who are volunteering for the army today, and who did so during the war with Spain and the consequent Philippine insurrection.

There were some true and patriotic Americans ready for service anywhere in 1898; there were many others who volunteered with strings and others who sought special organizations, such as the Rough Riders and Volunteer Cavalry, but the greater majority of citizens did not offer their services because, as they expressed this truth, others would, and others did to the extent required.

The decline of martial spirit directly causes desertions by depriving the army of a type of men who in the past constituted a splendid class of noncommissioned officers and who were in every respect excellent, reliable and sticking soldiers.

It has now been demonstrated that any soldier ever deserted for the single reason of harsh or ill treatment on the part of his officers, and this cannot be considered as one of the potent causes for desertion. Within the army there are undoubtedly reasons why men become dissatisfied, and the amount of pay received when compared to the standard of civil life is small, and under present conditions inadequate.

Double the pay and desertions would probably drop off, simply because a higher grade of men would be attracted to the service; treble it and they would cease entirely. That, however, cannot be expected under present conditions.

The old soldier of years of service is the best judge of causes and effects within the army; and ask any one of them what is the greatest single cause for desertions, and he will answer without question, the abolition of the canteen, the loss of the soldiers' club. With the canteen there was a center of amusement for the soldier to pass his time in leisure hours.

It never was a drinking establishment pure and simple, as has so often been published. There were combined the features of light drinks, harmless amusements, such as card games without gambling, pool, billiards, a lunch room, and a reading room well stocked with newspapers and periodicals.

The soldiers themselves give other reasons for discontent peculiarly pertaining to the military side; and among those worthy of consideration, by the fact that they were repeated very generally, are practice marches with the entire kit, which extend throughout the year and become hard and monotonous. They fail to see the practical benefit to be gained by such an increase of hard work, and are discontented because no additional pay follows.

Many other reasons were advanced, such as non-military work in posts, soldiers enlisting rather to get out of work than expecting to do as much as in civil life at a decreased wage. They noted a change within the organizations themselves, a lack of esprit de corps, caused by the loss of so many experienced soldiers and the influx of inferior recruits.

No soldier objected to the military side pure and simple, nor thought that it had been in the past too hard; but the combination of the old with so much that was new, and so perhaps difficult, left them too little time to themselves, and resulted in the chronic condition of being tired of soldiering.

HERALD'S WEST DULUTH DEPT.

PLANS FOR TWO YEARS

Jenswold Street Subway to Be Widened and Street Paved.

Planning almost two years into the future, Alderman Filiatrault last evening succeeded in having a resolution adopted by the council directing the conference committee to make provision for the widening of the Jenswold street subway and the grading and paving of Superior, Jenswold and Oneota streets from Twenty-fifth avenue west to Forty-sixth avenue west.

The provision for widening Jenswold street would necessitate the removal of 15,550 feet of earth, at an estimated cost of $7,750. The proposed work is an undertaking of considerable magnitude. It is, however, in line with Mayor Cullum's suggestion that some provision be made for a good continuous thoroughfare from the main portion of the city to West Duluth. As it stands at present, Grand avenue, which is in anything but good shape, is the only through thoroughfare from Duluth to West Duluth, and the need for another has long been recognized.

The paving of Oneota street from Forty-sixth avenue west to Ramsey and of Ramsey street to Central avenue is now in progress. The pavement of Superior street from the end of the pavement at Twenty-fifth avenue west, to Forty-sixth avenue would give a continuous paved street from the city to West Duluth and be of incalculable benefit to West Duluth's commercial interests.

There is not enough money in the improvement fund for next year to cover the cost of the work. However, when Mayor Cullum took up the matter of the improvments, it was generaly understood that action would necessarily be slow on account of lack of funds. Provision will be made in the levy for 1909 to do the work and in two years, it is expected, West Duluth and the city proper will be thoroughly connected, as they should be.

CURLING CLUB TO MEET.

Plans for Season Will be Discussed by Members.

Tonight at the rink, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Bristol street, the members of the West Duluth Curling club will hold their first meeting of the fall. The meeting is preliminary to the regular season and plans will be made for the year's work. Officers will be elected and the activities of the club outlined.

The West Duluth Curling club counts on being a factor in curling circles of the Northwest in the season of 1907-08. Last year the club came more into prominence than ever before, and the members plan to make even a better showing this year. Last year the rink was enlarged and remodeled, another rink being added to the two already in the building.

There is some talk of a still further enlargment this year, but it is not likely anything will be done, although it will be thoroughly discussed tonight. Besides the election of officers, skips will be chosen tonight for the different rinks of the club, which will play for the trophy offered by the West Duluth Commercial club.

Last evening, at a meeting of the members of Westminster Presbyterian church, Rev. J. W. Lowry and James P. Wier were elected delegates to represent the church at the meeting of th Northwestern synod, to be held at the First Presbyterion church in Duluth, next week. Mr. Wier attends as the lay delegate. Plans were also discussed for improvements to be made to the church edifice.

THE RECIPE TO PREPARE

An Eminent Authority Predicts Much Suffering and Disease.

A Simple Prescription Which Sufferers Should Make Up and Try.

The coming months will be a harvest for the doctors and patent medicine manufacturers unless great care is taken to keep the feet dry, also dress warmly.

This is the advice of a well-known authority and should be heeded by all who are subject to rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles and, especially catarrh. While the latter is considered by most sufferers an incurable disease, there are few men or women who will fail to experience great relief from the following simple home prescription, and if taken in time it will prevent an attack of catarrh during the entire season.

Here is the prescription which any one can mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

The Compound Kargon in this prescription acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys to make them filter and strain from the blood, the poisons that produce all forms of catarrhal affections. Relief is often felt even after the first few doses and it is seldom that the sufferer ever experiences a return attack within the year.

This prescription makes a splendid remedy for all forms of blood disorders and such symptoms as lame back, bladder weaknesses and rheumatism pains are entirely dispelled.

As this valuable, though simple, recipe comes from a thoroughly reliable source, it should be heeded by every afflicted reader.

SENSATION AT NEW ROCHELLE

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The excitement under which New Rochelle labored when Samuel Bolin, who posed as a wealthy physician, was arrested on a charge of burglary, was augmented yesterday when developments came quickly.

In the first place, Bolin failed to appear in court when his case was called and the $3,000 bail which friends had put up for him was forfeited. The next shock came when Mrs. Bolin told the police that while she believed her husband owned an interest in a drug store in Harlem his regular occupation was that of bartender in a saloon in the Bronx. Then came the assertion that Bolin had served a prison term in New Jersey and had been arrested for burglary and other things in New York.

Ths was followed by the report that Mrs. Bolin had attempted suicide. She threw herself in front of a slowly moving trolley car on Main street, but the car was stopped before she was in any particular danger. Later the police stated that she had disappeared from town and they did not know where she had gone.

According to the story of Mrs. Bolin, her husband attempted twice to kill himself after he was released on bail Sunday night, but she had prevented him. Soon after, she said, he left the house and disappeared.

Bolin and his wife moved here two months ago and bought a house in the exclusive section of town, where they were received into society and became very popular. Bolin was understood to be a physician and chemist and proprietor of a drug store in Harlem. Early last Thursday morning, the police claim, he attempted burglary at Abraham Levinson's hardware store. His counsel, Judge John A. Van Solm, told the court that he believed his client had killed himself.

Mrs. Bolin told the police that she had married Bolin in Vahoff, Russia, in 1902. Soon after, her husband came to America and two years ago sent for her and she came here and joined him.

A message was received from a detective agency in New York yesterday giving some details of what is alleged to be Bolin's police record. Among other things, it is stated that Bolin was arrested in 1905, on complaint of Gussie Lichtenstein, his common law wife, on a charge of assault. While Mrs. Bolin admitted that her name was Gussie she denied that she ever had gone by the name of Lichtenstein, Rosenberg or Goldman, the latter two names being those used by a woman who is said to have been arested with Bolin in 1906 on a charge of theft.

Doan's Kidney Pills never fail you.
Duluth people know this.

Read how Doan's stood the test
For many years.
It's local testimony and can be investigated:

Edward J. Hoppman, mineralogist, living at 422 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "The best proof of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills that I can give is that since using this remedy for a bad attack of kidney trouble, some six years ago, I have not found it necessary to use any medicine at all for my kidneys. At the time when I began using them I suffered from sharp aching pains in the back and loins. The kidney secretions were disordered and the trouble told on my general health. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and a final cure, and the permanence of the results thoroughly proves that this remedy can be depended upon in such cases."

MAY TAX THE BILLBOARDS

Other Routine Matters Disposed of by the Council.

The weight of street railway rails, the placing of arc lights in certain portions of the city, and a possible additional source of revenue for the city in the taxing of bill boards, were a few of the commonplace subjects the council took up at the meeting last evening, and an early adjournment was taken.

The ordinance directing the street railway company to construct a double track on the West Fourth and West Third street lines, and to run a ten-minute schedule on the West Fourth street line, was passed. The ordinance was amended somewhat, it being stipulated that the rails be eight inches high and weigh at least eighty pounds to the yard. It was stated by some of the aldermen that the street car company has been relaying old rails, weighing sixty pounds or less.

Some discussion followed the motion to pass the ordinance, it being advanced that to stipulate a certain weight of rail would preclude the laying of a heavier one in the future, but the argument was made that the 80-pound rail is the best obtainable at present, and that when a better rail is on the market, it will be an easy matter to amend the ordinance.

As anticipated in The Herald of last evening, the report of the finance committee, declaring the tax levy of 16 mills was received and laid over for another week.

Arc lights are desired in certain parts of the city, one on London road, where residences are located, and another on Thirty-ninth avenue west, and the resolutions for the same were referred to the proper committee.

Alderman Staples was of the opinion that a revenue could be derived by the city by taxing the bill board agents $1 per running foot for the boards, and requiring the boards to be removed from the lot line twelve feet. The city attorney was asked for an opinion as to the legality of such an ordinance. The city attorney was also asked to draw up an ordinance to prohibit the leaving of ice cakes or washing of ice on sidewalks.

The matter of sidewalks, and the delay in construction of the same, was brought up by Alderman Haven. A resolution, providing that uncompleted walks be laid by the city, in certain localities where property owners have laid a portion of the walk, was passed. It was intimated that the work can be performed by day labor, under the supervision of the city engineer, at as low a figure as by contract, and this is permissible under the charter.

Assistant City Attorney McKeon addressed the council, stating that the legal department of the city had been called upon to prosecute parties who had failed to make sewer connections when upon investigation it was found that to make such connection was an impossibility, water not being piped to within several blocks of their homes. He asked that a closer scrutiny of the cases be made before the department was asked to make prosecutions.

The petition for paving Fourth street, mentioned in The Herald, was received by the council last evening, and referred to the proper committee.

The following convictions for violating the liquor laws have been reported: Fred Zuerhead, selling liquor on Pike lake road without a license; Josie Ogden, selling liquor without a license at 1321 West Michigan street; Peter Boschenbossel, keeping saloon open for business on Sunday; John B. Caverly, selling liquor without a license.

ROOT GUEST OF MEXICANS

Mexico City, Oct. 1.—Greeted by several thousand people, among whom were many members of the American colony in this city, Secretary of State Elihu Root arrived in Mexico City at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the special train which brought him from the border as the guest of the Mexican government. Accompanying him were Mrs. Root and Miss Edith Root. As the train pulled into the National station, the artillery band played an American patriotic air and the statesman was given a rousing welcome.

Secretary of Foreign Affairs Ignacio Marscial, who headed the local reception committee, was one of the first to greet Mr. Root on his arrival at the station. The board of governors of the city and the aldermen, in a body, were on hand to extend official welcome to the visitors. Mrs. Landa Escandan, Mrs. Fernando Pimentely Fagota and other prominent women of the city greeted Mrs. Root and Miss Root and extended them welcome.

The party was at once conducted outside the station where carriages were waiting to take Secretary Root and party to Chapultepec. Every arrangement had been made for the reception of the distinguished visitors at Chapultepec. The gendarmerie band played American and Mexican patriotic airs. Shortly after the arrival at Chapultepec tea was served. There were no other functions on the entertainment program for the day, and Mr. Root and party were left to recuperate after the long journey from Washington here.

In accordance with the Mexican custom, Chapultepec castle was formally turned over to Mr. Root, who was told that the place would be his residence during his stay in Mexico. The apartments that Mr. Root and family will occupy are the most elaborate in Mexico. A telegraph room with two expert operators from the central station in charge was fitted up and will be at the disposal of Mr. Root. An automobile and two carriages pulled by the finest horses of the government has been placed at his disposal.

SCORES THE COMPANIES

Council on Record Opposing Telegraph Companies' Attitude.

Following a precedent established by other cities the council went on record as against the continuance of the telegraphers' strike at the session last evening, by the passage of a resolution, denouncing in emphatic terms the methods of the telegraph companies in failing to arbitrate, and insisting upon the necessity of a settlement of the strike. The resolution was introduced by Alderman Shartel and passed without a dissenting vote. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, the telegraphers employed by the Western Union Telegraph company, a corporation chartered under the laws of the state of New York, and the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, operated by a holding company under the style of the Mackay companies; and the Associated Press, a voluntary association, organized for the purpose of furnishing its membership telegraph reports of current events in all parts of the habitable globe, went on strike Aug. 9, and,

"Whereas, this strike continues in operation and is so complete that the great telegraph companies are unable to handle even the most important messages without serious delay, and are actually forwarding by United States mail an important percentage of the messages handed them for telegraphic transmission, and are doing this in a manner calculated to deceive the addressor and addressee of such mailed messages, and,

"Whereas, though the demands of these striking telegraphers seem reasonable, the Western Union Telegraph company, the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, (operated by the Mackay companies), and the Associated Press, declare they will not treat in any way, shape or manner with their striking employes,

"Whereas, the city of Duluth, with its great financial, commercial and general business interests, more than most other cities, needs absolutely the very best telegraph facilities, and,

"Whereas, the financial, commercial and general business interests of Duluth have for seven weeks or more been subjected to great loss and annoyance in consequence of this partly telegraph and partly mail methods of handling their most important and urgent communications, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the city council of the city of Duluth deprecates the policy of these great companies in condemning their striking employes to starvation or submission, and the financial, commercial and general business interests of the city of Duluth to indefinite loss, vexation and annoyance; and the said city council of the city of Duluth, hereby declares it to be the duty of these three great employers to meet representatives of their striking employes and to do all that may reasonably be expected in order to adjust the differences to the end that normal telegraph service may be restored, and be it further,

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States; to Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, and the president, general manager and directors of the Western Union Telegraph company, the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, (operated by the Mackay companies) and the Associated Press."

COLLEGE OPENS

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan College of Mines resumed Monday after a four weeks' vacation. Students have been arriving on every train in Houghton for several days and the college year is begun with a larger class than ever. The college offers more courses this year than ever before, and the many branches of study offered the students have made the registration unusually complicated.

On the campus there have been but comparatively few changes with the exception of the minor improvements that will always follow the opening of the college year. The new power house is practically completed and work is being rushed as fast as possible. In the gymnasium and club rooms a few changes have been made and some additional apparatus added in the gymnasium and furniture in the club room.

STRONGER AT CLOSE

Anaconda Dividend Not Cut as Much as Expected.

The Copper Shares Rally After It is Announced.

The Anaconda dividend, despite a cut of 50 cents, was better than expected, and the market rallied after it was announced. The close of the coppers was therefore strong.

The dividend on Anaconda was 5 per cent, $1.25 a share, instead of 7 per cent, $1.75 a share, as last time. The dividend is payable Oct. 16, the books closing Oct. 5 and reopening Oct. 15.

It was rumored during the day that the Copper Range company had sold 500,000 pounds of copper at 15 cents a pound and this caused buying in some of the leading issues.

North Butte opened at $48, advanced to $49, declined to $47.62½, and closed at $48.62½ bid and $49 asked. Amalgamated opened at $59, went as low as $58.25, reacted to $60 after the Anaconda dividend was made known, and closed at $60 bid.

Butte Coalition opened at $15.50, advanced to $15.75 and closed at $15.50 bid and $15.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $110, declined to $108, rallied to $109 and closed at $108 bid and $109 asked. Anaconda opened at $38.75, advanced to $39.12½, declined to $38.75 and closed at $39 bid.

THIEF LEFT HIM A FIVE SPOT

James Robertson Robbed of Wallet by Magnanimous Burglar.

James Robertson, assistant general freight agent of the South Shore road, arrived in Duluth from Hancock, Mich., this morning with less money than he had when he started. He had been "seen" by a magnanimous road agent. Mr. Robertson retired early and exercised all the precautions of an old traveler regarding the safety of his wallet.

Arising this morning he knew at once by the decreased weight of his trousers that something was missing. It was the wallet. A hurried search of the car disclosed none but acquaintances, all above suspicion. He found the wallet tucked under the seat, and out of the considerable sum of money, which he carried out of Hancock, he found only one $5 note. The magnanimous burglar did not choose to leave his victim penniless. Suspicion attaches itself to a traveler, who let the train at a small station early in the morning.

GOVERNMENT CANNOT HOLD I. B. ROSENBERG.

Milwaukee, Oct. 1.—Government attorneys engaged in prosecuting the so-called land fraud cases under indictments returned in Denver, Colo., in connection with the operations of the Federal Coal & Iron company, announced today that they were convince of their inability to hold I. B. Rosenberg, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, and he will probably be discharged by Commissioner Bloodgood. It is expected that similar action will be taken with Charles S. Carter, C. E. Canright, Walter S. Johnson and Henry Weir, stockholders in the Wisconsin Coal Mining company. Assistant Attorney General Knabel asked for Rosenberg's discharge, but the commissioner ruled that he could not discharge him at this time, or until after he had heard all of the cases.

SAHARA'S BANDITS TAMED.

The greatest attraction at the colonial exposition which the French government has opened at Vincennes is the Tuareg encampment. The bandits of the Sahara are there with their tents, their camels and their weapons, says the New York Sun.

The veiled Tuarega showed neither astonishment nor interest as they crossed the Mediterranean, nor were they moved by the sights of the capital of France. One fact impressed them deeply. This was that they saw men meet strangers and treat them affably without first ascertaining whether they were friends or enemies. They could not understand it.

The density of population also impressed them as strange, and no wonder, for they had often traveled 300 miles to attack a caravan without meeting a soul.

Two years ago a Frenchman who met a small party of Tuaregs, at the time that peace was made with the bandits, tried in vain to get a good photograph of them. He succeeded in snapping his camera just once, but the conditions were not favorable, for every Tuareg had his face covered with a veil. Times have changed, and at Versailles every man of them is unveiled, except when they are exhibited in full attire.

Six years ago these robbers captured one of the largest trading caravans that ever fell into their hands. A large number of camels and their drivers were transporting 1,500 packages of ivory, ostrich feathers and hides from the central Sudan across the desert to Tripoli. The value of this merchandise was about $300,000.

The caravan had scarcely emerged from the Sudan into the desert when the Tuaregs, their faces veiled as usual and their excellent firearms in the best condition, swooped down upon it. Resistance was useless, and the valuable freight was diverted to the strongholds of the robbers in the inner part of the desert.

Readers of the Sun already know what has brought about the change in the circumstances of these nomads. Instead of the slow baggage camels the French used when the Sahara first became their domain they now utilize animals specially fitted and trained for fast travel.

It was not until the French possessed camels that could cover three times as much ground in a day as the ordinary pack animal that they were able to cope with the Tuaregs. The Tuaregs for generations had picked and trained their camels so that at first the French were unable to catch them.

But for three years past every French troop in the Saharan service has equalled the Tuaregs in celerity of movement. Since then the Tuaregs have no longer been immune from punishment.

The French can catch them whenever they please. The nomads have been tamed and the once redoubtable warriors have been for about two years as peaceable as women, save for one or two exploits by small parties. They thought they were at a safe distance from the French, but found their mistake when they were called to severe account for outrages upon small caravans.

In the last two years three parties, two French and one German, numbering only a few men, have crossed the desert safely without molestation from the bandits. The last large expedition French sent across the Sahara numbered 1,000 camels, all of them slow baggage animals. The Tuaregs did not hesitate on several occasions to attack the stragglers and make off with their guns and supplies, well knowing that the French could not catch them.

ROOSEVELT STANDS PAT.

Admitting that the administration's campaign against great lawbreakers might be a contributory cause of the unsettlement of business, though denying that it is the basic cause, President Roosevelt said in his speech at Keokuk, Iowa, today:

> But if so it is a disagreeable but unavoidable feature of a course of policy which, as long as I am president, will not be changed.

Probably there was nobody so fond and foolish as to imagine that the president would back down, because of the appeals of alarmed business interests, from the position he has taken. The above utterance is only what should have been expected, and what undoubtedly was expected, from him sometime during the course of the six speeches he had contracted to deliver on his way down the great river. To retreat would be weakness, and whatever Theodore Roosevelt may be, he is not weak. Indeed, in a man of his character, the only result to be expected from appeals of the sort that have been made to him is that they would strengthen his purpose.

He added that he would do anything he could to help business "except anything that is wrong;" and from his viewpoint a turn about to the back trail would be wrong. Beyond doubt the vast majority of the people will sustain him in his refusal to tie up the dogs of war that are barking on the heels of the great offenders against the law.

The campaign against the evils of monopoly and the abuses of the power of great financial enterprises is not the cause of the temporary recession in industrial activity, though—and here is a distinction that must not be overlooked—the bear leaders in the stock market have used it as a club to beat down the prices of stocks to a plane far below that of their real value. The cause of the business recession is wholly apart from the campaign against dishonest business operations, and the fact that it is more or less world-wide furnishes plentiful evidence of the truth of this statement.

As a matter of fact, however, the conditions against which the president is at war have been suffered to continue so long that it was to be expected that when they were attacked the ultimate result would involve some disurbance of business stability. The longer they were permitted to continue, the greater the disturbance. The fact that the success of the campaign would ultimately create better and sounder and more stable business conditions does not prevent this temporary disturbance.

But the campaign, which is not the president's but the people's, will not cease. It will not cease with the expiration of President Roosevelt's term of office. The people will elect next year a president that will take it up and carry it on, and it will be maintained until it is successfully completed, whether it takes one or half a dozen administrations to do it.

LOOSENESS SOMEWHERE.

Yesterday afternoon, as related in the local columns of The Herald last night, the local immigrant inspector and an attendant left for New York with an insane Austrian, who must be taken back to his native village because he had been here less than six months and was therefore subject to deportation.

The evidence goes to show that this man was insane when he landed in this country a few months ago. He has been insane ever since, with occasional intervals of lucidity, though it was not until recently that he became so violent as to attract the attention of the authorities.

Now it would seem that it would be very much easier, as well as very much less expensive, if the guard at the coast were kept a little closer and if such immigrants were shut out upon their arrival, instead of being suffered to enter the country and give annoyance and create expense.

There is something decidedly wrong somewhere when such a thing as this can happen. Not only are the immigration authorities that let this lunatic into the country at fault, but the steamship authorities that brought him over and unloaded him upon this shore are guilty of either neglect or connivance at what should be a serious offense.

This is the first instance of this sort that has occurred in Duluth, but if it can happen once, it may happen often. If the restrictive provisions at the coast are so lax that a madman can get through them, one wonders what they do shut out, if they shut out anything.

It would seem to be up to the government to look into the gateway through which this insane man came, and to give the steamship company that brought him over a little touch of high life.

WHO WOULDN'T BE ONE?

The burden of care that sits upon the incumbent of the job of being a congressman is enormous, no doubt, but it is getting to be so that it has its compensations, too.

First, the congressmen raised their salaries. Where they had to struggle along before on $5,000 a year, now they draw $7,500, and they find it much easier to make both ends meet since their pay was increased 50 per cent.

Then they are allowed $1,500 a year for a secretary, and it is possible, by undertaking a little more work yourself, to put most of that into your savings bank. You are allowed $125 a year for stationery, and if you are frugal and don't answer too many letters you can save most of this, too; and "every little bit, added to what you've got, makes a little bit more."

Up to the present time the congressmen have had to find their own offices, unless they were chairmen of important committees, and this involved paying office rent unless you had your office in your hat, as some of them did.

Now, however, a benevolent government has built a large and handsome office building for the congressmen. Judging from the descriptions of it at hand, it is a dream, and it will serve to make the life of the congressman almost bearable. The cost of this building, together with that of a tunnel connecting it with the capitol, by which the journey can be made free from the inclement aspects that the Washington climate assumes at times, is about $3,000,000, which would provide every congressman with an $8,000 residence in Washington if it had been spent that way. Perhaps that will be the next step.

The building is of Vermont marble, and the corridors are lined with the same expensive material. The woodwork is of mahogany throughout. Each congressman will have a private office room, and any one of these offices would satisfy the $50,000 president of a life insurance company. In each office room there will be a large square-top mahogany desk for the statesman and a smaller one for his private secretary. Then there will be a mahogany typewriter desk, and an abundance of mahogany chairs of the deep, comfy, sea-going variety, hourly inviting the congressman to come and recline in them—or in one of them—and sink in its luxurious depths the cares and burdens that beset him. Attached to each office is a private lavatory fitted out in mahogany, and on the lower floors are all the conveniences of a millionaire's club, including a big swimming tank and a handsome cafe.

In each office there will be a modern talking machine, by the use of which you can recline aristocratically in one of those deep chairs and listen to what is going on in the house of representatives. The only fear is that for a time the charms of those luxurious offices and their comfortable chairs will be so strong that there will be nobody in the house to start anything to listen to.

Being congressman isn't going to be so bad, after all.

MORE OF SPEAKER CANNON.

The Herald's Washington correspondent last evening related the important and interesting fact that Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois will be re-elected as speaker of the Sixtieth congress, and that he will once more rule the potent gavel of the popular and national body of congress.

As Senator Aldrich is still a member of the unpopular and federal branch of congress, it looks as though the team would be the same as before: Aldrich and Cannon; standpatism and reaction.

In view of this prospect, Republican promises of tariff revision do not look as substantial as they sound. Most of the Republican leaders seem to be agreed that for purposes of campaign argument at least they are for a revision of the tariff by its friends.

Yet what kind of tariff revision will a house presided over by Speaker Cannon produce? He will frame the committee on ways and means which must prepare whatever tariff measure is presented to the house, and if he frames it up as he has framed it in the past, it will represent the "interests" and not the people, and little can be looked for from it in the way of tangible relief from the burdens that the Dingley schedules have placed upon the shoulders of the American people.

It is no surprise to learn that Cannon is to be re-elected. There has been no serious candidacy in opposition to him. It had been sugested that the president might run Congressman Burton of Ohio for the place, but Tom Johnson of Cleveland is making him busy enough over the mayoralty of Cleveland to keep his hands full. But in view of the past attitude and acts of Cannon, his re-election will not make the outlook for tariff revision any brighter.

SPECULATIONS.

The New York Press, a Republican newspaper, prints an interesting discussion of next year's presidential probabilities which is intended to show that the Republican party must consult New York if it would win, but which also shows that Republican victory is by no means such an absolute certainty as some partisans might imagine.

Speculation on the results without taking into consideration the personalities of the candidates is more or less futile, of course. While the Republicans might be invincible with a popular candidate, they might, with a reactionary candidate feared and distrusted by the people, fall into an abyss of disaster as deep and as dark as that into which Parker led the Democrats three years ago. On the other hand, the Democrats, handicapped as they are by dissensions and vagueness of policies, might prove irresistible if they were led by a candidate who appealed to all classes as progressive, well-balanced and trustworthy.

Counting Oklahoma, next year's electoral college will have 483 votes, and 242 will be necessary for a choice. The South, counting Oklahoma, Delaware and West Virginia, will have 176 votes, leaving 66 votes for the Democrats to gain in the debatable states in order to win. The Press is not favorable to Taft, and says that if he is the candidate it unhesitatingly concedes to the Democrats all of these votes, because in Delaware and West Virginia the Republicans have been successful of late through the votes of black men, and these have been alienated by the discharge of the colored troops at Brownsville, Tex.

The Press classes New York, with its thirty-nine votes, and New Jersey, with its twelve votes, together, and says that as one goes the other will go, which is probably correct. If the Democrats can gain these fifty-one votes, they will be only fifteen votes short of victory. And as to these states the Press says: "This paper does not doubt—we think no student of the present political situation doubts—that as conditions are today and as they are likely to continue, New York is as Democratic as it was a year ago when only Governor Hughes, of the whole Republican state ticket, could be elected, though—impressive lesson!—his plurality was one of the largest ever piled up in the Empire state."

The Press says that Taft cannot carry New York and New Jersey, and that to nominate him makes a present of the fifty-one electoral votes to the Democrats, which would leave them only fifteen more to gain in order to land their candidate in the White House.

The Press finds plenty of chances for the fifteen votes in Indiana, where there is a very large colored vote; in Ohio, where there is not only a large negro population but bitter internal party dissensions to hamper Republican success; and on the Pacific coast, where the Asiatic attitude of the administration has excited the people, and where the tariff views of Mr. Taft are roundly criticised by Republican newspapers.

The Press does not say so, but it is easy to suspect that its moral is: Nominate Hughes.

One way to save money and beat the coal trust this winter is to freeze.

The "lid" is going to apply to the clubs, it is said. Well, club members are no more entitled to Sunday drinks than workingmen.

The Little Falls Transcript says that "in his lack of weak points Governor Johnson is very strong;" and then, its partisanshp prodding its conscience, it adds: "for a Democrat."

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A report to the effect that the proprietors of the McKay hotel are seriously considering the matter of adding two stories to the hotel as it stands at present is but a further indication of the growing importance of Duluth, both as a commercial center and a point that is of interest to the tourist.

The McKay practically doubled its capacity last spring, but despite this fact the accommodations have been inadequate to meet the growing demands made upon the hostelry. The same holds true of the Lenox hotel, which added two stories last winter, but which was not large enough to take care of the summer business. The Spalding and the St. Louis, as well as smaller hotels, have had more business coming their way this year than they could attend to, and all of them are making improvements in preparation for the big business that is anticipated for next year.

The summer and fall season of 1907 has been a record-breaker for Duluth hotels. The Portland exposition year, when thousands of Easterners passed through Duluth in order to take the lake trip on their way to the coast, established a new mark for local hotels, and it was not expected that this mark would be touched for several years. It was touched and passed this season, however. What has surprised the landlords as much as anything is the way business has kept up, even after the close of the regular season, when it is generally expected that business with the hotels will be very light.

Improvement work at the St. Louis is progressing satisfactorily. It will be some little time yet, however, before the improvements are all complete. The hotel is being remodeled throughout, and in the neighborhood of $100,000 is being spent in the undertaking. It is requiring more capital than was originally planned on, in fact. Expense seems to be no object with the management, and the workman and materials are of the best. There will not be a handsomer hotel interior in the Northwest than the St. Louis when the work as at present planned is completed.

With the coming of the steel plant and other industries that will follow, and the increase in population that will come from year to year, it is entirely reasonable to believe that another first-class hotel will be erected in Duluth before many years have passed. The need of an exclusive summer hotel has long been felt, and there is an excellent chance of this need being filled before long.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man can generally think he enjoys life somehow unless he gets too respectable.

The best way for parents to train their children is to hire somebody else to do it.

The worst thing about prosperity is everybody thinks he has to live up to it and a little beyond.

A burglar ought to be ashamed of himself to go into rooms with all those fluffy clothes displayed on the chairs.

The mistake about a honeymoon is a woman can keep reminding her husband all the rest of his life how different he is from then.

Standard Oil Magic.

Providence Journal: Watch the professor! Standard Oil owned Waters-Pierce stock to the amount of nearly 2,000 shares, for some time up to 1899. From that date to quite recently the stock was owned, or, at least, held—a distinction calculated to create a difference between the corporation and legal view—by Standard's secretary. During that period splendid dividends seem to have accrued to Standard from the secretary's investment. The wonderful trick is possibly explainable thus simply: The gentleman whose hat is taken for the display of the trick is really a confederate of the magician.

Abolish It Altogether.

New York Sun: Now somebody else is going to gladden the hearts of mankind by "making a dash for the north pole." Can't the north pole be abolished by international agreement?

THE WEATHER.

This morning the outlook was not so good. A northeast wind and a cloudy sky formed a threatening combination, but the weather man while he looks for showers tonight and maybe tomorrow, says the wind will shift to westerly tomorrow, which should head off any northeaster that may be thinking of coming this way. Yesterday's highest temperature was 56 degs. and last night's lowest was 42 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, fine and wholesome.

The sun rose this morning at 6:07, and sets tonight at 5:48, making 11 hours and 41 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Western Canada disturbance has developed considerable energy. During the past twenty-four hours its center has moved from Alberta to Saskatchewan. It has caused light to heavy rains in North Pacific districts and most of the region lying between the Mississippi river and the Rocky Mountains, and higher temperatures throughout the Northwest generally. The Upper Mississippi valley high pressure has moved to the Eastern Lake region and has caused frosty weather over most of the Lake region and cooler temperatures in North Atlantic states. The Eastern movement of the Saskatchewan low pressure area will be attended in this section by showers this afternoon and probably tonight or Wednesday.

Rented Brains.

Lincoln State Journal: Every day's evidence of the Standard Oil officials deepens the impression that the Standard Oil company is a total degenerate. It simply will not obey the law if the law stands between it and a desired end. The admission on Wednesday that the Corsicana oil company is a Standard concern proves nothing new, but the device exposed on that day for beating the interstate commerce law is new and novel.

The law requires the Standard's pipe lines to be common carriers and take independent shipments of oil at reasonable rates. The law applied necessarily to interstate shipments only, and the company promptly went out of the interstate pipe line business. It put its pipe line business in New York under one of its companies, that of New Jersey under another, that of Pennsylvania under another, with connecting stations on the state lines. Then it refused to make interstate rates, and barred the independents out.

It would be interesting to know who devised this brilliant plan. When H. M. Tilford was on the stand the other day Mr. Kellogg asked him where the company got the inspiration for a certain shrewd scheme to block the law. "I guess it was our attorney," replied Mr. Tilford. Possibly this later maneuver is another monument to the legal talent whose brains are the burglar's kit of the law breaking corporation.

Drawbacks of the Kimono.

Turner's Falls Reporter: In passing along any thoroughfare on a hot day almost every woman seated on the piazza, or in sight about the houses, wears a kimono. Of course, they are comfortable and they are undeniably cheap, but they are as insidious in their evil effects as the drink habit. A woman addicted to the kimono loses all the gumption and "get up and git" in her nature and is apt to degenerate into a flabby, floppy mush of concession. The kimono is a garment fit to be donned only in the strict privacy of one's own room. Any other use of it is an imposition upon the public, and a woman ought to be as much ashamed to have her neighbors see her in a kimono as she ought to be, and thank goodness, usually is, to be detected in curl papers or with a toilet mask on. Some women manage to look angelic in a kimono, but these should not place a stumbling block in the path of their less favored sisters by flaunting the garment in public and inciting others to do the same. A kimono accentuates every defect of line and proportion, and the average female looks like a jelly bag or a sofa pillow that has been sadly mauled in one of them.

Peculiarity.

Atchison Globe: The size of the task is not always what delays its accomplishment. A farmer will plow up a 200-acre plat several times before he can get around to digging up his wife's flower bed.

A PHOSPHORESCENT LAKE.

Detroit Free Press: The Lake of Waterloo is a phosphorescent sheet of water, 1,000 feet long, near Nassau, in the Bahamas. At night it is like a sheet of living fire, if any wind is stirring to ruffle its surface.

If the night be calm the water lies dark and still until some object sets it in motion. Little colored boys are paid to swim out in the lake, where they seem to be clothed in garments of flame, leaving a long trail of molten splendor behind them.

The oars when rowing are as when dipped in fire, and if one holds up a handful of the water and lets it fall it looks like beads of gold, and the fish that dart here and there, startled by the visitors, leave flashes of mystic, glowing splendor behind them.

The clumsy turtles that move about look like balls of fire, and when it rains the lake is like a mass of jewels. This marvelous display of phosphorescence has never been accounted for, as the lake is of artificial formation, having been made for the breeding of turtles by a Nassau resident. The bed of the lake is cut out of solid limestone, and is filled from the sea, in which there is little of the phosphorescent quality.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Big Falls Compass: The state tax commissioners value the iron mines of the north at $200,000,000. That is one reason why Northern Minnesota must be kept in bondage by Southern politicians.

North Branch Review: City newspaper men must be reforming. The Minneapolis papers do not know how many saloons there are in Minneapolis. 'Twas not ever thus!

Anoka Free Press: It seems that the Free Press has lots of Democratic sharers in its belief that the nomination of Bryan would disrupt the party to such an extent that the election of a Republican president would be inevitable, while the nomination of Johnson, if secured without hostility of Bryan and his personal admirers, would be almost certain of resulting in Democratic victory. Democrats all over the United States have tried hard to elect Bryan and have failed; if they should be forced by circumstances to make still another trial, it would be with such a clearly defined prescience of certain defeat as to make the effort still-born from the start.

Elk River Star-News: It is generally conceded that Judge Lochren slopped over woefully in his criticism of the legislature. I was uncalled for and in exceeding bad taste from any point of view.

Little Falls Transcript: It may be a good act for Minnesota Republicans if the Democrats of the nation kidnap John A. Johnson for a presidential campaign. But maybe any harmless Democrat can be elected governor in Minnesota as long as the Republican party divides into two or three factions. When the G. O. P. gets harmonious in Minnesota it can easily whip Johnson or any other Democrat.

Ada Index: Governor Johnson is becoming more and more a possibility as the Democratic presidential nominee. Democratic leaders in the East are looking to him as the Moses to go up against the Republicans.

Brainerd Tribune: The Boston Transcript, a very conservative newspaper, believes that the country may see "two dark horses" sprung in the big conventions next year. Well, the people have had two runs of Bryan and two terms of Roosevelt—and the desire of a change is always strong. Both parties may treat the country to dark horse candidates.

Pine River Sentinel: Roosevelt says positively that he won't run for the Republican nomination. He won't have to. It's merely a case of walk.

Monticello Times: Americans may never take kindly to vegetarianism, but the beef trust is doing all it can to educate them that way.

At the Turn of the Road.

The glory has passed from the goldenrod's plume
The purple-hued asters still linger in bloom;
The birch is bright yellow, the sumachs are red,
The maples like torches aflame overhead.

But what if the joy of the summer is past,
And winter's wild herald is blowing his blast?
For me dull November is sweeter than May,
For my love is its sunshine—she meets me today!

Will she come?—will she ring dove return to her nest?
Will the needle swing back from the east or the west?
At the stroke of the hour she will be at her gate.
A friend may prove laggard—love never comes late.

Do I see her afar in the distance? Not yet.
Too early! Too early! She could not forget!
When I cross the old bridge where the brook overflowed,
She will flash full in sight at the turn of the road.

I pass the low wall where the ivy entwines;
I tread the brown pathway that leads through the pines;
I haste by the boulder that lies in the field,
Where her promise at parting was lovingly sealed.

Will she come by the hillside or round through the wood?
Will she wear her brown dress or her mantle and hood?
The minute draws near—but her watch may be wrong;
My heart will be asking, what keeps her so long?

Why doubt for a moment? More shame if I do!
Why question? Why tremble? Are angels more true?
She would come to the lover who calls her his own,
Though she trod in the track of a whirling cyclone!

I crossed the old bridge ere the minute had passed;
I looked: lo! my love stood before me at last.
Her eyes, how they sparkled, her checks, how they glowed,
As we met face to face, at the turn of the road!

—OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

What Is a Great Man?

Lord Beaconsfield: Is it a minister of state? Is it a victorious general? A field marshal covered with stars? Is it a prelate or a prince? A king, even an emperor? It may be all of these; yet these, as we must all daily feel, are not necessarily great men. A great man is one who affects the mind of his generation, whether he be a monk in his cloister agitating Christendom, or a monarch crossing the Granicus, and giving a new character to the pagan world.

Rockefeller Exposed.

Baltimore News: The Standard Oil investigation has brushed away one popular delusion. It turns out, after all, that John D. Rockefeller is only a poor multimillionaire, being far short of the billion-dollar mark.

LAUGHING GAS.

Washington Star: "Does your son like his new position?"

"No," answered Farmer Corntossel; "Josh is havin' his usual trouble with bosses that want to butt in and run the business wrong."

Philadelphia Ledger: "No, I've nothing for you," snapped the woman. "Why don't you look for work?"

"Madam," responded the applicant for a handout, "no later than this morning I read of a man near here who starved to death while looking for work. I do not desire to annoy the hospitable community by expiring in its midst."

Chicago Tribune: "Once in a while," said Uncle Allen Sparks, "you meet a man who is so busy talking about the 'higher life,' the 'universal brotherhood of man,' and the 'general uplift,' that he never has time to change his socks."

Philadelphia Press: "My son, I have brought you some of that fine old dyspepsia medicine father and I used to take. It never fails."

"But, mother, I haven't a particle of indigestion."

"Take the medicine, my son. I met your wife just now on her way to the new hygienic cooking school."

Chicago News: Biggs—Bilkins is a man who is never at a loss when it comes to choosing a word.

Diggs—No, but he chooses so many words that are only printed in dashes.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Say, Limpey."

"W'ot?"

"Here it says in dis paper dat Baconham, de rich packer, has gone over to some place in Germany to take de baths."

"Gee, how foolish some people git do minute dey have money."

Baltimore American: "Didn't it give you something of a pang to part with the fashionable summers at Newport?"

"Well, come to think of it, it was something of a monkey wrench."

Philadelphia Press: "That man is the pitcher, is he?" said the unsophisticated girl in the grandstand.

"Yes; he's the pitcher."

"What is he doing with the ball now?"

"He's biting it, to see if there are any weak places in the cover," shamefully lied the young man sitting by her side.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Occasionally a dull person shines in an emergency.

Keeping your mouth shut is an easy way not to hurt people's feelings.

But the pot has no excuse for calling the kettle black if it is porcelain lined.

Some men use their minds as storehouses and some others use theirs as junkshops.

While a pretty woman may not care to be brainy, a brainy woman always wants to be pretty.

When a young man loves a girl more than tongue can tell he is always ready and willing to show her.

If a man tells a woman he loves her as often as she wants to hear it his conversation will be awfully monotonous.

The Child in the Garden.

When to the garden of untroubled thought
I came of late, and saw the open door,
And wish again to enter and explore
The sweet, wild ways with stainless bloom inwrought,
And bowers of innocence with beauty fraught,
It seemed some purer voice must speak before
I dared to tread that garden loved of yore,
That Eden lost unknown and found unsought.

Then just within the gate I saw a child—
A stranger-child, yet to my heart most dear—
Who held his hands to me, and softly smiled
With eyes that knew no shade of sin or fear;
"Come in," he said, "and play a while with me;
I am the little child you used to be."

—HENRY VAN DYKE.

Fixing the Date.

"Well, yes, the fighting did start a few weeks after the ceremony."

TOUCHED THE JUDGE'S HEART

Cleveland Waif Finds a Good Friend in Judge Windom.

Harry Davis, a homeless young man, left police court feeling far different than when he entered this morning, and all on account of the sympathetic chord he struck in the heart of Judge Windom, when he told his story to the court.

The boy's home is in Cleveland, and he has been a waif for some time, drifting here and there, from one place to another and earning a rather uncertain living as helper in lumber camps, deckhand on lake boats and at divers other jobs.

He came to Duluth from one of the range towns last Saturday with the small sum of $3.67, and after buying a pair of shoes, looked around for employment.

"Couldn't you find work," asked the court as the boy told his story with his eyes full of tears and voice trembling with emotion he tried hard to conceal.

"Yes, if I had the dollar to pay for the job, but I didn't after paying for the shoes. They made me pay for my board in advance and I thought I'd take the train out to the first camp and get a job. The policeman got me just as I was stealing a ride out," he replied.

Young Davis told the court that he had a mother living in Cleveland, but that his father was dead. Judge Windom suspended sentence in his case and as soon as the other cases were disposed of called the young man to him and said: "Do you want work? If you do come with me."

In less than ten minutes the judge had secured a job for the boy at the plant of the Duluth Corrugating & Roofing company just across the street and provisions were made for his board until he had earned enough to pay for it.

The boy broke down and sobbed like a child when he tried to thank the judge. "That's nothing, my boy, just stick to your work and you will come out all right," and Judge Windom hurried away to deal out justice to others to be arraigned before him.

MAY LOCATE HIS RELATIVES

A possible clew to relatives or friends of William Langon, the employe of the health department who disappeared some three weeks ago, was discovered today.

Two gentlemen living in the vicinity of the boarding house where Langon resided, here, called at the office of the health department with a bill for three weeks' room rent. They stated the missing man owed a Mrs. Johnson where he roomed. They were referred to the city treasurer, and the bill was filed against the wages Langon had coming.

A letter, postmarked Gladstone, Mich., came to the boarding house recently and the same was turned over to Chief Troyer, who has communicated with the writer whose name appears on the envelope, in hope of learning something of his relatives or friends.

It develops that Langon had hypothecated most of his wages, an order for a suit of clothes having been given him but a few days before he disappeared so mysteriously.

SECRETARY CORTELYOU

Will Make Some Changes In Connection With Public Service.

Washington, Oct. 1.—On his return to Washington Secretary of Treasury George B. Cortelyou will inaugurate several new features in connection with public service.

The principal one will relate to public buildings, which include United States postoffices, courthouses, etc.

During the past year a majority of bids submitted for the erection of public buildings have been rejected for the reason that the amount appropriated is not sufficient to construct the proposed edifices.

It is proposed to have an innovation in the office of the supervising architect where all plans and specifications originate.

The system of estimating, now in operation, is one of the antiquated relics of the past, and it will be done away with and a new system established to meet the new conditions.

Several congressmen in whose districts there are large public buildings, and others who secured appropriations only to see all the bids rejected, have had the matter under consideration for several weeks.

It is also announced that the special board with Chief Clerk Ludlow of the treasury department at the head, has been appointed to consider a special compensation for all employes such as firemen, engineers, janitors and laborers in the first class public buildings with a view of establishing a new schedule of salaries.

NEWSBOY WANTS PH. D.

Studies Latin and Philosophy as He Sells Papers.

New York, Oct. 1.—Isaac Davidson, a keen-witted Jewish newsboy, aspires to become a doctor of philosophy. Up at Seventh avenue and 119th street, where this newsboy philosopher has a stand, they call him "Ike" and "Davy" and "Professor" and half a dozen other names, but all of them familiarly respectful. Besides his stand are a chair and a book, and from 4:30 to 10 o'clock in the morning and from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, all the time that Davidson is not pasing out papers, chuckling the neighborhood babies under the chin, doing errands for patrons or kindly exhorting his schoolboy friends to take advantage of their school chances, he has his nose poked in a book. It is always a solid book.

He used to live in Chicago.

"One day in a tailor shop in Chicago," says Davidson, "a fellow tailor said to me: 'From the books you read you must be a Socialist. My brother is a member of the LaSalle Political Education club. I will have you meet him.' It was in this way that I became interested in the the ethical movement."

Davidson now is a pupil in the evening high school in 116th street and is taking four private lessons a week, two in Latin and two in English. He is pitching into Latin especially with great enthusiasm. But most of his self-educational work is reading. His greatest pride is his library. In the little hall bodroom he occupies on the third floor of a house on 115th street, there is barely room to pass between the single bed and the bookshelves. On these shelves are 400 volumes, most of them such as would appeal only to the student of a philosophic turn of mind.

Pleasant Reception.

A pleasant reception was given Sunday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gust C. Person, at their home, 5005 Tioga street, at Lester Park. Mr. and Mrs. Person were married in September at Preston, Minn. Before her marriage the bride was Miss Charlotte Julia Baarsch.

The groom, who is a son of Mrs. Mary Person, has lived in Duluth for many years, and a large number of friends called Sunday to offer congratulations. Short speeches were given by A. Thoren and O. C. Olson, and "Home, Sweet Home," was sung by Mrs. Karl J. Hagberg and O. J. Nelson. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. F. Fredin, O. G. Nelson, Andrew Bergquist, John Bergquist, Louis M. WOULD LYNCH THIEF.

St. Paul, Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frenzied by many deeds of lawlessness committed in the community of late, citizens of Osseo, twelve miles north of Minneapolis, yesterday made an effort to lynch William B. Hays, who is under arrest. He was saved by a quick dash in an automobile by Detectives Wirtenson and Martinson, who took him to the Central station, where he was safely placed behind the bars.

WITHDRAW THE REPORT

No Further Test of Strength on Lid Question.

Had Its Political Aspect —Alderman Moore Gives Warning.

The display of lid pyrotechnics anticipated as an enlivening feature of the council meeting last night fell flat. Either the powder was damp, or those having in charge the details of the display decided that too much of a good thing is too much. At an event, when the resolution came up again which was discussed at the last council meeting, and which was intended as a reply to the mayor's communication to the council, asking for co-operation, Alderman Burgess of the committee on police and license, offered a motion that the report of the committee be withdrawn, and not a voice dissented.

The motion was carried, and the committee report on the mayor's appeal for assistance has passed into a state of oblivion.

But the committee seems to feel that the report, like the ilves of great men, has left "footprints on the paths of Time," and accomplished its object.

There was a self-satisfied air about the members of the committee and the councilmen who favored the passage of the report mentioned when approached last evening and asked just why the same had been withdrawn. "It answered its purpose, evidently," remarked one alderman. "It has been conclusively shown that the council was right in taking the position that a good stiff penalty in cases where conviction was found, is the only thing. The municipal court has administered the medicine, according to prescription—now let's see how it works."

Alderman Moore, recognized as one of the strong advocates of temperance in the council, served notice that in the future, where convictions for violating liquor laws are obtained, he would compel the ones convicted to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

To the "man up a tree" there is considerable of a political complexion about the little side play referred to, the committee report, the fight to keep it from passing, and the committee's withdrawal of the same.

It looked much like a line-up of rival forces, those supporting the mayor taking the position that his overtures for co-operation were intended in the interests of the great cause of temperance and reform, and in all sincerity.

On the other hand certain members of the council thought that they detected just a little savor of political play, and as the council had previously taken a decided stand upon the same subject, the necessity for what they considered an attempt to slip the load from the executive shoulders to theirs, seemed very remote.

If it was a line-up of the mayor's friends, and those who might possibly oppose him, the referee would probably be obliged to call a draw, for the resolution failed to pass, and the substitute resolution offered by the opposition also failed.

NO DAMAGES FOR HOLLEN

Jury Holds Boat Company Blameless for Son's Death.

A verdict in favor of A. Booth & Co., in the damage suit brought by John Hollen, was returned in district court about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Hollen, as administrator of the estate of his son, Arthur Hollen, deceased, claimed that the boy was drowned in Lake Superior, last summer, through the negligence of the boat company. He sued for $5,000 damages.

The defendant company maintained that it was in no way responsible for the death of young Hollen, that the crew did everything possible in the effort to save him. The body was never recovered.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

JURY FINDS HIM GUILTY

Angelo Giangarello Convicted of Manslaughter in First Degree.

Will Get Penitentiary Term for Killing Basilo Romano.

"Guilty of manslaughter in the first degree," was the verdict returned about 6 o'clock last evening against Angelo Giangarello of Eveleth, who was indicted for murder in the second degree.

The case was submitted to the jury at 5 o'clock.

Giangarello is claimed to have shot and killed Basilo Romano in a saloon at Eveleth, July 4, 1906, following a quarrel and a fight in which several Italians, friends of Romano were arrayed against Giangarello. After the shooting Giangarello escaped and went out to the Pacific coast, where he was apprehended a year after the tragedy and brought back to St. Louis county for trial.

There is another indictment against him charging assault in the first degree, Bruno Gervaise, another of the party in the saloon, who was shot and wounded, being the complaining witness. As the penalty for manslaughter in the first degree may be from five to twenty years imprisonment, it is doubtful if Giangarello will be tried on the second indictment.

Giangarello's attorneys, Albert Baldwin and Judge McGillvery of Eveleth, may seek a new trial and appeal, if the motion is denied.

Self-defense was Giangarello's plea in extenuation of his deed. The testimony showed that in the saloon quarrel Romano and all his friends were arrayed against Giangarello and the proprietor of the place put him out in the effort to quell the trouble. Instead of going away from the scene of trouble, however, Giangarello remained at the door and presented a revolver when Romano opened the door a few minutes after the accused had been ejected from the barroom.

Giangarello claims to be suffering from an injury, said to have been caused by a kick received in the saloon fight.

CERLOSKE ASKS FOR LIBERTY

Claims Local Courts Have no Jurisdiction Over His Case.

The habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Nick Cerloske to secure his release from the county jail, where he is being held to await the grand jury action, have been taken under advisement by Judge Dibell. Cerloske is accused of being the father of the illegitimate child of Marie Polski. William Marx, attorney for the accused, claimed that the offense was committed in the old country, and that local courts have no jurisdiction in the matter. He argued that the immigration officials had no right to admit Marie Polski into this country, for the reason that she was likely to become a public charge. The case, in view of the points of law raised by Mr. Marx, is rather a unique one.

DOCTOR THE ITCH WHERE THE ITCH IS.

Those afflicted with Eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, or other skin diseases of a similar nature, should never dose the stomach to rid themselves of the terrible itch. They should doctor the itch where the itch is—cure the skin through the skin, not through the stomach.

Eczema and other diseases of a kindred kind are skin diseases—not blood diseases. Science has shown that Eczema is caused by germs in the skin, and that the disease can be eradicated only by killing the germs.

Dr. Decatur D. Dennis was one of the first physicians to follow out the germ theory in skin diseases. Then he discovered that by mixing oil of wintergreen with other soothing agents he had a liquid prescription which killed the germs and cured the awful itch, leaving the skin white and smooth. Since that time this D. D. D. Prescription has been the standard remedy for skin diseases, just as D. D. D. Soap is the standard high grade skin soap.

The first few drops of D. D. D. give instant relief from the terrible itch and from the frightful burning of the diseased skin. So reliable is this D. D. D. remedy that hundreds of physicians prescribe it. It is a wash as thin as water and as mild and as pure, which is applied to the diseased portion of the skin.

Mrs. Frances Richmond of Milton, Trimble county, Kentucky, writes: "My little girl's fingers were sore almost to the bone from Eczema. I used part of the sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription received from you and now they are well. It is a wonderful skin remedy."

We carefully investigated this D. D. D. Prescription before recommending it to our neighbors and patrons, and after a long experience we are more than ever convinced of its wonderful merits.

You needn't decide now, but call at our store anyway and we will show you how this D. D. D. Prescription gives instant relief from itch.

monopoly. By this I do not mean that legislation should be confined to the regulation of absolute monopolies but if the public service performed by the corporation is of a character, which in its nature is not open to free competition, but is for any reason restricted within a few lands the service to that extent is a monopoly and should be regulated.

"A commission, not the legislature, is the proper authority to determine what amount of securities should be authorized, and care should be taken that no form of indebtedness should be authorized without full value received, as indebtedness other than stock issues may be more harmful than capital stock, because upon debts interest must be paid and upon stock, dividends need not be paid unless they are earned.

"I urge the passage of laws similar to those of Massachusetts in other states, not in a spirit of hostility to capital and capitalists, but in the interests of the public and the investors in securities.

"I hold an abiding conviction that all these great questions of the relations of the people to the corporations will eventually be worked out by legislation to the satisfaction of all reasonable men.

"In doing so it will doubtless be necessary for extremists to make sacrifices but the course will eventually be found safest which amply protects the rights of the people and at the same time giving to all interests assurances of equity and justice."

Peculiar interest was given the paper on the "conflict between state and federal courts," by Attorney General Young of Minnesota, by the fact that he expects to be arrested on his return to Minnesota in connection with a contempt case arising out of conflict with the federal court.

Murmurs of approval greeted Attorney General Young's statement that the most trouble arose from exercise by the federal courts of powers which the founders of the government never intended they should have and that it was plain that they must be limited. Mr. Young also said many federal judges seem to misunderstand the relations between state and national governments and the extent of their powers. He epitomized the present day situation by stating that attorneys general of states are now ruled by injunction instead of by a sense of duty. He added that there would be no safety for the states until all doubt about jurisdiction is removed, and suggested as a safety measure a new definition of the powers of the federal courts.

BISHOP WON TENNIS MATCH

Prelate of London Defeated the President at Play.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Episcopal bishops and other churchmen who have been in Washington for several days attending the convention of the International Brotherhood of St. Andrew, left today for Richmond, Va., for the triennial convention of the Episcopal church. The bishop of London held an impromptu reception at the railroad station. He admitted for the first time who won a tennis match at the White House Friday between himself and President Roosevelt. "I suppose you will not tell who won that tennis match?" he was asked.

"Certainly I will," he answered. "I did."

J. Pierpont Morgan of New York, who will take a prominent part in the Episcopal convention, also left today.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MATT LAHTI IS KILLED IN MINE

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Matt Lahti, a Finnish miner, who was killed by a cave-in of ground at the Lincoln mine, was held here this afternoon. Lahti and a companion, named Matt Ollila, were working in a drift of a shaft at the Lincoln on Friday night last. They were told in the evening to place props under a dangerous place, but said there was no danger, and went on working. About 1:30 Saturday morning they noticed the ground caving behind them, and started to run out, but were caught, and Lahti was smothered. Ollila was caught around the feet, but used his hands and liberated himself. Lahti's body was recovered soon after the accident. He was 28 years of age, and leaves a widow and two children.

CHURCH HAS BEEN MUCH IMPROVED

First Presbyterian Edifice at Eveleth is Very Fine Now.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The laborers have finished their work on the First Presbyterian church, within the past week. It has been in the hands of the contractors since June. The church has been enlarged by the building on of an addition making its size now 58x34 feet.

A pulpit has been built, and three large classrooms for the Sunday school added. Instead of ordinary windows, the church now possesses stained windows of variegated color designs. The auditorium has been finished off with a crimson base that has a buff for the remainder toward the ceiling. In the center of the ceiling, the decorators have elaborated on the color scheme with an ochre brown arranged as a hexagon. New electric lights have been installed. All are to be fitted up with reflectors. Heat is furnished by a large furnace.

A beautiful curtain will be hung that will make possible the doubling of the auditorium's size easily by using the space now occupied by classrooms. The church's pews and furniture have a spick-and-span appearance, owing to the revarnishing that the entire church has undergone. The exterior has been painted as well, the new roof has been painted green, while the walls have a yellowish ochre to match. The painting was done by Hendrickson of Eveleth, the carpentering was in charge of Luce, and the plastering contract was in the hands of Le Nosse & Weigel.

The pastor, Rev. Rankin, has been in charge of the church for the past year and a half. It is largely due to his untiring efforts that the present improvements have been made possible. Miss Sheehy is the organist. In the Sunday school there are eighty students. The teachers are Mrs. Kingston, Miss Agnes Murray, Miss Montgomery, Miss Nelly Noel and Alexander McDonald.

The talk of a park that shall beautify the block on which the Presbyterian church stands has been revived. Being situated between Eveleth proper and the Fayal such a park would be a boon to residents at both portions. The church, as a result, has an attendance that is evenly divided by the dwellers in Fayal and those in Eveleth.

There will be a young people's rally at the church on Wednesday evening, while communion services will be held at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

VIRGINIA TO GET CHEAPER LIGHTS

Improvements in the Lighting Plant Are Under Way.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work was started yesterday on the laying of a steam pipe from the new mill of the Virginia Lumber company to the power plant of the Virginia Light and Water company. As soon as the mill starts, which will be about the 15th inst., the Light & Water company will begin using steam therefrom to drive their machinery. At the same time a day circuit will be put in operation and those citizens who desire to use either electric power or light in the day time will be able to do so. This will be a great convenience for many who operate small gasoline engines.

Manager O. H. Griggs of the Light & Water company states that owing to this arrangement with the Virginia Lumber company his concern will be able to produce electric current cheaper than it could be supplied from Duluth by the Northern Power company and for this reason will be able to furnish electric current to small power users at very reasonable rates.

At each of the three mills of the Virginia Lumber company large burners are used to destroy the surplus refuse from the mills. If this refuse should be converted into electric energy there is no doubt that enough could be generated to operate the range street railway system when it is placed in operation.

SPECIAL COMMISSION MEETS THIS MONTH.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The special commission appointed by Governor Johnson to appraise the county property in Itasca county in order to adjust that county's financial affairs with the new county of Koochiching which was carved out of the northern half of Itasca last winter, will meet early this month at the state house.

At the meeting, briefs and arguments will be presented as to the power of the commission to consider the question of real estate values.

The state law, in authorizing such appraisements, provides for the placing of a valuation on "buildings," but omits to mention anything about "real estate." The department of the attorney general some time ago gave the commission an opinion that the word "buildings might be considered to include "real estate." The authorities of Itasca county are inclined to question this opinion, and will make an argument through the Itasca county attorney, contending that the commission has no right to consider the county poor farm, which is really the bone of contention in the whole matter. As to the story that this poor farm contains valuable iron ore, there is as yet little evidence before the commission. The evidence received so far, shows that pockets of ore have been found, but not in any sufficient quantity to guarantee there is any large body of ore which might be developed with any profit into a mine.

ANOTHER CHURCH ON MESABA RANGE

Buhl, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—With appropriate ceremonies the new Methodist Episcopal church here was dedicated Sunday. The building is of frame, 28x42, with a tower, 8x8, 50 feet high. The building has cost about $2,300 and was commenced two years ago by the Rev. J. A. Geer, who was then pastor of the Chisholm and Buhl circuit. The building was nearly completed during his administration and $900 of the cost was raised by him. He did good work in helping to secure the church building. Last October the Rev. J. D. Manly was appointed to Chisholm and Buhl and he actively pushed the church building to completion and through his able administration the building was completed and the remaining cost raised, leaving a debt of only $150 when the dedication took place. This debt can be easily taken care of. The building is splendidly adapted for church work, heated by a furnace and gives Buhl the only church belonging to an English speaking Protestant denomination.

There were two services the day of the dedication, at which Rev. E. C. Clemans, D.D., presiding elder of the Duluth district, Methodist Episcopal church, preached. At the evening service the church was dedicated by the presiding elder assisted by the pastor, the Rev. J. D. Manly. Splendid music was furnished by a quartet composed of Messrs. C. E. Hendrick and M. A. Morse and the Mesdames M. A. Morse and C. E. Hendrick. Mrs. C. E. Hendrick presided at the organ. At the afternoon service a solo entitled "Just for Today," was rendered by M. A. Morse, and in the evening C. E. Hendrick sang "Beside the Still Waters." Good sized congregations were present and the day will be long remembered. The money for the building was donated by the mining companies and by friends in Buhl and in the surrounding towns and locations. Rev. Manley has done good work and the people desire him back for another year.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR.

Executive to be Asked to Remove the Aurora School Directors.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The row on between Charles Olson and C. F. Nelson over the position of treasurer of the school district, including Aurora and Mesaba, has reached an acute stage. Bonding companies have declined to furnish bonds for either until the difference has been adjudicated, which has tended to tie up the finances, and more or less interfere with the administration of school affairs. There has been only a few days of school this fall, and the patrons of the school have decided to appeal to Governor Johnson to remove B. W. Williams of Aurora and Olaf Hellstrom of Mesaba, the trustees, on the ground that they are not properly administering the affairs of the district. A large number of persons have signed the petition being circulated by President Charles Olson of the village council, who is no relation to Charles Olson, the treasurer of the district, who was removed from his position during his absence, and Nelson appointed. Many citizens express themselves as tired of the controversy, and hope the governor will straighten it out.

GREAT IS PETTIT.

Sparta Mine is to Make New Record in Production Next Year.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republic Iron & Steel company is planning to sink a new shaft on its Pettit mine, near here, and carry on some extensive development work during the coming winter, which will place that property among the great producers of the range. It is one of the largest iron mines of the Mesaba, and the company expects that with the improvements planned, the output will amount to 1,000,000 tons next year.

FALLS INTO POCKET.

Employe on Two Harbors Docks Injured About the Head.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—While walking on the track over the ore pockets at the ore docks here Monday, John Osmond, an employe of the docks, missed his footing and fell into one of the pockets. He was taken out in an unconscious condition, from injury on the head, and received treatment at the hospital. Unless he sustained serious internal injuries he is expected to recover.

Matt Coughlin was brought to the Budd hospital late yesterday afternoon with one leg crushed as the result of being caught between two push cars. His leg may have to be amputated. Two cases of smallpox are reported: Walter Miller, the 11-year-old son of Grant Miller on Eighth avenue, and Verne Wright, the 10-year-old son of William Wright on Sixth avenue, are the victims. Knute Lundberg, who was taken to the detention hospital last week, is also down with the disease. The city authorities are taking every precaution possible to prevent a spread of the disease.

HIBBING'S BIG MONTH.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore shipments from this point by the Missabe and the Great Northern during the month just ended were on a gigantic scale and when the figures are made public it is expected the history of the month will prove it was a record breaker. The big mines of the district, the Mahoning, the Hull-Rust, the Burt Poole and the Morris were worked to the full steam shovel capacity, fourteen of the huge machines being constantly at work. All but the Mahoning worked nights. It is roughly estimated the daily output of these mines last month ran between 50,000 and 65,000 tons per day.

All other mines of the district have been shipping steadily. The underground ones have been able to ship their full quota, even during the time they were not working both shifts, by drawing upon their stock piles. The Pillsbury pit from which shipments were first begun this year has shipped an exceptionally large amount for the one shovel which is worked in it. The Hartley began the first of the month to ship from its pit and has steadily increased its shipments throughout the month.

NO SUPERIOR DISTRICT.

McNair Denies Miners Are to Form a New Federation.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of the proposed Federation of Miners in the Superior district, is a false one, according to President McNair of the local union. He said that there was some difficulties regarding the finances which passed through Petriella's hands, but, he said, that the remainder of the report was not true.

Secretary Morem in in Duluth in connection with the incorporation of the union's co-operative store. Business has been encouraging enough for the present members to attempt to go in heavier, in groceries, etc. Manager Bonnie is expected to return Tuesday evening from Duluth, where he has been for the past four days.

CAUGHT AT EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gust Anderson and Victor Maki, an Austrian, were fined $5 and costs by Judge Prince for being drunk. The fines were paid.

Only two store fronts have been lowered in the block between Jones and Jackson on Grant avenue. The buildings lowered are owned by Joseph Franzel and I. Masucci. The remainder will have a step or two to take care of the elevation above the official street grade. The store building used by Matt Prettner as a saloon has had its floor sink a foot in the rear of the building, owing to the rotting of the timbers supporting the property.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Sisson Sunday morning.

Walter Howell of St. Paul, Minn., will lecture at the Presbyterian church tonight on "The Second Army in Porto Rico." Mr. Howell was a teacher in the government schools in Porto Rico for a year. He is at present the state secretary of the Christian Endeavor.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

BIRDS PLENTIFUL.

Hunters Begin Lucky Shooting Season in Upper Michigan.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The partridge season opened today in this section of the country and many hunting parties have been formed to partake of the sport. Birds are reported very plentiful this year and the sport should be first-class. It is not necessary for hunters to go very far from Calumet for these birds and the roads leading into the woods are reported in excellent condition, in fact, many left Tuesday on their bicycles with guns and plenty of ammunition. The season does not last long and many will take advantage of this fact and leave during the first week of the month.

WILL LOOK OVER GOODHOPE MINE

A. C. Nolan and Party Will Go to Lewiston, Wyoming.

A party of Head of the Lakes and range mining men will leave this evening for the West where they will look over a valuable mining property owned largely by people residing in Duluth and vicinity. The Goodhope is the name by which the property goes, and it is situated at Lewiston, Wy.

In the party which leaves this evening are Frank Annesley, M. Somers, N. C. Barrett of Hibbing, and J. C. McGowan of Superior and A. C. Nolan of this city. They expect to be in the mining district for about two weeks, after which several of the party will go further north on a hunting expedition.

We have a very promising mine out there," said Mr. Nolan this morning. "We are getting the ore in paying quantities from the several shafts All the machinery is modern, and the mine is being operated in an up-to-date manner.

"The property is owned largely by Duluth and Superior and range people, so the people of this section will be very much interested in the report which we will bring back."

NEARLY LOST AN EAR.

Workman at Metal Works Has Peculiar Accident.

Joe Cowetz, employed by the Duluth Iron & Metal company as helper, sustained a very painful injury yesterday, and in consequence is at the St. Luke's hospital for treatment.

Together with several other workmen, he was assisting in handling a large metal plate, when it slipped, striking him on the side of the head. One ear was nearly severed from his head, it hanging by a few shreds of skin. He was promptly removed to the hospital with the wounded member bleeding profusely. Several stitches were required to unite the lacerated portions of the man's ear, but it is thought that the member will be saved, and he is progressing as well as can be expected.

SURVIVOR OF GREAT FIRE DIES

Mrs. Christine Turnell Passed Through the Hinckley Holocaust.

Mrs. Christine Turnell, aged 75 years, passed away at St. Luke's hospital this morning as the result of a paralytic stroke, sustained some weeks ago.

Deceased has been a resident of Duluth for many years, and is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. W. Cummings, Mrs. August Gelline, Mrs. Iver Gordon of this city, and Mrs. J. W. Stockholm of Zion City, Ill.

The funeral will probably be held Thursday afternoon from Bethany Lutheran church, but the arrangements have not been completed, as the relatives are waiting word from the daughter in Illinois.

Mrs. Turnell was a remarkable woman for her years, and has a history marked by a great calamity through which she passed unscathed and lived to a ripe old age thereafter.

She was one of the survivors of the Hinckley fire, which nearly wiped out that city, and in which many lives were lost. The survivors of the holocaust have been in the habit of meeting annually, and memorial exercises have been held in memory of the departed who lost their lives at that time. It was at the last annual gathering of the fire survivors that Mrs. Turnell was stricken, and since that time she has been confined at St. Luke's hospital.

DOCTOR THE ITCH WHERE THE ITCH IS.

Those afflicted with Eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, or other skin diseases of a similar nature, should never dose the stomach to rid themselves of the terrible itch. They should doctor the itch where the itch is—cure the skin through the skin, not through the stomach.

Eczema and other diseases of a kindred kind are skin diseases—not blood diseases. Science has shown that Eczema is caused by germs in the skin, and that the disease can be eradicated only by killing the germs.

Dr. Decatur D. Dennis was one of the first physicians to follow out the germ theory in skin diseases. Then he discovered that by mixing oil of wintergreen with other soothing agents he had a liquid prescription which killed the germs and cured the awful itch, leaving the skin white and smooth. Since that time this D. D. D. Prescription has been the standard remedy for skin diseases, just as D. D. D. Soap is the standard high grade skin soap.

The first few drops of D. D. D. give instant relief from the terrible itch and from the frightful burning of the diseased skin. So reliable is this D. D. D. remedy that hundreds of physicians prescribe it. It is a wash as thin as water and as mild and as pure, which is applied to the diseased portion of the skin.

Mrs. Frances Richmond of Milton, Trimble county, Kentucky, writes: "My little girl's fingers were sore almost to the bone from Eczema. I used part of the sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription received from you and now they are well. It is a wonderful skin remedy."

We carefully investigated this D. D. D. Prescription before recommending it to our neighbors and patrons, and after a long experience we are more than ever convinced of its wonderful merits.

ATTORNEYS DISCUSS.

monopoly. By this I do not mean that legislation should be confined to the regulation of absolute monopolies but if the public service performed by the corporation is of a character, which in its nature is not open to free competition, but is for any reason restricted within a few hands the service to that extent is a monopoly and should be regulated.

"A commission, not the legislature, is the proper authority to determine what amount of securities should be authorized, and care should be taken that no form of indebtedness should be authorized without full value received, as indebtedness other than stock issues may be more harmful than capital stock, because upon debts interest must be paid and upon stock, dividends need not be paid unless they are earned.

"I urge the passage of laws similar to those of Massachusetts in other states, not in a spirit of hostility to capital and capitalists, but in the interests of the public and the investors in securities.

"I hold an abiding conviction that all these great questions of the relations of the people to the corporations will eventually be worked out by legislation to the satisfaction of all reasonable men.

"In doing so it will doubtless be necessary for extremists to make sacrifices but the course will eventually be found safest which amply protects the rights of the people and at the same time gives to all interests assurances of equity and justice."

Peculiar interest was given the paper on the "conflict between state and federal courts," by Attorney General Young of Minnesota, by the fact that he expects to be arrested on his return to Minnesota in connection with a contempt case arising out of conflict with the federal court.

Murmurs of approval greeted Attorney General Young's statement that the most trouble arose from exercise by the federal courts of powers which the founders of the government never intended they should have and that it was plain that they must be limited. Mr. Young also said many federal judges seem to misunderstand the relations between state and national governments and the extent of their powers. He epitomized the present day situation by stating that attorneys general of states are now ruled by injunction instead of by a sense of duty. He added that there would be no safety for the states until all doubt about jurisdiction is removed, and suggested as a safety measure a new definition of the powers of the federal courts.

BISHOP WON TENNIS MATCH

Prelate of London Defeated the President at Play.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Episcopal bishops and other churchmen who have been in Washington for several days attending the convention of the International Brotherhood of St. Andrew, left today for Richmond, Va., for the triennial convention of the Episcopal church. The bishop of London held an impromptu reception at the railroad station. He admitted for the first time who won a tennis match at the White House Friday between himself and President Roosevelt. "I suppose you will not tell who won that tennis match?" he was asked.

"Certainly I will," he answered. "I did."

A Disgrace to Themselves.

We make this statement because in this wonderful 20th century care and attention to the toilet places comparative beauty within reach of every intelligent woman.

What makes women appear ugly—not the features surely—no, for a woman with very ordinary features can still be beautiful if her skin is good and her hair luxuriant and well groomed.

How can you have beautiful skin and hair? The valuable little book, fully illustrated, "How to be Beautiful," answers the question and this book will be given you free if you will call at the Toilet Goods Department of Mattix Drug Stores, Lyceum Pharmacy, Lenox Drug store.

ON THE IRON RANGES

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Matt Lahti, a Finnish miner, who was killed by a cave-in of ground at the Lincoln mine, was held here this afternoon. Lahti and a companion, named Matt Ollila, were working in a drift of a shaft at the Lincoln on Friday night last. They were told in the evening to place props under a dangerous place, but said there was no danger, and went on working. About 1:30 Saturday morning they noticed the ground caving behind them, and started to run out, but were caught, and Lahti was smothered. Ollila was caught around the feet, but used his hands and liberated himself. Lahti's body was recovered soon after the accident. He was 28 years of age, and leaves a widow and two children.

CHURCH HAS BEEN MUCH IMPROVED

First Presbyterian Edifice at Eveleth is Very Fine Now.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The laborers have finished their work on the First Presbyterian church, within the past week. It has been in the hands of the contractors since June. The church has been enlarged by the building on of an addition making its size now 58x34 feet.

A pulpit has been built, and three large classrooms for the Sunday school added. Instead of ordinary windows, the church now possesses stained windows of variegated color designs. The auditorium has been finished off with a crimson base that has a buff for the remainder toward the ceiling. In the center of the ceiling, the decorators have elaborated on the color scheme with an ochre brown arranged as a hexagon. New electric lights have been installed. All are to be fitted up with reflectors. Heat is furnished by a large furnace.

A beautiful curtain will be hung that will make possible the doubling of the auditorium's size easily by using the space now occupied by classrooms. The church's pews and furniture gave a spick-and-span appearance, owing to the revarnishing that the entire church has undergone. The exterior has been painted as well, the new roof has been painted green, while the walls have a yellowish ochre to match. The painting was done by Hendrickson of Eveleth, the carpentering was in charge of Luce, and the plastering contract was in the hands of Le Nosse & Weigel.

The pastor, Rev. Rankin, has been in charge of the church for the past year and a half. It is largely due to his untiring efforts that the present improvements have been made possible. Miss Sheehy is the organist. In the Sunday school there are eighty students. The teachers are Mrs. Kingston, Miss Agnes Murray, Miss Mattson, Miss Nelly Noel and Alexander McDonald.

The talk of a park that shall beautify the block on which the Presbyterian church stands has been revived. Being situated between Eveleth proper and the Payal such a park would be a boon to residents at both portions. The church, as a result, has an attendance that is evenly divided by the dwellers in Payal and those in Eveleth.

There will be a young people's rally at the church on Wednesday evening, while communion services will be held at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

VIRGINIA TO GET CHEAPER LIGHTS

Improvements in the Lighting Plant Are Under Way.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work was started yesterday on the laying of a steam pipe from the new mill of the Virginia Lumber company to the power plant of the Virginia Light and Water company. As soon as the mill starts, which will be about the 15th inst., the Light & Water company will begin using steam therefrom to drive their machinery. At the same time a day circuit will be put in operation and those citizens who desire to use either electric power or light in the day time will be able to do so. This will be a great convenience for many who operate small gasoline engines.

Manager O. H. Griggs of the Light & Water company states that owing to this arrangement with the Virginia Lumber company his concern will be able to produce electric current cheaper than it could be supplied from Duluth by the Northern Power company and for this reason will be able to furnish electric current to small power users at very reasonable rates.

At each of the three mills of the Virginia Lumber company large burners are used to destroy the surplus refuse from the mills. If this refuse should be converted into electric energy there is no doubt that enough could be generated to operate the range street railway system when it is placed in operation.

SPECIAL COMMISSION MEETS THIS MONTH.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The special commission appointed by Governor Johnson to appraise the county property in Itasca county in order to adjust that county's financial affairs with the new county of Koochiching which was carved out of the northern half of Itasca last winter, will meet early this month at the state house.

At the meeting, briefs and arguments will be presented as to the power of the commission to consider the question of real estate values.

The state law, in authorizing such appraisements, provides for the placing of a valuation on "buildings," but omits to mention anything about "real estate." The department of the attorney general some time ago gave the commission an opinion that the word "buildings" might be considered to include "real estate." The authorities of Itasca county are inclined to question this opinion, and will make an argument through the Itasca county attorney, contending that the commission has no right to consider the county poor farm, which is really the bone of contention in the whole matter. As to the story that this poor farm contains valuable iron ore, there is as yet little evidence before the commission. The evidence received so far, shows that pockets of ore have been found, but not in any sufficient quantity to guarantee there is any large body of ore which might be developed with any profit into a mine.

Buhl, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—With appropriate ceremonies the new Methodist Episcopal church here was dedicated Sunday. The building is of frame, 28x42, with a tower, 8x8, 50 feet high. The building has cost about $2,300 and was commenced two years ago by the Rev. J. A. Geer, who was then pastor of the Chisholm and Buhl circuit. The building was nearly completed during his administration and $900 of the cost was raised by him.

He did good work in helping to secure the church building. Last October the Rev. J. D. Manly was appointed to Chisholm and Buhl and he actively pushed the church building to completion and through his able administration the building was completed and the remaining cost raised, leaving a debt of only $150 when the dedication took place. This debt can be easily taken care of. The building is splendidly adapted for church work, heated by a furnace and gives Buhl the only church belonging to an English speaking Protestant denomination.

There were two services the day of the dedication, at which Rev. E. C. Clemans, D.D., presiding elder of the Duluth district, Methodist Episcopal church, preached. At the evening service the church was dedicated by the presiding elder assisted by the pastor, the Rev. J. D. Manly. Splendid music was furnished by a quartet composed of Messrs. C. E. Hendrick and M. A. Morse and the Mesdames M. A. Morse and C. E. Hendrick. Mrs. C. E. Hendrick presided at the organ. At the afternoon service a solo entitled "Just for Today," was rendered by M. A. Morse, and in the evening C. E. Hendrick sang "Beside the Still Waters." Good sized congregations were present and the day will be long remembered. The money for the building was donated by the mining companies and by friends in Buhl and in the surrounding towns and locations. Rev. Manley has done good work and the people desire him back for another year.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR.

Executive to be Asked to Remove the Aurora School Directors.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The row on between Charles Olson and C. F. Nelson over the position of treasurer of the school district, including Aurora and Mesaba, has reached an acute stage. Bonding companies have declined to furnish bonds for either until the difference has been adjudicated, which has tended to tie up the finances, and more or less interfere with the administration of school affairs. There has been only a few days of school this fall, and the patrons of the school have decided to appeal to Governor Johnson to remove B. W. Williams of Aurora and Olaf Hellstrom of Mesaba, the trustees, on the ground that they are not properly administering the affairs of the district. A large number of persons have signed the petition being circulated by President Charles Olson of the village council, who is no relation to Charles Olson, the treasurer of the district, who was removed from his position during his absence, and Nelson appointed. Many citizens express themselves as tired of the controversy, and hope the governor will straighten it out.

GREAT IS PETTIT.

Sparta Mine is to Make New Record in Production Next Year.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republic Iron & Steel company is planning to sink a new shaft on its Pettit mine, near here, and carry on some extensive development work during the coming winter, which will place that property among the great producers of the range. It is one of the largest iron mines of the Mesaba, and the company expects that with the improvements planned, the output will amount to 1,000,000 tons next year.

FALLS INTO POCKET.

Employe on Two Harbors Docks Injured About the Head.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—While walking on the track over the ore pockets at the ore docks here Monday, John Osmond, an employe of the docks, missed his footing and fell into one of the pockets. He was taken out in an unconscious condition, from injury on the head, and received treatment at the hospital. Unless he sustained serious internal injuries he is expected to recover.

Matt Coughlin was brought to the Budd hospital late yesterday afternoon with one leg crushed as the result of being caught between two push cars. His leg may have to be amputated. Two cases of smallpox are reported: Walter Miller, the 11-year-old son of Grant Miller on Eighth avenue, and Verne Wright, the 10-year-old son of William Wright on Sixth avenue, are the victims. Knute Lundberg, who was taken to the detention hospital last week, is also down with the disease. The city authorities are taking every precaution possible to prevent a spread of the disease.

HIBBING'S BIG MONTH.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore shipments from this point by the Missabe and the Great Northern during the month just ended were on a gigantic scale and when the figures are made public it is expected the history of the month will prove it was a record breaker. The big mines of the district, the Mahoning, the Hull-Rust, the Burt Poole and the Morris were worked to the full steam shovel capacity, fourteen of the huge machines being constantly at work. All but the Mahoning worked nights. It is roughly estimated the daily output of these mines last month ran between 50,000 and 55,000 tons per day.

All other mines of the district have been shipping steadily. The underground ones have been able to ship their full quota, even during the time they were not working both shifts, by drawing upon their stock piles. The Pillsbury pit from which shipments were first begun this year has shipped an exceptionally large amount for one shovel which is worked in it. The Hartley began the first of the month to ship from its pit and has steadily increased its shipments throughout the month.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The partridge season opened today in this section of the country and many hunting parties have been formed to partake of the sport. Birds are reported very plentiful this year and the sport should be first-class. It is not necessary for hunters to go very far from Calumet for these birds and the roads leading into the woods are reported in excellent condition, in fact, many left Tuesday on their bicycles with guns and plenty of ammunition. The season does not last long and many will take advantage of this fact and leave during the first week of the month.

WILL LOOK OVER GOODHOPE MINE

A. C. Nolan and Party Will Go to Lewiston, Wyoming.

A party of Head of the Lakes and range mining men will leave this evening for the West where they will look over a valuable mining property owned largely by people residing in Duluth and vicinity. The Goodhope is the name by which the property goes, and it is situated at Lewiston, Wy.

In the party which leaves this evening are Frank Annesley, M. Somers, N. C. Barrett of Hibbing, and J. C. McGowan of Superior and A. C. Nolan of this city. They expect to be in the mining district for about two weeks, after which several of the party will go further north on a hunting expedition.

We have a very promising mine out there," said Mr. Nolan this morning. "We are getting the ore in paying quantities from the several shafts All the machinery is modern, and the mine is being operated in an up-to-date manner.

"The property is owned largely by Duluth and Superior and range people, so the people of this section will be very much interested in the report which we will bring back."

NEARLY LOST AN EAR.

Workman at Metal Works Has Peculiar Accident.

Joe Cowetz, employed by the Duluth Iron & Metal company as helper, sustained a very painful injury yesterday, and in consequence is at the St. Luke's hospital for treatment.

Together with several other workmen, he was assisting in handling a large metal plate, when it slipped, striking him on the side of the head. One ear was nearly severed from his head, it hanging by a few shreds of skin. He was promptly removed to the hospital with the wounded member bleeding profusely. Several stitches were required to unite the lacerated portions of the man's ear, but it is thought that the member will be saved, and he is progressing as well as can be expected.

SURVIVOR OF GREAT FIRE DIES

Mrs. Christine Turnell Passed Through the Hinckley Holocaust.

Mrs. Christine Turnell, aged 75 years, passed away at St. Luke's hospital this morning as the result of a paralytic stroke, sustained some weeks ago.

Deceased has been a resident of Duluth for many years, and is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. W. Cummings, Mrs. August Gelline, Mrs. Iver Gordon of this city, and Mrs. J. W. Stockholm of Zion City, Ill.

The funeral will probably be held Thursday afternoon from Bethany Lutheran church, but the arrangements have not been completed, as the relatives are waiting word from the daughter in Illinois.

Mrs. Turnell was a remarkable woman for her years, and has a history marked by a great calamity through which she passed unscathed and lived to a ripe old age thereafter.

She was one of the survivors of the Hinckley fire, which nearly wiped out that city, and in which many lives were lost. The survivors of the holocaust have been in the habit of meeting annually, and memorial exercises have been held in memory of the departed who lost their lives at that time. It was at the last annual gathering of the fire survivors that Mrs. Turnell was stricken, and since that time she has been confined at St. Luke's hospital.

If you want to see the finest collection of suits and overcoats for this coming fall and winter ever shown in Duluth, stop in at the "Fitwell" Clothing parlors, 112 West Superior street. Prices are reasonable too. $10 to $25 for the finest goods ever shown in America.

AUDITOR MISSING.

G. H. Foster Leaves St. Paul Under Cloud and is Being Hunted for.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. H. Foster, auditor for Swift & Co., at South St. Paul, has not been at his office since Sunday, Sept. 22, and it is claimed that his books show irregularities. The St. Paul officials are not prepared to state the amount of the discrepancy, but it has been estimated as high as $10,000.

Mr. Foster came to St. Paul seven months ago from Chicago. He had been connected with Swift & Co. for many years, both at the Chicago and St. Louis offices. He came to St. Paul to assume the responsible position of auditor.

He was last seen at South St. Paul Sunday, Sept. 22, when the watchman noticed him leaving the office about 7 o'clock in the morning. Nothing was thought of it at the time, nor was there any suspicion when Foster did not appear on Monday morning.

The Swift & Co. officials tried to locate Foster on Tuesday, and found that he had left the city with his wife. Experts were sent up from Chicago, and say they have discovered discrepancies in the accounts. They are still at work on the books and have not yet discovered the exact amount. It is said also that Foster overdrew his salary to the amount of $150.

AWARDS NEW CONTRACTS

Pastoret & Lunz Will Lay Hillside Extension Mains.

Work on Lakeside Base Line is Nearing Completion.

Pastoret & Lunz have been awarded the contract for the laying of the balance of the water and gas mains for the hillside system. The contract was awarded by the board of water and light commissioners, there being no other bidders for the work.

Under the terms of the contract Pastoret & Lunz will lay the 12 and 4-inch mains for 60 cents per foot; the 8 and 4-inch mains for 55 cents; and the 6 and 4-inch mains for 50 cents. For the earth excavation the contractors will get $1.30 per yard and for the rock excavation $9.50 per yard.

The same contractors had already secured the contract for the laying of the base line mains for the hillside and Lakeside extensions and the last contract covered the balance of the hillside system. The base line mains will be located on Fifth, Sixth and Seventh streets, between Fifteenth avenue east and Thirteenth avenue west.

The contractors have begun work in the hillside extension, but the greater part of the work has been done on the base line mains to Lakeside. That part of the contract is nearly completed, and the contractors will very soon be able to throw a large force of men on the hillside work and push it along much faster than it is going at the present time.

SEASON IS ABOUT OVER

Rowboats and Launches Are Being Laid Up by Owners.

Autumn Winds Are Too Cold for Comfort on Water.

Rowboats and small launches are being laid up at the various boathouses on the bay. The season of pleasure boating at the Head of the Lakes is about over. The autumn winds are too cold for comfort out on the bay or lake, and few launching parties will venture out again until next spring.

Although the boating season is of pretty short duration at the Head of the Lakes, the boat owners and launch owners report that they have done a good business during the past season. The business of renting out launches has been especially profitable, and the patronage of small rowboats has been better than in former years.

Private parties owning launches were somewhat discouraged at the opening of the season when it was announced by the customs collector that all power boats must bee quipped with the proper lights, bells and whistles. Few of the smaller boats had been fitted out with these before, and it necessitated a considerable expense to get the proper equipment.

A number of the owners paid little attention to the first warning given out by the customs officers, and refused to equip their boats with the proper apparatus. During the month of June several were caught in their boats out on the bay by the customs collector, who made an inspection of their boats and found them lacking the proper bells, whistles and lights.

Fines of $200 were imposed on half a dozen or more launch owners, and this brought the others to time. Those who could not secure the equipment decided it would be the best plan to lay up their boats until they could. Some of the boat companies which owned a number of power boats were rather hard hit by the rule, and in some cases they refused to put their craft into the water.

Henry E. Jones of Tampa. Fla., writes: "I can thank God for my present health, due to Foley's Kidney Cure. I tried doctors and all kinds of kidney cures, but nothing done me much good till I took Foley's Kidney Cure. Four bottles cured me, and I have no more pain in my back and shoulders. I am 62 years old, and suffered long, but thanks to Foley's Kidney Cure I am well and can walk and enjoy myself. It is a pleasure to recommend it to those needing a kidney medicine." STRONG FEELING

Hattiesburg, Miss., Oct. 1.—At Sumrall, Miss., nineteen miles from here, on the Mississippi Central railroad, the feeling against Italians has grown so strong that they are packing up and preparing to move from the neighborhood.

The trouble grew out of the complaint of an Italian that his children were excluded from the public schools. He was taken into the woods Friday night and given a severe whipping.

The situation has been aggravated by the demands of the employes of the Newman Lumber company at Sumrall for an increase in wages. The Italians and negroes have been warned not to work there after today. Sumrall is a small lumber town of about 600 inhabitants, about one-sixth of whom are Italians. The authorities of Lamar county have been appealed to for protection by the lumber company.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic

FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS

Antiseptic and Hygienic

A Hair Invigorator—Just what its name implies. It supplies nourishment, the elements of growth, which, when absorbed by the hair, strengthens and beautifies it in the same way that sap glorifies the foliage of a tree. Even where the follicles are seemingly dead, if the scalp is massaged daily with Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic a vigorous growth will be produced. It has honestly earned its title of "the great hair grower." It stimulates the most stunted growth and makes the hair magnificently healthy and beautiful. By its use women can provide themselves with a trailing mantle of hair—woman's natural raiment, her birthright.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is prized equally by men and women, particularly when the hair begins to weaken or fade. Cures baldness, grayness, splitting of the hair, dandruff and all diseases of the hair, scalp and beard. One application usually stops hair falling. A nursery requisite; no mother should neglect to use it for her boys and girls; when the hair is made strong in childhood it remains proof against disease and retains its vigor and youthfulness throughout life.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is a colorless, fragrant, delightful hair dressing; neither sticky, gritty, nor greasy; makes the hair soft, fluffy and glossy. Contains no artificial coloring; would not toil the whitest hair; restores original color by invigorating the scalp and re-establishing normal circulation and proper distribution of the live coloring matter. Beautiful hair redeems the plainest countenance, and any one can secure it by using Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. Now in three sizes. Our special price

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—In one of the greatest baseball games ever seen in this city, Detroit and Philadelphia, who are making a sensational fight for the American league championship, yesterday played each other to a standstill. The game went seventeen innings and was called by the umpire because it was too dark to play any longer.

Both teams were worked up to a high pitch and going strong, and neither side wanted to quit, although the street lamps surrounding the grounds had already been lighted. There being no result, the position of the teams remain the same, Detroit having a lead of seven points. Each team has seven games on its schedule before the season ends. Had it not been for the fact that two games were to have been played, necessitating an early start, the game would not have gone seventeen innings.

Great Crowd Sees Game.

It was a remarkable game in many ways, and the crowd that saw it was probably the largest that ever gathered in a ball ground in this city. It is estimated that fully 40,000 persons were packed in and outside the grounds.

The official paid attendance was 24,127, but several thousand more persons gained admission on passes and otherwise. The gates to the grand stand were closed before 1 o'clock and the crowd became so great that the police for a time lost control and hundreds gained admittance over the fence. The roofs of surrounding houses were crowded to the danger point, the thrifty householders charging from 25 cents to a dollar for a standing place on their roofs.

The multitude within the enclosure was well controlled except in the fourteenth inning, when First Baseman Rossman of Detroit, nearly caused a riot. In this inning Davis hit to center field, Crawford dropping the ball on the edge of the crowd. Crawford claimed he was interfered with and the whole Detroit team came in to back Crawford's claim. In the confusion that followed, Rossman struck Monte Cross, who was coaching. Cross went at Rossman, but the other players interfered and stopped hostilities. The crowd surged on the field and for a few minutes matters looked dangerous, but the excellent work of the police ous, but the excellent work of the police prevented further disorder and the crowd fell back. Davis was decared out and Rossman was put out of the game. Killian took his place.

The honors of the game undoubtedly belong to Donovan, who after being hammered for fourteen hits in seven innings, pulled himself together and the more he pitched the better he seemed to get. In the last ten innings he held the home team to six hits. He only gave three bases on balls in the seventeen innings.

Athletics' Pitchers Weaken.

Dygert lasted only a little more than one inning, when he was relieved by the famous Waddell. The latter pitched remarkable ball for three innings, striking out six of the first eight men that faced him. The crowd went wild over his performance, but he later weakened and was replaced by Plank in the ninth inning, after Cobb had hit him for a home run, tieing the score. Plank pitched his usual steady game and was seldom in trouble.

Philadelphia looked like an easy winner up to the seventh inning, when they had a lead of seven to one. In the seventh Philadelphia made one, bringing the score to eight. Detroit made four runs on poor fielding, added one in the eighth, and tied it up in the ninth. Both teams scored in the eleventh, and from then to the finish neither side could get the extra tally. Each side was dangerous at times, but Donovan and Plank were as steady as clocks. Brilliant plays marked many of the innings, the fielding honors going to Nicholls, who scooped up grounders on the run and shot them over to first base in brilliant style.

BOYS MUST WORK HARD

Coach Colton Putting Squad Through Stiff Practice.

Ashland, Here Next Saturday, Has Strong Eleven.

Coach Colton had another big squad out at Athletic park last evening, and, though some of them were a little sore after the Two Harbors game, he put the boys through a stiff practice.

Colton is satisfied with the showing made by the boys ,considering the time they had to practice for the Two Harbors game, but he is not satisfied that they are able to go against any strong elevens, unless they take a decided brace. He picked out some weak spots during Saturday's scrimmages and he is going after them with the idea to prop them up.

The coach isn't letting the boys get the idea that because they walked all over Two Harbors, they are world beaters. Two Harbors was woefully weak, and every other team, which the boys are to meet for the season, is strong. Every man on the squad is being given a vigorous tryout, and those picked for the positions will have to show the goods to retain their places.

The Ashland team, which the boys are to meet at Athletic park next Saturday, is a strong one, and there's no overconfidence in the Duluth camp. Ashland has a number of veterans back this year, and they are expecting to get away with victory. The line is heavy, and the back field fast, and in order to win, Duluth must show better class than in last Saturday's game with Two Harbors.

But a few weeks remain before the games with Minneapolis Centrals, Superior and St. Paul Centrals and on those three games, the supporters of the Duluth team are pinning their hopes. Duluth must win them to claim honors and Coach Colton is working hard to shape a team, which will be able to take down the title.

GOTCH WILL VISIT DULUTH

Champion Heavyweight Wrestler to be Here Next Week.

Frank Gotch, champion heavyweight catch-as-catch-can wrestler of the United States, will be in Duluth next week, appearing at the Metropolitan opera house in connection with "Miss New York Junior." Gotch hasn't done a great deal of wrestling among the top notchers, but he has been doing stunts with local lights in different cities he has visited and is in good shape.

An effort is being made to get Macauley, a St. Paul heavyweight with something of a reputation, to come to Duluth and go against the big champion during his engagement here. Emil Peterson, the heavyweight champion of the city, and other local exponents of the grappling game, will also go against Gotch in handicap matches, and followers of the game will be given an opportunity to see some fine work on the part of the champion.

Y. M. C. A. SEASON OPENS.

Good Classes Report at Gymnasium on Opening Night.

The athletic work at the Y. M. C. A. for the season of 1907-08 began yesterday, the evening business men's class meeting last evening at 5:15, and the young men's class at 8 o'clock. Physical Director A. J. Frey put the classes through their stunts. There were thirty-seven out for the young men's class last evening and the showing was a creditable one for the opening night. The business men also turned out in good numbers and the season was given a good start.

Fencing and wrestling will be given especial attention at the Y. M. C. A. this year and large classes have been formed for both of those branches. Fencing is an innovation at the Y. M. C. A. and it promises to take well with the members. Numerous inquiries have been received and when the class first meets, a good crowd is expected out to take the work.

THREE FAVORITES WIN.

Some Good Racing in Slow Track at Latonia.

Cincinnati, Oct. 1.—Full of Fun won the steeplechase handicap, the feature of the card at Latonia yesterday from Pete Vinigar, with D. G. Taylor, third. In the opening event Jack Young, Mayor Duncan and Double Trouble fell at the first turn and Jockeys Trounan, Butler and Andress were injured. Three favorites won. The track slow.

KEENE HEAVY WINNER.

Colin Wins Colts' Stakes at Almost Prohibitive Odds.

Brighton Beach, Oct. 1. — James R. Keene's Colin, at the prohibitive price of 1 to 4, won the colt's half of the Brighton Produce stakes of $9,000 at six furlongs, at Brighton Beach yesterday. With the victory of Colin and third money with Meggs Bill, in the filly half, the total winnings of Mr. Keene for the year are $362,594, which is $14,000 behind the world's record, made by the Duke of Portland in 1889.

At a meeting of the stewards of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association the license of Steeplechase Jockey Harry Stone was suspended for the remainder of the year of 1907. No reason was given for the ruling.

GANS TURNS TITLE OVER

George Memsic Receives Championship From Colored Holder.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Joe Gans has turned over his lightweight championship to George Memsic. The king of the 133-pound division yesterday made good his promise to quit the ring and at the same time paid a great compliment to the young Chicago fighter, who fought him to a standstill Friday night. It was at a meeting of the pair, who battled so viciously but three days ago that Gans made known his intention of retiring from the ring until the public shall demand his reappearance.

Meeting Memsic down town the colored fighter offered his hand to the Chicago lad and said: "You fought a good fight and surprised me. I think that you can whip any man in the world, barring myself. To prove this I am going to turn over to you the title of lightweight champion, and I want you to promise me that you will never draw the color line.

"When a good colored boy comes along—a worthy opponent—you are to give him a chance to win the championship."

Memsic promised that he would do this. "Then that goes," said Joe and the men shook hands.

DETROIT HAS BEST SHOW

Michigan Team Should be Able to Take Pennant.

Barry and Gehring Figure in American League Race.

Duluth is almost as interested in the American league race as if a team representing the Zenith City were fighting for a pennant. Yesterday, the interest in the thrilling struggle reached a climax, with the last game between the leaders in the league.

Every baseball fan in the city was interested in the game. From 2 o'clock until after The Herald extras were on the street, with the story of the hard-fought contest, The Herald was besieged with inquiries. Men, women and children wanted to know how the game was going, and as it went farther into extra innings, the interest became more intense.

The Herald extras, which were placed on the street shortly after 5 o'clock, and within a few minutes after the game was over, were eagerly snapped up. They contained a full account of the game by innings, giving details of every play, and ending with a summarized score by innings and the runs, hits and errors. It was complete in every respect and contained every bit of information the most rabid "bug" would care to know.

Right about now, it looks very much like Detroit. The Tigers have a lead of seven points over Philadelphia and unless the Detroit men take a slump and fall down against the weak Washington and St. Louis teams, it will be all day with the Athletics and White Sox.

Philadelphia takes on Cleveland today for a series of four games. While Washington will be putting its feeble efforts against Detroit, it is very likely that La Jole and his men will take one or two from the Athletics. Cleveland has proved a hard proposition for Mack and his men all year and it isn't very likely they can make a clean sweep.

The Sox haven't much show. Boston played them to a standstill yesterday and Clark Griffith's gang will give them a good argument for the remainder of the week. Only a run of the finest kind of Comiskey-Jones luck can give the Sox a look at the flag, considering the gait at which Detroit and Philadelphia are traveling and the lead they hold over the Sox.

Reports of yesterday's games tell of the part played by two Northern leaguers in the American league race. In Boston, "Rube" Barry, with Houghton in the Northern Copper Country league and more recently with Providence, held the White Sox in check for nine innings, being taken out in the ninth. In Washington, Hank Gehring held LaJoie's sluggers to four hits and a shut-out.

SUES SENATOR PLATT FOR ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

New York, Oct. 1. — May Catherine Wood, the former government clerk who has been suing United States Senator Thomas Platt for several years, yesterday brought action in the supreme court for absolute divorce from the senator, alleging that she was married to him in the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York, in 1901.

J. D. Lee, representing the plaintiff, announced the action as "Platt against Platt," and he said the motion was for the purpose of framing an issue. He said he wanted the details to become generally known.

John B. Stanchfield, who appeared for Senator Platt, asked that the matter be heard in private by a referee.

He said Senator Platt was never married to Miss Wood and there was no ground for divorce. Justice Seabury reserved his decision.

ENTHUSIASM AT RALLY MEETING

Christian Endeavorers Plan Busy Campaign for Coming Months.

Duluth Christian Endeavor workers held a rally meeting last night and planned an active campaign for the coming fall and winter months. Seven societies of Duluth were represented and if the present enthusiasm keeps up some effective work will be done in Duluth and the vicinity.

The meeting was held in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church and was informal. Several short talks were given by various members of the union and means and methods of the work which has done in the past and which was planned for the future were discussed.

The president of the Duluth union of workers, R. A. Sprague, reviewed what had been done in the past and what they could expect to do in the future and Miss Crowley, vice president, told the results of the work which had been done by the young women of the union. Field Marshall Howell was also induced to give a short address.

"If you really want to accomplish something here you must be in earnest about it," said he, "and be willing to work hard." Duluth and the range country are a big field and if the endevorers work in the right manner they can convert the city and district into one of the best in the United States.

"But you must wake up and watch for the opportunities. You know what is needed and all that you have to do is to go out into the field and do it. If you start out right you will acomplish your purpose here. You are al capable willing and competent and that is what we need."

Several others told of the work which is to be done and unless the signs are wrong the conference is likely to result in one of the most active campaigns for the betterment of the city that Duluth has ever experienced.

EVANGELIST AND DANCER

Wed, After Securing Divorces From Their First Mates.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 1.—Dr. Arthur McColl, a well known temperance lecturer and evangelist, was married secretly in Chicago, Saturday, to Lillian Meredith of St. Joseph, Mo., with whom he tried to elope at that place seven years ago, but was blocked by her father. Miss Meredith has been a toe dancer and whistler in the "Prince of Pilsen" company. Each married after the proposed elopement, but fell in love again at a matinee performance and each secured a divorce to marry the other.

SPECIAL KILLS MOOSE.

General Manager of M. & I. Meets With an Odd Experience.

Littlefork, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International railroad, has adopted a new method of killing moose. The popular official of the new railroad enjoys the unique distinction of having killed one of those animals with the pilot of the locomotive, pulling his special train. The special train of Mr. Gemmell, while returning from International Falls Saturday evening, after he had participated in the driving of the last spike on the M. & I., struck and killed a large moose that was on the track near here. The animal appeared to have so been bewildered by the spectacle of the rushing train approaching that it did not run as its species usually do.

Old hunters find it hard to credit the story that the moose had not sense enough to get out of the way, and rather incline to the belief it had been wounded by some hunter and was too weak to escape.

SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA 25 YEARS

Limb Peeled and Foot Was Like Raw Flesh—Had to Use Crutches, and Doctors Thought Amputation Necessary — Montreal Woman Writes of Cure Seven Years Ago.

BELIEVES LIFE SAVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, "Try them if you like, but I do not think they will do any good." At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Pills. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use it for his own patients. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment, and five bottles of Resolvent, and I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I have lots of grandchildren, and they are frequent users of Cuticura, and I always recommend it to the many people whom my business brings to my house every day. Mrs. Jean-Baptiste Renaud, clairvoyant, 277, Mentana St., Montreal, Que., Feb. 20, 1907."

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The first sessions of the thirteenth annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs were held today at Faribault, Minn., with Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city, president of the federation, presiding. In response to the address of welcome, Mrs. Washburn said in part:

"We come to your beautiful city of many hills, in this the most charming season in the year in our state. It is an appropriate season, too, for the meeting of our federation. It's rich and mellowed beauty, it's softness and peace, speak of accomplishment. They suggest that nature's arduous days are over for a time, and that now comes a quiet season in which to enjoy the rewards of labor well done. Not that the Earth Mother folds her hands, but that now, the success of her work assured, she may proceed in a leisurely and dignified way, as becomes her years. She may take time to paint every leaf and blade of grass; she may give the final touches to fruit and nut and grain, bringing them to a perfect maturity.

"May we also, as the busy days of summer draw to a close, and as autumn approaches, find leisure and opportunity to bring our harvest to a perfect maturity; and, in imitation of nature, to paint it in rich and glowing colors. We, too, have a right to the rest and satisfaction which come with the autumn days, and with accomplishment. Even if the result is not all we could wish—even if the harvest seems hardly worth the days of toil and unrest—still, if the effort was genuine and the best we had to give, we, too, are entitled to our Indian summer days of richness and peace and quiet, and even of satisfaction. We do not wish to fold our hands; but, again in imitation of nature, we shall work in a leisurely and dignified way, as becomes our years, and with an assurance which only experience can give.

"I am thankful to the federation many, many times a year for the richness and the color and the opportunity which it brings into our autumn days. Therefore it is that this is a most appropriate time for our annual meeting.

"A feeling of sadness usually underlies our appreciation of the fall, chiefly because it seems to foretell the coming of death and decay. But even death and decay are made beautiful by the magic robe which winter wraps about herself, and that season, when it is with us, we love equally well.

"The truth underlying this thought seems to be that each season, whether of the year or of life, when it is with us, is good, because it is appropriate to the time. It is previous consideration of some future period which shocks us; or it is something out of season that we shudder at. As a young poet has put it:

"Ah! in the beauty of the morn,
I know not anything
So bleak, so hopeless, so forlorn
As autumn leaves in spring."

"There is a sadness in the feeling autumn gives, as there is sadness somewhere in very deep feeling, but neither in nature's autumn, nor in the autumn of our own little lives, if it come not before its time, should there be unhappiness.

This same golden autumn, season of mists and mellow fruitfulness, is more than any other the season of reflection and contemplation, and how can there but be a little sadness in contemplation, a little wistfulness in reflection. If, therefore, you have found my address over solemn, I ask you to remember that it is not the solemnity of unhappiness, and that beneath it is a feeling of deep gratitude to you for the welcome of your words and hearts."

SOME GOOD DUTCH COMEDY

Phil Mills is Feature of Good Bill at the Bijou.

They have a line of Dutch comedy down at the Bijou this week, which is about the flossiest thing in its class yet handed out in Duluth. That poor, frayed out, thread-bare, and over-worked person—the Dutch comedian—usually acts like a danger signal on a vaudeville bill, but Phil Mills has some stuff which he calls "oratorical disturbances" and it will stand up under the acid test. Most of it is new, and Mr. Mills is a natural comedian.

Our old friend, "Chesty" Cox is handing out a line of songs and jokes, which he calls a baseball monologue. Some of it is new and funny, and some of it would bear pruning. His turn on the whole, however, doesn't need his prestige as a local celebrity to help him get away with it. He could get off the stage unharmed in almost any city on the circuit.

Herbert Brenon and Helen Downing untangle some farcical differences of married life in a rather amusing manner, and Roxie and Wayne give a passable sketch called "The Cowboy from Texas."

The Three Brothers Rossi are knockdown comedians with a burlesque house makeup, and eccentric dancers. Their act is good of the kind.

"Red Wing," the illustrated song is pretty, and well within the compass of Herbert Parkhurst's very fair baritone voice. The moving pictures are also fully up to the standard.

Green Room Gossip.

"The Girl Who Has Everything," in which Miss Isabel Irving will be seen at the Lyceum tonight, is a little comedy drama of New York life of the present day. Miss Irving herself is well known in Duluth and needs no introduction here.

The Kilties band will give two concerts at the Lyceum Thursday under the auspices of Clan Stewart.

"The Heir to the Hoorah" will be the attraction for Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee.

Ezra Kendall in "Swell Elegant Jones" is coming next week.

Emma Weston, the contralto, who is at the Metropolitan this week with the Empire Burlesquers, is singing a new Indian song that has caught on here. Miss Weston recites the verses of this number, and the chorus is so catchy that the entire audience finally joins in.

ROMANCES OF RICHES

Under a Hibbing date line, William E. Curtis had an article in the Chicago Record-Herald yesterday, in which he said:

"Somebody ought to collect all the romances of the Mesaba range and put them into a book before it is too late to get the material first hand. Never were there more fantastic freaks of fate than in the early history of this great reservoir of wealth, and the number of men who voluntarily dodged great fortunes that pursued them in connection with the development of this range was never so great in South Africa or in any other part of the universe. The stories that are told of the indifference of men of experience in the iron industry to the opportunities offered here are almost incredible. Men who had seen one new mining district after another discovered and developed and had spent all their lives in that business were so short-sighted and skeptical as to reject opportunities repeatedly offered them. The promises were so fabulous that they paid no attention to them. Portions of this solid mass of wealth were offered vainly at nominal cost at the headquarters of the iron trade in Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago and other places and the blindness of human nature even repelled some of the greatest fortunes that were ever bestowed upon human beings. Several iron manufacturers refused to accept some of these valuable deposits as a gift. On the other hand, a dozen or more fortunate individuals who happened to own timber land along the range were shrewd enough to make contracts on a royalty basis for the development of their property and ever since have been drawing enormous dividends 'on Easy street.'"

Mr. Curtis then relates a number of stories concerning those who made large fortunes by their discoveries or by reason of owning land bought originally for its timber.

RED LAKE LANDS WILL BE OPENED

Red Lake Agency, Minn., Oct. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman Steenerson and Senator M. E. Clapp came to Red Lake Agency Saturday, and held a council with the chiefs of the Red Lake Indians. The matter presented to them was the sale of the reservation pine and other timber, and the allotment of agricultural land, and the subsequent allotment of what may become cut-over lands, and the disposition of the remainder of the lands. The council was a very harmonious one. The Indians were unanimous in their requests, and they urged an early disposition of the pine, stating as their reasons that the timber had reached such a size, and was so situated in reference to risks from fire, that the decay in the timber, the loss from fires and wind storms would be more than the increase of the timber by growth, and that there was no appreciable reforestration with pine going on. They were pleased with the services rendered by the congressman and senator, and expressed their willingness to leave the matter to the judgment of these gentlemen. Congressman Steenerson had arranged for a council Oct. 5, but changed the date in order to enable Senator Clapp to be with him at the meeting, so word was sent to the chiefs to meet on Saturday instead of Oct. 5.

The council was well attended, and it was evident that the wish of the Indians was made known. What will be done with this timber, and the land on the reservation, is of great interest to Bemidji and the county in general. If the Indians are permitted to take allotments, they will eventually develop small farms, or else the property will pass to others who will, and the settlement of the 400,000 acres of land on this reservation is a matter of more importance than might be supposed. It was estimated that the Indians would take about 200,000 acres, leaving 200,000 acres good, bad or indifferent to the white settlers.

The weight of all mail in all classes is being taken and figures are prepared showing the weight of all mail which goes to each state and territory in the country from Duluth. It is a big job, and could not have been done if the additional men had not been allowed.

The special clerks will remain on duty for the month of October.

WAS MUCH AFFECTED.

President Manuel Amador of Panama was reviewing the wonders of Coney Island. "A remarkable place," he said to a reporter. "It impresses me tremendously. I shall never forget it."

Sipping his well-iced lemonade, President Amador laughed and said:

"Speaking of being impressed tremendously, I am reminded of a joke they are telling about a Cuban millionaire.

"An unfortunate man obtained access to this millionaire, and depicted his wretched poverty in the most vivid and moving colors. Indeed, so graphic was the visitor's sad narrative that the millionaire was very profoundly affected, and, summoning his servant, he said, with tears in his eyes and a voice trembling with emotion:

"'John, put this poor fellow out into the street. He is breaking my heart.'"

THREE WOLVES ARE SHOT WITHIN THE CITY LIMITS

Charles Hicks, a carpenter residing in New Duluth called upon the city clerk today with the pelts of three full grown wolves he shot yesterday in the vicinity of his home, and according to Hicks, there are others. He was given the required voucher and will draw $45 from the county for his work.

Hicks had considerable trouble in bagging his quarry but he put three good hounds on their trail and they made it so warm for the animals that the hunter was able to get within range, the wolves being about spent from their race with the hounds.

A peculiar condition existing today is that there are more wolves in the immediate vicinity of Duluth than there were twenty years ago, according to the city clerk, who has spent many years in this vicinity and who was a prospector on the ranges back in '85.

Every fall wolves flock down from the timber and skulk about the outskirts of the city. This year they seem to be more plentiful than ever.

City Clerk Cheadle was in a reminiscent mood today and recalled that some twenty years ago, when he was prospecting on the Vermilion range such a thing as a deer was unknown in that territory. Moose and caribou were plentiful, but the deer had not at that time been driven north from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. Later, they began to come in and it is stated that this year they are thicker than ever in the vicinity of Cross River, where a number of Duluth hunters are accustomed to hunt every fall.

The movement of animals in the woods are sometimes hard to account for, but from all reports the wolves are more plentiful in the immediate vicinity of Duluth than they have been for several years.

Massachusetts Block Sold.

The Massachusetts block, a three-story brick flat-building at the corner of Tower avenue and Sixteenth street, was sold yesterday to the Cashel Investment company, represented by John McCabe, for $42,000. It was built a number of years ago at a price said to be in excess of that paid for it yesterday. The same buyers took over the Washington block several months ago. The Massachusetts block adjoins the Washington block on the south.

A $29,000,000 Fine.

One of the largest fines ever imposed in any court in the world was that of $29,000,000 against the famous Oil Trust, but there appears to be a great deal of skepticism as to whether they will ever be compelled to pay it. Perhaps not, but then the lesson of obeying the law has been strongly impressed on them as well as on other large corporations. Under False Colors

By Violet Etynge Mitchell.

"For de land sakes, Miss Dorothy, what is de matter, my honey dove?" cried Aunt Dinah, with characteristic recklessness of metaphor, as, pausing in the center of the kitchen, she regarded in deep surprise the clouded face of pretty Dorothy Le Strange.

"Oh, it is poverty, always poverty," wept Miss Le Strange, who, being motherless and still very young, had grown to treat Aunt Dinah with a certain affectionate friendliness born of their mutually fallen fortunes. For, in the good old antebellum days when Dorothy's mother had been the belle of Charleston and her father reckoned as one of the wealthiest as well as proudest men in the state, Aunt Dinah had held the sway of an empress in the Le Strange kitchen, and her orders had been meekly carried out by half a dozen satellites. But, alas! with the decadence of Southern prosperity fell also the fortunes of the rich banker, and when, ten years later, Dorothy's blue-eyed mother, dying in want of the luxuries to which she had been accustomed, faded out of a world which no longer held any charm for her, she had left her baby in the arms of the one faithful servant who, through storm and sunshine, had followed in the footsteps of her beloved mistress.

Bound by the tie of strong affection to the family, Aunt Dinah struggled to keep alive in Dorothy the proud spirit of her mother, and with the skill of a veteran officer ruled the kitchen, watched with belligerent eye Miss Le Strange's Northern associates, and could, by a shake of her turbaned head, upset many a plan of her master's making.

"Sho! Poverty mighty mean. What he ben doin' to yo' now Missy, dear?"

Dorothy unfolded a letter, balancing herself deftly upon the chair, spread it out upon the lap of her faded green cashmere dress.

"I've got an invitation to the ball at Armitage's," sighed she, between little sobs. "All the Evarts girls are going, and Surlie Williams. Even Catheryln Bates will be there in a brand new lemon-colored taffeta. Everyone has something to wear but me, and it's the very first big dance to which I have ever been asked—I wish I could die—yes, I do. This being proud and poor is a curse to anyone."

"Huh!" Aunt Dinah's eyes closed sharply, like the snapping to of a box lid, as if she would shut out from some inner temple all distracting "Lemme think; dar's yo' ma's ole blue silk, mought be made over."

"Don't talk of that!" exclaimed Miss Le Strange fiercely. "That dress has been made over five times. Besides, Harry Mortimer spilled half a cup of bouillon over the front breadth. I can't use it."

"How much money yo' got in yo' li'l' brown purse?" queried the old woman, opening her eyes momentarily, to flash the question at her mistress.

"Money!" laughed Dorothy, scornfully. "Just three dollars and ten pennies—not one cent more, and I ought not to spend that, for there is the coal bill coming in next week and the armchair in the parlor is bleeding sawdust all over the carpet."

A few crystal tears brimmed over her blue eyes, and falling upon the letter lay there like drops of dew.

"Can't do much on three dollars," murmured Aunt Dinah, contemplating the young girl with her hand on one side like a big, black canary bird, "but we must do somethin'. Yes, honey, we p'lintedly gwan do something to get yo' ready fo' dat ball, I ain't gwine to have yo' disapp'inted."

It was the night of the ball, and the handsomely decorated rooms of the Armitage mansion were ablaze with electric lamps and gay with the merry sounds of music and laughter. While it was still early in the evening a group of young men lingering at the door of the dancing room were attracted by the exquisite loveliness of a fair-haired girl who, leaning upon the arm of an aristocratic old gentleman, evidently her father, made her entrance by an opposite door.

"By George! There's a beauty!" exclaimed Sir Reginald Beauchamp, a young Londoner who was, just then, the guest of Arthur Armitage.

Arthur turned, smiled with evident satisfaction, as he perceived that the young lady was Dorothy Le Strange, for whom, indeed, he had evinced a strong, if unreciprocated, admiration.

"It is Miss Le Strange," returned he, quietly while the baronet, has handsome face aglow with eager interest, begged for an introduction.

"Talk about your peaches and cream," cried he, "look at that girl's complexion. And her dress—perfectly charming. A creation of Worth's, probably, imported to the tune of several hundred dollars. Your country-women know how to dress, but they make the money fly, too, my boy."

Young Armitage surveyed the gown and its wearer with the eye of a connoisseur, in whose mind surprise wars with a previous knowledge of certain facts.

"It is stunning," he assented, doubtfully; "but I hardly think—Col. Le Strange—could—foot—one of Worth's bills."

Dorothy, perceiving herself the object of much interest, hardly new whether to be pleased or anxious, for the inborn knowledge that her gown cost less than that of any other woman in the room was a thorn in the flesh, until catching a reflection of herself in one of the tall pier glasses all doubt fled from her mind and a smile like a June morning irradiated her winsome face.

Dorothy had a glorious time. Her little feet were kept incessantly dancing and her engagement card was fast filling up as Arthur Armitage and Sir Reginald Beauchamp, making their way through the crowd of waltzing couples, reached a circle of young debutantes, of which she was the animated center.

"Miss Le Strange," murmured Arthur, bowing gracefully to the group of girls, "may I introduce my most intimate friend, Sir Reginald Beauchamp?"

Dorothy glanced up quickly, to find a pair of handsome gray eyes fixed upon her in such evident admiration that she blushed vividly, wondering if all British lions were as alluring to the eye as this Saxon-haired baronet. Half pleased, half angry, she saw that he was boldly placing his initials before five waltzes on the white and gold engagement card for which he had asked, modestly enough.

"I have always heard," she cried, recovering her self-possession, "that Englishmen are very aggressive—and conquer by invasion. Don't you think," sweetly, "that three waltzes would be a fair share of one partner?"

"Five would be more according to my views," returned the young man, laughing, too, but offering his arm with Chesterfieldian grace.

Dorothy, pouting a little, took it, and losing herself in the maze of whirling figures, forgot everything in the charm of the ever seductive waltz.

As the first streaks of gray dawn peered in through the window blinds Dorothy, still flushed by happy excitement, bade adieu to Sir Reginald beneath the tall date palms in the conservatory.

"You American girls are a spring of everlasting surprise to me," he was saying, smiling beneath his long, blonde mustache. "You are so original, so entertaining, so——" He paused for a word.

"Conceited; I fear that is our reputation." Miss Le Strange blushed as she added: "Of course there are notable exceptions—I am one."

"Are you?" eagerly. "I was going to say that you have such exquisite taste in dress. Now, take my sisters for example of my comparison. Belle is a handsome girl, a perfect Hebe—so is Ellen, rosy cheeks, blue eyes and the figure of Diana—but neither of those girls have the individuality to conceive such a gown as you wear tonight. It is simply ideal, a dream, a symphony in rose color."

Dorothy's eyes fell before his ardent glance, and she studied, with absorbed attention, the protruding tip of her dainty little black kid slipper.

"I suppose," she said at last, naively, "that you would not care to hazard a guess as to the price of this stunning gown? It is not a bit conventional to tell you, but some witch seems impelling me to unburden my mind of a guilty secret. I am posing as Cleopatra when I am really—guess now—"

Beauchamp took a backward step, and with folded arms studied the little pink-gowned figure as a connoisseur might study a finished work of art.

"As you permit it," he ventured, timidly. "I would say the gown could not have cost less than $200. I am a sad ignoramus, you know, on such matters, but you strike me as being exquisitely attired."

A peal of girlish laughter startled the canary birds hanging in their silver cages from the branches of the date palms and filled the conservatory with vibrant music.

"I see you are just as easily deceived as papa," said Miss Le Strange. "Well, by way of keeping up our national reputation for oddity, I will confess the whole murderous plot. The story may amuse your sisters and serve as an Arabian Night's entertainment. This wonderful gown cost just one dollar and fifty cents—all told. Behold me shorn of majesty!"

Sir Reginald's lower jaw fell and disbelief clouded his handsome eyes.

"Feel it," cried Dorothy, seizing a floating cloud of her pink draperies. "It is cheese cloth."

Then, although his awe and admiration for the genius of the American woman overwhelmed him, the British phlegmaticism could go no further by way of vocal expression than "By George!"

But Miss Le Strange did not forget Aunt Dinah. Amid much laughter and many pretty gestures she confessed the whole story, and with veritable tears of gratitude in her blue eyes, told of the old tirewoman's efforts to make the dress pretty.

Their eyes met, and beneath her breath the young girl whispered:

"The prince?"

"The story is not complete without him," returned Sir Beauchamp. "I wonder—do you think—?"

He hesitated, and beneath his fair English skin the red blood showed like any peony.

"Yes?" Dorothy's face was averteed, but she listened mischievously for his idea.

"I wonder how a baronet—might do?"

WAS MUCH AFFECTED.

President Manuel Amador of Panama was reviewing the wonders of Coney Island. "A remarkable place," he said to a reporter. "It impresses me tremendously. I shall never forget it."

Sipping his well-iced lemonade, President Amador laughed and said:

"Speaking of being impressed tremendously, I am reminded of a joke they are telling about a Cuban millionaire.

"An unfortunate man obtained access to this millionaire, and depicted his wretched poverty in the most vivid and moving colors. Indeed, so graphic was the visitor's sad narrative that the millionaire was very profoundly affected, and, summoning his servant, he said, with tears in his eyes and a voice trembling with emotion:

"'John, put this poor fellow out into the street. He is breaking my heart.'"

THREE WOLVES ARE SHOT WITHIN THE CITY LIMITS

Charles Hicks, a carpenter residing in New Duluth called upon the city clerk today with the pelts of three full grown wolves he shot yesterday in the vicinity of his home, and according to Hicks, there are others. He was given the required voucher and will draw $45 from the county for his work.

Hicks had considerable trouble in bagging his quarry but he put three good hounds on their trail and they made it so warm for the animals that the hunter was able to get within range, the wolves being about spent from their race with the hounds.

A peculiar condition existing today is that there are more wolves in the immediate vicinity of Duluth than there were twenty years ago, according to the city clerk, who has spent many years in this vicinity and who was a prospector on the ranges back in '85.

Every fall wolves flock down from the timber and skulk about the outskirts of the city. This year they seem to be more plentiful than ever.

City Clerk Cheadle was in a reminiscent mood today and recalled that some twenty years ago, when he was prospecting on the Vermilion range such a thing as a deer was unknown in that territory. Moose and caribou were plentiful, but the deer had not at that time been driven north from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. Later, they began to come in and it is stated that this year they are thicker than ever in the vicinity of Cross River, where a number of Duluth hunters are accustomed to hunt every fall.

The movement of animals in the woods are sometimes hard to account for, but from all reports the wolves are more plentiful in the immediate vicinity of Duluth than they have been for several years.

Massachusetts Block Sold.

The Massachusetts block, a three-story brick flat-building at the corner of Tower avenue and Sixteenth street, was sold yesterday to the Cashel Investment company, represented by John McCabe, for $42,000. The property was formerly owned by the Land & River company and several persons residing in the East. The block has a frontage of 100 feet on Tower avenue and is 82 feet deep. It was built a number of years ago at a price said to be in excess of that paid for it yesterday. The same buyers took over the Washington block several months ago. The Massachusetts block adjoins the Washington block on the south.

Court Lectures Contractor.

E. P. Ekquist, a sidewalk contractor was fined $10 in the municipal court yesterday for failing to properly protect people from getting hurt at the scene of his work. The court afterward remitted the fine but gave the contractor a lecture concerning his rights and the rights of the public. Ekquist maintained that he lived up to his obligations.

A $29,000,000 Fine.

One of the largest fines ever imposed in any court in the world was that of $29,000,000 against the famous Oil Trust, but there appears to be a great deal of skepticism as to whether they will ever be compelled to pay it. Perhaps not, but then the lesson of obeying the law has been strongly impressed on them as well as on other large corporations. Under False Colors

By Violet Etynge Mitchell.

"For de land sakes, Miss Dorothy, what is de matter, my honey dove?" cried Aunt Dinah, with characteristic recklessness of metaphor, as, pausing in the center of the kitchen, she regarded in deep surprise the clouded face of pretty Dorothy Le Strange.

"Oh, it is poverty, always poverty," wept Miss Le Strange, who, being motherless and still very young, had grown to treat Aunt Dinah with a certain affectionate friendliness born of their mutually fallen fortunes. For, in the good old antebellum days when Dorothy's mother had been the belle of Charleston and her father reckoned as one of the wealthiest as well as proudest men in the state, Aunt Dinah had held the sway of an empress in the Le Strange kitchen, and her orders had been meekly carried out by half a dozen satellites. But, alas! with the decadence of Southern prosperity fell also the fortunes of the rich banker, and when, ten years later, Dorothy's blue-eyed mother, dying in want of the luxuries to which she had been accustomed, faded out of a world which no longer held any charm for her, she had left her baby in the arms of the one faithful servant who, through storm and sunshine, had followed in the footsteps of her beloved mistress.

Bound by the tie of strong affection to the family, Aunt Dinah struggled to keep alive in Dorothy the proud spirit of her mother, and with the skill of a veteran officer ruled the kitchen, watched with belligerent eye Miss Le Strange's Northern associates, and could, by a shake of her turbaned head, upset many a plan of her master's making.

"Sho! Poverty mighty mean. What he ben doin' to yo' now Missy, dear?"

Dorothy unfolded a letter, balancing herself deftly upon the chair, spread it out upon the lap of her faded green cashmere dress.

"I've got an invitation to the ball at Armitage's," sighed she, between little sobs. "All the Evarts girls are going, and Surlie Williams. Even Catheryin Bates will be there in a brand new lemon-colored taffeta. Everyone has something to wear but me, and it's the very first big dance to which I have ever been asked—I wish I could die—yes, I do. This being proud and poor is a curse to anyone."

"Huh!" Aunt Dinah's eyes closed sharply, like the snapping to of a box lid, as if she would shut out from some inner temple all distracting "Lemme think; dar's yo' ma's ole blue silk, mought be made over."

A few crystal tears brimmed over her blue eyes, and falling upon the letter lay there like drops of dew.

"Can't do much on three dollars," murmured Aunt Dinah, contemplating the young girl with her hand on one side like a big, black canary bird, "but we must do somethin'. Yes, honey, we p'intedly gwan do something to get yo' ready fo' dat ball, I ain't gwine to have yo' disapp'inted."

WHEAT IS STRONGER

Northwestern Markets Lead in Good Bulge During Day.

Flax Has an Advance in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 1.—Wheat had a good bulge in the American markets today. The Northwest was particularly bullish during the latter part of the session, on the car situation. There is a shortage of cars again this season. Car receipts in the Northwest showed a considerable decrease from last year and this caused firmness in Duluth and Minneapolis. Chicago and New York followed the trend of the market here. The foreign markets were weaker. Liverpool closed ½d to ¼d lower. Antwerp unchanged to ⅝c lower, Berlin ½c lower and Budapest ⅛c higher.

The December option closed 1⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅛-⅝c in Chicago, 1⅜c in Minneapolis and ⅛c higher in New York. The May option closed 1⅜c higher in Duluth, ½c in Chicago, 1¼c in Minneapolis and ⅝c in New York.

December corn closed ⅛-¼c higher and was ½d to ⅝d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was a steady tone to the speculative wheat market, although values at immediate start were ½d lower. This pressure resulted from the weakness in American cables yesterday and the decline in the Winnipeg market. Following the opening there was a sharp rally, prices recovering ½d of the early decline due to good support by the bull interests, but again at mid-day an easier feeling developed, values losing ¼d of this advance on the continued weakness in the continental market.

"At the start the corn market was quiet with values 1⅛d to ⅜d lower followed by a further decline of ½d. The weaker American cables, more favorable American weather, and larger offerings of new American corn caused the weakness."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,227,000 bus, last year 2,256,000 bus. Shipments, 766,000 bus, last year, 970,000 bus.

Bradstreet reports an increase of 2,253,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat. East of the Rockies there was a decrease of 202,000 bus, in Canada an increase of 555,000 bus, and afloat and in Europe an increase of 1,900,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 1,202,000 bus, last year 734,000 bus. Shipments 471,000 bus, last year 573,000 bus.

Wheat trading was quite active during the session of the Duluth market. The tone was improved from the opening and prices advanced steadily during the day. December wheat opened unchanged at $1.04⅛, advanced to $1.05⅛, declined to $1.05, rallied to $1.06⅞, declined to $1.05⅝, reacted to $1.06 and declined by the close to $1.05⅝, a gain of 1⅛c over yesterday. May wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.09¼, advanced to $1.10⅜-⅝, went off to $1.10¼, rallied to $1.10¾ and closed at $1.10⅝, a gain of 1⅜c over yesterday.

Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2½c over December for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet during most of the day. October flax opened unchanged at $1.23½, advanced to $1.25⅛, declined to $1.24¾, rallied to $1.25 and closed at that price, a gain of 1½c over yesterday. November flax opened unchanged at $1.22, went to $1.23¾ and closed at that price, a gain of 1½c over yesterday.

December flax opened unchanged at $1.18, went to $1.18¾ and closed at that price, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. May flax opened ½c lower at $1.22½, went to $1.24 and closed at that price, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Barley was lower. The higher grades held fairly firm, going off about a point but the market was quiet and the lower grades weak. The close was 75c-$1, as against 80c-$1.04 yesterday. Oats closed ½c lower.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easy on Lower Liverpool Prices, But Quickly Rallies.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The wheat market opened easy today because of lower prices at Liverpool, but quickly rallied on reports of wet weather in the Northwest. December opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 98¼c to 98¼c, sold off to 97⅞c and rallied to 98¾c. The market closed strong with December up ⅛c to ⅝c at 98⅝@⅞c.

Chicago wires: Snow is back from his farm in Saskatchewan this morning. He says 20,000,000 bus is highest estimate for milling wheat in Northwest Canada. Only wheat that was cut before frost in Southern Manitoba and some in Southern Saskatchewan and some winter in Alberta. This is all that is being threshed yet, and of fair quality, but light yields. In many districts no wheat was cut until after frost and nowhere was all the crop secured. When the frosted wheat is threshed it will be good for little besides feed. Old wheat is being bought now for next year's seed. Weather for two weeks, dull and rainy, preventing frosted grain from hardening and delaying threshing. Sixty per cent of the crop will be of too low quality to mill.

Chicago—Wheat letter:

There was a decided change of feeling in the wheat trade early today. A continuation of the heaviness of yesterday was noticeable for a few minutes at the start when December sold at 97⅝c. The selling pressure appeared to give out at this point. The volume of trade was light for a time. It took only moderate buying to start prices up a little and this in turn forced shorts to do some covering. The trade had some bullish news from the Northwest. Best prices were not held, but there was a fair degree of firmness at a little under top figures up to the close. Without large shipments from Chicago or heavy export clearances the trade will not get enthusiastic on the buying side and orders should be placed to buy wheat only on the weak spots.

Corn—Traders had less than the usual amount of news for the session. Liverpool came weak and lower because of the decline here yesterday. It took only a moderate support to give prices a fair rally. Iowa has warm, wet weather, and dispatches say conditions are very unfavorable for late corn. The market is dull at present and buyers will have to pick the soft spots.

Oats—There was very little action in oats at any time. Prices held all day within a fraction of yesterday's close, after a little dip on first trade. For tomorrow the estimate is 297 cars. Bradstreets increased stocks 1,227,000 bus.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter took an advance today, the Eastern markets ruling higher and an advance of from 1 to a cent and a half is noted locally.

Eggs are also higher an advance of 1 cent being quoted today and in all probability the prices will move on next week. Just at present enough country eggs are coming in to supply the demand, but it will not be long before storage eggs will be on the market.

Poultry prices are a little off and the market well supplied. A peculiar fact is that hens are bringing about as much as spring chickens, the quality of the latter being in excess of the demand and many people preferring a plump, well fed hen for baking to the springs. Meat prices are about the same as yesterday's close.

The following prices are quoted up to noon today, the list being supplied by the secretary of the exchange:

RECOVERY IN STOCKS

In Middle of the Afternoon After an Early Decline.

Advances Scored All Along the List by Shorts Covering.

New York, Oct. 1.—Prices of stocks advanced with the opening of business on the stock exchange. The exceptions were Canadian Pacific, which reacted 4½ from the jump forced yesterday by the covering of shorts; United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting, the last declining ¾. Great Northern preferred rose 1½; Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Allis-Chalmers preferred and Northern Pacific and St. Paul large fractions.

There was a good demand for the standard railroad stocks which soon imparted strength to the industrials. Support for Canadian Pacific, which restored its opening loss, also contributed to the general strength. A renewed break of 4 points in Canadian Pacific started selling in other quarters and the advances were largely reduced. The market fell into semi-stagnation at the reaction.

A hardening of prices resulted in gains from Brooklyn Transit of 2¼, People's Gas, 1½, and Pennsylvania, St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred and American Smelting, 1. Republic Steel preferred sold at a decline of 3. Bonds were irregular.

Both United States Steel and Canadian Pacific sold lower at 26½ and 164½ respectively. Other stocks held up well meanwhile until renewed weakness in St. Paul began and the entire list eased off. St. Paul dropped to 114½ a loss of 1⅞ and Amalgamated Copper also gave way 1 and Reading, ⅞.

The decline in the market was arrested in the middle of the afternoon and there were recoveries of a point in St. Paul, Reading and the copper stocks. Anaconda rose from 38 to 39½ on covering by shorts with the announcement of the reduction in the dividend.

The market closed strong. The announcement of a receivership for the Metropolitan Street Railway caused a fall in the local traction securities list, amounting, for the Interborough-Metropolitan 4½ per cent bonds, to ¾ at 57½ ex-interest, for the preferred stock 2, Third Avenue 3 and Metropolitan Street Railway 1¼. In the general list there was covering of shorts against which prices rallied to the high level. St. Paul shot up to 119¾ in the final dealings.

Stock Gossip.

New York—Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bear element evidently received an object lesson from yesterday's squeeze in Canadian Pacific, and as a result the market today was rather feverish, but in the last hour advances were scored all along the list on shorts covering. St. Paul rallied 5 points from the low level at the close on aggressive buying by short interest. Although the president's speech was regarded as somewhat pessimistic, its effect was generally thought to be discounted. It is hardly time to predict any sustained upward movement, but it would seem that the standard issues should rally somewhat further, especially if the shorts are squeezed in oversold issues.

Copper Gossip.

New York, to Vern R. Culbertson: The action of today's stock market seems to confirm the belief that most of the recent depression in prices was due principally to professional manipulation, rather than to genuine liquidation of any volume. Early market displayed a strong tone with some covering by the short element. The news today, while not favorable, was not altogether unexpected. The president's speech was perhaps the chief excuse for a renewed attack on prices shortly after the noon hour but this movement was not any great success for the market showed wonderful rallying power. The reduction of 50 cents in the dividend rate on Anaconda was generally expected and in fact was not as great a reduction as had been looked for and was entirely discounted. There was nothing in the president's utterances that is not already know as to his future plans against corrupt corporations, his speech being practically a declaration to those interests who have held that he was carrying his policies to extremes to the detriment of general business and prosperity. While we continue to advise going slowly we believe the market is entitled to a further recovery but expect to see considerably irregularity for the immediate future.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Anaconda dividend was taken favorable and the whole market rallied at the close. St. Paul was reactionary today as Canadian Pacific was yesterday and climbed 5 points from the low. Copper Range and North Butte were quietly picked up this morning by one of the big local traders, and both stocks are confident that they will rally 10 points on any good news. The market seems to be creeping up each day, and the bears are locked in. Few attempts were made to break stocks today, and there was no liquidation and stocks only went higher on covering.

BELGIUM'S WORK IN CONGO.

Engineering Magazine: Hardship in transportation has always been the case in virgin territory. In America the wagon team preceded the Pacific express and more recently in British Africa the pioneers in Rhodesia and Uganda were followed by long bands of natives carrying on their shoulders and on their backs the stores and impediments of the expedition. The Congo authorities have had to adopt the same means under the same conditions in the vast region subject to their sway. It is necessarily a somewhat harsh method, accompanied with a considerable amount of severity, and no doubt attended occasionally by a certain amount of sickness and mortality. But these consequences are the common accompaniment of the early stages of colonization in an unplored and unreclaimed region, no matter what may be the continent or what the flag under which the advance guard of the colonizing or conquering power moves toward its goal. They are a passing phase, however, as it is clearly to the interest of the ruling state, quite apart from humanitarian motives, to provide as soon as possible a more expeditious, economical and, let me add, popular means of conveyance than the employment of human carriers. No government could have shown more clearly than the Congo state that it realized that portage was a system to be superseded by something better in the upper Congo region as quickly and as effectively as

SLAPPED MAN'S FACE.

Louis Birch Pays Fine for Assaulting a Woodsman.

Louis Birch, proprietor of the New Clarendon hotel, Garfield avenue and Superior street, was in municipal court this afternoon charged with assault. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1 and the costs of the case.

Complaint was made against Birch by Erick Molander, a woodsman, who claimed that while in the New Clarendon saloon Birch slapped him in the face. Birch didn't see fit to put up any defense, beyond the fact that Molander was annoying him, and paid his fine.

GET WORD FROM THE RELATIVES

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Messrs. Durkan & Crawford: Gentlemen—I feel confident that the body of the young man at your establishment is that of my brother. Someone will be up there to attend the funeral, probably tomorrow or Tuesday. His wife and child are here in Chicago. I presume I will be there myself if I can make arrangements. Yours very truly.

WILLIAM LAMBRECHT.

The foregoing is a copy of a letter received this morning by Durkan & Crawford, the undertakers, regarding the young man who died at the hospital after an epileptic fit on Superior street and was later identified as Edward Lambrecht of Chicago. There is now no longer any doubt but that the young man was a brother of the prominent Chicago jeweler.

McKENZIE SAYS STORY IS UNTRUE

No Independent Federation is Being Formed on Range.

John McKenzie, a members of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, who is now in charge of the strike on the range with headquarters at Hibbing, was in Duluth yesterday and emphatically denied that the miners of the Minnesota ranges are contemplating forming an independent organization.

"It is an entirely false report," said he. "The strike is being conducted by the Western Federation and the men on strike seem to be satisfied the way things are going. From our standpoint the situation is still looking good on the range.

"Few of our men are going back to work. We have funds enough to hold out for a long time yet. The output from the underground mines is far behind what it was last year."

Mr. McKenzie consulted with some of the local federation officials while in Duluth. To them, too, he seemed confident, even though the late reports from the mines seem discouraging from the strikers' viewpoint.

It is rumored that Petriella, the late leader on the range, instead of going back to Denver, has gone back to his father's home in Italy.

AERIAL EXPERIMENTING ASSOCIATION IS FORMED.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 1.—Announcement was made today of the organization of the Aerial Experimenting association, with a membership including Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor; Capt F. W. Baldwin of Toronto, aeronaut; G. H. Curtis of Hammondsport, N. Y., expert in motor construction; J. A. D. McCurdy of Toronto, and Lieut. T. Selfridge, Fifth United States Field artillery, expert in aeronromies. The association was organized here last night at a banquet given by Prof. Bell to Capt. Baldwin, who yesterday made a successful airship flight from this city. It was the first time that Prof. Bell, who for years has been studying and experimenting in connection with aerila navigation, ever had seen an airship actually in flight.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MEMORIAL TABLET TO GEN. GRANT UNVEILED AT BIRTHPLACE IN OHIO

In Presence of Distinguished Gathering of Old Associates.

Beginning of Celebration of Centennial of Clermont County.

Cincinnati, Oct. 2.—In the presence of a distinguished gathering that included many old army associates, a memorial tablet at the birthplace of President U. S. Grant, at Point Pleasant, in Clermont county, was unveiled today. It was the first of three days' celebration of the centennial and homecoming week of Clermont county, and thousands of native sons joined in paying honor to the country's most illustrious warrior son. A bronze cannon and memorial tablet had been placed on what is believed to be the exact spot where was located the house in which Ulysses Simpson Grant was born and about this were gathered Governor Andrew L. Harris, Lieut. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., retired; Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant, a delegation of the Ohio commandary of the Loyal Legion, and relatives and other guests. A detachment of regular soldiers from Fort Thomas acted as a guard of honor and assisted in the services.

Gen. Henry C. Corbin, a native of Clermont county, presided, and Belvue Simpson, a cousin of President Grant, was secretary.

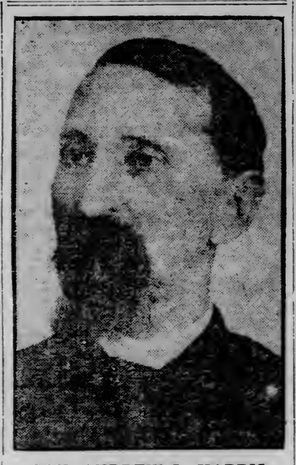

After the invocation by Rev. Edmund Durdsall of Batavia, Ohio, and a welcome address by Elijah Archer Connor, Governor Harris delivered an address.

Judge James E. Ewing of Cincinnati, another son of Clermont county, also spoke. Gen. Corbin then presented the memorial.

The response in acceptance of the simple memorial was spoken by the soldier son of the soldier president, Gen. Fred Grant, his remarks closing the speaking program.

"Ulysses Simpson Grant, general United States army, and twice elected president of the United States. Born on April 25 of the year 1822, in a house located on this spot."

COLLEGE MAY HAVE MILLIONS

From Estate of Quakeress If It Will Drop Athletics.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Miss Anna T. Jeans, the eccentric Quakeress, who gave $1,000,000 to Booker T. Washington for education for the negro, further surprised friends when the will was read, leaving $5,000,000, the whole of the estate, to charity.

Of the provisions of the curious document the most curious were those relating to the bestowal of all her coal lands, worth about $3,000,000, to Swarthmore college upon condition that the institution would at once drop all athletics.

Another startling thing that leaked out was that Miss Jeans, although living in the Quaker home she had founded, and leaving $250,000 to the Philadelphia yearly meeting, had been for the last ten years a Buddhist, and had died in that faith.

As for the position in which she has placed Swarthmore, it is not likely that the college will accept her millions.

MEMORIAL TO SEVERANCE

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon in the supreme court room, memorial services were held in honor of the late Judge Severance, of Mankato, before a large attendance of lawyers. The following speakers paid glowing tribute to his memory:

J. L. Washburn of Duluth, Judge Thomas Wilson and C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, W. S. Hammond of St. James, A. C. Dunn of Winnebago City, Judge F. Caldwell of Le Sueur, P. L. Schmitt of Mankato, and J. J. Schoregge.

Judge Severance was characterized as one of the ablest pioneer lawyers of the state, standing at the forefront of the bar, forum and bench. In private life he was self-sacrificing, always ready to be of service to all, without thought of compensation.

WINTERING FAR NORTH

Will Make Dash for the Pole Early Next Summer.

WOULD BREAK OLD CONTRACT

Pressmen's Officials Try to Cancel Signed Agreement.

New York, Sept. 2.—A threatened strike of printing pressmen in job printing plants throughout the country, which was scheduled to go into effect yesterday in offices which declined to yield to the demands of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' union, affected only three offices in Chicago, according to advices received today at the United Typothetae headquarters in this city. The union demanded an eight-hour day and an advance of $1 per week.

One official of the typothetae said that the whole trouble was due to an attempt on the part of the new officials of the pressmen's union, headed by President George L. Berry of Cincinnati, to repudiate a contract made by Former President Martin H. Higgins of Charlestown, Mass., last February, effective on May 1 and continuing for five years, renewing an agreement which had been in force for five years previous to that date. It was said that legal steps would be taken to compel the union to adhere to its agreement.

At the offices of the New York pressmen's local union today it was asserted that no trouble was anticipated and that there was every indication that most of the offices in this city would sign the proposed scale.

Many Questions of Great Importance to Come Before Them.

The Bishop of London Delivers the Opening Sermon.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—Facing all the problems that have been discussed and passed over in conventions gone by, and a number of new questions of great importance, the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States assembled today for its forty-fifth triennial convention, which is expected to be one of the most interesting in the history of the church. The Rt. Rev. A. W. Winnington-Ingram, bishop of London, was present and preached the sermon at the celebration of the holy communion in Holy Trinity church, this being the opening ceremony.

The only business conventions today were for the purpose of organization, the house of bishops meeting at 3:30 p. m., in the state capital, and the house of deputies at the same hour in St. Paul's church.

A warm welcome has been given the visiting churchmen. The business section of the city is decorated with flags and bunting, and by night is brilliant with an electrical display.

The bishop of London, who reached here yesterday, and went to the residence of Bishop Gibson of the diocese of Virginia, spent the entire afternoon on the golf rinks, where he made many friends.

With rare good nature he posed for a number of photographs for amateurs and some for publication. In his public statements the bishop referred to the fact that for a century and a half the church in the United States was under the bishop of London. He said he valued this historical connection, and it was because of it he came to America.

Lay delegates to the convention number many well known business men and several of them have taken houses for the three weeks' sessions.

There are about 800 members of the general convention, including the bishops of the several dioceses and missionary districts, and four clerical and four lay deputies from each of the dioceses, and one each from every every missionary district.

Of all the questions pending, that of creating negro bishops is causing the most heated discussion. A large faction will advocate the closing of the negro missions and schools and allow the negro communicants to die out or scatter among other religious bodies.

Another faction openly advocates the Private Doctor Will Disappear and Health Officer Appear.

London, Oct. 2.—The change the practice of medicine is undergoing was the keynote of several addresses made by leading London doctors at the opening yesterday of the winter session of the medical schools connected with the London hospitals. The speakers said the day was coming when the doctor in private practice would disappear and be replaced by the public health officer, whose work would lie in the prevention more than in the cure of disease.

Dr. Ewart told the students that the profession was in the throes of a double crisis, economical and professional. He declared that the growing success in reducing the prevalence of disease and the growth of specialism had contracted the field of general practice and the process was bound to continue. He said it was inevitable that the profession should become more the servant of the state. Henceforth its members must devote themselves to the culture of health, preventing, instead of curing disease.

Other addresses of a similar nature were heard, one physician contending that things were moving toward the unique consummation of a calling by its own training and application, destroying the very source upon which it depended for its living.

WOMAN ASKS FOR ESCORT

Desires Court to Provide One in Husband's Absence.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 2.—Her husband being away on a trip, Mrs. Lillian Pembleton, the pretty wife of a traveling man, asked Justice Pitkin to detail a constable of his court to accompany her to and from the theater for the week.

She said she thought the presence of an officer would guard her from gossips and at the same time afford her protection on her way home. She also asked that the officer be required to wear a dress suit and in the event he had none, she offered to loan her husband's.

Justice Pitkin promised to detail an officer and asked Constable Dunham to officiate. The constable, who is 55 and fat, declined, declaring his wife would object.

TIGERS TAKE BOTH GAMES

Double Header at Washington Won By Detroit.

Cleveland Defeats Philadelphia By 4 to 3.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—With the American league race narrowed down to Detroit and Phalidelphia, and everything depending on Washington, the fans of the Capitol City turned out en masse today for the double-header between Detroit and the home club. Washington's remaining games for the season will decide the pennant. The four-game series now on with Detroit and the three games to be played later with Philadelphia may send the flag either to East or West, and the Nationals are as much in the thick of the fight as though they were among the leaders.

Pounding four Washington pitchers for a total of sixteen hits, the Tigers captured the first game by a score of 9 to 5. Tantillion's throwers could not stop the tide of the Tiger flood, especially when the Westerners were aided by execrable fielding on the part of the Washington men. On the other hand, Detroit played brilliant ball. Killian, who started the game, was hit freely, but after he was taken out, the home players were almost powerless. Hitting the ball hard and fielding brilliantly, the Tigers increased their lead by bounds, playing almost with desperation.

Killian and Smith started the game, but they did not last long. In the first inning, the Tigers pounded in three runs and Falkenberg was sent in. In the second inning, neither side scored, but in the third Washington found Killian for two runs to the Tigers' one. Mullin was sent in to pitch for Detroit, and Warner to catch for Washington, replacing Block.

In the fourth, the Tigers hit the ball hard again, scoring two runs and driving Falkenberg to the bench, Patten replacing him. Detroit scored one in the fifth and Washington two in the sixth. In the seventh, neither side scored, but in the eighth, the Tigers again broke loose and added two to their total.

Oberlin pitched the ninth inning for Washington and held the Tigers in check, while Washington failed to score in its half. Score:

Washington ..0 1 2 0 0 2 0 0 0—5	12	5

SECOND GAME.

The second game started with Mullin pitching for Detroit and Oberlin for Washington. Detroit started hitting the ball hard in the first and scored three runs in each of the first and second innings, while Washington was unable to do anything with Mullin.

Neither side scored in the third inning.

In the fourth, both pitchers worked well and neither side put a man across the plate.

Neither team scored again in the fifth inning, both teams playing excellent ball in the field. In the sixth again, both failed to score.

In the seventh inning, Detroit failed to score, but Washington succeeded in sending one man across the plate, making the score: Detroit, 6; Washington, 1.

Both failed to score in the eight inning.

In the ninth inning, Detroit scored four and Washington one, the final score being, Detroit, 10; Washington, 2.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Detroit .....3 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 4—10	18	2

Batteries—Oberlin and Warner; Mullin and Schmidt. Umpires—Hurst and Brown.

CLEVELAND WINNER.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 2.—Philadelphia is baseball mad. Realizing that on the winning of the Cleveland series depends the Athletics' hopes for victory in the race, fans and players are keyed to the highest point and both are in the fray with all their strength.

Mack sent Plank to the box again today in the hope of taking the second game from Cleveland. Thielman was LaJoie's choice.

In the first inning, Cleveland broke in with two scores and Philadelphia was unable to do anything. Neither side scored in the second inning.

Neither side scored in the third inning, but in the fourth inning, the Athletics landed on Thielman and run in two scores. Cleveland scored one in the same inning, leaving the score: Cleveland, 3; Philadelphia, 2.

Both sides failed to score in the fifth inning.

Both failed to score again in the sixth, the score standing: Cleveland, 3; Philadelphia, 2.

In the seventh inning Cleveland added one to its total and Philadelphia scored once in its half. Neither side scored in the eighth, leaving the score: Cleveland, 4; Philadelphia, 3.

Both failed to score in the ninth and the game ended with the score 4 to 3 in Cleveland's favor.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia .0 0 0 2 0 0 1 0 0—3	11	1
Cleveland ....2 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0—4	8	1

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—August, the 18-year-old son of Ole Tolefson, a farmer in the town of Nokay Lake, was accidentally shot while hunting on Tuesday evening. He was in a boat and attempted to pull a gun over the seat by the barrel. The charge struck his left leg above the knee, severing an artery and he bled to death before he could be got to a surgeon. His father is in North Dakota harvesting. His mother died four years ago.

PACKAGE IS DELIVERED

Relay Boats Arrive at Alton With Message to President.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—A leather-covered package taken from Chicago to Alton, Ills., by relay motor boats in thirty-three hours and forty-three minutes, was passed to the president's steamer Mississippi from the motor boat Kitty Parks just above Alton at 6:30 a. m. It contained a message from Mayor Busse of Chicago to the president and was opened by him and read when he awakened. The president was still sleeping when his steamer passed Alton, 25 miles above St. Louis.

The message reached Alton last night, ahead of the expected schedule. C. F. Sparks, the last relay man feared that if he waited until the president's steamer had entered St. Louis harbor and attempted to deliver the message he might fall because of the turmoil and crush and therefore decided to make delivery near Alton.

MAIL TRAIN DYNAMITED

Robbers Blow Open Safe and Set Fire to Car.

Odessa, Oct. 2.—A train having on board more than 200 passengers, was held up last night by a band of robbers, who opened the mail car by exploding dynamite. The explosion set the car on fire, and the flames communicated to a crowded passenger car, with the result that several women and children were badly burned before they could escape.

While the robbers were trying to blow open the safe in the mail car, they were attacked by gendarmes. Several on both sides were wounded, but the robbers escaped.

PRESIDENT SAYS NATION SHOULD IMPROVE SYSTEM OF INTERIOR WATERWAYS

In a Speech Delivered While the Guest of St. Louis.

He Again Urges Federal Control Over Interstate Commerce.

Court Must Decide Difference Between National and State Commerce.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Welcomed by screaming whistles, clanging bells, thundering detonations of bursting bombs and the huzzahs from thousands of throats, President Roosevelt landed at St. Louis at 9:47 o'clock this morning, marking the first stop on his voyage down the Mississippi river, from Keokuk, Iowa, to Memphis, Tenn., where he will attend the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterways association convention Friday. The cruise is the president's active response to a general invitation from the governors of the states along the Mississippi river, given in the belief that he will be so impressed with the enormous waste of freight-carrying energy that he will exert powerful influence in favor of committing the government to act with definite and larger spirit toward deepening the great inland channels for navigation by ocean-going craft.

The entrance of the steamer Mississippi, bearing the president, into the harbor of St. Louis was announced by the firing of bombs and blowing of whistles. Tens of thousands of persons lined both shores of the river and across Eads bridge, the main viewpoint, stretched a chain of humanity, solidly packed from the Illinois to the Missouri side.

The escorting steamboats maintained their line of procession, and swept along to the point of landing, at the foot of Olive street, where they halted. The Mississippi steamed on down to

Must Show Cause Why Suit Should Not Begin.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Western Union Telegraph company and the Postal Telegraph-Cable company were ordered today by Justice Ford of the supreme court, New York state, to show cause on Friday why State Attorney General Jackson should not be permitted to sue them for forfeiture of their charters, on the ground that they have formed a combination to increase telegraph tolls. Mr. Jackson, in his application alleges that the combination was made January 1, 1907, and that a new and increased schedule of rates was put into effect and that the companies agreed to maintain joint offices at certain points and divide the profits of business received therein.

CRIMEA VETERAN ANSWERS "TAPS"

Judge Brisley Who Witnessed Famous Charge of Light Brigade.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Charles Brisley, bailiff in the circuit court, former municipal judge, veteran of the Crimean war and father of eighteen children, died this morning in his 87th year, of the infirmities of old age. Judge Brisley, as he was called because of his long term on the local municipal bench, was for three years an English artilleryman in the Crimean war, and participated in three of the famous battles, Inkerman, Alma and Balaklava, in the last of which he witnessed the famous charge of the Light Brigade, made immortal by history and song. Just prior to the siege of Sebastapol, Judge Brisley was ship-wrecked and came near losing his life.

Prior to the Crimean war, Judge Brisley served in the campaign against the Irish revolutionists. He was a native of England and had resided in Ashland for about twenty years. He was a prominent Catholic, being a devout Jesuit. Of his eighteen children nine survive. The deceased was so well known in Northern Wisconsin that it is expected his funeral will be a notable event in Ashland. The date has not been fixed, but it will probably be held on Friday.

BRAND NEW TRAIN WILL RUN TO CANADIAN BORDER

Rainy Lake Road Receives New Passenger Equipment.

May be Put in Through Service From Duluth.

Smelling of fresh paint, and shining and glistening in the sun, a handsome new train for the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road arrived in the city last night, and today was inspected by the officials of the line. This evening the new train will be taken to Virginia, the southern terminus of the line at the present time. Within the next sixty days the train will be put in regular service.

An official of the line said this morning that the Rainy Lake road might place this new train in a through service from Duluth to the Canadian border, and possibly beyond, using other tracks than their own. All of this is still in obeyance, but will be decided upon during the next few weeks.

The new train comes from the Barney & Smith Car company's shops at Dayton, Ohio, and is composed of splendid specimens of the car-builders' art. The cars are of standard length—sixty feet—and width, and are painted a shade known among railroad men as a "Pullman green."

Two first-class coaches, a smoking car and a combination mail and baggage car comprise the train. All of the cars with the exception of the baggage are equipped with lighted, wide vestibules.

The coaches are equipped with red plush seats, heaters and fully appointed toilet rooms. One new feature is a continuous hat and parcel rack, just over the windows. The vestibules are trimmed with brass, and the washbowls are of polished nickel. The smoking car is furnished with leather seats, and is in many ways similar to the first-class coaches.

The baggage car, in addition to the compartment for luggage, contains a spacious apartment for the railway mail service. The car is a "blind baggage." The only entrances to the post-office compartment is through the wide doors at the sides.

When sleepers are needed in connection with the train, Pullman or Canadian Northern sleepers will be used.

Game Is Scarce.
John Green, deputy game warden, has just returned from a trip on the North Shore, where he says, game is not very plentiful this year. Moose, he says, are to be found in large quantities, but not so with deer. Patridge is also scarce. The reason for a shortage of deer and patridge is the late spring of last year and the severe winter which preceded it. The snow got so deep and stayed so long, that the deer could not get enough to eat and they died of fatigue and hunger. The late and wet spring damaged the eggs and killed the young of the patridge.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS

Duluthians who are suffering from that dread disease, rheumatism, have cause for rejoicing; it can be cured. Mr. Frank Suech, when in England a short time ago obtained the formula from a famous specialist, and cured his little girl of a very severe form of inflammatory rheumatism of many years' standing. Doctors had tried in vain to give relief to the little one, and it was admitted that her case was a hopeless one. In three weeks' time, Mr. Suech had cured her. Since then many other cures have taken place, and the remedy has proved its wonderful healing power repeatedly. It is applied externally only. Those interested will learn much to their advantage by calling on Mr. Frank Suech, 329 West First street.

EASY MONEY HARD TO GET

Lid on Gambling Joints in All Parts of Country.

"One day it's milk and honey.
Next day hustlin' 'round for money."

These few lines from an old "coon" song entitled, "Th' Gambin' Man," has a plaintive application in Duluth just at this time. The lid seems to be on and attached with the same tenacity as a child's tongue to a jack-knife on a frosty morning. If this were true only in Duluth it would not make so much difference, but the boys who seem to make their money easy seem to be rounded up in every city in the country. Duluth was once considered soft and pretty nearly on the border, but there are some of the wise ones who are standing on the corners studying the compass and finding the velvet sea uncharted.

One of the best of the old guard, who has been slipping cards out of the box or spinning the ivory ball for several decades, was encountered on Superior street this morning. He was without a rudder and when accosted by one who knew him when diamonds were to him a drug on the market, he saddened. Time was when he would have made a suggestion involving the expenditure of some of the easy money, but this morning he didn't.

"The lid on?" he asked. "Well, that's mild, but it expresses the situation. There's the big fellow raking off in the back room down the line, and Little Tim satisfied with chop once a day at Golfield, and me here almost tempted to go to go to work. They've got the bridle on here and there seems to be no chance. Of course there might be a few dozen of games in Duluth, but it is always a case of a few friends getting together. No well regulated rooms, no protection. This makes it easy for the machine men too. They would not be admitted into a well regulated room and they are satisfied to get to work most any place, and if two or three of them can take on one stranger it is about all they look for. If things were running right they would have no chance and the men who like a little play would get a square deal."

CANDIDATES DECLINE

To Accept Positions Given Them on Cincinnati Democratic Ticket.

Cincinnati, Oct. 2.—A political sensation of more than local interest was the announcement today that nine of the twenty-one candidates named yesterday at the Democratic municipal convention had decided to refuse to accept the places given them on the ticket. Vice Mayor Pfaff, Auditor Culkins and Treasurer Weller headed the list of declinations, the others including four candidates for council at large and two for the board of public service.

The reason given is that the methods that controlled the selection of delegates to the convention were too autocratic and that there was too much of "boss rule" in the convention for officials who two years ago had been elected in a campaign against such methods and control.

MORE RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS

One Will be Placed on the Range Mail Train.

Information has been received by the local railway mail officials from the authorities at Washington that twe additional railway mail clerks have been allowed for the Duluth district, and will be appointed in the near future.

It is the intention to put one of the new clerks on the run between Hibbing and Duluth, and the other will probably be used on the Omaha train, between Duluth and Eau Claire. For some time there has been much complaint by range people about the mail service, and it seems to be the intention of the government to improve this.

Acting clerks will be appointed to the new positions temporarily, and the permanent clerks within a few weeks. Matt Jensen, Jr., took up his duties today as a railway mail clerk, having been appointed to succeed one of the acting clerks.

As soon as trains are running through from Duluth to the border, on the new Rainy Lake line, it is expected that a railway mail clerk will be furnished for that work. All of the new men will be under the Duluth chief railway mail clerk.

STATE PRESENTS EVIDENCE.

Swamp Land Case in Land Office Half Finished.

The state began presenting its testimony this morning before Register Engle in the land office in the case of the Dells Paper company of Wisconsin against the state. It is one of the "swamp lands" cases.

The paper company claims that the land is not swamp and that the statt has no right to take possession of it. It took seven days to present all the testimony of the company and the remainder of the week will probably be consumed in getting all the state's case. About sixteen parties are involved in the contest and a number of witnesses have been on hand for the past week.

MANY MATTERS ARE CONSIDERED

Eveleth City Council Holds Rather a Busy Session.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the council meeting last night Alderman Gleason acted as president in place of Alderman Mulligan, who was detained at home. The Monitor hall, through its building committee's secretary, Ephraim Johnson, asked to have a cement curb and gutter placed alongside its building. The petition was granted on condition that there be a ten-inch drop from the Grant street grade, and the end of the walk be twelve inches higher than the street along the store, occupied by Cerveny & Bradford. The curb cost shall not exceed $1 per foot.

Health Officer Johnson reported that thirty places are in immediate need of sewer connection. As the city's finances are depleted, the superintendent of the water works was ordered to make the connections that are deemed most necessary.

Jacob Stein's petition to erect an addition to the building now occupied by W. Cottrell as a billiard room, was referred to the fire warden. The addition will be covered with corrugated iron. It is to be used by Mr. Cottrell as a bowling alley.

The street committee reported that Matt Tomac's petition for a postponement of his sidewalk building, be denied, as the committee has no authority to grant the request.

Harry Silver's appointment of chief engineer was confirmed. His election was to hold from Sept. 26. The action on a reduction of the number of volunteer firemen from fifteen to ten, and the appointing of two paid firemen at a salary of $65 per month, was postponed until the next meeting.

Superintendent Lavell reported that the fuel company was not furnishing the grade of coal contracted for.

The council's action on the report of the board of tax levy was postponed until today, owing to Alderman Mulligan's absence.

There is a disposition on the council's part to revoke the permission given Frank Klink to move his building on the corner of Jones and Grant, as he shows no sign of complying with the conditions.

MANY STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

Flocking Back So Fast Fayal Puts on Night Crews.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The larger part of the man who struck are going to work. At the No. 1 shaft of the Fayal mine, so many men have returned that a night crew has been put to work under ground.

President McNair has been ordered to examine and audit the local Federation's books that have been in charge of Secretary Movern. Some members feel that certain irregularities have been allowed to go unnoticed, and that the union is financially a loser thereby.

The local union store has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators are Matt Makinen, Ed Jakinen and other prominent Finns.

Deputy Ed Connors' case for assaulting Ed Makinen, which was to have been called yesterday, has been postponed for two weeks. This is the third time that the case has been postponed.

MANY INTERESTS UNITE ON TICKET

Citizens Movement Seems to be in Favor in City of Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Democrats and others opposed to the present administration have taken the initiative by naming a ticket for the coming municipal campaign. The ticket has not been formally nominated as yet but this will probably be done at a People's caucus later on. The ticket talked of is as follows: For mayor, Andrew Hawkinson; for treasurer, John Costin, Jr.; aldermen at large, P. A. Coffey and Joseph Cassady; alderman, first ward, Henning Erickson; second ward, Conrad Mattson; third ward, A. C. Osborne; fourth ward, E. J. Elnum. An effort was made to induce Otto A. Tolrier to run for municipal judge, but he refused, owing to the fact that he is assistant county attorney. James Carey is talked of for the place.

Andrew Hawkinson, the proposed candidate for mayor, is one of Virginia's oldest citizens and most prominent business men. He has twice held the office of city treasurer and was defeated for that office two years ago by W. B. Pratt by a narrow margin. He is strong politically. P. A. Coffey, one of the candidates for aldermen at large, was defeated for mayor two years ago by a large majority, after he had served the previous two years as alderman at large. Joseph Cassady, the other proposed candidate for alderman at large, is chief engineer for the Virginia Lumber company and is well liked in the community. He has never before aspired for political honors.

Henning Erickson of the First ward, is in charge of Lerch Bros.' laboratory, and is a substantial citizen and business man. Conrad Mattson of the Second ward, served as alderman two years, retiring at the end of his term. He was one of the strongest supporters of Mayor Fay's reform policy. He is a Finlander, and most of his countrymen reside in his ward. He is considered a hard man to defeat. A. C. Osborne of the Third ward, is the manager of the Virginia Foundry & Machine company. He has built up a good business and takes a lively interest in local municipal affairs. E. J. Elnum conducts a grocery store in the Fourth ward. He is considered a very strong man politically and the Republicans are anxious to have him run with them.

None of the present aldermen have yet declared their intentions, but it is a practical certainty that Mayor Eaton will again be a candidate unless the opposition should get up a ticket that he would be afraid to run against. Judge Nelson will again be a candidate for the office of municipal judge. He is an exceedingly hard man to defeat. Attorneys who practiced before him all say that he makes an excellent trial judge, and the only opposition to him comes from those who think he is too lenient with lawbreakers, especially those who violate the health ordinances and other city laws.

The principal opposition to Mayor Eaton comes from those who are agrieved because the mayor all through his term strenuously fought public improvements desired by those who opposed him politically and although the council finally passed a pound ordinance in spite of his opposition he has steadfastedly refused to enforce its provisions and cows as well as all other animals have free access to the streets and the private property of citizens as well.

There are others who will oppose the mayor's re-election because he has failed to enforce the saloon closing laws, while others will vote against him because he has allowed the slot machines and other gambling devices to be operated without restraint. Many citizens who voted for him two years ago say they will not do so again, but it remains to be seen whether there are enough of these to reduce his large majority of two years ago, when a combination of peculiar circumstances gave him a walk away.

WORKED ALL NIGHT.

Two Harbors City Council Burned Very Much Midnight Oil.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council has made a new record for night work Monday evening's session continuing until early Tuesday morning. After extended discussion the offer of two contractors to extend the water mains on Second and Third avenue was rejected, the council deciding to have the work done by days' labor under the supervision of the street commissioner. The contract for building a concrete bridge on Cedar street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, was awarded to N. Freeberg for $4,720.50. There was one other bid which came from John Strom who offered to do the work for $5,012.

The committee on sewers and drains will look into the proposition of replacing the timber culvert on Pine, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, which were washed away by the recent storm.

A petition containing over 200 signatures was received asking for the establishment of a city scales. The pay roll for the month of September, amounting to $1,448, was allowed.

VIRGINIA COUNCIL.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The appointment of four firemen and the disposition of some routine business comprised an uninteresting meeting of the city council last night. Owing to the inability of the street commissioner to secure men at $2 per day he was authorized to pay $2.25.

The following were appointed firemen: Angus Goddard, L. R. Mattson, James Stickney and P. A. Gimse. The latter was formerly chief of the fire department, but resigned some six weeks ago. These four firemen will receive $60 per month and will devote their entire time to the department. Sleeping quarters have been provided for them in the fire hall.

CALL FOR BIDS.

Hibbing Will Purchase Some Hose and Fix Its Fire Alarm System.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among matters decided upon by the council last night was to have the fire alarm system improved as it has been working unsatisfactorily of late. A storage battery and charging outfit will eb advertised for. It was also decided to advertise for bids for 500 feet of fire hose.

DRINK SPOILS AIM.

Drunken Finn Not Able to Shoot Very Straight at Miners.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — Considerable excitement was caused Monday evening by a drunken Finlander, who shot five times at one of the men employed at the Oliver mines, while the latter was on his way home from work. The drunk also attacked another workman with a stone, but in neither case did he do any damage because he was too drunk to have good aim. The police were looking for him all day yesterday and finally rounded him up. He will have a hearing before Judge Nelson.

TEACHER BURNS HANDS.

Miss Margaret Rankin Meets With Misfortune and Has to Leave School.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the injury resulting from burns sustained by lye coming in contact with her hands, Principal Margaret Rankin of the high school, has given up her school work and gone to her home in Northfield. Her friends are considerably concerned over her condition.

There are now three kindergarten school teachers in the Hibbing schools, Miss Faith Wheaton having arrived from the Elaine school at Minneapolis, and taken a position in the Central school. It became necessary to increase the kindergarten teaching force because the enrollment has exceeded 100.

TALKED TOO FREELY.

Sparta Merchant Alleges That Another Has Slandered His Wife.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The row between Max Greenberg and Judge Prince of Eveleth, on one side and Max Stein, a local merchant on the other, which called forth a recent suit in the courts, has an added sensation in a proceeding brought by Stein again Greenberg for alleged slander. The complaint alleges that Greenberg spoke illy of Stein's wife. The accused was arrested and released on $50 bail pending trial. Judge Prince has announced that he proposes to institute an action for damages against Stein for alleged slanderous remarks.

LAKE COUNTY ROADS.

County Commissioners Discuss Plans for Bettering Present Highways.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Various road masters were considered by the Lake county board of commissioners yesterday. One hundred dollars was appropriated to repair the damage to the approach to the steel bridge at Knife River, injured by the recent storm.

Commissioner T. H. Good was delegated to take charge of the clearing and opening of two miles of road along the north side of White Iron Lake, and the construction of a sixty-foot bridge across the White Iron river.

A petition from a number of settlers in Beaver Bay township asking for the opening of a seven-mile road running from the west end of Schaaf Lake in a northeasterly direction to Little Marais, was referred to a committee for investigation.

The county auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for the opening and clearing of a mile of roadway, an extension of the present state road, directly north from the sheep ranch.

C. V. Johnson, president of the board, was chosen as delegate from this county to attend the annual meeting of the state association of county commissioners, which will be held at Fergus Falls, Nov. 9 to 12.

SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY DROPS FROM SIGHT

Son of Frank Patka of Winton Has Strangely Disappeared.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much excitement prevails at Winton, three miles from here, because the 6-year-old child of Frank Patka, has been missing since Monday morning about 11 o'clock. After being dismissed from school at that hour for the noon intermission, various accounts and conflicting stories are given by those who claim to have seen the child after that time. One is to the effect that the little one hung on behind the mail team that leaves for Ely at that time and that he fell off at the bridge on the outskirts of town, and was last seen holding his hands on his head and starting into the woods. Another is that he was seen in a boat shortly after leaving school. The distracted parents are scouring the woods in a vain search for their lost child. Whistles were sounded throughout the night with the hope that he would be aroused and might make himself heard by the searchers. Today at noon the St. Croix Lumber company closed its mills and sent out two or three hundred men to search the neighboring woods and swamps. They are returning tonight with no news of having found any traces whatever of the missing boy.

The river and lake are being dragged today, but it is thought the child has perished in the swamps.

SMALLPOX PERSISTENT.

Two More Two Harbors Families Have Been Put in Quarantine.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The smallpox, which got a foothold here some weeks ago, seems persistent and hard to stamp out, two more families, that of Mrs. Mary Miller on Eighth avenue and a Mr. Wright on Seventh avenue being quarantined Sunday, on account of a son of each being afflicted. The boys are of nearly the same age and came down with the disease the same day and it is supposed contracted the disease from the same source, though where, or how the disease started first is not known.

These are the only ones under quarantine at present, but more are looked for.

The families, who were under quarantine but have been released are J. A. Hall, P. Peterson and Fred Wurster, all on Eighth avenue.

Contractor D. H. Clough of Duluth has completed the cement walks on First avenue and Fifth avenue, between Cedar and Poplar streets, and is now laying a walk on Fifth avenue, between Poplar and Maple streets.

EVELETH BRIEFS.

Eveleth, Minn.. Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Jackson street synagogue yesterday the Jewish congregation celebrated the feast of the "Giving of the Law." The feast ceremonies were in charge of John Siegel, A. Levant and S. Sax.

The Eveleth cash grocery's warehouse at the Mesaba depot has been covered with corrugated iron to comply with the fire laws.

Martin Tusk was fined $5 for being drunk. He paid the assessment.

The Servians from Biwabik, who were the guests of the Eveleth jail were released by the sheriff.

Dr. Moore is planning to put in a cement sidewalk around his hospital. His plans are to be acted upon by the local council.

The store that has been built by Max Shapiro and rented to the Virginia Brewing company, will be occupied by F. Lubanovich. He is the present occupant of Math Tomles building. His license was allowed to have force in the new building.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Two Harbors—The Outlook club has elected the following officers President, R. B. Elliott; vice president, P. J. Welch; secretary, W. L. Flower; treasurer, J. H. Nordby. A program for the winter will be decided upon at the next meeting.

Hibbing—Complaint is made that the fire alarm system is not working satisfactorily and it will be remedied. It is said an alarm turned in from the Miles hotel Monday evening failed to summon the department, but the fire was luckily extinguished by the hotel people.

Hibbing—Dennis Brennan, 68 years old and a pioneer resident of Hibbing, died Monday of heart failure. The remains will be shipped to Hurley, Wis., for burial. Mr. Brennan leaves six grown children, several of whom are residents of Hibbing.

EPISCOPALIANS GATHER

creation of negro bishops to serve over negro churches, and still others would consecrate negro suffragan bishops to serve under the direction of the white bishop of the diocese, and still another plan is to give the negroes three bishops and let them erect an autonomous church.

Many of the delegates will urge the passage of a more drastic canon and possibly the prohibition entirely to remarriage of a divorced person by any clergyman of the Episcopal church.

Already the question of creating a court of appeals in the church is provoking much discussion and the opponents are charging that such a court would be for the trial of heresy charges. Some say the creation of such a court would instill politics into the church conventions unless the membership of the court is limited to the members of the house of bishops.

Among other important problems pending are the proposition to divide the United States into provinces and making the office of presiding bishop elective, but the term of office to be for life or until the incumbent reaches 70 years of age. There is also a movement to appoint a committee to revise the lectionary and to allow more liberty in the way the Bible shall be read in the churches.

BARBIERI GETS $2,000 VERDICT

Claiming damages in the amount of $3,000, Vito Barbieri was given a verdict of $2,032 against Jacob Messner and others, in the district court this morning.

Barbieri claimed that during his absence Messner and others went to his place of business, appropriated personal property and disposed of it. He demanded damages covering the value of the goods, with interest. The defendants claimed that Barbieri owed them and he had given them permission to take the goods if he did not return by a certain time.

IN POLICE COURT.

Several "Plain Drunks" Comprise the Day's Grist.

In the police court this morning Judge Cutting had to consider the pleas of a medium batch of very plain drunks. There was a uniform plainness about the crowd and the dispositions made of them were about even.

Fred Dunsky, after an interpreter had been called to tell him that he was charged with being drunk, admitted the charge and paid $1 and the costs.

Sentence was suspended on Thomas Anderson, who appeared ill, and Herman Holt, Gust Dahlstrom, James Dennis, Thomas Michaelson and Carl Sarrinen went to jail for three days in default of $1 fine. Adam Randke had been released on bail and had forfeited it. John Gabrielson declared he was not drunk and his case was adjourned until this afternoon.

ELKS WILL GO TO FERGUS FALLS

W. S. McCormick, city comptroller and past district deptuy for Minnesota of the B. P. O. Elks, will tonight officially call to the attention of the Duluth lodge, No. 133, the fact that one week from today, Oct. 8, District Deputy J. H. Guerin of Minneapolis will install a new lodge at Fergus Falls. The matter was brought to the attention of Mr. McCormick by Mr. Guerin yesterday. The Duluth brothers will be asked to send as large a delegation as possible to welcome the new brothers into the order, and they will undoubtedly do so as to an Elk the installation of a new lodge is an event about as great as winning a baseball pennant.

The Little Falls lodge No. 770, will have charge of the initiatory work and all that will be required of the Duluth herd will be to take care of the Fergus Falls fawns after they come through.

Mr. McCormick waxed enthusiastic regarding the growth of Elkdom when discussing this matter this morning. He only recently relinquished the office of district deputy for Minnesota and is still in close touch with Grand Exalted Ruler Tener. Mr. McCormick called attention to the growth of the order by a reference to the number of the last lodge which he had installed, in December of last year. This was No. 1062 of Bemidji. The number of the new Fergus Falls lodge will be 1093, showing that the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has gained forty-seven new lodges in the space of nine months. This is very gratifying to the members of the order everywhere, because the more Elks there are, the merrier life is, according to the doctrine of the antlered brothers.

SOCIETY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

With 130 members already on the list, the Duluth Oratorio society has commenced another year, and is planning to do great things. Ninety-eight of the members appeared at a meeting held in the First M. E. church last evening for rehearsal and the making of preliminary plans and preparations.

Temporary officers were elected at the business session, and it was decided that the annual meeting would be held at the next rehearsal, next Tuesday evening, at the First M. E. church. At that time permanent officers will be elected, and the organization perfected. The temporary officers who were chosen were as follows: Chairman, H. W. Reyner; secretary, R. G. Dunlop; treasurer, H. H. McFayden; librarian, A. A. Elford and H. Harbison.

So far the membership committee has been very active, as the list of members secured will show. The committee is composed of H. W. Reyner, the director; R. G. Dunlop, H. H. McFayden, E. C. Clow and H. W. Lanners. After the meeting held Tuesday, Oct. 15, the membership of the society will be closed. Anyone joining the society after that date would be too far behind in the rehearsals, and it would be difficult for him to take hold of the work.

The rehearsal of Handel's "Messiah" was begun last evening. It is planned to have this presented at the Christmas festival, to be held during the holidays at the First M. E. church. The other festival of music will be in May.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Yesterday the registration of members at the Young Women's Christian association and the meeting of two gymnasium classes was held during the afternoon and evening hours.

"The outlook for the ensuing year is most promising," said Mrs. Wesley Feetham, general secretary of the association, this morning in speaking of the work of the educational classes. "The registration during September brought us many, but the first day of the fall term witnessed the registration of more students in the various classes than ever before. The gymnasium classes are always very popular and this year with Miss Pullar as director, we expect to broaden this field and add a number of features that will be welcomed by the girls and young business women.

"In addition to the lessons in cookery, dressmaking, embroidery and millinery which have always been much appreciated by prospective brides, we are arranging for some lessons in leather work and languages.

"The English classes form a part of the work that always means much to a large number of young women in the city. The young foreign women are greatly helped in their work in this new and strange country by the classes in beginning English and this department will always receive a prominent place in our work."

The board of directors of the association is much pleased at the prospect for the year and feel that more and greater work will be accomplished in spite of the limited facilities with which the work will be prosecuted.

WED AT PASADENA.

Miss Mary Draper Becomes Bride of Garvin Hodson.

At a simple wedding service yesterday, at Pasadena, Cal., Miss Mary Draper, formerly of this city, became the bride of Garvin Hodson of New York. The wedding was a quiet one, the service being read at noon at All Saints' Episcopal church. The bride was given away by her brother, Rufus H. Draper of this city, who was present for the ceremony. Mr. Hodson and his bride will go to Redlands, Cal., where they will be at home. The bride is well known in Duluth society. She is a daughter of the late Warren H. Draper, who lived in Duluth for many years, and was a member of the law firm of Draper, Davis & Hollister. The wedding is of much interest to Duluth society.

Grinols - MacMullen.

Mrs. William MacMullen and daughters, Mrs. Cameron Hewitt and Mrs. Theodor E. Reinhart left yesterday for St. Cloud, where they were guests at the wedding of Miss Pearl Grinols of that city to William MacMullen, Jr., of Duluth. The wedding service was read today at noon. Mr. MacMullen and his bride will be at home in Duluth.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Cauliflower, 15 cents each.
Crab apples, 40 to 60 cents a peck.
Tokay grapes, 50 cents a basket.
Bananas, 7 cents a pound.
Squash, 15 cents each.
Ground cherries, 10 cents a quart.
Lamb chops, 30 cents a pound.
Pork roast, 15 cents a pound.
Apples, 40 to 60 cents a peck.

Baked apples are about as nice as any one other kind on earth. Well baked and well chilled they make a very pleasant first course for breakfast, or just pleasantly warm and covered all over with thick yellow cream they make a very good lunch, or one held by the stem and gobbled right down makes a very good thing to eat whenever you may happen to think of it. Baked pears are also lusciously good. It is the time of the year to enjoy these things if you are ever going to. And if you are planning to have them, have them tomorrow by all means. One never knows what may happen. Apples may go up or you might lose your appetite, or—well, you never can tell, as a much discussed Irishman has observed.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

FIRST MEETING

Of Twentieth Century Club to Be Held Tomorrow.

The first meeting of the year of the Twentieth Century club will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at the clubroom of the library, when the Morning Shakespeare class of the club will meet for the first regular meeting of the year. The morning will be in charge of Mrs. Charles d'Autremont, who will present several readings. Her selections will be chosen from Browning, and some of Mrs. Browning's poems. Mrs. d'Autremont has always been heard with great pleasure by the members of this class, and they are delighted at again having the pleasure of hearing her. Former members of the club and any interested in the meetings are invited to attend.

It has been the custom each year for the Twentieth Century club to extend an invitation to any woman in Duluth who is interested in club work to attend the opening meetings of the classes and join the club if she wishes. This year the invitation is again extended, and those having the early meetings in charge will be glad to welcome both those already members of the classes and those who may wish to join.

This year the club has more than usual to offer to its members, the small membership fee admitting to all classes as well as to two lecture courses.

Club membership tickets admit to these lectures as well as the already popular Browning lectures, which Rev. J. W. Powell will give after Christmas.

Only a Jail-Bird

By May Belleville Brown.

Molly sat by her kitchen window and sang a low, cheery little song. Not that she had much cause for cheerfulness save the possession of a clear conscience, but so long as she had that the little woman could not help being cheerful.

She was maid-of-all-work, nurse, plain seamstress, butler, laundress and general factotum in the family of James B. Revell, or, as it was written on her mistress' cards, J. Barnett Revell. Her position was not a sinecure, for in each of her offices the best work was expected of her, few liberties were given her, and her weekly stipend was no greater than that given in houses where the same work was divided among three or four. But Molly was an orphan, unsophisticated and easily imposed upon, and, besides, a livid red mark lay across her right cheek, rendering her self-conscious and willing to hide herself anywhere.

When she looked in her mirror she did not see that her eyes were a pleasant blue, that her lips were full and rosy, that her light brown hair waved prettily back from a broad forehead—she only saw the angry looking brand burning on her cheek, and felt that she could not bear strange eyes. Further, Molly was faithful, and when Mrs. Revell, somewhat pompously dwelt on her own goodness in befriending Molly, and the excellent home and advantages that she gave to her, the girl felt a gratitude that displayed itself in yet more faithful and willing service, not stopping to properly weigh the so-called "advantages."

The Revells lived on the street that was the very borderland of social eligibility in Veneering. The next street east, and Mrs. Revell might have struggled in vain for recognition. Then it would have profited her nothing to divide her husband's name in the middle on her visiting cards. The next street west, and Mrs. Revell would have found the struggle vastly easier than it had been.

So when Molly sat singing by the kitchen window, she saw, across the neat back yard and high board fence, sandwiched between a great corn-crib and a blacksmith shop, the brick walls of the city jail—called the "callaboose" by the youngsters about town. It was a grim one-story affair, with barred windows, and had been an eyesore to Molly ever since she first saw it. Sometimes its prisoners were hilarious, and their shouts and ribald songs made her shudder, often it was empty, for Veneering was a staid, sober town.

Tonight she paused between the verses of her song. The policeman on his beat was coming down the alley with a prisoner, their voices coming clearly to her across the fence. He was a new man, therefore very zealous.

"Yes! Yes!" he was saying derisively. "They all play that gag on me. I guess the sunstroke ye got was over a counter and out of a glass."

"But—but, listen to me, officer," said the man thickly, as he staggered along with the policeman's help. "I haven't touched a drop. It's the heat—I was overcome in the harvest field last month, and this is the first time I've been out—"

"Yes, an'll be your last time till you've paid your fine," put in the policeman.

"But it's true, I say," stammered the man, "and you mustn't lock me up. I'm sober—I'm sick. This is a false charge."

As he pleaded they reached the jail, and, unlocking the door, the officer, with a derisive laugh, pushed the man into the inner darkness and slammed the door on him. Molly straining her ears, heard him call once or twice, then all was still. Her song stopped, and her ready sympathy went out to the poor man across the alley. Not for a moment did she doubt his story, though his thick husky voice and uncertain walk were against him, and an unusual anger burned within her. She hurried into the parlor where Mrs. Revell sat in imposing leisure.

"Oh, Mrs. Revell—ma'am! The policeman has just brought a poor sick man up the alley and locked him up for drunk, for all the man told him he was only sick from sunstroke. Won't you have Mr. Revell go and see about it."

The mistress stared in petrified surprise, not comprehending the meaning of Molly's request. Then she laughed an unpleasant, contemptuous laugh.

"Fancy!" she said in a tone that made the girl shrink. "So you want Mr. Revell to espouse the cause of a sot arrested on the street, just because you heard the creature protest that he was not drunk. You've done a good many foolish things, Molly, but this is the worst yet. Go back to your place and don't worry about your betters. He'll be sick enough by morning, anyway."

Molly crept back to her kitchen, abashed but not convinced, and sat in silence by the window for an hour longer. The evening was still and very hot. She knew that the only ventilation afforded in the prisoner's room was from a single slit-like window. At last she could stand it no longer, and taking a pitcher of cold water and a small tin cup, stole out of the gate and across to the building opposite.

She peered through the bars, but the interior was in the blackest darkness. The man was breathing heavily, groaning with nearly every breath. She shook the bars gently once or twice to attract his attention, and spoke softly:

"Say, mister—listen!"

Finally she heard a motion, and in a moment the man answered weakly:

"What is it?"

"It's so hot that I've brought a pitcher of water. Don't you want a drink?"

"Yes, yes," he answered thickly and eagerly. "If you can wait till I pull myself up."

After some struggling the man stood at the window. The light from across the opposite street cast a faint glow on the wall and window, and she could see that his face was fairly livid and his eyes bright and staring. The cup would not go through the bars until she had bent its rim, he watching her eagerly. He emptied it thirstily twice.

"You mustn't have any more," she said warningly. "Here is a cloth wet it in the cold water. Rub your face and it will refresh you."

"I believe you've saved my life," he murmured. "I felt myself sinking away with every breath till I heard your voice."

"I heard you come in the alley with the policeman," whispered Molly, "and I knew you told the truth. I am so sorry."

"Well, you're a blessed woman!" said he fervently. "Both for believing the story of an unfortunate man, and for thinking to bring me the water. I'm a respectable farmer, from twelve miles west of Veneering, and it's true about the sunstroke. He found me lying on the ground, and, of course, took me for drunk. I have money enough to make some one smart for this—only there's the disgrace of the police court in the morning."

Dizzy and weak, he leaned against the bars and groaned at the thought.

"If you've friends in town, maybe I could see some one for you tonight," whispered Molly timidly.

The man straightened himself. "The very idea!" he exclaimed. "Go to Dr. Roberts, on Fourteenth and Locust streets. He treated me last month when I was sick. Here's the envelope he addressed to himself when he receipted my bill. Give it to him and tell him about this."

Before he had time to say more, Molly seized the envelope and slipped away. The young man felt his way to the shelf-like berth in the corner and sat down to rest. Somehow, the darkness did not seem so intense as it had before, nor did he feel exhausted. The cold water had refreshed him, the kindly words of the little Samaritan had strengthened him. His heart felt warm when he thought of her.

In less than an hour he heard a tapping on the bars. This time he did not have to crawl along the floor to reach the window.

"Dr. Roberts was very angry," she whispered, "and went to headquarters to see about your case. He says that he'll bring the officers right away. I'm so glad. Good-by."

"But wait," said the prisoner. Tell me your name. I want to know whom to thank for this great service."

"I'm only Molly Britts," she whispered, "and I work for Mrs. Revell across the alley. You're welcome, I'm sure, but it's not likely you'll ever see me again."

"But I'd like to know why I won't," was the answer. "Am I just to forget all this? John Derring is his own master and he'll probably see you before he leaves town tomorrow."

"But—but—I don't want you to see me," answered she, glad that the dark hid her blushes.

"Why?" he urged.

"Oh—because I'm so—ugly!" whispered Molly in agonized confusion that made the brand on her cheek burn and throb.

"Oh!" laughed the young man softly, a tone of relief in his voice. "You'll have to let me be the judge of that. Shake hands till tomorrow," as Molly's work-hardened little hand slipped through the bars into his warm clasp, "and take my 'God bless you' along with you. Good night!"

Molly hurried away just as the policemen with their lanterns turned into the alley. From her window in the rear of the house she watched the group of men out of sight, on their way from the jail, turned to look at herself in the mirror a moment, and then went to bed to cry herself to sleep and to dream of feverishly bright eyes and dark curly hair.

John Derring, pale from his experience of the night before, stood before Molly in the kitchen the next morning. She blushed and quivered painfully, but not by the tremble of an eyelash did he show that he saw the throbbing mark on her face, and from that moment she worshiped him. Three months later she stepped out one morning, clad in modest gray, and went with him to the nearest parsonage, where they were married much to Mrs. Revell's dismay and disgust, that lady giving speech to some of her burning thoughts on ingratitude.

The once forlorn, heart-starved little woman is a merry, lovable and be loved wife now, and the red mark, that was the heaviest burden of her early years, is fading, since, secure in her husband's love and admiration, she has ceased to be conscious of it. On a cabinet in their parlor stands a little tin cup, curiously bent and battered, a souvenir, so John laughingly tells Molly, of her "jail bird."

Two Farmers Put on Gloves---Excitement Over State Examiner's Report.

Twig, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Ross has resigned as teacher of the Caribou public school and Miss Lemky of Duluth, has accepted the position.

Mrs. Gust Leundstein and Mrs. Wickstrom are visitors at their farm property this week.

George Nicholson has returned from a trip to South America. He reports having had an excellent trip.

John Carlson of the West end, Duluth, is making preparations for operating a log and tie camp on the Cloquet river.

A fistic bout was pulled off at Pine Hill last Sunday between two prominent farmers of this place. Eye witnesses to the affair claim that the larger man had the lead from start to finish. The names are not made public.

The farmers here are becoming interested in the tie business on account of the high prices offered for ties and pulp wood, and several of them will dispose of their timber this coming winter.

Considerable excitement has been caused by the state examiner's reports of the conditions and managements of the school funds and town affairs of this district.

A phonograph entertainment and dance is billed for Saturday night, Oct. 5, at the Grand Lake town hall.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Yesterday the registration of members at the Young Women's Christian association and the meeting of two gymnasium classes was held during the afternoon and evening hours.

"The outlook for the ensuing year is most promising," said Mrs. Wesley Feetham, general secretary of the association, this morning in speaking of the work of the educational classes. "The registration during September brought us many, but the first day of the fall term witnessed the registration of more students in the various classes than ever before. The gymnasium classes are always very popular and this year with Miss Pullar as director, we expect to broaden this field and add a number of features that will be welcomed by the girls and young business women.

"In addition to the lessons in cookery, dressmaking, embroidery and millinery which have always been much appreciated by prospective brides, we are arranging for some lessons in leather work and languages.

"The English classes form a part of the work that always means much to a large number of young women in the city. The young foreign women are greatly helped in their work in this new and strange country by the classes in beginning English and this department will always receive a prominent place in our work."

The board of directors of the association is much pleased at the prospect for the year and feel that more and greater work will be accomplished in spite of the limited facilities with which the work will be prosecuted.

WED AT PASADENA.

Miss Mary Draper Becomes Bride of Garvin Hodson.

At a simple wedding service yesterday, at Pasadena, Cal., Miss Mary Draper, formerly of this city, became the bride of Garvin Hodson of New York. The wedding was a quiet one, the service being read at noon at All Saints' Episcopal church. The bride was given away by her brother, Rufus H. Draper of this city, who was present for the ceremony. Mr. Hodson and his bride will go to Redlands, Cal., where they will be at home. The bride is well known in Duluth society. She is a daughter of the late Warren N. Draper, who lived in Duluth for many years, and was a member of the law firm of Draper, Davis & Hollister. The wedding is of much interest to Duluth society.

Grinols - MacMullen.

Mrs. William MacMullen and daughters, Mrs. Cameron Hewitt and Mrs. Theodor E. Reinhart left yesterday for St. Cloud, where they were guests at the wedding of Miss Pearl Grinols of that city to William MacMullen, Jr., of Duluth. The wedding service was read today at noon. Mr. MacMullen and his bride will be at home in Duluth.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Cauliflower, 15 cents each.
Tokay grapes, 50 cents a basket.
Bananas, 7 cents a pound.
Squash, 15 cents each.
Ground cherries, 10 cents a quart.
Lamb chops, 20 cents a pound.
Pork roast, 15 cents a pound.
Apples, 40 to 60 cents a peck.

Baked apples are about as nice as any one other kind on earth. Well baked and well chilled they make a very pleasant first course for breakfast, or just pleasantly warm and covered all over with thick yellow cream they make a very good lunch, or one held by the stem and gobbled right down makes a very good thing to eat whenever you may happen to think of it. Baked pears are also lusciously good. It is the time of the year to enjoy these things if you are ever going to. And if you are planning to have them, have them tomorrow by all means. One never knows what may happen. Apples may go up or you might lose your appetite, or—well, you never can tell, as a much discussed Irishman has observed.

Mrs. d'Autremont has always been heard with great pleasure by the members of this class, and they are delighted at again having the pleasure of hearing her. Former members of the club and any interested in the meetings are invited to attend.

It has been the custom each year for the Twentieth Century club to extend an invitation to any woman in Duluth who is interested in club work to attend the opening meetings of the classes and join the club if she wishes. This year the invitation is again extended, and those having the early meetings in charge will be glad to welcome both those already members of the classes and those who may wish to join.

This year the club has more than usual to offer to its members, the small membership fee admitting to all classes as well as to two lecture courses.

Only a Jail-Bird

By May Belleville Brown.

Molly sat by her kitchen window and sang a low, cheery little song. Not that she had much cause for cheerfulness save the possession of a clear conscience, but so long as she had that the little woman could not help being cheerful.

She was maid-of-all-work, nurse, plain seamstress, butler, laundress and general factotum in the family of James B. Revell, or, as it was written on her mistress' cards, J. Barnett Revell. Her position was not a sinecure, for in each of her offices the best work was expected of her, few liberties were given her, and her weekly stipend was no greater than that given in houses where the same work was divided among three or four. But Molly was an orphan, unsophisticated and easily imposed upon, and, besides, a livid red mark lay across her right cheek, rendering her self-conscious and willing to hide herself anywhere.

When she looked in her mirror she did not see that her eyes were a pleasant blue, that her lips were full and rosy, that her light brown hair waved prettily back from a broad forehead—she only saw the angry looking brand burning on her cheek, and felt that she could not bear strange eyes. Further, Molly was faithful, and when Mrs. Revell, somewhat pompously dwelt on her own goodness in befriending Molly, and the excellent home and advantages that she gave to her, the girl felt a gratitude that displayed itself in yet more faithful and willing service, not stopping to properly weigh the so-called "advantages."

The Revells lived on the street that was the very borderland of social illegibility in Veneering. The next street east, and Mrs. Revell might have struggled in vain for recognition. Then it would have profited her nothing to divide her husband's name in the middle on her visiting cards. The next street west, and Mrs. Revell would have found the struggle vastly easier than it had been.

So when Molly sat singing by the kitchen window, she saw, across the neat back yard and high board fence, sandwiched between a great corn-crib and a blacksmith shop, the brick walls of the city jail—called the "callaboose" by the youngsters about town. It was a grim one-story affair, with barred windows, and had been an eyesore to Molly ever since she first saw it. Sometimes its prisoners were hilarious, and their shouts and ribald songs made her shudder, often it was empty, for Veneering was a staid, sober town.

Tonight she paused between the verses of her song. The policeman on his beat was coming down the alley with a prisoner, their voices coming clearly to her across the fence. He was a new man, therefore very zealous.

"Yes! Yes!" he was saying derisively. "They all play that gag on me. I guess the sunstroke ye got was over a counter and out of a glass."

"But—but, listen to me, officer," said the man thickly, as he staggered along with the policeman's help. "I haven't touched a drop. It's the heat—I was overcome in the harvest field last month, and this is the first time I've been out—"

"Yes, an'll be your last time till you've paid your fine," put in the policeman.

"But it's true, I say," stammered the man, "and you mustn't lock me up. I'm sober—I'm sick. This is a false charge."

As he pleaded they reached the jail, and, unlocking the door, the officer, with a derisive laugh, pushed the man into the inner darkness and slammed the door on him. Molly straining her ears, heard him call once or twice, then all was still. Her song stopped, and her ready sympathy went out to the poor man across the alley. Not for a moment did she doubt his story, though his thick husky voice and uncertain walk were against him, and an unusual anger burned within her. She hurried into the parlor where Mrs. Revell sat in imposing leisure.

"Oh, Mrs. Revell—ma'am! The policeman has just brought a poor sick man up the alley and locked him up for drunk, for all the man told him he was only sick from sunstroke. Won't you have Mr. Revell go and see about it."

The mistress stared in petrified surprise, not comprehending the meaning of Molly's request. Then she laughed an unpleasant, contemptuous laugh.

"Fancy!" she said in a tone that made the girl shrink. "Do you want Mr. Revell to espouse the cause of a sot arrested on the street, just because you heard the creature protest that he was not drunk. You've done a good many foolish things, Molly, but this is the worst yet. Go back to your place and don't worry about your jail-bird. He'll be sick enough by morning, anyway."

Molly crept back to her kitchen, abashed but not convinced, and sat in silence by the window for an hour longer. The evening was still and very hot. She knew that the only ventilation afforded in the prisoner's room was from a single slit-like window. At last she could stand it no longer, and taking a pitcher of cold water and a small tin cup, stole out of the gate and across to the building opposite.

She peered through the bars, but the interior was in the blackest darkness. The man was breathing heavily, groaning with nearly every breath. She shook the bars gently once or twice to attract his attention, and spoke softly:

"Say, mister—listen!"

Finally she heard a motion, and in a moment the man answered weakly:

"What is it?"

"It's so hot that I've brought a pitcher of water. Don't you want a drink?"

"Yes, yes," he answered thickly and eagerly. "If you can wait till I pull myself up."

After some struggling the man stood at the window. The light from across the opposite street cast a faint glow on the wall and window, and she could see that his face was fairly livid and his eyes bright and scaring. The cup would not go through the bars until she had bent its rim, he watching her eagerly. He emptied it thirstily twice.

"You mustn't have any more," she said warningly. "Here is a cloth wet it in the cold water. Rub your face and it will refresh you."

"I believe you've saved my life," he murmured. "I felt myself sinking away with every breath till I heard your voice."

"I heard you come in the alley with the policeman," whispered Molly, "and I knew you told the truth. I am so sorry."

"Well, you're a blessed woman!" said he fervently. "Both for believing the story of an unfortunate man, and for thinking to bring me the water. I'm a respectable farmer, from twelve miles west of Veneering, and it's true about the sunstroke. He found me lying on the ground, and, of course, took me for drunk. I have money enough to make some one smart for this—only there's the disgrace of the police court in the morning."

"If you've friends in town, maybe I could see some one for you tonight," whispered Molly timidly.

The man straightened himself. "The very idea!" he exclaimed. "Go to Dr. Roberts on Fourteenth and Locust streets. He treated me last month when I was sick. Here's the envelope he addressed to himself when he receipted my bill. Give it to him and tell him about this."

Before he had time to say more, Molly seized the envelope and slipped away. The young man felt his way to the shelf-like berth in the corner and sat down to rest. Somehow, the darkness did not seem so intense as it had before, nor did he feel exhausted. The cold water had refreshed him, the kindly words of the little Samaritan had strengthened him. His heart felt warm when he thought of her.

In less than an hour he heard a tapping on the bars. This time he did not have to crawl along the floor to reach the window.

"Dr. Roberts was very angry," she whispered, "and went to headquarters to see about your case. He says must he'll bring the officers right away. I'm so glad. Good-by."

"But wait," said the prisoner. Tell me your name. I want to know whom to thank for this great service."

"I'm only Molly Britts," she whispered, "and I work for Mrs. Revell across the alley. You're welcome, I'm sure, but it's not likely you'll ever see me again."

"But I'd like to know why I won't." was the answer. "Am I just to forget all this? John Derring is his own master and he'll probably see you before he leaves town tomorrow."

"But—but—I don't want you to see me," answered she, glad that the dark hid her blushes.

"Why?" he urged.

"Oh—because I'm so—ugly!" whispered Molly in agonized confusion that made the brand on her cheek burn and throb.

"Oh!" laughed the young man softly, a tone of relief in his voice. "You'll have to let me be the judge of that. Shake hands till tomorrow," as Molly's work-hardened little hand slipped through the bars into his warm clasp, "and take my 'God bless you' along with you. Good night!"

Molly hurried away just as the policemen with their lanterns turned into the alley. From her window in the rear of the house she watched the group of men out of sight, on their way from the jail, turned to look at herself in the mirror a moment, and then went to bed to cry herself to sleep and to dream of feverishly bright eyes and dark curly hair.

John Derring, pale from his experience of the night before, stood before Molly in the kitchen the next morning. She blushed and quivered painfully, but not by the tremble of an eyelash did he show that he saw the throbbing mark on her face, and from that moment she worshiped him. Three months later she stepped out one morning, clad in modest gray, and went with him to the nearest parsonage, where they were married much to Mrs. Revell's dismay and disgust, that lady giving speech to some of her burning thoughts on ingratitude.

The once forlorn, heart-starved little woman is a merry, lovable and he loved wife now, and the red mark, that was the heaviest burden of her early years, is fading, since, secure in her husband's love and admiration, she has ceased to be conscious of it. On a cabinet in their parlor stands a little tin cup, curiously bent and battered, a souvenir, so John laughingly tells Molly, of her "jail bird."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The Great Restorative

Non-Alcoholic Tonic

of the day, made entirely of native medicinal roots and without a drop of alcohol in its composition.

There are no secrets---all its ingredients being printed on the bottle-wrappers.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only builds up the strength of the feeble, debilitated, languid, nervous and easily fatigued, whether young or aged, but it enriches and purifies the blood, thus making the improvement lasting.

It corrects and overcomes indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, torpid liver, chronic diarrhea and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Bronchial, throat and laryngeal affections, attended with hoarseness, persistent cough, and all manner of catarrhal affections are cured by the "Golden Medical Discovery."

In Chronic Nasal Catarrh, it is well to cleanse the nasal passages out freely with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" as a constitutional treatment. Old obstinate cases of catarrh yield to this thorough course of treatment.

Through enriching and purifying the blood, the "Discovery" cures scrofulous affections, also blotches, pimples, eruptions, and other ugly affections of the skin. Old, open, running sores, or ulcers, are healed by taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" internally and applying Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve as a local dressing. The Salve can be had of druggists, or will be sent by return mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Address Doctor Pierce as below for it.

In short "Golden Medical Discovery" regulates, purifies and invigorates the whole system and thus cures a very large range of diseases. The reason Why it cures such a varied list of diseases is made clear in a little booklet of extracts from the leading medical authorities, compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and which he will be pleased to send post-paid and entirely free to any who send him their names and addresses.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps (to cover cost of mailing) for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

SEPTEMBER WAS DISAGREEABLE

Was Colder Than Usual With Many Cloudy Days.

September was not the pleasantest month of the year, according to the monthly meteorological summary furnished at the local weather bureau. It was cold and the number of cloudy days was considerably above the average.

The mean temperature for the month was 52 degs. and there have been only two other Septembers in the last thirty-seven years with such a low average. The highest temperature for the month was 74 degs., on Aug. 11, and the lowest was 29 degs., on the last day of the month. The average temperature for the month for 37 years is 57 degs.

The total precipitation for the past month was 6.72 inches and there was a trace of snowfall. The greatest precipitation in any consecutive twenty-four hours was 2.58 inches, on Sept. 19. There is still a deficiency of 3.34 inches, as compared with the average for this month for thirty-seven years.

During the month the prevailing direction of the wind was from the northeast and hourly velocity was 12.0 miles. The maximum velocity for five minutes was 52 miles from the northwest on Sept. 20. There were only seven clear days, six partly cloudy and seventeen cloudy.

JAILBREAKER IS CAPTURED

Landed in Canada and Will be Brought Back.

From the north shore comes the news of the capture of Davis, the paroled prisoner who engaged in a fight on the Steamer America a couple of weeks ago and broke jail at Grand Marais. He was captured at Port Arthur and will be brought back to Grand Marais as soon as extradition papers are procured.

Davis had been liberated from the reformatory on parole, a number of his friends at Grand Marais having petitioned for his release. Once out of jail he came to Duluth and before leaving on the steamer for Grand Marais became badly intoxicated, it is claimed. When he went on the boat he is claimed to have started a quarrel with some lumberjacks.

He was overcome and when the steamer arrived at Grand Marais he was placed behind the bars. Afterwards he picked the lock and escaped into the woods and to Canada.

MAKES FINE REPORT.

Business at Land Office for Quarter Breaks Records.

The compilation of the quarterly report of the business done at the Duluth land office was completed yesterday by Receiver Morrison, and it is said to be the best record ever made at the office.

During the three months ending Sept. 30, the total receipts at the land office amounted to $53,859.08 from the sale of lands, while in fees and commissions the receipts were $384.60. There were thirty-one homestead entries in the Chippewa district, the total acreage being 3,976. In the Northern Pacific railway selections there were forty entries with an acreage of 3,127. The number of timber claims was 135.

During the quarter there were 153 final proofs made on 17,578 acres of land.

Hydegrade TRADE MARK

The New Idea in Linings

This is "Hydegrade" Week

In every city of any size throughout America "Hydegrade" fabrics are being demonstrated and displayed in a special way this week.

Thousands of Dollars

Are being expended by the manufacturers and retail merchants this week to tell American women of "Hydegrade" fabrics and their uses.

Special Display and Demonstration of "Hydegrade" Fabrics!

THIS INTRODUCTION of "Hydegrade" linings marks the passing away of all lining troubles, vexations and annoyances which you have always experienced in linings. It is the introduction of linings that are elegant in appearance, absolutely unequalled in serviceability and low in price. And not linings—merely as linings—but fabrics suitable to every use and purpose, as an inspection of the goods will demonstrate to you.

They're all 36-inches wide, and th trade mark "HYDEGRADE" is woven in the salvage. It standsfor the very highest attainment toward perfection of the recognizedly leading manufacturers of linings in the world today. Each fabric is treated individually, below.

WE ARE ESPECIALLY desirous that all the dressmakers of the city and vicinity see this entire assortment of "HYDEGRADE" Linings. We urge you to examine these fabrics closely—critically. The famous "Heatherbloom"—so well and favorably known in Duluth—is one of the group—all of which are equally worthy your attention. The various weights and finishes are designated by the name given below—each adapted to special purposes in fine dressmaking.

A fabric for every need—in sufficient shades to match any gown EXACTLY; fabrics that will prove themselves superior to any you have ever used before—and fully guaranteed in every particular. Read about each, below.

Hydegrade LUCENTA SATIN

Closely resembles satin in weave, feel and finish — but there's not a thread of silk in it. Deep in its lustre, soft in its texture, an admirable fabric for lining coats, jackets, cloaks, etc., as well as for draperies, bed covers, or wherever satin could be used.

40c yd. one yard wide

Hydegrade Sakana SATIN

Is similar to "Lucenta"—but at a lower price. Will wear as nothing else will—can be washed and ironed and never lose a bit of its luster and graceful draping quality. Makes charming dressing sacques, comforters, draperies and linings for all purposes for which satin is generally used.

Hydegrade HEATHERBLOOM TAFFETA

Is the "ne plus ultra" of them all—feels like silk, looks like silk, rustles like silk, out-wears silk many times—but not a thread of silk in 100 miles of it. Use it wherever silk taffetas can be used and be assured of far greater satisfaction with results. 100 shades to select from.

40c yd. yard wide

Hydegrade Respenda TAFFETTE

Resplendent in beauty, texture and wear—to be used where the hardest wear is expected—particularly in every day coats, children's rompers, petticoats, carriage parasols, cushions and fancy work, table and other furniture slips, etc.

Hydegrade Paisley PERCALINE

Recognized as the best percaline ever produced, for dressmaking purposes. Light in weight—will out-wear any dress lined with it. Firstly, a dress lining, but suitable for dozens of other uses where both strength and good looks are desired.

THE BARBER'S CLIPPERS.

A Republican congressman, unnamed, recently returned from a European trip and gave a Washington correspondent the story of a little incident that happened during his tour. It has an interesting relationship to the tariff question, and if there is anything in the power of vivid illustraton as a reinforcement of argument, that congressman ought to vote the first time he gets a chance for a revision of the tariff.

On the way back he patronized the ship's barber, and while having his hair trimmed he observed that the barber was using a hair clipper of American manufacture. The congressman casually asked him what he paid for it, and the barber thereupon related a story.

He said that when he was last in New York he went to a shop where barber's supplies are kept, and priced a clipper of the same make and style. The dealer wanted $3 for it. When told that his customer was "in the business," he offered to knock off 50 cents, bringing it down to $2.50. Even that seemed too much to the barber, who had a fancy that he could do better elsewhere, so he waited until he returned to England, and in Liverpool he bought exactly the same kind of clipper, made by the same Pennsylvania manufacturer, and he paid $1.50 for it, which was the regular price, without any discount whatever.

Furthermore, when the barber told the Liverpool dealer his experience, the dealer said that was nothing new. He then went on to say that he sold practically every kind of American hardware at prices one-half below those that ruled in the United States, just as was the case with the hair clipper.

If that congressman had gone into it a little deeper, he would have found that other people besides barbers can do better in Europe than they can in this country if they seek the purchase of goods made in America under the "protection" of the Dingley tariff wall.

The only trouble is that very few of us have the chance to shop around the world the way a ship's barber has. We have to stay at home and do our buying here, and a benevolent government has made it necessary for us to pay the protected prices instead of the much more comfortable prices charged for the same goods in the open market of Europe.

Since we can't get positions as ship's barbers to enable us to do our shopping where we please without regard to tariff walls, and since we want to get our goods at proper prices, the obvious thing to do is to take down that wall, or at least so much of it as is necessary to put American consumers on the same level as European consumers.

And the way to do that is to insist upon its being done and to keep on insisting until it is done.

A SIGN OF GROWTH.

To those who hope to see the time when practically the entire needs of Duluth in certain lines of food products will be supplied by the territory immediately adjacent to the city, there was much interest in a little telegraphic item from Carlton, Minn., that appeared in The Herald last night.

This was to the effect that last week there were shipped from Carlton to the Duluth market a carload of hogs and several carloads of cattle.

This is but a small proportion of the cattle and hogs needed to feed the people of Duluth, but it is a start, and it is an assurance that the time is not very far distant when the country tributary to Duluth will raise not only enough to supply the Duluth market, but enough over to ship outside.

The increase of manufacturing in Duluth will do much to make it a great city, but the development of the agricultural and stock-raising possibilities of the surrounding territory will do almost as much, and by solving the problem of cheaper living it will give a strong impetus to the development of the industrial side of Duluth.

The country close to Duluth can and should produce practically all of the meat, butter, eggs, poultry, and vegetables needed to supply the Duluth market. To that end the development of the agricultural resources of this region deserves every possible encouragement, and one tangible method of encouragement would be to have every local dealer, wholesale and retail, give preference to local producers in every possible way.

Carlton county is perhaps further advanced than any other part of the Duluth territory, and the fact that it is beginning to supply Duluth with cattle and hogs is a significant proof of that fact.

STATE DEVELOPMENT.

A glance back over The Herald's files brings to remembrance the fact that a year or so ago The Herald used to run frequently a collection of clippings from the country press of Northern Minnesota entitled "Boosting Northern Minnesota." In these utterances the newspapers were calling for drainage of state lands, for good roads, for an advertising campaign to attract settlers to vacant state lands: in short, for "state development."

No such department is being run now. Why? Because there are not enough comments of that nature to fill it.

The history of how the unanimous and vigorous and effective campaign for development that was going on then has been hushed is another indictment against partisanship; against bringing public business into partisan politics.

The Republican candidate for governor who was successful in gaining the nomination in 1906 took up this cry as the basis of his campaign. He made it, or sought to make it, a Republican campaign battle cry. He went down to defeat, not because of this but because of many other reasons which it is bootless to discuss now, and it seems as though the campaign for state development went down into obscurity with the candidate.

This is wrong. The things Northern Minnesota needs to bring her into her own can only be gained by persistent demands for them. They are not matters of partisan politics, but they are things that vitally concern every citizen of Minnesota, especially of Northern Minnesota, without regard to his politics.

Possibly another reason why the campaign is not so active as it was is because it had some effect upon the last legislature, which appropriated some money for drainage and for good roads, and which did something toward making an immigration campaign possible.

The gain from the last session of the legislature was by no means great enough to justify any interruption in the campaign for development. The money appropriated for drainage of state lands was only a start, and is but a small fraction of what the state ought to contribute and of what it is bound to contribute no less because of its duty to its swamp lands than because it is good business policy to make the investment. The same thing is true of the appropriation for good roads, and of the immigration measures.

The legislature created an immigration commission, but it has not yet equipped it with the funds it should have to make its work as effective as it can be. The commission is organized and at work, and is doing the best possible work with the facilities at its command; but it should be strengthened further, and there should be still more liberal appropriations for drainage and good roads.

Northern Minnesota will not get what it has coming unless it asks for it and keeps asking for it. The fight for the development of the waste and idle areas of the northern half of the state should not cease for a moment until it is completely won.

THE AWAKENING OF CHINA.

To those whose mental picture of China is that of a sleepy, antiquated land, bound to the sloth of antiquity by chains of prejudice and ignorance, the contents of a brief item from that country in this evening's Herald must come with something of a shock.

An imperial edict dated Sept. 30 decrees compulsory education for everybody in China. It also declares that the principles of constitutional government are to be taught to the people in order that they may be better fitted to elect representatives when a parliament is created.

This is not the act of a nation hopelessly lost in the mists of ignorance. It means progress, and betrays an advance that few people have suspected. The prospect of representative government for China, a land whose dense population has for centuries resisted the progress of modern ideas of government, means that the Celestial Empire has awakened, and that it is about to take its place in the brotherhood of nations. Though it is years behind Japan in progress, it must be remembered that when Japan started to develop its advance came with startling rapidity, and there is no reason to believe that China is not capable of as rapid a growth once it is started.

If China becomes as alert and progressive and ambitious as Japan, there will be lively doings in the East. China will no longer be a puppet on the world's stage, but an actor, and in case of war its millions of men will make its armies formidable.

The plan of first educating the people in the duties and responsibilities that come with representative government shows a sagacity that is deep and far-seeing. To give a benighted and ignorant people this priceless boon without first fitting them to use it would be dangerous. To fit them for it first, and then bestow it upon them, will make China a factor to be reckoned with by the powers.

WOMEN DRINKERS.

A few days ago a Chicago clergyman, accompanied by representatives of some of the Chicago newspapers, visited a number of the most prominent cafes in that city to investigate reports that there is a good deal of drinking by women in public. The party visited nine restaurants at the noon hour, and eight more at the dinner hour. A careful count was made of every woman in the places visited, and tally was kept of those that were taking intoxicating liquors and of those that were not.

The party found in these restaurants 356 women, and of these 193, or 55 per cent, were drinking intoxicants. The remaining 163 were contenting themselves with coffee, appolinaris or water.

If this were true only of Chicago, the rest of the country could point the finger of shame at that community, and call it the Sodom of the nation. But the rest of the country, if it knows what it is about, will keep its finger of shame for use at home; for if it investigates, it will find similar conditions prevailing not only in Chicago, New York and Minneapolis, but in Duluth and practically all the other cities.

In smaller communities these conditions will not be found, as a rule. It is a fashion, but it is a hideous fashion that has not spread from the cities to the country.

It is unfair to call it a blot upon womankind, because there are women still who hold an "old-fashioned" prejudice against drinking. They are in the vast majority, too, for if it were otherwise the country would indeed be in a deplorable condition.

But it is no credit to womankind. Men are not drinking as much as they were. There was a time when it was the customary thing for men to drink to excess. It was the "fashion." After a dinner the women left the table so that the men could make beasts of themselves to their hearts' content. Drinking bouts, in which he who could put his fellow "under the table" was counted the best man, were common.

But today excessive drinking by men is out of fashion. The voters, who are men, are everywhere curbing the growth of the liquor traffic, and are driving it out of existence in many communities and in several states.

Yet coincident with the growth of a temperate spirit among the men, comes a fashion of drinking by women. This is a strange anomaly that it is hard to understand. In the past, woman has been a great bulwark against the expansion of the evil of excessive drinking. Wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts have won many men from the degradation of drink and have set their feet upon paths of decency and sobriety. Had it not been for this restraining influence, one shudders to think what would have happened.

And now woman herself has taken to drink. She can be seen in public places, taking her highballs, her straight whiskies and her cocktails with the utmost complacence. What she does in the privacy of her home is less easy to find out.

The evils of this horrible "fashion" are too obvious and too inevitable to require description. If drink means ruin to a man, it means more complete ruin to a woman. And the worst of it is that woman's example may bring back the days of the drinking bout, only perhaps this time the women will remain and participate in the unlovely contest.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I have just come from among a grateful people," said E. D. Devenport yesterday at the St. Louis. Mr. Devenport, who is auditor for the Nester Lumber company, with headquarters in Duluth for the past eight years, has just returned from Baraga, Mich., where his company for many years operated a sawmill which practically supported the entire village of 2,000 or more people. The mill burned to the ground last July, and the residents of the village saw in this a great calamity. People with money invested in homes and in business, and people earning good wages from the Nester company saw the prospect of having to start life over again. But within the past week the company has closed a deal for the purchase of a big mill near Iron River, Mich., and they are going to move it to Baraga. The residents of the village are overjoyed at the change in the dark outlook and when Mr. Devenport left there Monday night the town was enjoying something of a carnival. Michigan is dotted with deserted lumber towns, but Baraga, one of the oldest of the lot, is saved from that fate.

Mr. Devenport, by the way, has decided to change his headquarters from Duluth to Baraga, and his present visit is for the purpose of closing his office here and arranging his private affairs in anticipation of the change.

James Harden of Chicago, who sells mining machinery for the Fairbanks-Morse company, approaches the copper market question from the practical side. He has just arrived in Duluth from the Copper country and was seen at the Spalding. "I know that the public generally is interested in copper from a speculative and investment point of view, and there is a feeling of depression because of the way the market has turned recently," said Mr. Harden, "but the people who are getting out the copper do not seem to think that they should quit. In the Copper country there is the same gloom among investors, but the mining companies are buying machinery just the same. The entire Copper country, except in the immediate location of the big producing mines will be dotted with diamond drills next year. The newer mines are buying heavily of machinery and going ahead just the same as though copper had stayed at its boom price."

McKay Bros., proprietors of the McKay hotel, would not say definitely yesterday that they intend to commence erecting an extensive addition to their house. They admit that the necessity for such an increase in capacity exists, but have not come to a decision as to the time of commencing the work at least. In common with the other hotels of Duluth, the McKay is daily under pressure to accommodate its increasing number of guests, and the proprietors will undoubtedly have something to say regarding their plans within a reasonably short time.

The Nippon Kiss.

Philadelphia Telegraph: She was a Japanese college student, little and thin, but very graceful in her Paris gown.

"The kiss," she said, blushing faintly, "was unknown in Japan fifty years ago. Now, among the artocracy, it is becoming quite renowned. Some of my people love the kiss.

"Yet it comes as a great shock at first. It is so different, you know, from anything in a Japanese girl's experience. I have known maidens who fainted at a first kiss that was perhaps too warmly tendered. Yet these very maids became afterwards ardent advocates of the new Western embrace.

"Frankly, I like the kiss myself. Its stimulus, its fragrance, and the feeling, as of red satin, when mouth touches mouth with a warm, soft shock—yes, frankly, I like the kiss, and I find it extremely difficult to deny an eager young man so innocent and so delightful an embrace."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Capital is other people's money that those who don't own it spend.

A wife is very convenient to find fault with for your own mistakes.

A girl's idea of a hero is the kind of man you couldn't find even in a lunatic asylum.

The more money a man earns the harder time he has to make his family let him have any of it.

The biggest fool of all is the man who thinks that if he had had any money just before the market went down he would have gone short instead of long of it.

THE WEATHER.

A great and pleasant surprise awaited Duluth people when they got up this morning. Last night a northeaster was in progress, and the rain was dashing itself against the windows, driven by a brisk northeast breeze. It looked like three days of it. But this morning the wind had shifted to the southwest, it was clear, bright and warm, and the day became perfection. Still, the weather man says it will be partly cloudy tonight and tomorrow, and that there may be showers. Last night's lowest temperature was 46 degs. and yesterday's highest was 50 degs.

A year ago today, after early threats of a northeaster, it lightened up and the clouds disappeared.

The sun rose at 6:08 this morning and set at 5:46 tonight, making 11 hours and 38 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Showery weather prevailed in the western lake region and throughout most of the Northwest during Tuesday and last night. This was due mainly to the influence of a low pressure area which has moved its center from Alberta to Manitoba. Warmer weather also resulted in the lake region, Ohio and Mississippi valleys and southern states. Another depression has developed over Arizona. Cooler weather attends rising pressures from the Dakotas westward, the center of the incoming high pressure being over Oregon. The barometer continues high in extreme eastern states. The Manitoba low pressure, as it moves eastward, will doubtless cause occasional showers in this section tonight or Thursday."

Chicago News: What most towns need is a curfew for married men.

An empty stomach provides a man with food for thought.

Even girls who are not superstitious believe in ice cream signs.

No, Cordelia, it isn't necessarily a case of matter over mind when a woman has on a new hat.

Give the average man a chance to make money out of the misfortunes of others and he will make it.

After a girl makes up her mind to marry a certain man all the advice her friends hand her to the contrary is wasted.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Secretary Cooley and President Stuntz of the St. Louis County Agricultural society have their hands full at present and are working like beavers getting things into shape for the coming fair. J. M. U. Thompson has purchased from the St. Paul & Duluth company the experimental farm at Mahtowa, formerly run by the company, and will bring up and exhibit all the fine thoroughbred stock for which this farm is justly celebrated. The Duluth & Iron Range railroad will make a fine display of ore from the iron country, and the St. Paul & Duluth will send the exhibit which it had at the state fair. The Tower people are preparing to send down a fine exhibit of farm produce, furs and Indian work.

Ex-Postmaster James Page of Cloquet is in the city.

Frank Hibbing and J. Ehrinantraut, two well known iron experts from Bessemer, Mich., are at the St. Louis.

Hiram Barnsdell to James J. Gilbert and C. C. Stocker, lot 2, block 63, Endion, $1,500.

I. P. Stearns to A. M. Kilgore, lot 4, block 63, Endion, $1,550.

Burr Porter to H. K. Porter, undivided half of lot 24, First division, $750.

It is stated that a controlling interest in the Pioneer mine at Ely has been purchased by John A. Humbird, the famous Wisconsin capitalist, and his friends. The terms of the sale have not been made public. The Pioneer is in close proximity to the famous Chandler and Zenith mines. It is expected that John A. Humbird will be president of the new company, N. J. Willey of the Ashland National bank secretary and treasurer, with possibly Scott Ellis of Ashland vice president. The directors will be James H. James, James Gregory, E. J. Palmer and the remaining members of the company.

Fred T. Yates, formerly of Ashland has started a newspaper at Washburn. It is called the News.

The Model restaurant at 18 West Superior street, run by B. S. Silbert, was damaged by fire early this morning. Mr. Silbert had $500 insurance on the restaurant fixtures and $2,000 on his furniture upstairs. The building is owned by W. F. Parsons of this city and Alderman Rowbey of Kalamazoo, Mich.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Minneapolis Telegram: Now that Minnesota is no longer a "cinch" for the Republicans, will the "leaders" come to their senses after all?

Zumbrota News: The Minneapolis board of education has been compelled to raise the salary of its teachers, owing to the fact that there is such a scarcity of good instructors. Other towns will probably have to follow the example set by Minneapolis, and it is right and just that they should as this profession is, and always has been, underpaid.

Paynesville Press: Bottle Holder Bill Grimshaw says he favors C. A. Smith for governor. Nough said. The fact that Bill favors Mr. Smith is sufficient reason why most people will take the opposite view.

Mankato Free Press: Governor Johnson's head is not turned by all the praise that is heaped on him. Many other men would get "chesty" under similar circumstances.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: State's Attorney Young, who has made several unsuccessful jabs for notoriety, is now butting his head against the federal court.

Hawley Herald: It might be a good thing to elect a legislature next time that would do nothing but repeal about two-thirds of the laws already on the statutes.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: The opposition to Congressman J. Adam Bede in the Eighth district does not appear to subside, and it is now rumored that Representative Miller, who made such a good record in the last legislature will be brought out next year to down him. If this should prove to be so, it might make a pretty good game, but we would not attempt to predict the outcome. Mr. Miller is evidently a bright young man of considerable ability and his heart is in the right place, if his legislative record is taken into consideration. Still J. Adam has the happy faculty of getting there about primary election time, even if the charge that he neglects the interests of the district to fill Chautauqua engagements, is true.

Anoka Free Press: The Democrats of Minnesota will be sorry to lose Johnson as their sure winner in the next gubernatorial race, but the fates have apparently decreed that he go higher, into a far wider field of usefulness, and they are not selfish enough to begrudge the fact.

Hibbing Tribune: The Standard Oil company ought to be very grateful to Mr. Kellogg, for he is bringing to light a lot of valuable information concerning the company of which its officials have repeatedly testified that they are in complete ignorance. If Mr. Kellogg keeps it up the Standard will by and by know enough about itself to conduct its affairs intelligently.

Perham Bulletin: What is the proper word to use to express one's feelings when they read of a federal judge's criticism of the legislature, for prescribing the penalty to be imposed upon lawbreakers? We confess to be a little shy. Here's a chance for the word coiner.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: John A. Johnson may be Henry Watterson's dark horse, but up in Minnesota "white" is the adjective used in telling the kind of a man he is.

Johnson and Johnson.

New York Sun: Chicago politicians have started a boom for Johnson as the Democratic nominee for president. Minnesota, or Cleveland, Ohio?—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A question that has occurred to many minds. If Tom should triumph over the two Theodores, there would be two Johnsons in the public eye. Their claims might be settled by putting them both on the Democratic ticket: Fat Tom and lean John. It would be easy for the banner painters after the question of precedence was settled, and whether the Johnson twins won or not they would make a very picturesque campaign of it.

Literary Note.

Philadelphia Telegraph: "Have you a copy of a certain magazine?" queried the man of the bookstall keeper.

"Yes sir. Expurgated or unabridged edition, sir?"

"What the 'Sam Hill' is the expurgated edition?"

"It has the corset advertisements cut out."

SUNNY GEMS.

Philadelphia Press: "Doctor, what is loss of memory a sign of?"

"That depends. In big financiers, it is a sign that they expect their transactions to be investigated."

Auburn Citizen: "This is the parlor, eh?" tentatively remarked the real estate agent, who was looking over the house.

"Yes," replied the old man Kidder, "but I usually call it the courtroom. I've got seven daughters, you know."

Baltimore American: "What did Smith give that impecunious friend of his who begged him for a ray of hope?"

"He gave him an 'X' ray."

Chicago Record-Herald: "A laboring man has very little choice in his work."

"There you are mistaken. He can always take his pick."

Washington Star: "Why don't they make good ringing speeches such as our forefathers listened to?"

"It can't be expected," answered Senator Sorghum. "When an officeholder develops any talent for rhetoric the magazines keep him so busy that he has no time to devote to his speeches."

"Yer Honor," protested the seedy prisoner, "dis is jist a case o' police persecution. Dey're tryin' ter keep me down, yer Honor. You ain't goin' to let 'em keep me down, are you?"

"Certainly not," replied the magistrate. "I'm going to send you up for ninety days."

"There! I told him everybody was noticing the way he's been drinking."

Chicago Record-Herald: "I suppose you enjoyed your trip abroad?"

"Yes, immensely. We succeeded in getting nearly $90 worth of things through the custom house without letting the inspectors discover them."

Temperance of Statesmen.

New York Evening Post: People will listen to burning orators gladly. A North Carolina mountaineer was heard to say of Governor Glenn: "I like to hear that man make a speech. He do sweat so powerful." But fervent heat is, after all, not the first quality which the voters think of when, in time of peril or of perplexity, they look for a man to lead them. Ability and conscience, steadiness and a strong sense of justice, will then take precedence; and concerning the man who displays them, citizens will not too curiously inquire whether his temperature is above or below normal.

THE BARBER'S CLIPPERS.

A Republican congressman, unnamed, recently returned from a European trip and gave a Washington correspondent the story of a little incident that happened during his tour. It has an interesting relationship to the tariff question, and if there is anything in the power of vivid illustraton as a reinforcement of argument, that congressman ought to vote the first time he gets a chance for a revision of the tariff.

On the way back he patronized the ship's barber, and while having his hair trimmed he observed that the barber was using a hair clipper of American manufacture. The congressman casually asked him what he paid for it, and the barber thereupon related a story.

He said that when he was last in New York he went to a shop where barber's supplies are kept, and priced a clipper of the same make and style. The dealer wanted $3 for it. When told that his customer was "in the business," he offered to knock off 50 cents, bringing it down to $2.50. Even that seemed too much to the barber, who had a fancy that he could do better elsewhere, so he waited until he returned to England, and in Liverpool he bought exactly the same kind of clipper, made by the same Pennsylvania manufacturer, and he paid $1.50 for it, which was the regular price, without any discount whatever.

Furthermore, when the barber told the Liverpool dealer his experience, the dealer said that was nothing new. He then went on to say that he sold practically every kind of American hardware at prices one-half below those that ruled in the United States, just as was the case with the hair clipper.

If that congressman had gone into it a little deeper, he would have found that other people besides barbers can do better in Europe than they can in this country if they seek the purchase of goods made in America under the "protection" of the Dingley tariff wall.

The only trouble is that very few of us have the chance to shop around the world the way a ship's barber has. We have to stay at home and do our buying here, and a benevolent government has made it necessary for us to pay the protected prices instead of the much more comfortable prices charged for the same goods in the open market of Europe.

Since we can't get positions as ship's barbers to enable us to do our shopping where we please without regard to tariff walls, and since we want to get our goods at proper prices, the obvious thing to do is to take down that wall, or at least so much of it as is necessary to put American consumers on the same level as European consumers.

And the way to do that is to insist upon its being done and to keep on insisting until it is done.

A SIGN OF GROWTH.

To those who hope to see the time when practically the entire needs of Duluth in certain lines of food products will be supplied by the territory immediately adjacent to the city, there was much interest in a little telegraphic item from Carlton, Minn., that appeared in The Herald last night.

This was to the effect that last week there were shipped from Carlton to the Duluth market a carload of hogs and several carloads of cattle.

This is but a small proportion of the cattle and hogs needed to feed the people of Duluth, but it is a start, and it is an assurance that the time is not very far distant when the country tributary to Duluth will raise not only enough to supply the Duluth market, but enough over to ship outside.

The increase of manufacturing in Duluth will do much to make it a great city, but the development of the agricultural and stock-raising possibilities of the surrounding territory will do almost as much, and by solving the problem of cheaper living it will give a strong impetus to the development of the industrial side of Duluth.

The country close to Duluth can and should produce practically all of the meat, butter, eggs, poultry, and vegetables needed to supply the Duluth market. To that end the development of the agricultural resources of this region deserves every possible encouragement, and one tangible method of encouragement would be to have every local dealer, wholesale and retail, give preference to local producers in every possible way.

Carlton county is perhaps further advanced than any other part of the Duluth territory, and the fact that it is beginning to supply Duluth with cattle and hogs is a significant proof of that fact.

STATE DEVELOPMENT.

A glance back over The Herald's files brings to remembrance the fact that a year or so ago The Herald used to run frequently a collection of clippings from the country press of Northern Minnesota entitled "Boosting Northern Minnesota." In these utterances the newspapers were calling for drainage of state lands, for good roads, for an advertising campaign to attract settlers to vacant state lands; in short, for "state development."

No such department is being run now. Why? Because there are not enough comments of that nature to fill it.

The history of how the unanimous and vigorous and effective campaign for development that was going on then has been hushed is another indictment against partisanship; against bringing public business into partisan politics.

The Republican candidate for governor who was successful in gaining the nomination in 1906 took up this cry as the basis of his campaign. He made it, or sought to make it, a Republican campaign battle cry. He went down to defeat, not because of this but because of many other reasons which it is bootless to discuss now, and it seems as though the campaign for state development went down into obscurity with the candidate.

This is wrong. The things Northern Minnesota needs to bring her into her own can only be gained by persistent demands for them. They are not matters of partisan politics, but they are things that vitally concern every citizen of Minnesota, especially of Northern Minnesota, without regard to his politics.

Possibly another reason why the campaign is not so active as it was is because it had some effect upon the last legislature, which appropriated some money for drainage and for good roads, and which did something toward making an immigration campaign possible.

The gain from the last session of the legislature was by no means great enough to justify any interruption in the campaign for development. The money appropriated for drainage of state lands was only a start, and is but a small fraction of what the state ought to contribute and of what it is bound to contribute no less because of its duty to its swamp lands than because it is good business policy to make the investment. The same thing is true of the appropriation for good roads, and of the immigration measures.

The legislature created an immigration commission, but it has not yet equipped it with the funds it should have to make its work as effective as it can be. The commission is organized and at work, and is doing the best possible work with the facilities at its command; but it should be strengthened further, and there should be still more liberal appropriations for drainage and good roads.

Northern Minnesota will not get what it has coming unless it asks for it and keeps asking for it. The fight for the development of the waste and idle areas of the northern half of the state should not cease for a moment until it is completely won.

THE AWAKENING OF CHINA.

To those whose mental picture of China is that of a sleepy, antiquated land, bound to the sloth of antiquity by chains of prejudice and ignorance, the contents of a brief item from that country in this evening's Herald must come with something of a shock.

An imperial edict dated Sept. 30 decrees compulsory education for everybody in China. It also declares that the principles of constitutional government are to be taught to the people in order that they may be better fitted to elect representatives when a parliament is created.

This is not the act of a nation hopelessly lost in the mists of ignorance. It means progress, and betrays an advance that few people have suspected. The prospect of representative government for China, a land whose dense population has for centuries resisted the progress of modern ideas of government, means that the Celestial Empire has awakened, and that it is about to take its place in the brotherhood of nations. Though it is years behind Japan in progress, it must be remembered that when Japan started to develop its advance came with startling rapidity, and there is no reason to believe that China is not capable of as rapid a growth once it is started.

If China becomes as alert and progressive and ambitious as Japan, there will be lively doings in the East. China will no longer be a puppet on the world's stage, but an actor, and in case of war its millions of men will make its armies formidable.

The plan of first educating the people in the duties and responsibilities that come with representative government shows a sagacity that is deep and far-seeing. To give a benighted and ignorant people this priceless boon without first fitting them to use it would be dangerous. To fit them for it first, and then bestow it upon them, will make China a factor to be reckoned with by the powers.

WOMEN DRINKERS.

A few days ago a Chicago clergyman, accompanied by representatives of some of the Chicago newspapers, visited a number of the most prominent cafes in that city to investigate reports that there is a good deal of drinking by women in public. The party visited nine restaurants at the noon hour, and eight more at the dinner hour. A careful count was made of every woman in the places visited, and tally was kept of those that were taking intoxicating liquors and of those that were not.

The party found in these restaurants 356 women, and of these 193, or 55 per cent, were drinking intoxicants. The remaining 163 were contenting themselves with coffee, appolinaris or water.

If this were true only of Chicago, the rest of the country could point the finger of shame at that community, and call it the Sodom of the nation. But the rest of the country, if it knows what it is about, will keep its finger of shame for use at home; for if it investigates, it will find similar conditions prevailing not only in Chicago, New York and Minneapolis, but in Duluth and practically all the other cities.

In smaller communities these conditions will not be found, as a rule. It is a fashion, but it is a hideous fashion that has not spread from the cities to the country.

It is unfair to call it a blot upon womankind, because there are women still who hold an "old-fashioned" prejudice against drinking. They are in the vast majority, too, for if it were otherwise the country would indeed be in a deplorable condition.

But it is no credit to womankind. Men are not drinking as much as they were. There was a time when it was the customary thing for men to drink to excess. It was the "fashion." After a dinner the women left the table so that the men could make beasts of themselves to their hearts' content. Drinking bouts, in which he who could put his fellow "under the table" was counted the best man, were common.

But today excessive drinking by men is out of fashion. The voters, who are men, are everywhere curbing the growth of the liquor traffic, and are driving it out of existence in many communities and in several states.

Yet coincident with the growth of a temperate spirit among the men, comes a fashion of drinking by women. This is a strange anomaly that it is hard to understand. In the past, woman has been a great bulwark against the expansion of the evil of excessive drinking. Wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts have won many men from the degradation of drink and have set their feet upon paths of decency and sobriety. Had it not been for this restraining influence, one shudders to think what would have happened.

And now woman herself has taken to drink. She can be seen in public places, taking her highballs, her straight whiskies and her cocktails with the utmost complacence. What she does in the privacy of her home is less easy to find out.

The evils of this horrible "fashion" are too obvious and too inevitable to require description. If drink means ruin to a man, it means more complete ruin to a woman. And the worst of it is that woman's example may bring back the days of the drinking bout, only perhaps this time the women will remain and participate in the unlovely contest.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I have just come from among a grateful people," said E. D. Devenport yesterday at the St. Louis. Mr. Devenport, who is auditor for the Nester Lumber company, with headquarters in Duluth for the past eight years, has just returned from Baraga, Mich., where his company for many years operated a sawmill which practically supported the entire village of 2,000 or more people. The mill burned to the ground last July, and the residents of the village saw in this a great calamity. People with money invested in homes and in business, and people earning good wages from the Nester company saw the prospect of having to start life over again. But within the past week the company has closed a deal for the purchase of a big mill near Iron River, Mich., and they are going to move it to Baraga. The residents of the village are overjoyed at the change in the dark outlook and when Mr. Devenport left there Monday night the town was enjoying something of a carnival. Michigan is dotted with deserted lumber towns, but Baraga, one of the oldest of the lot, is saved from that fate.

Mr. Devenport, by the way, has decided to change his headquarters from Duluth to Baraga, and his present visit is for the purpose of closing his office here and arranging his private affairs in anticipation of the change.

James Harden of Chicago, who sells mining machinery for the Fairbanks-Morse company, approaches the copper market question from the practical side. He has just arrived in Duluth from the Copper country and was seen at the Spalding. "I know that the public generally is interested in copper from a speculative and investment point of view, and there is a feeling of depression because of the way the market has turned recently," said Mr. Harden, "but the people who are getting out the copper do not seem to think that they should quit. In the Copper country there is the same gloom among investors, but the mining companies are buying machinery just the same. The entire Copper country, except in the immediate location of the big producing mines will be dotted with diamond drills next year. The newer mines are buying heavily of machinery and going ahead just the same as though copper had stayed at its boom price."

McKay Bros., proprietors of the McKay hotel, would not say definitely yesterday that they intend to commence erecting an extensive addition to their house. They admit that the necessity for such an increase in capacity exists, but have not come to a decision as to the time of commencing the work at least. In common with the other hotels of Duluth, the McKay is daily under pressure to accommodate its increasing number of guests, and the proprietors will undoubtedly have something to say regarding their plans within a reasonably short time.

The Nippon Kiss.

Philadelphia Telegraph: She was a Japanese college student; little and thin, but very graceful in her Paris gown.

"The kiss," she said, blushing faintly, "was unknown in Japan fifty years ago. Now, among the aritocracy, it is becoming quite renowned. Some of my people love the kiss.

"Yet it comes as a great shock at first. It is so different, you know, from anything in a Japanese girl's experience. I have known maidens who fainted at a first kiss that was perhaps too warmly tendered. Yet these very maids became afterwards ardent advocates of the new Western embrace.

"Frankly, I like the kiss myself. Its stimulus, its fragrance, and the feeling, as of red satin, when mouth touches mouth with a warm, soft shock—yes, frankly, I like the kiss, and I find it extremely difficult to deny an eager young man so innocent and so delightful an embrace."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Capital is other people's money that those who don't own it spend.

A wife is very convenient to find fault with for your own mistakes.

A girl's idea of a hero is the kind of man you couldn't find even in a lunatic asylum.

The more money a man earns the harder time he has to make his family let him have any of it.

The biggest fool of all is the man who thinks that if he had had any money just before the market went down he would have gone short instead of long of it.

THE WEATHER.

A great and pleasant surprise awaited Duluth people when they got up this morning. Last night a northeaster was in progress, and the rain was dashing itself against the windows, driven by a brisk northeast breeze. It looked like three days of it. But this morning the wind had shifted to the southwest, it was clear, bright and warm, and the day became perfection. Still, the weather man says it will be partly cloudy tonight and tomorrow, and that there may be showers. Last night's lowest temperature was 46 degs. and yesterday's highest was 50 degs.

A year ago today, after early threats of a northeaster, it lightened up and the clouds disappeared.

The sun rose at 6:08 this morning and set at 5:46 tonight, making 11 hours and 38 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Showery weather prevailed in the western lake region and throughout most of the Northwest during Tuesday and last night. This was due mainly to the influence of a low pressure area which has moved its center from Alberta to Manitoba. Warmer weather also resulted in the lake region, Ohio and Mississippi valleys and southern states. Another depression has developed over Arizona. Cooler weather attends rising pressures from the Dakotas westward, the center of the incoming high pressure being over Oregon. The barometer continues high in extreme eastern states. The Manitoba low pressure, as it moves eastward, will doubtless cause occasional showers in this section tonight or Thursday."

Abilene	72	Los Angeles	54
Asheville	52	Marquette	48
Battleford	38	Medicine Hat	36
Bismarck	40	Milwaukee	54
Buffalo	44	Minnedosa	42

THE LOGIC OF THE TREAT.

At the Cigar Store.

Puck: Mr. Smith—Why, hello, Brown! Just buying a cigar. Smoke, don't you? Take one with me. Like strong or mild?

Mr. Brown—Thanks; don't care if I do; mild, I guess.

Near the Restaurant.

Mr. Brown—Glad to run across you! Just going somewhere to take luncheon. Won't you join me?

Mr. Smith—Well, yes; feeling that way myself.

At the Barroom Door.

Mr. Smith—Mighty glad to meet you just at this moment! Going in here to have a Scotch high. Ever drink anything? Take something with me.

Mr. Brown—All right, seeing it's you. (After the first one.)

Mr. Brown—Now have one on me.

At the Horse Market.

Mr. Brown—Ah, just buying a horse, Smith! Have a horse on me. Like bay or sorrel?

Mr. Smith—Sorrel, I guess. Thanks, old man.

Outside the Clothing Store.

Mr. Smith—Lucky to meet you here, old boy! Just buying a suit of clothes. Wear clothes, don't you? Have a suit on me.

Mr. Brown—Well, just one; only one, remember.

Near the Turkish Bathhouse.

Mr. Brown—Unexpected pleasure, old fellow! Just going to take a bath. Bathe don't you? Take one with me.

Mr. Smith—Well, guess one won't hurt me much.

(After the first bath.)

Mr. Smith. Now have another; on me this time, you know.

Secretary Cooley and President Stuntz of the St. Louis County Agricultural society have their hands full at present and are working like beavers getting things into shape for the coming fair. J. MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Minneapolis Telegram: Now that Minnesota is no longer a "cinch" for the Republicans, will the "leaders" come to their senses after all?

Zumbrota News: The Minneapolis board of education has been compelled to raise the salary of its teachers, owing to the fact that there is such a scarcity of good instructors. Other towns will probably have to follow the example set by Minneapolis, and it is right and just that they should as this profession is, and always has been, underpaid.

Paynesville Press: Bottle Holder Bill Grimshaw says he favors C. A. Smith for governor. 'Nough said. The fact that Bill favors Mr. Smith is sufficient reason why most people will take the opposite view.

Mankato Free Press: Governor Johnson's head is not turned by all the praise that is heaped on him. Many other men would get "chesty" under similar circumstances.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: State's Attorney Young, who has made several unsuccessful jabs for notoriety, is now butting his head against the federal court.

Hawley Herald: It might be a good thing to elect a legislature next time that would do nothing but repeal about two-thirds of the laws already on the statutes.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: The opposition to Congressman J. Adam Bede in the Eighth district does not appear to subside, and it is now rumored that Representative Miller, who made such a good record in the last legislature will be brought out next year to down him. If this should prove to be so, it might make a pretty good game, but we would not attempt to predict the outcome. Mr. Miller is evidently a bright young man of considerable ability and his heart is in the right place, if his legislative record is taken into consideration. Still J. Adam has the happy faculty of getting there about primary election time, even if the charge that he neglects the interests of the district to fill Chautauqua engagements, is true.

Anoka Free Press: The Democrats of Minnesota will be sorry to lose Johnson as their sure winner in the next gubernatorial race, but the fates have apparently decreed that he go higher, into a far wider field of usefulness, and they are not selfish enough to begrudge the fact.

Hibbing Tribune: The Standard Oil company ought to be very grateful to Mr. Kellogg, for he is bringing to light a lot of valuable information concerning the company of which its officials have repeatedly testified that they are in complete ignorance. If Mr. Kellogg keeps it up the Standard will by and by know enough about itself to conduct its affairs intelligently.

Perham Bulletin: What is the proper word to use to express one's feelings when they read of a federal judge's criticism of the legislature, for prescribing the penalty to be imposed upon lawbreakers? We confess to be a little shy. Here's a chance for the word coiner.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: John A. Johnson may be Henry Watterson's dark horse, but up in Minnesota "white" is the adjective used in telling the kind of a man he is.

Johnson and Johnson.

New York Sun: Chicago politicians have started a boom for Johnson as the Democratic nominee for president. Minnesota, or Cleveland, Ohio?—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A question that has occurred to many minds. If Tom should triumph over the two Theodores, there would be two Johnsons in the public eye. Their claims might be settled by putting them both on the Democratic ticket: Fat Tom and lean John. It would be easy for the banner painters after the question of precedence was settled, and whether the Johnson twins won or not they would make a very picturesque campaign of it.

Literary Note.

Philadelphia Telegraph: "Have you a copy of a certain magazine?" queried the man of the bookstall keeper.

"Yes sir. Expurgated or unabridged edition, sir?"

"What the 'Sam Hill' is the expurgated edition?"

"It has the corset advertisements cut out."

SUNNY GEMS.

Philadelphia Press: "Doctor, what is loss of memory a sign of?"

"That depends. In big financiers, it is a sign that they expect their transactions to be investigated."

Auburn Citizen: "This is the parlor, eh?" tentatively remarked the real estate agent, who was looking over the house.

"Yes," replied the old man Kidder, "but I usually call it the courtroom. I've got seven daughters, you know."

Baltimore American: "What did Smith give that impecunious friend of his who begged him for a ray of hope?"

"He gave him an 'X' ray."

Chicago Record-Herald: "A laboring man has very little choice in his work."

"There you are mistaken. He can always take his pick."

Washington Star: "Why don't they make good, ringing speeches such as our forefathers listened to?"

"It can't be expected," answered Senator Sorghum. "When an officeholder develops any talent for rhetoric the magazines keep him so busy that he has no time to devote to his speeches."

"Yer Honor," protested the seedy prisoner, "dis is jist a case o' police persecution. Dey're tryin' ter keep me down, yer Honor. You don't goin' to let 'em keep me down, are you?"

"Certainly not," replied the magistrate, "I'm going to send you up for ninety days."

"There! I told him everybody was noticing the way he's been drinking."

Chicago Record-Herald: "I suppose you enjoyed your trip abroad?"

"Yes, immensely. We succeeded in getting nearly $50 worth of things through the custom house without letting the inspectors discover them."

Temperance of Statesmen.

New York Evening Post: People will listen to burning orators gladly. A North Carolina mountaineer was heard to say of Governor Glenn: "I like to hear that man make a speech. He do sweat so powerful." But fervent heat is, after all, not the first quality which the voters think of when, in time of peril or of perplexity, they look for a man to lead them. Ability and conscience, steadiness and a strong sense of justice, will then take precedence; and concerning the man who displays them, citizens will not too curiously inquire whether his temperature is above or below normal.

Chicago Put Out of Race by Defeat at New York.

New York's defeat of Chicago yesterday practically put the White Sox out of the running, but aside from that, there was no important change in the American league situation.

Detroit and Philadelphia are still going neck and neck. A victory for Philadelphia and a defeat for Detroit would tie the teams in the race and Washington came close to turning the trick yesterday.

Detroit still has the best show. Cleveland should be able to slip one or two over on the Aathletics. The Naps have been pretty successful against the Athletics this year and the most rabid Philadelphia suppporter will not admit that Mack's crowd should take four straight from La Joie's men. And Detroit adherents believe that the Tigers should make a clean sweep at Washington.

However, it is very often the unexpected that happens in baseball. The smallest slip on the part of either team may throw away their chances of taking the flag. Interest in the race certainly does not lag. The fans of the country are keyed up to a pitch of enthusiasm on a level with that under which the teams are playing.

The Sox haven't very much of a chance now. Only the greatest run of luck, which would give them about six victories and Detroit and Philadelphia six defeats, or so, would give them the pennant, and none will believe that such a situation could come about, even in such an uncertain game as baseball. With Chicago out of it, the entire West is pulling for Detroit. The West places its hopes in the Tigers and every Tiger victory means a step toward the flag.

A sweep of the four games at Washington is needed, for there is no telling what St. Louis will do the latter part of the week. The Browns took three out of four in the last series with Detroit and they are equal to a similar performance. It is also up to Cleveland to help the good cause by winning one or two of the games at Philadelphia, for the Athletics are almost certain to take the big end of the three game series at Washington the latter part of the week.

Detroit, 5; Washington, 3.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The Detroits yesterday again demonstrated the staying qualities that have singalized their playing in the East, and won out after having allowed their opponents to gain what appeared to be a winning lead. In the sixth inning, with two men out and the score 3 to 1, in favor of Washington, Cobb began a batting rally with a single to center. Rossman hit into the crowd in left field for two bases, Cobb going to third Coughlin doubled to right, tallying Cobb and Rossman and tieing the score. Schmidt drove Coughlin home with a single to left, and the inning ended with the score, Detroit, 4; Washington, 3. Detroit clinched the game in the next inning Schaefer scoring, after two were out, on his single, a steal and Crawford's stinger to center.

Detroit started the scoring in the first inning. D. Jones walked; Schaefer sacrificed, Blankenship to Delhanty; Crawford flied to Delhanty; Cobb singled through short, and Jones scored when Warner threw to second to catch Cobb. Washington got two in the third and took the lead. Johnson beat out a slow one to Coughlin; Milan flied to Rossman; Ganley beat a bunt; Siever threw wild to catch Ganley, and Johnson scored. Ganley scored when Cobb threw wild to Coughlin.

Washington scored again in the third. Jones doubled to left. Shipke singled to center, scoring Jones; O'Brien was safe on Schaefer's error, but Johnson fanned and Milan grounded out to Rossman. There was no more run getting, until the sixth, when the Detroits turned back the tide of defeat and retained their premier position in the struggle for the pennant.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Philadelphia kept up the fight for the American league pennant by shutting out Cleveland yesterday in easy fashion. Yesterday's victory of Detroit over Washington makes the standing of the two leaders the same as before the games. Lygert, who pitched early in the game yesterday, was in the box for the locals and Cleveland was unable to touch him. He held the visitors to three singles and a double.

The home team started the scoring in the first inning. After Hartsell had flied out to Birmingham, Nicholls beat out an infield hit. Seybold flied out to Flick. Nicholls advanced to third on Davis' hit to right and scored on Murphy's single to center. Two runs were added in the second. Oldring flied out to Hinchman. Schreck, Dygert and Hartles made successive singles. Nicholls then forced Schreck at the plate. Seybold hit the top of the right field fence, scoring Dygert and Hartsel.

In the third inning Berger was succeeded by Rhoades and the latter held the locals to four innings with but one hit. In the seventh inning the home team scored one run. Dygert walked. Hartsel singled to right and Dygert was caught at third base. Nicholls singled to left. Hartsel taking third and scoring a moment later on a long fly to center by Seybold.

ORGANIZE IN MINNESOTA

American Motor League Forming Branch in State.

Motorists Named to Serve on the Board of Officers.

The American Motor league is forming a Minnesota division and well known automobilists are being selected in different parts of the state to serve as the first state board of officers. Additional appointments will be announced in a few days; a chief consul, a vice consul and a secretary-treasurer will be named and the board will soon be called together to adopt a constitution and by-laws and take up the work of the year. Meanwhile the chief consul will appoint standing committees by whom the details of the various departments will be attended to. The following are the representatives thus far selected:

James P. Johnson, Albert Lea; B. F. King, Austin; F. C. Thornton, Benson; Edward J. Filiatrault, Duluth; F. E. Douty, Edgerton; John E. Dobbin, Faribault; Olaf Th. Sherping and F. H. Straub, Fergus Falls; G. A. Lewis, Mankato; Philip R. Brooks, Minneapolis; Charles Silverson, New Ulm; George R. Kinyon, Albert B. Steawrt and E. T. Winship, Owatonna; H. C. Ervin and Robert I. Hubert, St. Cloud; Gustave Scholle, Charles P. Joy and W. E. Woods, St. Paul; George H. Atwood and J. C. Nethaway, Stillwater; H. S. Youmans, Winona.

In organizing the Minnesota division the eighty-three counties have been divided into seventeen districts, each of which will be entitled to a number of representatives proportionate to the list of league members enrolled within the district. State boards have been appointed in thirty-six other states and over 1,300 acceptances have been received from prominent motorists who will act as members of the state boards in their respective states. The work of the league has been one of patient and steady recruiting and the membership has now reached a point which makes both possible and necessary the details of the organization work originally laid out. Each state division will have its own executive officers and state board through which the affairs of the division will be directed. The state boards will elect delegates to the national assembly and the national assembly will elect officers of the national body and prescribe rules from time to time for its government.

The A. M. L. is distinctly opposed to road racing and to the speeding of motor cars on the public highways. Its energies will be entirely directed to the securing of better laws, better roads and better treatment for those automobilists who now suffer for the sins of a few reckless offenders. The Minnesota division will have ten delegates to the first national assembly of the American Motor league at its next annual meeting.

The American Motor league maintains a department where each member may register a complete description of his car and thus increase the chances of apprehending the thief and recovering the machine in case of theft. SAFFORD'S LOSS HEAVY

Dr. Williams Has Little Time to Develop Center.

All-Western Star Out of Game by One Condition.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—The loss of Orrin Safford, center of the Minnesota football team for two years, and last year chosen for the All-Western team, is a hard blow to Dr. Williams and the university squad. The faculty committee has decided that he did not attain a sufficient standing in a recent examination to remove a condition, and as a result the announcement was made that he would not play.

In the case of Safford, the strictness of the rules regarding eligibility in the matter of studies seems a particular hardship. Safford is undoubtedly at the university for an education, not to play football. He has taken a prominent part in other lines of university and student activity, is a prominent debater, is interested in musical work, and last year was managing editor of the class Gopher.

It was while the latter book was being published, last spring, that Safford was conditioned in one subject in the political science department, his other work having been entirely satisfactory to the faculty. His athletic work evidently had nothing to do with the condition, and yet, because he failed to make good in the one subject, out of five or six he was carrying, he will not be permitted to play.

With less than two weeks remaining for preparation for the Iowa State game, Oct. 12, Dr. Williams is placed in a bad position by Safford's inability to play. A center must be developed in a very short time, and the moving of some man from one position to center may weaken another department of the team.

George Case has registered in the law school, and if he can arrange his studies suitably will be out for the team before the end of the week. Case is working his way through college, and will experience some difficulty in arranging to get out for practice, but it is expected that he will be in a suit in a few days.

The loss of Safford will be a hard blow to the prospects of the team, but the acquisition of Case will help matters on the line to a great extent. Dunn will probably be used at center, in spite of the fact that his work behind the line last year was so good. With Case at tackle, either Bandelin or Kjelland could be used at center, and allow Dunn to take his former place at full back, and that may be the final solution of the problem.

MAHONEY IS NEW OWNER

North Butte to be Used in Coaching Boat Club Crews.

Captain of Club Has Purchased Schell's Fast Boat.

It has developed that Dan Mahoney, captain of the Duluth Boat club, was the purchaser of Richard Schell's fast motor boat, North Butte, which was sold by Mr. Schell about a week ago.

The purchase is an important one to the boat club, as it means the North Butte will be used next spring in coaching the crews when they get on the waters of the bay. In former years the coaching as been attended with difficulties on account of a lack of accommodations. The coaches were placed in the position of watching the crews work from the shore, or from slower boats than the shells.

But the North Butte should be equal to the task of keeping in close touch with the different crews and the coaches working from it expect to accomplish much more than under the former conditions.

Mr. Mahoney's purchase is one of the fastest motor boats ever seen on the waters of the bay. It was built for Mr. Schell at Oshkosh and is equipped with a powerful Doman engine, capable of sending it through the water at a rate of approximately twenty and a half miles an hour. Only one boat on the bay can contend with the North Butte for speed honors. Efforts have been made for some time to get the North Butte and F. H. Wade's Doman together in a match, but they have been unsuccessful. The two boats have had a few impromptu races on the river, with honors slightly in favor of Wade's boat. It is not likely Mr. Mahoney will place the boat in a race, as he purchased it for pleasure jaunts and practical work at the boat club.

Minneapolis Woman Recovers One Cent From Osculatory Grocer.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A verdict of 1 cent has been returned by a jury in the district court. Mrs. Helga Slettum can recover this amount from William C. Payne, whom she charged with an assault. It is just one one-hundred thousandth of the amount which Mrs. Slettum sued for and although it is the smallest possible verdict which can be satisfied on the judgment books of the district court it signifies, according to the law, that there was some merit, at least, in Mrs. Slettum's claim.

Mrs. Slettum swore on the stand that she had gone to Mr. Payne's grocery store early one morning and that he had held her in his lap and kissed her. Mr. Payne denied that there had been any such proceedings. Mrs. Slettum demanded $1,000. The jury brought in a verdict for 1 cent.

Minnesota's Executive Leaves President's Party and Returns to St. Paul.

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 2.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota, who was one of those participating in the reception to President Roosevelt, was taken ill here yesterday and removed to his home in St. Paul. Governor Johnson expected to go with the president's party and governors from eleven states to St. Louis, and thence to Memphis, but his illness prevented. Secretary Loeb, who started from here for Wyoming where he will hunt, accompanied Governor Johnson as far as St. Paul.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA

The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The itching, burning eruptions are caused by the outpouring through the pores and glands of the skin, of the fiery poisons with which the circulation is loaded. This acrid matter coming in contact with the delicate tissues and fibres with which the skin is so abundantly supplied causes irritation and inflammation and often excessive discomfort and annoyance. While external applications, such as salves, washes, lotions, etc., are soothing and cleansing they are in no wise curative, because they do not reach the blood where the trouble is located. You can never cure Eczema with outside treatment; the blood must be purified. S. S. S. is the best treatment for the dsease. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the acids and humors with which the blood is infected, and makes the blood-current fresh and healthy. Then instead of fiery, acrid matter oozing out through the pores and glands, irritating the cuticle, the skin is nourished by a rich, cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S. removes every trace of the disease, and when the cure is complete the skin is left smooth and free from any eruption. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice furnished free of charge to all who write.

"I DONE KILLED PAT" WERE THE WORDS WHICH MAY HANG JOHNSON

Her Testimony Remains Unshaken Under Cross-Examination.

Legal Wife of Prisoner a Witness at the Trial.

Amanda Jackson, the state's star witness in the Johnson murder trial, was on the witness stand this morning, and in spite of her nervousnesss told a damaging story.

Her story was almost exactly as outlined by the county attorney, yesterday afternoon.

"I done killed Pat," were the words she said Johnson used when he returned home, and she says she went to the lodging rooms for him to find out whether the shot had proved fatal.

She said she was 21 years of age, and had come here from Kentucky three years ago. She admitted she was a morphine user.

The Jackson woman told on the witness stand practically the same story of the shooting as outlined by County Attorney Norton to the jury. She admitted that she had been at Mrs. Patterson's room drinking beer earlier in the evening, but claimed that she went home about 9 o'clock, and remained there waiting for Johnson.

Is Not Shaken.

Cross-examination by Judge Martin for the defense failed to shake her testimony. Amanda Jackson denied that she had any jealous feeling toward Mrs. Patterson, and claimed that Johnson had just as much motive to kill the woman as she the witness had. She denied that she put up a story against Johnson to save herself, and claimed that if he did not commit the deed he ought not to have told her that he did. The witness claimed that she would never have divulged the story Johnson is said to have told her had she not been arrested.

The state followed up Amanda Jackson's testimony with other witnesses, who furnished here and there a clue in the strong chain of circumstantial evidence that the county attorney is weaving about John Johnson. This evidence was secured by Chief Troyer during the several weeks following the shooting, when public sentiment was strongly inclined to the belief that the Jackson woman had done the shooting and thrown the blame on Johnson to shield herself.

The testimony that the state is now introducing tends to substantiate statements made by Amanda Jackson, concerning the movements of herself and Johnson, on the night of the tragedy, and which Johnson, it is understood, will attempt to contradict.

Wife a Spectator.

Among the spectators at the trial is Mrs. Johnson, the legal wife of the accused. She is not a witness, but is attending trial out of curiosity. She was the first to inform the attorney defending Johnson that Amanda Jackson was a "morphine fiend."

Chief Troyer was called to the stand this morning to testify that the revolver and cartridges were found in the Jackson woman's trunk after she made the alleged statement that Johnson did the shooting. This testimony was given to discredit the claim of the defense that Amanda Jackson told the police to shield herself.

James Parker, proprietor of the barber shop where Johnson worked as a porter, and Charles J. Mars, who assisted in moving the fixtures, testified that the work was completed and Johnson left the place at 11:40 o'clock.

George Archer, who last July was employed by the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit company, claimed that on the morning after the shooting, while walking from his home at Tenth avenue west, along Michigan street, toward his place of employment, he picked up a 38-caliber cartridge on the pavement near Seventh avenue west. The witness claimed that he did not at the time connect his find in any way with the murder of the Patterson woman. Archer claimed that later in the day he gave the cartridge to Sergeant Fritz of the police force, who happened into the store, and told him the circumstances about finding it.

Sergeant Fritz corroborated the story about the cartridge. The cartridge is of the same caliber as the revolver found in the Jackson woman's trunk and the fact that it was found on Michigan street, near Seventh avenue west is claimed by the state to bear out her story that Johnson took a revolver from his pocket, and extracted and threw away some cartridges near Seventh avenue west.

Patrolman Louis Johnson and Charles Morgan, a janitor and nightwatchman, testified that they saw Amanda Jackson walking rapidly east on Superior street about 12:40 o'clock the night of the shooting and saw her cross the street at Third avenue west and go down to Michigan street. This testimony was given to corroborate the Jackson woman's testimony that after she went to 23 Fifth avenue west and found Mrs. Patterson was dead, she went to the rear of the penny arcade, on Michigan street, where Johnson told her to meet him.

Fireman Is Called.

The first witness to be called this afternoon is a fireman who, it is expected will testify that after midnight the evening Mrs. Patterson was shot, Johnson and Amanda Jackson passed the First street fire hall, and were quarreling.

County Attorney John H. Norton, in opening the state's case to the jury, yesterday afternoon, said:

"This is an important case, for the reason that, on conviction of the crime charged, the law inflicts the heaviest penalty known—death by hanging. Far be it from me to attempt to take this man's life under the law, unless the evidence will warrant it."

The State's Story.

Outlining the story of the shooting of Mrs. Eva Patterson, according to the state's information, Mr. Norton said that early in the evening of the day of the tragedy, Amanda Jackson, Johnson's paramour, had visited Mrs. Patterson until about 9 o'clock; that the two women had talked together and drank some beer. Amandy Jackson is said to have gone back to her lodging place at 18 Sixth avenue west, where she waited for and let Johnson into the house, about midnight, after the latter had completed his work of assisting in moving the barber fixtures in Parker's shop to another location. It is claimed by the state that the first thing Johnson said to Amanda Jackson, on entering the house was: "Nig, I've shot Pat."

According to the state, Johnson was anxious to find out the condition of the woman shot, so he told Amanda Jackson to go over to 23 Fifth avenue west and get all the information she could, and then meet him down on Michigan street, between First and Second avenues west, in front of a place where they formerly resided. It is claimed that the Jackson woman walked on First street to Fifth avenue west, and to the rooming house where the shooting occurred, and, learning that Mrs. Patterson was dead, she continued over to the place where, it is alleged, she was to meet Johnson.

The state claims that Johnson and Amanda Jackson then started to walk back to their lodgings and that Johnson, on the way, took a revolver from his pocket and broke it, taking the cartridges out and putting them in his pocket, at the same time throwing away a lot of cartridges, near some billboards along Michigan street near Seventh avenue west. The couple, it is claimed, walked up Seventh avenue west to First street and then to their lodgings on Sixth avenue west where Johnson is said to have given the cartridges taken from the revolver to Amanda Jackson, who tied them up in a handkerchief and put them in her trunk. One of the cartridges had been discharged. The revolver was afterward found in the same trunk, but Amanda Jackson claimed Johnson must have put it there without her knowledge.

It is alleged that the couple retired for the night and that next morning Johnson returned to his work in the usual manner. During the day, the police, acting on information they had secured after the shooting, arrested Amanda Jackson and took her to police headquarters. It is claimed that when confronted with the officers she weakened and confessed that Johnson told her he shot Mrs. Patterson. She is said to have detailed the story about as the state told it to the jury. Johnson was then arrested. He denied that he did the shooting or that he told Amanda Jackson what she told the police.

Rely on Woman's Testimony.

Mr. Norton also told the jury of the discovery of the body of Mrs. Patterson at the head of the stairs in the rooming house, by colored men who roomed there, and of the subsequent action of the police in taking charge of the body and searching the premises.

The statements made by the county attorney indicated that the state's case is based almost entirely on the testimony given by Amanda Jackson against Johnson. The latter is claimed to be a married man with two children. It is alleged that he deserted his family in St. Paul when he came to Duluth with the Jackson woman.

Dr. E. L. Tuohy, who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Patterson, testified that she came to her death by reason of a bullet which entered the left breast, pierced the heart and came out of the body under the shoulder blade. He was of the opinion that death must have ensued very quickly after the wound was received.

Arthur Lewis, a waiter at the Spalding cafe, who roomed at No. 23 Fifth avenue west, the "skiddoo number," as he termed it, testified that he and a colored friend named Spears, had been drinking whisky after their work was over for the night and they walked up Fifth avenue west, Lewis starting for his lodging place in order to make a little "touch" in order to buy more booze.

Lewis said that as he got to the top of the stairs he found the body of a woman on the floor, dressed in night clothes, and with a bloody spot showing just under the shoulder.

"I was skeered, and I toah down stairs," said Lewis, relating to the jury his hasty exit.

The witness testified that he told Spears and another man, who stood at the foot of the stairs, that there was a woman lying on the floor in the hall who looked like "a cold turkey." He related the investigation made by his friend Spears, and the alarm given the police.

Charles Ham, another waiter, who roomed at No. 23, when the shooting occurred, was a most unwilling witness. The testimony developed that he was calling on a colored woman, by the name of Mrs. Frances Cooper, when the shooting took place, and he was so frightened by the shot that he stood for some time inside the room, with his ear to the keyhole. When he heard the voices of Lewis and Spears he came out of Mrs. Cooper's room and walked down stairs to the street. He claimed that he heard no unusual noises until the shot was fired.

Sergeant Gillon testified that he made a partial search of the premises and found blood and a bullet on the floor of the room occupied by Mrs. Patterson, at the rear end of the hall. The state claims the bullet is the same that killed Mrs. Patterson.

Officer Fred Mahlen, who was the first to arrive at the scene of the tragedy after the alarm given by Lewis and Spears, said that as soon as he found the dead woman, he notified headquarters, and remained by the body until the arrival of the patrol.

Lieut. Fiskett stated that he found a woman hiding in one of the closets, a Mrs. Frances Cooper, who was very much frightened. Mrs. Cooper, who was called as a witness, claimed that she did not know anything about the shooting affair. All she heard was the shot fired.

George Hicks, who is proprietor of the lodging place where Johnson and Amanda Jackson lived, testified that he heard Amanda and Johnson quarreling when he let them in the house, shortly after midnight, and heard Amanda say: "I told you to let that woman alone."

DEPUTY SHERIFF WALTER BUTCHART AND JOHN JOHNSON, SNAPPED ON THEIR WAY TO THE COURTROOM FROM THE COUNTY JAIL THIS MORNING.

Distress After Eating

Do You Ever Feel As Though You Had Swallowed A Brick Instead of a Meal?

That heavy, bloated, stuffed-up, lead-like feeling, which you often experience after eating a meal is positive proof that something is wrong with your digestive organs. They are becoming weak and fagged out. There is a lack of gastric and other digestive juices. The food is no longer properly digested and it forms a heavy load on your stomach, so that nearly every meal causes you misery and distress.

If you are in this condition, it means that you have dyspepsia in some form and may have had it for some time, though you didn't realize it.

Now is the time to check it, for if you don't it will surely develope into worse forms of dyspepsia and other stomach troubles, which may have serious results.

But that is not all. The stomach is the hub of the body and an injury to it is the injury to all. A weak stomach causes the whole body to suffer. The action of the heart, liver and kidneys becomes sluggish. The brain becomes inactive. The nerves become unstrung. The blood loses its vitality.

The only safe, sure, scientific method of restoring your stomach to its healthy, normal state, is to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will act as a substitute in digesting your food, thus giving your stomach a much needed rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the tests for years. Thousands have used them and been cured. Physicians all over the United States recommend them. They are not a secret remedy. They contain fruit and vegetable essences, pure concentrated tincture of hydrastis, golden seal, lactose, and pure aseptic pepsin. These combined ingredients will digest the coarsest kind of food and do the work just as well as any good, strong, healthy stomach.

Don't take our word for it. Ask your physician, your druggist or any of your friends, who may have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. But you don't even have to take their word for it. Find out for yourself. Send for a free sample package and try them. That's the surest way to learn the truth. Then, if you are satisfied, you can go to your nearest druggist and get a fifty-cent box. All druggists sell them.

JOS. E. FOX,

15 East Superior Street.

HE GAVE UP.

Chicago News: "Two plus two equals four," said the married man, reaching for his book. "If this light goes out on us we'll be in the dark. We can't eat our dinner all over again because we've already eaten it."

"I wouldn't talk nonsense if I were you," said his wife.

"I know it," said the married man. "But unfortunately you are not. You have to stick to your own personality and make the most of it, thanking your stars you have a husband who is willing to make allowances. I've given you my reasons. Now, why not let it drop?"

"Is the fact that we've eaten our dinner a good reason why we shouldn't have a new rug?" inquired his wife, sarcastically.

"Don't let's have it all over again, Belle," pleaded the man.

"Oh, certainly not," said his wife. "It's settled, of course, if you say so. I haven't any business discussing the matter. I'm just a woman and when you say no I must acquiesce. But you'd think me presumptuous if I should come into your office and tell you that you didn't need a new desk and not allow you to argue."

"Now, that isn't—"

"Suppose I said, 'Henry, if it rains tomorrow it will be wet, therefore there isn't the slightest necessity for that desk.' I don't suppose you would say that was a good reason, would you?"

"I gave you reasons and you can't deny that they are good ones."

"Oh, can't I?"

The married man sighed. "I thought I made it perfectly clear to you," he said.

"Well, I think we might have it."

"I don't see how you can think so. If you can tell me how we would be justified in doing it I'm sure I would be quite willing."

"There's one thing I'm glad of," said his wife, after a pause, "and that is that I can think what I like, even if I haven't anything to say. Other people have new rugs."

"Other people aren't exactly in our circumstances, my dear."

"You don't know that. Anyway, the Praglers aren't nearly as well off as we are."

"Have they been buying any $150 rugs?"

"It isn't $150; it's $135. I said it was marked $150 three weeks ago. That's just it; you make out what isn't so and then you say it's unreasonable. There's quite a difference between $150 and $135. I think there is, anyway, and I think it's worth saving. But then I'm extravagant. You are so exact and you insist on telling me that two and two make four and then you talk about $150 rugs."

"Are they buying any $135 rugs, then?"

"No, but she had three new hats this summer and that's more than I've had, and you know it. And when you talk about red not harmonizing with the tone of the room—"

"I don't care a cent whether is harmonizes or not. The point is—"

"The point is that you just want to be obstinate about it. I should think it would matter quite a little whether a rug harmonized with the rest of the room. I just don't think that you noticed it. Why, it would be too decorative for anything."

"Oh, I give it up," said the man. "Get it if you like."

"No," said the woman, gently but firmly. "I wouldn't get it as long as you thought we ought not to. I don't want you to consent just to please me. I was just discussing it. I think that we really should buy it, but if you don't—"

"Oh, I guess maybe we'll survive it. Buy it."

"Don't talk like that, dear. I want you to be convinced."

"I'm convinced."

"Really?"

"Oh-huh."

"Well, now, how much nicer it is to talk over a thing quietly and reasonably," said his wife, beamingly. "I will say that for you, Henry. You always listen to argument."

"I have to," said the married man.

JOBBERS WANT RAILROAD STREET EXTENDED---SHORT HAUL TO SUPERIOR

There is now pending before the council a petition from a number of Duluth jobbers asking for the condemnation of an extension of Railroad street to Garfield avenue, making a new thoroughfare for a part of the distance between the two cities, and giving a much shorter and easier haul for heavy traffic.

The petition will come up for action Monday night, and it is probable that the land will be ordered condemned at that time, and the board of public works instructed to appraise the damages.

As it is now, Railroad street comes to a "blind" end at Fifteenth avenue west. Teamsters have been using a makeshift road beyond to Garfield avenue, but it is really no road at all and very hazardous for heavy loads. It is moreover across private property.

The jobbing interests and others, whose teams use Railroad street would see the city authorize and construct the additional road as soon as possible, so that use could be made of it at once.

As it is now, teams loading on Railroad street must go clear back to Ninth avenue west before they can get up to Michigan or Superior street. It is then necessary to go down Superior street to Garfield avenue and across the viaduct to get on Garfield avenue, the direct route to Superior. This takes a great deal of time and involves some hard climbs on the part of the horses.

The extension of Railroad street would obviate all this. It would be possible for teams to keep right on Railroad street, on a passable road. The proposed extension would strike Garfield avenue on the other side of the viaduct and would mean a level haul direct from the wholesale and dock districts.

Railroad street begins at Sixth avenue west and terminates now at Fifteenth avenue west, just a little short of Garfield avenue. The jobbers feel that the city would be justified in making the moderate expenditures necessary to carry out the improvement, which will be strongly urged by them to the council at its meeting Monday evening.

DULUTH WILL HAVE BIG COLD STORAGE PLANT

First Section of Building Will be Constructed This Winter.

Four Prominent Citizens Are Interested in the Enterprise.

A cold storage and general storage plant, one of the largest, if not the largest, in the Northwest, is to be erected at the southwest corner of Seventh avenue west and Railroad street. While the cost of the plant is not definitely known, it is understood that the figures will be much over $200,000.

The Herald learns on good authority that four prominent Duluth citizens who have been investigating the cold storage proposition for about a year, have put in the capital necessary. The location has been purchased and plans are being prepared for a seven-story brick, stone and concrete-steel reinforced structure which will contain every known facility for cold storage and general storage purposes. It is expected that bids will be advertised for within a short time, and the first section of the plant will be built this winter for operation next season.

A cold storage plant of large dimensions, is claimed to be one of the things that the city has been very much in need of for years past. Although the necessity was recognized it was not until the past year that local people were fully convinced of the possibilities in the way of a financial return on the project and induced to put in capital sufficient to carry through the proposed enterprise.

While the details are not yet available concerning the building, it is understood that big cold storage plants all over the country have been carefully investigated, experts have been consulted and the local people are now in a position to go ahead and build a plant for Duluth that will be second to none in the country.

At the present time there are several small cold storage plants in the city, but these, it is claimed, are inadequate to take care of the business, the larger number being private plants and used almost entirely for their owners' purposes.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Isabel Irving in "The Girl Who Has Everything."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

ISABEL IRVING

In Fitch Play "The Girl Who Has Everything."

"The Gird Who Has Everything" is the girl who has love according to the contention of Clyde Fitch in the play he has written for Miss Isabel Irving, and he uses four acts to prove it.

It is fortunate that the play does not depend upon its plot for its success, or the scenery would have gone under the hammer many weeks ago. It is a study in character like "The Climbers," and as such there is no excuse for its existence.

Clyde Fitch apparently has a most flattering opinion of his own sex, however. Of the three women in his play, one is a chattering maiden lady of uncertain age, who is afflicted with a form of dementia that makes her believe every man is in love with her; the second is so much in love with love that she would be willing to marry a man if he were a cad; and the third is the most sentimentally inclined toward the sterner sex, but is a good enough sport to hide it under the mask of a man-hater. With all these fractured hearts lying about the stage, it makes a self-respecting man blush with shame for his sex, and almost want to go home and marry the scrubwoman for fear she may be breaking her heart with a secret attachment for him.

One serious inconsistency in the play is the introduction of the maiden aunt as a comedy character. The dramatist is attempting to prove that the girl who has love has everything, and yet he sets up a type of a poor, lonely, dependent, foolish old woman—who is such because she has missed the very thing in life he is praising—as a kind of comic supplement to his drama.

Miss Irving as the home-loving, affectionate girl, is wholly charming. The part seems to have been built for her, and she appears to be perfectly at home in it.

Helen Weatherby as the comic supplement maiden aunt does better by the part than it deserves, and Emily Wakeman as good, old-fashioned Mrs. Waring, has a pretty bit of character work. Margaret Fullar as Ruth Carney, a "sturdy oak" and "a man-hater," saves the reputation of her sex, and seems to be the one young woman mentioned in the play who is gifted with good, ordinary, common sense, or a sense of humor as she calls it.

The term "clever child" always brings up the harrowing picture of an infant prodigy, clad in a night gown and bringing about a reconciliation between "mama" and "papa." Jerome Fernandez and little Edith Stevens are not that. They are a pair of good, healthy youngsters who act almost like human "kids" on the stage, and they provide about the only real comedy in the play.

It will be repeated tonight.

A Much-Traveled Band.

A band that has traveled over 250,000 miles in its seven years of existence must be of superior quality, or it would not have been in such demand. This is true of the famous Canadian concert band, the Kilties, and if Mr. Carnegie were giving a medal to the most-traveled musical organization in existence, the Kilties would undoubtedly wear it.

During this time, they have visited seven countries and played over 4,000 concerts, two of which were before the king of England by royal command.

The Kilties are a unique organization, consisting of Scotch-Canadian players, who wear the Scotch uniform, but who play the music of all nations. With the band is a trained choir of sixteen voices, which renders the ballads that have made Scotland famous the world over. In addition to the choir and band, the Kilties have with them the champion highland fling sailor's hornpipe and sword dancer of America, Angus MacMillan Fraser. With the band is the giant drum major, Donald MacCormack, who towers 7 feet 2 inches high, and is a striking example of Scotch brawn and muscle.

This interesting organization will be seen and heard in Duluth twice tomorrow under the auspices of Clan Stewart.

The Burlesquers.

One of the biggest hits in the entertainment given at the Metropolitan this week by the Empire Burlesquers is the sale of the slaves during the action of "The Slave Mart," the gorgeously staged and costumed production which concludes the performance. Roger Imhof, Ed Johnston and George Klein get considerable comedy out of this scene. The incidental dances and songs by the members of the chorus add zest to the performance. The Empire company will give a matinee for ladies at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon.

RAILROADS

A TUNNEL IS NEEDED

Accident to Bridge Proves Necessity of Such Improvement.

Duluth Constantly in Danger of Being Shut Off.

It has happened again. Everybody knew that it would. The Northern Pacific bridge across St. Louis bay is out of commission temporarily as the result of being hit by a steamer early this morning.

The words "steamer hits bridge" are quite frequently seen in the papers these days. It was not more than a few weeks ago that the Northern Pacific structure was out of commission for a day on account of being knocked out of line by a steamer. And now it is again demonstrated that the bridges across the bay cannot be depended upon and that some other means of getting across the water is badly needed at the Head of the Lakes.

A tunnel under the bay has been suggested a number of times and every time the bridge is out of commission the talk about the tunnel is renewed, and each time it becomes more vigorous. It has been demonstrated so many times that one is needed that people are beginning to be more and more in favor of the tunnel idea.

Duluth is practically cut off from the outside world every time the Northern Pacific bridge is damaged. There is only one other railway bridge across the St. Louis river at Duluth, since the interstate structure was put out of commission, and it is at West Duluth, which makes it a round about route to Duluth from Superior.

When the bridge over the St. Louis bay is in commission all the roads entering Duluth pass over that structure with the exception of some of the Northern Pacific's trains which go around by West Duluth.

As long as bridges are used and boats are compelled to pass through the draws, there is always a chance for an accident like that of this morning. A big steamer even when proceeding slowly, cannot be brought to a stop quickly and if it only lightly hits an obstruction much damage is done on account of the great weight of the boat.

Drawbridges are often out of order and cannot be readily operated and in this way delay results both to the traffic over the bridge and to the boats on the water. A high enough railroad bridge to allow boats to pass under it is practically impossible and to go under the water is about the only way to overcome the frequent delays caused by damage to the bridges.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS

Of Northwest Are in Session at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The railroad commissioners of six northwestern states, who met in St. Paul to discuss railroad regulation accomplished little today beyond effecting a temporary organization and arranging a comprehensive program for tomorrow's session.

Among the matters to be discussed tomorrow are the length of time that should intervene between the filing of a rate and the date it is to become effective, uniformity in classification of freight, uniformity of legislation, uniformity in annual reports.

The railroad commissioners attending the meeting are J. C. Lawrence and C. C. Calderwood, Washington; C. B. Atchison, Oregon; Eric Stefine, North Dakota; W. E. Young and A. C. Claussen, Minnesota, and J. M. Winterbotham, Wisconsin.

Burnham's Hair and Scalp Tonic.

Chicago, July 24, 1905.

MR. E. BURNHAM—

Dear Sir: After having used your Hair Grower for about six months I can truthfully say it is the most wonderful hair tonic I know of. It has stopped the falling out and the bald spot is entirely covered with a thick, natural growth. I am more than pleased with the results. A physician friend who examined my head said hair could not be restored on the bald spot, and the inclosed photo shows that it can be and was restored by your Hair Grower. My hair measures 49 inches and is still growing, has a rich, healthy color, and is admired by all who see it.

Am recommending your tonic to all my friends and acquaintances, and I sincerely wish you the success you and your wonderful discovery deserves.

CANNOT INCLUDE ANY OTHER STATE

Interior Department is Against Forming Proposed Land District.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition of establishing a new land district covering territory in the southwest corner of North Dakota, including territory in South Dakota and Montana, which was submitted to Senator Hansorough some weeks ago, was taken up by the senator with the department of the interior at Washington. The senator is in receipt of a reply which indicates that the department does not feel the establishment of a new land district in that section is necessary.

The department calls attention to the fact that heretofore land districts have not been laid out so as to include territory in more than one state. Indeed, there appears to be a statute which prohibits such a thing. It is furthermore pointed out that in a case like this, in all probability, the people of South Dakota and Montana would object to joining in a partnership of this character. However, it is a matter that congress may dispose of as it deems wise.

It is the purpose of Senator Hansbrough, when he reaches Washington in November, to take the matter up with the congressional delegations from South Dakota and Montana. It may be that some adjustment can be arrived at by an agreement between the delegations of the three states.

CHARIVARI DENOUNCED.

Sheboygan, Wis., Oct. 2.—Rev. Father Thill of Holy Name Catholic church here, is the latest to decry from the pulpit the practice of charivari at marriages. The fact that the practice is calculated to extort drink money from bridegrooms, is enough to condemn it, he avers.

FINDS MANY DRINKING.

State Senator Peterson Goes Slumming in Moorhead With Success.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is all kinds of excitement among the saloon men of this city over the sensational slumming trip made Sunday afternoon by State Senator Peterson. It is claimed that he entered one place, the name of which is being withheld temporarily, and found seventy-five men in the basement drinking beer in violation of the Sunday closing law. He hastened for a policeman and, on their return, not a man was in sight. The report is that the senator will make a complaint against the proprietor of the place.

Secrets From Miss Beauty's Dressing Table.

By MADAME D'ARVILLE.

Fresh from her bath comes Miss Beauty to be dressed and gowned for the social triumphs of the evening. This season of course her hair must be given serious attention. The classic coil and the wavy, irregular pompadour are displacing the Marcel wave and the old stiff pompadours of the past. Parting the hair in the center is again coming into vogue, and where the contour of the head permits it a flat knot of the 1832 style is very popular and especially becoming to young girls.

While the hair is important, it is to her face and complexion that Miss Beauty must give the most care and attention if she means to reign in the social world. And here, my dear reader, is the secret of many of the beautiful complexions which excite both our admiration and envy; because, after all, it is the complexion which is woman's greatest charm.

After the face, neck and arms have been washed in tepid water and thoroughly dried with a soft towel, apply a wash made as follows: Obtain at a drug store rose water, 2 ounces; cologne spirits, 1 ounce; Eppotone (skin food), 4 ounces.

Put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and after dissolved strain and let cool. Then add the rose water and cologne spirits.

It is quite easy to make this wash yourself and it is not expensive. The results are surprising. The skin becomes soft and velvety and you will find it is not necessary to use powder at all.

After the complexion has been treated in this manner Miss Beauty is fully equipped for her social triumphs without the embarassment so often attendant upon the use of powder, rouge and cosmetics.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CASE TRIED FOUR TIMES

Long Drawn Out Litigation Over Contract to Furnish Timber.

Pine City Lumber Company Held to be Liable for Damages.

Pine City, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lumbermen of the state have been following with no little interest a long drawn out piece of litigation which has just terminated here by the jury finding for the plaintiff in the case of the Hobe Lumber company of Minneapolis against the Pine City Lumber company by returning a verdict for the plaintiff for $4,000 for breach of contract.

The action involved several questions which have been a matter of dispute between lumber dealers and sawmill men for many years and establishes an important precedent.

The Hobe company entered into an agreement with the Pine City company to take its season's cut of lumber for 1905. About the middle of July the contract was repudiated and a fortnight later an action to recover $9,000 damages was brought. The defense was that the contract was not a binding obligation, as it was too indefinite.

The case was tried four times in the district court of Pine county and went once to the Minnesota supreme court. In the first two trials the jury disagreed, but the third trial, about a year ago, resulted in a verdict for the defendant.

The Hobe company took an appeal to the supreme court to determine whether a contract for the season's cut was a binding obligation, and also to determine whether or not an agreement could be modified by parole evidence notwithstanding the express terms of a written agreement. The supreme court held that the contract or agreement was a binding obligation and that parole evidence did not modify the terms of the written contract.

Thus fortified, the Hobe Lumber company went to the fourth trial of the case. The jury brought in a verdict as already noted.

WALKER ENTERTAINS.

Senator Clapp and Judge Hallum Given a Banquet by Citizens.

Walker, Minn., Oct. 2.—United States Senator Moses E. Clapp and Judge Hallum of St. Paul were Walker's guests Monday afternoon and evening. The senator has been making the rounds of the Indian reservations and arrived here unannounced. A banquet was given in his honor in the evening at the Hotel Chase, participated in by all the business men of Walker. Senator Clapp talked at some length on the future outlook of Northern Minnesota, especially of its great agricultural possibilities, being more than ever convinced of its future achievements, after viewing the exhibits at the Beltrami county fair on Saturday of last week. Judge Hallum, who by the way, was one of the party of Twin City men who junketed through the northern country last fall, expressed himself as a convert to the cause of unrestricted development of the north country. The visitors left Walker for the Twin Cities this morning.

STACY POSTOFFICE

North Branch, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The postoffice at Stacy, Minn., was broken into Monday night by burglars, and residents of this vicinity fear that the epidemic of burglaries that prevailed last winter has broken out again. Postmaster Sherman had carried home with him the bulk of the paper money, so that the burglars got little except small change and stamps. The amount of the loss has not yet been learned here.

Postmaster Nordgren of Sunrise, while driving to town Tuesday morning, passed two suspicious looking characters on the road, but whether they were the perpetrators of the robbery or not is not known.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The directors of the St. Paul Y. M. C. A. announce a gift of $20,000 by Mrs. Russell Sage towards the new building. There is no condition attached to the gift. The directors are free to use it as part of the general building fund, or for some special feature in the building.

FAMOUS LAWYER IN HARD LINES

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge George Gary, author of Gary's "Law and Practice of Probate Courts," and brother of Judge Joseph Gary, who tried the famous anarchist cases in Chicago, is dying at a tiny cottage, sparsely furnished, at 729 Delaware avenue, town of Lake, where he lives with five grandchildren, the oldest of whom is 14 years of age.

For fifty years he was a resident of Oshkosh and a personal friend of Gabe Bouck and other old time leaders of the bar. He was one of the best known lawyers in Wisconsin for years, and he held that the contract or agreement was a binding obligation and that parole evidence did not modify the terms of the written contract.

Judge Gary is 84 years old. He spends all his time lying in bed. His eyes do not see, and he hears but little and comprehends still less, seldom recognizing those about him. He is partially paralyzed and at present is suffering with a severe cough in addition to his other ailments.

For many years he made money rapidly in Oshkosh, and his family lived luxuriously. During this time he wrote his book on probate law and sold it outright to Callahan & Co. of Chicago for a nominal sum. The book has since gone through several editions, and the company is alleged to have realized a large profit on the amount originally paid for the manuscript. A friend of Judge Gary wrote to Callahan & Co., asking if the company could give any help. It replied it could not.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor S. M. Becker intends to send a carload of provisions to John F. Dietz of Cameron dam as a Christmas present. The "outlaw" has told friends at Osceola that attempts have been made to cut off his supplies. Mayor Becker intends to solicit contributions of food and clothing and personally see that they reach the Dietz cabin as soon as the weather permits of sleighing from Winter, the nearest station. The mayor worked Sunday on his history of the Dietz case and has completed 5,000 words.

The woman was arrested last week on a disorderly charge, and was ordered to find bonds for good behavior or go to jail for thirty days. She was unable to find the bonds and rather than make the woman a county charge it was decided to send her away from the evil influences surrounding her here.

TOO MANY WIVES.

Buford, N. D., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. C. Scott, the Great Northern agent here, who mysteriously disappeared Friday, is wanted on the charge of bigamy.

Mr. Scott, formerly of Decatur, Iowa, married Miss Smithwick of Buford last fall, who up to the time of her marriage made her home with Mrs. F. A. Holloway.

Mr. Scott was engaged prior to his coming to Buford to Miss Hitt of Decatur, Iowa, who did not wish to get married until after she had graduated. Miss Hitt graduated this past June, and Mr. Scott, supposedly not wishing to break his promise, returned to his old home last June and married her. He disappeared very suddenly after the marriage, and the young girl's brother, Hugh D. Hitt, has searched for him the past summer and Thursday located him at Buford, but before he could reach here Mr. Scott made his getaway.

MINNESOTA-IOWA DAY

At Interstate Fair at Lewiston, Idaho, and Clarkston, Wash.

Lewiston, Idaho, Oct. 2.—It would appear that Minnesotans and Iowans are doing their share to develop the latent resources of the Far West, if the action of the Lewiston-Clarkston fair management in designating a Minnesot-Iowa day at the interstate fair, to be held at Lewiston, Idaho, and Clarkston, Washington, may be taken as an indication of the elements that are building up the country. In point of fact the day is the only one dedicated to any state, and was so nominated because of the great number of Minnesota and Iowa citizens who have migrated to the Northwest, made their homes and amassed their fortunes in the fertile valley near Lewiston.

The program has been left to a joint committee from the Iowa and Minnesota societies of this city, who are planning to make the day a grand reunion. Headquarters will be established in two of the leading hotels, and there a register of the sons and daughters of these two states will be kept. Badges will be designed, and a special program at the fair grounds arranged.

One of the features of the day will be the address to be delivered by Congressman Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who himself, some years ago, left his home in the East for the land of promise toward the setting sun. After the program at the fair grounds the day will be given over to reunions, pleasure parties into the surrounding country, and so forth. It is planned to make the day an annual event.

TUMORS CONQUERED

The growth of a tumor is so insidious that frequently its presence is wholly unsuspected until it is well advanced.

So called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive monthly periods accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thigh.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacements, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, right away and begin its use.

The following letters should convince every suffering woman of its virtue, and that it actually does conquer tumors.

Mrs. May Fry, of 836 W. Colfax Ave, South Bend, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I also took the Blood Purifier in alternate doses with the Compound. Your medicine removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They had said that only an operation could help me. I am very thankful that I followed a friend's advice and took your medicine. It has made me a strong and well woman and I shall recommend it as long as I live."

Mrs. E. F. Hayes, of 26 Ruggles St., Boston, Mass., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been under different doctors' treatment for a long time without relief. They told me I had a fibroid tumor, my abdomen was swollen and I suffered with great pain. I wrote to you for advice, you replied and I followed your directions carefully and today I am a well women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system."

Mrs. Perry Byers, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was told by my physician that I had a fibroid tumor and that I would have to be operated upon, I wrote to you for advice, which I followed carefully and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am not only cured of the tumor but other female troubles and can do all my own work after eigh years of suffering."

Mrs. S. J. Barber, of Scott, N. Y. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Sometime ago I wrote you for advice about a tumor which the doctors thought would have to be removed. Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to-day am a well woman."

Mrs. M. M. Funk, Vandergrift, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had a tumor and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed it for me after two doctors had given me up. I was sick four years before I began to take the Compound. I now recommend Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound far and near."

Such testimony as above is convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for Tumor Growths as well as other distressing ills of women, and such symptoms as Bearing-down Sensations, Displacements, Irregularities and Backache, etc. Women should remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women Don't forget to insist upon it when some druggist asks you to accept something else which he calls "just as good."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Thus she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health.

ISLE ROYALE DESERTED

Season Has Been Most Prosperous One for Resort.

It would not do to take the population of Isle Royale, the popular Lake Superior summer resort, at this time of the year. Only the winter inhabitants of the island remain. The summer residents have left for warmer climes and the tourist season is a thing of the past for the year 1907.

The inhabitants of Isle Royale now consists only of a few fishermen, guards, who watch over the property, government officials and a few others who will remain through the winter. Activity on the island is at a standstill and there will be "nothing doing" up there until warm weather comes around again.

Isle Royale has never had such a prosperous season before as this year. Tourists have flocked there from all over the country.

The summer residents have been more numerous than ever. The cottages which have been erected were insufficient to house all of the people who wished to spend the summer on the island and numerous visitors camped out in tents.

The fame of Isle Royale as a popular summer resort has been spreading rapidly during the last two or three years and this year the visitors to the resort came from all sections of the country. Few of the tourists who visited Duluth and had the time missed taking the round trip to Isle Royale and Port Arthur.

One well known Southerner, who spent the summer months on Isle Royale and who passed through Duluth on the trip to his home, expressed himself as more than delighted with the Lake Superior resort.

"The atmosphere up there is simply wonderful," said he, "it puts new life into a man. And the joys of fishing on Isle Royale are enough to make it the finest place to spend the summer on the continent for the real sportsman."

The Booth Line Transportation company reports that the business to Isle Royale is practically a dead issue now. No passengers are taken to the island any more on the Booth boats, although they stop there to deliver freight and supplies.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by all Druggists, 25c.

HUBBS FUNERAL HELD HERE TODAY

Remains of Former Duluth Boy Brought From Colorado Springs.

The funeral of the late J. Wallace Hubbs, former assistant manager of the Spalding hotel, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's church. The remains were brought to Duluth Tuesday afternoon from Colorado Springs, where last Saturday Mr. Hubbs succumbed to a long continued siege of tuberculosis.

"Wallie" Hubbs was 26 years of age, and had lived in Duluth since childhood, his father, B. W. Hubbs, being still a resident of the city. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Charles Neale of Minneapolis, and a brother who resides in New Jersey. He became interested in the hotel business through experience as a dining car conductor on various roads running out of Duluth. After entering the employ of the Spalding, he rapidly rose to the post of assistant manager, and his future was bright when the malady, which finally proved fatal, first became apparent.

CAR SERVICE SHOWS GAINS

Railroad Men Await October Report, Expecting Increase.

Railroad men and people who are interested in commercial statistics are awaiting somewhat anxiously the October report of the Lake Superior Car Service association. It is early, of course, but the September report just out shows such a decided increase over the August traffic that the prospect for a continued increase is bright. The service handled 34,368 cars in September, an increase of 1,000 over the August business.

The September report of 1906, it is true, showed better figures than the month just passed, but an unprecedented grain movement that month was responsible, while the figures for September this year are the result of normal conditions and a healthy increase in traffic. This healthful condition is expected to continue and make the October report still greater.

JUMPS HIS BAIL.

Chief Troyer is compelled to start anew a search for a quarry which he already captured. The elusive individual is Robert Patterson, the advertising solicitor, who got away with $400 of Trades Assembly money which he had collected on the Labor day program. When his disappearance became known the chief sent out his description to the police of other cities and he was captured in Buffalo.

In that city Patterson secured $1,000 bail and was released. Now Chief Troyer is informed by the Buffalo police that Patterson has jumped his bail and it is necessary to start a new hunt for him. It is already in motion and Patterson is likely to face a double charge when taken again.

VERY HILARIOUS TIME IS AHEAD

When Field Officers Will Take a Test in Horsemanship.

Washington, Oct. 2.—There will be hilarious times in and about Washington on Oct. 8, for on that date all field officers below the grade of brigadier general, and above the grade of captain, will be compelled to climb on the "hurricane deck" of a horse and ride fifteen miles at a gallop. The field officers in all sections of the country are ordered to report to Brig. Gen. William P. Duvall, assistant chief of staff, at Fort Myer, Va., at 2 o'clock on Tuesday the 8th, to take the test in horsemanship which the president has ordered must be taken by all field officers every two years at least.

For the past week ghost-like figures on phantom horses have been seen traversing the bridle paths leading through Rock Creek Park, and livery men throughout Washington are telling strange tales of grizzled men and beardless youths applying to them for mounts, the cab horses being most generally selected for rides through the leafy shades. So many and so different in ages have been the applicants that it became a subject of wonderment on the part of livery owners as to what all this activity in riding meant. Now the "cat is out," it is because of the order of the president, compelling army officers to know something about riding so that in the event of war some of the commanders will not be compelled to fight battles from hammocks or sedan chairs.

It will be a jolly company of Uncle Sam's officers who will meet upon the bowling green at Fort Myer to ride fifteen miles on their biennial test of horsemanship, the route being through Arlington cemetery to Mount Vernon. At the latter place an ambulance train will pick up those who are too sore to ride back. It has even been suggested that one of the signal corps balloons would be a good thing to take off those invalided. However, no matter how weary the officers may be from their occupancy of the "hurricane deck" of a faithful cab horse, all will pass the medical examination which is to be made "before and after" taking the ride.

EXPECTED TO BE KILLED

Victim of Bomb Outrage Was Afraid of Assassination.

Baker City, Or., Oct. 2.—Sheriff Harvey K. Brown, who was Monday night made the victim of a bomb outrage very similar to that which killed Former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, is still alive with some chances for recovery. Brown is the man who arrested Steve Adams for the murder of a claim jumper in Idaho, and for the past six months had been engaged in detective work for the state of Idaho. He was a witness against Steve Adams and expressed his fear of taking the stand, for it is alleged he said he knew he never would escape alive if he did.

Brown has been very gloomy and downcast for several days past and when asked concerning his troubles by a friend he replied: "I am a doomed man. The people in Idaho will get me yet."

Before he became unconscious last night he said: "They have laid for me and got me at last." It is also said that Brown received an anonymous letter warning him to leave the country or his life would be taken.

The bomb was made of dynamite and was placed inside the gate. From the bomb a wire ran across the walk to the top of the fence. The only evidence to show where the criminal concealed himself, was the wire which could be traced into the middle of the road.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Takes the sting out of burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

ANNUAL CONGRESS

Of National Drainage Association to be Held at Baltimore.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Notice has been issued that the next annual congress of the National Drainage association will be held at McCoy hall, Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25, 26 and 27, 1907. The importance of this great work of internal improvement by the United States is not yet fully appreciated, even in the states most directly interested. The work already accomplished by the National Drainage association leads to the belief that successful legislation can be obtained during the Sixtieth congress. The general drainage bill, favorably reported from the United States senate committee on public lands, is known as senate file No. 6626, of which Senator Flint of California, is author.

The drainage of the swamp and overflowed lands of the United States is just as much a government function as that of irrigating arid lands. Scattered through thirty-seven states are approximately 80,000,000 acres of swamp land, the reclamation of which means millions of dollars annually to the business interests of the country over what is now enjoyed. If these lands were drained and subdivided into forty-acre farms, they would afford homes for 20,000,000 farmers, independent of the urban population which would inevitably follow. If these farmers had families of five, they would expend annually $800 per year for clothing, boots and shoes, dry goods and groceries; this would mean an expenditure of $12,000,000,000. The crop values of these now worthless lands, at $25 per acre, would mean an addition of $20,000,000,000 annually. It is impossible to estimate what amount would be spent by settlers on these lands for farm equipment, such as houses, barns, agricultural implements and stock. When reclaimed the lands will be a most valuable asset to the general government and states, as taxable property.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—So far as known there will be no radical measures presented at the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs, which began here yesterday, and with several delegates present from all over the state. Even the election of a state president seems to be a matter of little interest.

The reports of the officers were given by Mrs. Henry S. Ely, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles E. Conant, recording secretary; Mrs. E. J. Lewis, treasurer; Mrs. C. L. Atwood, auditor; Mrs. H. N. McCusick, historian; Mrs. A. H. Snow, custodian, and Mrs. P. A. Tomlinson, general federation secretary.

A group of the chairmen of the standing committees reported Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Margaret J. Blair, chairman of the household economic committee, was unable to be present, but her report was read by Mrs. Paul Doty of St. Paul.

Mrs. Clara F. Baldwin told what the traveling library was doing for the club woman. Mrs. H. S. Bierch was unable to be present, but her statement in regard to the mothers' clubs was read, and Mrs. Charlotte Cherponing of Winona told of the educational committee.

FREIGHTER HITS PIER

Hoover & Mason Demolishes Support of Northern Pacific Bridge.

All Trains Must Pass Over Grassy Point Structure.

Again the Northern Pacific bridge across St. Louis bay has been put out of commission temporarily. The steamer Hoover & Mason of the Tomlinson fleet, while going up the channel light for ore, struck the north pier of the Wisconsin draw at 2 o'clock this morning and entirely demolished it.

All trains are running around by way of the Grassy Point bridge and will continue to do so until tomorrow. The pier which was of stone was knocked entirely into the water. Not a sign of the pier remains above water. The bridge itself although knocked badly out of line was not damaged.

The pier was supposed to be in perfectly good condition and as it was of stone the steamer must have hit it a heavy blow to completely demolish it as was the case. Capt. W. C. Brown is the master of the Hoover & Mason, which is a 9,000-ton steamer. She was bound for the ore docks and was not accompanied by a tug at the time of the accident.

The Northern Pacific company was about to make repairs on the bridge this fall, but the work had not been begun. Superintendent Blanchard stated this morning that the pier would have been removed before long anyway. Temporarily a wooden pier will be erected and it is expected the bridge will be in commission again in about twenty-four hours.

The government inspector was sent to the scene of the accident early this morning and has marked the fallen pier with buoys so that there will be no danger of other boats hitting the pile of stone. It will be necessary for all vessels to pass through the south opening of the Wisconsin draw when going to the upper harbor via this channel.

GRAIN SHIPPING IS LIGHT.

Tonnage is in Demand, But Few Boats in Trade.

Very little grain is being shipped from the Head of the Lakes as yet, although it is beginning to come in from the West in good quantities. Only the line boats are engaged in the trade so far.

The rate is between 1¼ cents to 2¼ cents on wheat to Buffalo, and it is said that there is a good demand for tonnage, but very little of it on hand.

First Coal Cargo.

The steamer James E. Davidson of the Tomlinson fleet arrived in port yesterday with a cargo of coal which she took to the Northwestern dock No. 1 at Superior. This is the first time this boat has carried coal this season, having heretofore come up from the lower lakes light for ore.

Pier Lights Being Removed.

After being illuminated for the past four months, the government canal piers will be dark hereafter, except for the range lights and the lights on the bridge. The government engineers have begun to take down the lamp posts and globes on the piers and the city authorities have shut off the power. The posts and globes will be stored away until next spring.

September Coal Shipments.

Buffalo, Oct. 2.—Coal shipments by lake from Buffalo during September, were 449,671 tons against 349,520 tons for the same month last year. August still holds the record with 465,373 tons. Docks at Tonnawanda are stocked to their capacity with lumber awaiting shipment to New York, owing to the break in the Erie canal. This condition has caused a number of lumber carriers to be diverted to the ore trade. A scarcity of canal boats at both ends of the route makes the situation more serious. Rates have advanced 50 cents per thousand feet to Albany and New York. Shipments this season are 40,000,000 feet behind last year's figures.

Freight Situation.

Buffalo, Oct. 2.—Coal was in better supply yesterday, but tonnage was freely offered and shippers were well cared for. There are prospects of a good week's business. Charters: Schleinger, Bulgaria, Lewiston, Chicago; Orinoco, Superior, 30; Warner, Duluth, 30; Noyda, Fort William.

FOOD STOPPED IT.

Good Food Worth More Than a Gold Mine.

To find a food that will put an absolute stop to "running down" is better than finding a gold mine.

Many people when they begin to run down go from one thing to another without finding a food that will stop the progress of disease. Grape-Nuts is the most nourishing food known and will set one right if that is possible.

The experience of a Louisiana lady may be interesting. "I received a severe nervous shock some years ago and from that and overwork gradually broke down. My food did not agree with me and I lost flesh rapidly. I changed from one kind of food to another but was unable to stop the loss of flesh and strength.

"I do not exaggerate when I say that I finally became, in reality, a living skeleton. My nights were sleepless, and I was compelled to take opiates in various forms. After trying all sorts of food without success I finally got down to toasted bread with a little butter, and after a while this began to sour and I could not digest it. Then I took to toasted crackers and lived on them for several weeks, but kept getting weaker.

"One day Grape-Nuts was suggested and it seemed to me from the description that it was just the sort of food I could digest. I began by eating a small portion, gradually increasing the amount each day.

"My improvement began at once for it afforded me the nourishment that I had been starving for. No more harassing pains and indigestion. For a month I ate nothing but Grape-Nuts and a little cream, then I got so well I could take on other kinds of food. I gained flesh rapidly and now I am in better health than I have been in years. I still stick to Grape-Nuts because I like the food and I know of its powerful nourishing properties. My physician says that my whole trouble was a lack of power to digest food, and that no other food that he knows of would have brought me out of the trouble except Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason."

PETITIONS ARE FILED

District Court Takes Action in Matter of State Ditches.

Two of the Three Viewers Have Already Qualified.

Governor John A. Johnson, State Auditor S. G. Iverson and Secretary of State Julius Schmahl, comprising the state drainage commission, have filed a petition with the judges of the district court for permission to establish three ditches in St. Louis county, to be known as public ditches Nos. 53, 54 and 55.

Acting on the petition the judges have appointed two viewers, who have qualified.

The viewers who have qualified are William Getty and Remi Fortier. R. H. Doran of this city was the third viewer selected by the court, but as he has declined the appointment, it is probable that another person will be chosen very shortly.

The appointments have been made under chapter 470 of the laws of 1907.

With the three petitions are maps, showing the proposed route of the three big ditches and their lateral ditches.

The state drainage commission sets up in each petition that public convenience and welfare require the construction of the proposed routes. The commission claims that "large areas of wet and overflowed land lie along the route of the proposed ditch, which prevent the construction of roads, and retard the development of this section of the country generally; that the lands, if drained, would be valuable agricultural lands; that said wet and overflowed lands create unhealthful conditions for man and beast, and make undesirable a section of country which, if drained, would become a good farming district."

Attached to the petitions and the maps are estimates of the cost of the proposed ditches, made by States Drainage Engineer George Rolph.

Public ditches Nos. 53 and 54 will be located in the Meadowlands district, and will have an outlet into the Whiteface river.

Public ditch No. 55 will be located in the Floodwood district, and will have an outlet into the Floodwood river.

The lands that are likely to be affected by public ditch No. 55, and which it will be the duty of the viewers appointed by the court to look over, comprise the following: Sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 35, township 56-17. Sections 25, 26, 35 and 36, township 56-18. Sections 3 to 10, inclusive, 15 to 22, inclusive, 27 to 34 inclusive, township 55-17. Sections 3 to 9, inclusive, north half of section 18 and the northeast quarter of section 17, township 54-17. Sections 1, 2, 11, 12, 13, 14, 23, 24, 25, 26, 35 and 36, township 55-18. Sections 1, 2, 11, 12, 13, 14, township 54-18.

Public ditch No. 53 will be 44,300 feet, or about nine miles long. It will have draining into it two lateral ditches, each about two and a half miles long. The total amount of cubic yards of earth to be removed in the construction of the main ditch, and the two lateral ditches will be 150,485.9 cubic yards, which, at the estimate cost of 12 cents per cubic yard, will make the expense of excavation $18,058.31. The cost of the right-of-way and contingent expenses are estimated at $2,006.48, so that the total estimated cost of the ditch is $20,064.79.

Public ditch No. 54 will likely affect the following described lands: Sections 4 to 9, 16 to 30, 30 and 31, township 54-18. Sections 35 and 36, township 55-19. Sections 1, 2, 3, 10 to 16, 21 to 27, 34, 35 and 36, township 54-19. Sections 1 and 2, township 53-19, and section 6, township 53-18.

Public ditch No. 54 will be 34,200 feet long, and will have five lateral ditches, which will have respective lengths of 10,480 feet, 3,000 feet, 5,300 feet, 5,300 feet and 7,900 feet. The total excavation necessary will be 129,913.7 cubic yards, at an estimated cost of $15,587.64. The estimated cost of the right-of-way, and the contingent expenses are $1,732.18, making the total estimated cost of the ditch $17,321.82.

Public ditch No. 55 will likely affect the following lands: Sections 31, 32, 33, 34, 35 and the west half of section 36, township 53-21. Sections 1 to 18 inclusive, township 52-21. Sections 1, 12 and 13, township 52-22.

Public ditch No. 55 will be 6.8 miles long, and it will have draining into it four lateral ditches, three of which will be 8,000 feet long and the fourth 7,100 feet in length. The total amount of excavation necessary is estimated at 118,155.7 cubic yards and the estimated cost of excavating is $14,178.68. The estimated cost of the right-of-way and the contingent expenses are $1,575.41, making the total estimated cost of the ditch $15,754.09.

IRON ORE OWNERS WILL BE HEARD

By Board of Equalization Before Values Are Fixed.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The real estate committee of the state board of equalization held an executive meeting at the capitol yesterday to consider the situation of iron ore values. W. A. Hardenberg and T. J. Meighen were absent from the meeting. Mr. Hardenberg sticks to his contention that he will not serve with the committee so long as the insinuation against the committee that it is expected to lower ore property valuations, remains unexplained by the member originating it. The committee refused to tell the result of its deliberations. It is known, however, that they agreed to give the owners of iron ore property a hearing before the board next Tuesday. The reason for granting this hearing is found in an opinion which was given the committee by C. S. Jelly, special counsel of the department of the attorney general. Mr. Jelly ruled that the hearing given the owners of the iron ore property before the tax commission does not comply with the law, which says individuals to have their assessments raised must be given a hearing by the state reviewing authority. Mr. Jelley told the board that a special hearing is essential before the board can take legal action increasing the iron ore valuations over last year.

CARTER GETS FAT JOB.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Oberlin M. Carter, former captain in the engineer corps of the army, who has been making his home on the South side in this city and who served five years in prison for conspiracy to defraud the government in Savannh harbor work, has been employed by Henry M. Flager as consulting engineer for the Florida East Coast railway. It is said that Carter receives $15,000 a year.

Drinking Men Not Wanted

The above sign is now seen in many shops and offices in this city, because drinking men are unreliable.

Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep men on his payroll whose nerves are unsteady and whose brains are not clear.

Every line of business is beginning to close its doors to drinking men.

Drunkenness is a disease and like most diseases—has its remedy. Orrine is the reliable treatment, and is sold under a positive guarantee to effect a cure or your money will be refunded. Orrine is in two forms; No. 1 which can be used without the patient's knowledge in tea, coffee or food; and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured.

The guarantee applies to both forms. Mailed in plain sealed package on receipt of $1.00. Write for free booklet, mailed in plain sealed envelope. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., or F. W. Kugler, 108 West Superior street, Duluth.

PRESIDENT SAYS

the end of the course and then returned, plowing slowly upstream to effect a landing. As President Roosevelt stepped ashore he was welcomed by fifteen governors from various states, congressmen and city dignitaries.

The morning had dawned bright and clear, but by 9 o'clock clouds began to gather. Efforts were made to rush the program along because of the threatening weather. The line of procession was quickly formed for the drive to the Jai Alai building, in the western portion of the city, five miles from the river, where the president was to deliver his speech. A cordon of mounted police led the way, then a company of United States cavalry and the president's carriage, containing also Mayor Wells and three secret service men. Following came twenty-two carriages, bearing the visiting governors and other dignitaries, with a military band, and two companies of infantry from Jefferson barracks, bringing up the rear.

By the time the procession had proceeded eight blocks the skies opened, and the president and his welcoming host were instantly drenched. The horses were whipped up and, regardless of processional formation, the president was hurried to the Jai Alai building.

Notwithstanding that President Roosevelt was caught in the rain as he stood in the open carriage bowing to the multitude, he proceeded straight to the Jai Alai building and went through the program in his wet clothes.

Mayor Wells, whose raiment was also considerably dampened, introduced Governor Folk of Missouri, who, in turn made a brief speech presenting President Roosevelt. At the first mention of President Roosevelt's name ten thousand persons spontaneously sprang to their feet and began waving flags as they voiced their greeting by the full use of their lungs. The ovation continued for three minutes.

President Roosevelt stepped to the front of the platform and the moment he began to talk the cheering again began, but it was of brief duration.

With a broad smile the president waited a moment until quiet had been restored, and then began the delivery of the address.

President Roosevelt said we have lived in an era of phenomenal railroad building, and there has grown a tendency toward the practically complete abandonment of the system of water transportation—an unhealthy tendency and one which he is convinced will not be permanent. "The Great Lakes," he said, "offer a prime example of the importance of a good water highway for mercantile traffic. As the line of traffic runs through lakes, the conditions are in some respects different from what must obtain on even the most important river. Nevertheless, it is well to remember that a very large part of this traffic is conditioned upon an artificial waterway, a canal—the famous Soo. The commerce that passes through the Soo far surpasses in bulk and in value that of the Suez canal.

"From every standpoint it is desirable for the nation to join in improving the greatest system of river highways within its borders, a system second only in importance to the highway afforded by the Great Lakes; the highways of the Mississippi and its great tributaries, such as the Missouri and Ohio. This river system traverses too many states to render it possible to leave mercly to the states the task of fitting it for the greatest use of which it is capable.

> "It is emphatically a national task, for this great river system is itself one of our chief national assets.

"If the Mississippi is restored to its former place of importance as a highway of commerce, then the building of the Panama canal will be felt as an immediate advantage to the business of every city and country district in the Mississippi valley."

The president then told of the progress made in the construction of the Panama canal and followed with a plea for building and maintaining a great fighting navy.

He closed his speech with a discussion of national supervision and control of corporations. Referring to a recent paper by Judge Amidon of North Dakota, on the nation and constitution as "so admirable that it is deserving of very wide study," and "a contribution to constructive jurisprudence as it should be understood not only by judges but by legislators," the president said:

> "The constitution is unchanged and unchangeable save by amendment in due form. But the conditions to which it is to be applied have undergone a change which is almost a transformation, with the result that many subjects formerly under the control of the states have come under the control of the nation.

"The change as regards interstate commerce has been, not in the constitution, but in the business of the people to which it is to be applied. Our economic and social future depends in a very large part upon how the interstate commerce power of the nation is interpreted.

"I believe that the nation has the whole governmental power over interstate commerce and the widest discretion in dealing with that subject; of course under the express limits prescribed in the constitution for the exercise of all powers, such for instance as the condition that "due process of law" shall not be denied. The nation has no direct power over purely intrastate commerce, even where it is conducted by the same agencies which conduct interstate commerce. The courts must determine what is national and what is state commerce. The same reasoning which sustained the power of congress to incorporate the United States bank tends to sustain the power to incorporate an interstate railroad, or any other corporation conducting an interstate business.

"It is the nation alone which can with wisdom, justice and effectiveness exercise over these interstate railroads the thorough and complete supervision which should be exercised. The railroads themselves have been exceedingly shortsighted in the rancorous bitterness which they have shown against the resumption by the nation of this long-neglected power.

"The control must exist somewhere; and unless it is by thoroughgoing and radical law placed upon the statute books of the nation, it will be exercised in ever-increasing measure by the several states. There will, of course, be local matters affecting railroads which can best be dealt with by local authority, but as national commercial agents the big interstate railroad ought to be completely subject to national authority. Only thus can we secure their complete subjection to, and control by, a single sovereign, representing the whole people, and capable both of protecting the public and of seeing that the railroads neither inflict nor endure injustice.

"Personally I firmly believe that there should be national legislation to control all industrial corporations doing an interstate business, including the control of the output of their securities, but as to these the necessity for federal control is less urgent and immediate than is the case with the railroads."

THE LATEST NATURE STORY.

Tulsa, I. T., correspondent Detroit Free Press: The following story is not told by Rev. Long, Jack London, Mr. Roosevelt or others who have written nature studies, but by Dr. McConnell of Tulsa, who knows snakes and cats when he sees them.

Dr. McConnell was sitting on his porch when he saw a cat coming up the lawn dragging a rattlesnake about three feet long.

The cat had the snake by the nape of the neck, if it had such a thing, and apparently was experiencing no trouble in "toting" its load.

The feline carried his snakeship under the porch, and there for fifteen minutes she lovingly fondled it with her paws. Dr. McConnell called the members of Dr. Harrison's family to watch the performance.

Finally a disagreement arose and the serpent was seen to strike wickedly at the cat. Tabby liked this phase of the situation fully as well as the amorous stunts and fought back with zest.

The snake and the cat kept the duel up for probably five minutes, when the spectators thought it was time to interfere and the snake was killed.

The cat was bitten in a dozen places, but the bites had no effect other than to riffle her fur.

The snake had a number of deep scratches on its body. Fourteen rattles and a button were taken from its tail.

EXPERT INSURANCE MEN INVESTIGATING DULUTH

Will Determine Rates That Should be Charged Here.

Are Collecting All Available Statistics on Fire Risks.

A comprehensive and searching survey of the fire protection and fire risks of Duluth is being made by a corps of expert insurance inspectors sent here by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The corps is in charge of F. A. Raymond and consists of five men.

Mr. Raymond and his party arrived in Duluth quietly last Friday morning and ensconced themselves in a room in the Lyceum building. The furniture of the room consists of six kitchen tables, but these are already loaded with Duluth fire statistics. The office is the most businesslike looking bare room imaginable.

Mr. Raymond talked with the Evening Herald this afternoon. He said that the business of his squad is to collect all possible data regarding the fire protection and fire fighting facilities of Duluth, the condition of its water supply, its topographical and architectural conditions, and everything else which might lead up to a better understanding of conditions in a possible fire, how best to fight it, and what risks insurance men may undertake in underwriting it.

The board is not a governmental bureau as might be judged from its name, but is composed of representatives of 120 insurance companies and these companies distribute the expenses of the board, each company thereby securing at slight individual cost a wealth of valuable information. It is to the interests of property owners, city officials, insurance men and business men of all kinds to give the board every possible assistance as the facts obtained are the bases of the insurance rate of the city.

"The seriousness of the conflagration danger in American cities," said Mr. Raymond, "is realized by business men generally, and the reports of the National Board of Fire Underwriters have been received by municipal authorities and property owners with the highest commendation. It is earnestly hoped that it will be generally realized that the sole object of the National Board of Fire Underwriters is to place the facts before those interested, making such recommendations as may be wise, believing that the result will be beneficial to all concerned."

Mr. Raymond and his squad may not have desired to keep their visit secret, but they did so nevertheless, as even several prominent insurance men of Duluth did not know yesterday they were in the city.

CHALLENGE OF SWEDES

For the America's Cup Will be a National Affair.

Money for Enterprise to be Raised by Subscription.

Stockholm, Oct. 2.—Oesta Kilberger, the Swedish banker, who with William Olsen, a millionaire yachtsman, is about to challenge for a series for the America's cup, through the Royal Swedish Yacht club, of which King Oscar is honorary admiral, in an interview today, explained that the challenge may be regarded as a national subscription enterprise. The promoters would first require eight subscribers of 25,000 crowns (about $5,000) each, and then lists would be opened for small subscriptions, from one crown (about 25 cents) up. He said:

"When we find it impossible to get any more subscriptions, we guarantee to put up the rest of the capital required to build a yacht, which is estimated at 500,000 crowns (about $100,000) as a minimum. The other expenses probably will amount to 1,000,000 crowns ($200,000). The yacht will be ready in the spring or summer of 1908. It is intended that she shall be practiced in sailing on the Baltic during the remainder of the summer of that year, and she will be sailed all the summer of 1909 in American waters, so that her handlers may become familiar with strange American tides and currents. She will be built exclusively by Swedes.

"Prince Gustav, the crown prince; his eldest son, Prince Gustav Adolf and Prince Willem, who recently visited America, are members of the executive committee of the yacht club.

"Our chief motive in making an attempt to capture the cup is if we are successful, to get American yachtsmen to come to Sweden and try to win it back so as to create intimate relations between the two countries.

"King Oscar has been interested in the sport of yachting from his earliest youth and he is now interested.

"Our challenge has not yet been formally sent, but the New York Yacht club has been asked to furnish us with the regulations under which the races will be sailed and we have received a reply saying that the information required has been mailed. The promoters of the enterprise have determined to challenge under any circumstances."

SUPERIOR NEWS

TIRED OF MARRIAGE.

Sixteen-Year-Old Girl Leaves Husband After Three Months.

"I was only 15 years old when I married him last June and, acting on their suggestions, I foolishly said I was 19. I'm tired of married life and I'll never live with him again," said Mrs. Edward Olson, aged 16 years, a bride of but three months, as she occupied a cell in the central station yesterday. With Mrs. Olson was her sister-in-law aged 17.

The women were arrested on complaint of Olson, who said his wife and his sister, who had been living with them, were fond of staying out nights, and when he rebelled they left the house. They were rounded up in the Terminal block, where they had taken a room, and took their arrest very philosophically. Olson is a moulder at the steel plant.

HOLD LONG SESSION.

Questions of improvements to streets and viaducts occupied the attention of the aldermen last night at a session, which required the burning of the midnight electric light before it ended. The Third street and Banks avenue viaduct was the main point of contention, some of the aldermen expressing the belief that matters weren't moving swiftly enough. The street committee was prodded a little and another member added.

Alderman Morrissette attempted to have the mayor's veto overruled in regard to the paving of a strip of Fifth street, but failed, the council sustaining the mayor. The city attorney was instructed to take steps to prevent the railroads from filling in certain strips on the bay shore in the vicinity of Central park.

The park board reported that $4,388.61 had been spent on parks during the year, and asked that $7,500 be set aside for the purpose next year.

The matter of the revocation of the liquor license of A. F. Erdman was tabled on account of the absence of Detective Dill, the principal witness. Several other minor matters were disposed of before the council adjourned.

Flourishes a Knife.

Head and shoulders through a window, with a big knife in the hands of William O'Grady flourished before his eyes, was the experience of Officer McGowan yesterday at Grady's home, 523 Ogden avenue. Grady's wife had called for an officer, saying her husband was beating her. McGowan found all the doors locked and tried the window. He succeeded in getting into the house despite Grady's unfriendly manifestations with the knife, and secured his man. Grady pleaded for mercy when brought before the court, and was let off under suspended sentence.

Will Take Appeal.

At its meeting last night, the Superior council instructed the city attorney to take an appeal from the decision of Judge Vinje in the street railway franchise case, which was partly in favor of the city and partly of the street railway company. The city doesn't care to fight the case farther, if the street railway company doesn't, but in order that the city may be protected, the appeal will be taken, and if it be found that the company is willing to let the matter rest where it is, the appeal will probably be dismissed.

THE MARKET IS SAGGING

Greene-Cananea is Very Weak at the Close.

Although the copper stock market acted well in the face of bearish news at the opening, prices fell off during the latter part of the session and closed weaker.

At the very opening, prices were off on a big decline in London spot copper, but the shares quickly recovered and held fairly firm for a time. However, more bearish news caused a general selling movement and the market sagged.

A rumor was heard over Walter W. Carr's wire today that the Bridgeport Brass company had just bought a two months' supply of Lake copper at a shade less than 15 cents. Word also came from Calumet that the Tamarack mine had laid off many men and was curtailing the output considerably.

It is said that 1,000 men have been laid off at the Greene-Cananea company's properties, 450 at the Copper Queen at Bisbee and that the Shattuck-Arizona company has cut its output to 75 per cent of the normal production.

North Butte opened at $48, went to $49.50 during the first two hours, declined to $47.50 and closed weaker than yesterday at $47.50 bid and $48 asked. Amalgamated opened at $59.25, went to $60.50, declined to $58.50 and closed at $58.62½ bid.

Greene-Cananea was off, opening at $8.75 and declining to $8.37½. It closed at the low level, $8.37½ bid and $8.50 asked.

Butte Coalition opened at $15.75, went off to $15 and closed at $15 bid and $15.50 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $109, declined to $108.50, rallied to $110 and closed at $108 bid and $109 asked. Anaconda opened at $38.62½, went as high as $39.37½, declined to $38 and closed at $38.37½ bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $10, declined to $9.75 and closed at $9.75 bid $9.87½ asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $5.12½ and $5 and closed at $5 bid and $5.12½ asked; Globe Consolidated at $7.37½ and $7.50 and closed at $7.25 bid and $7.37½ asked; Carman at $2.75 and $2.50 and closed at $2.50 bid and $3 asked; Butte & Superior at $1.75 and closed at $1.62½ bid and $1.75 asked, and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1.06 and closed at $1 bid and $1.06 asked.

Keweenaw was inactive and closed at $5.50 bid and $6 asked (full paid), Hancock at $5.75 and $6 asked, Nipissing at $6.50 bid and $6.75 asked, Warren at $3.25 bid and $3.75 asked, Calumet & Sonora at $8.25 bid and $8.75 asked and Cliff at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Black Mountain advanced from $5.50 to $5.87½ and closed at $5.37½ bid and $5.50 asked.

GOVERNOR IS BETTER.

Executive Has Returned to St. Paul From Down-River Trip.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson returned unexpectedly today from Keokuk, Iowa, where he went to meet President Roosevelt and the governors of the Mississippi river valley states, who are taking part in the reception and the trip of the inland waterways commission. He returned home ill.

At Keokuk he was compelled to keep to his room and did not take part in any of the functions held in honor of President Roosevelt. Later in the day he occupied the private car of Secretary Loeb. Today Governor Johnson was reported as much improved.

Hard Times in Kansas.
The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by all drug stores 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

GUARDIAN FOR AGED WOMAN

Judge Middlecoff Given a Strange Commission.

Judge Middlecoff of the probate court has been commissioned by the government to appoint a guardian for Mrs. Marla E. Stickney, 98 years of age, an applicant for a pension through the death of her son, who died of wounds received in the Civil war.

The case is an exceptional one, because of the age of the applicant, and it was probable a guardian was never appointed in the United States for a person so old, under similar conditions. Mrs. Stickney's son, Frederick, died about four years ago of illness growing out of wounds received in the war, in which he served with his two brothers.

Mrs. Stickney lived in Corunna, Mich., for sixty years and for sixteen years before the death of her son, she did little but attend to his wants. Her father and brothers served in the war of 1812, the family then living near Albany, N. Y. The old woman is bright minded, but so feeble she could not sign her name properly to the application papers. She will draw $200 a year in the future, with some back pension due. She is living with her daughter, Mrs. Addie Folkertz.

THESE ARE QUEER BAITS.

No one except a fisherman or a fly dresser has the faintest conception of the enormous variety of materials used in the manufacture of flies, especially salmon flies.

Trout flies are made to resemble various real insects, but salmon flies have no likeness to anything that inhabits earth, air or water, and to this day no one knows why the king of fish is fool enough to snatch at the gaudy lures which are cast across the pools above his head, says London Answers.

Take such a well known salmon fly as the "Silver Doctor." The feathers of five different birds are used to build it—namely, those of the Indian crow, the bluejay, the phenasant, the turkey and the pintail duck; silver wire, yellow floss silk, skyblue hackle and scarlet wool are also necessary for the tying of this fly.

There is hardly any brilliantly plumaged bird known whose feathers are not in demand for fly-tying. Jungle fowl, blue shatterer, scarlet ibis, bustard, swan, macaw, peacock, mallard, Indian roller, teal, wood duck, grouse, eagle and florican are only a few of those whose feathers are stowed away in the drawers of any fishing tackle manufacturer. You will also find gold and silver wire, gold and silver tinsel, silk of every color under the sun, chenille of many different hues, worsted, mohair and fur of a number of different animals.

There is an artificial gray gnat used for trout fishing which is made partly of mouse whiskers, and is in consequence one of the most expensive trout flies which you can purchase.

Gaudy flies for salmon fishing are no new invention. Writing two and a half centuries ago, Richard Franck says: "Remember always to carry your dibbing bay about with you; wherein ought to be silk of all sorts, thread, thrumbs, moccado-ends and croudels of all sizes and varieties of color, diversified and stained wool, with dogs' and bears' hair, besides twisted fine threads of gold and silver; with feathers from—" And he goes on with a long list of birds of brilliant plumage.

But, even for the noble salmon, there are many other baits used besides the fly. The most deadly is, without doubt, salmon roe, the use of which is prohibited in almost every part of the civilized world. The "Gardener's Fancy," in other words, the common lob worm, is a first-class salmon bait, and so is a prawn boiled to a delicate pink hue. On most good rivers these baits are, of course, illegal.

Some believe in anointing their bait with various strong-smelling oils or unguents. The above-mentioned Richard Franck did so. He advocates putting the worms into a lignum vitae box which has first been anointed with "the chymical oil of bays, sulphur, Barbadoes tar, ivy, or cornu cervi!" Poor worms! One wonders how long they survived in such a horrible mixture.

Trout will take a very wide variety of bait. A grasshopper is most killing, and so is a bluebottle set on a small hook and used with a blow line.

The roach fisher knows the virtue of boiled wheat. The softened grains are taken with eagerness by these fish, while perch go vigorously for a clump of flour and water dough. A perch has been taken by an angler who had run short of bait with the eye of a previous capture stuck upon the point of a hook.

Thames fishermen will tell you the virtues of cheese paste as a bait for chub, and these rather shy fish can also be taken with a ripe cherry in which the hook is artfully concealed. Almost all fish have cannibal prapensities, so that the young of their own species prove an irresistible bait for the older and larger members. This is specially true of trout, and many an angler has known of cases where a small fish hooked has been seized before it could be brought to land by a larger one of the same variety.

ORIGIN OF THE COCKTAIL.

Washington correspondent New York World: It is quite possible that the vice president doesn't even know the origin of the cocktail and its name. It is probable that he never heard of the Montezuman Princess Octel. Not having been old enough to campaign with Gen. Scott in Mexico, he has no personal knowledge of the conversion of the beautiful name of the Aztec princess by the harsh tongues of the American invaders from Octel to cocktail.

The legend about the quarrel and subsequent reconciliation of the father of Octel and one of his powerful nobles is to him no more than the beauties of Omar Khayarl to the Digger Indian. What if Octel's father did bid her make peace with the offended noble by making for him a drink like the one she had made for herself. It is nothing to Charles Warren Fairbanks. The cocktail has never warmed him.

Even the suggestion that George Washington cut down the cherry tree because he was a member of a total abstinence society and wanted to shut off the supply of cherries for cocktails does not appeal to him. If the cocktail appears on his table when the president is his guest it is because the wicked caterer and the perfidious butler conspire to give the president what he likes.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

The Markets at Home and Abroad Are Higher.

Flax Has a Good Bulge in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 2.—Wheat had an advance in the American markets today. The opening prices were up and they kept advancing as the session progressed. Just before the close, there was a little reaction but nevertheless, the closing prices were above yesterday's level. Car receipts in the Northwest showed a decrease from last year. The foreign markets were higher. The foreigners were buying wheat here. Liverpool closed 1½d to 1¾d higher. The strength in Liverpool was due to unfavorable news from India and Australia.

The December option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth, ⅜@½c in Chicago, ¼@⅜c in Minneapolis and ⅝c in New York. The May option closed ½c higher in Duluth and Chicago, ⅜c in Minneapolis and ⅝c in New York.

December corn closed ⅞@1c higher in Chicago and was unchanged to ¼d higher in Liverpool. December oats closed a shade lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Firmness characterized the opening of the wheat market this morning, and values were ¼ to ½ higher. Offerings were extremely light and support good as a result of the firmness in American markets yesterday. Following the opening a slight reaction took place, prices easing ⅛d to ¼d on selling to realize. Later, however, renewed firmness developed and prices again advanced sharply, gaining an additional ⅝ from the opening. This strength was attributed to private reports from Australia of an unfavorable tenor, scarcity of Manitoba offerings, and aggressive support by bull interests. The undertone at midday was very firm.

"Corn was steady in tone with early values unchanged. Later the market advanced, the distant month gaining ¼. Offerings were light, affected in sympathy with the strength in wheat and on the scarcity of European offers."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Strong on Rains in Northwest and Advance in Liverpool.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The wheat market today opened strong, rains in the Northwest and an advance of 1d at Liverpool being the chief influences bearing upon values the latter being stronger. December opened ¼@⅜c to ½@⅝c higher at 98c to 98¼c and sold at 98⅝@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 750 cars against 578 cars last week and 831 cars one year ago.

The corn market was steady because of rains throughout the corn belt, which tended to weaken prices and the lack of demand which offset this influence. December corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 58¾c to 58⅞c and sold at 58⅛@⅜c. Local receipts were 474 cars with 170 of contract grade.

The oats market was lifeless and prices were steady. December oats opened ⅛c higher at 52½c and sold at 52c. Local receipts were 265 cars. The provisions market was weak because of a 10c decline of live hogs. January pork opened a shade to 2½@5c lower, at $15.17½ to $15.20 and sold off to $15.10. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $8.75 to $8.77½. Ribs were 2½@5c lower at $7.87½.

Chicago wheat letter:

One thing is certain, wheat traders had a rattling good market for the day. Bulls were absolutely in control during the morning and had considerable help from shorts. As has been the case a number of times recently, the dollar market brings out a flood of selling and appears to cause buyers to be more cautious. There was some wet weather over the spring wheat country. St. Louis reported millers taking off hedges in wheat market because of export sales of flour. Minneapolis claimed large export sales of flour. Through the bull leaders it was announced that export sales of wheat were as high as 86 boat loads, but the trade acted a little skeptical over the figures. With fine weather the spring crop is likely to move freely and hedging sales will make the load heavier for the speculator. We continue to advise that wheat should be bought only on the oversold spots and on a good swell it can safely be sold for a reaction.

Corn—There was wet weather in the map this morning and forecast is for showery weather, but on the whole weather promises better. This market was helped during the morning by the strength in wheat. Primary movements is running away over a million bushels a day. With good conditions for the crop there is likely to be a temporary weakness in this market and buyers should be careful to get in on an oversold spot.

Oats—There was a waiting trade in oats early. Later the market firmed a little with wheat and corn and before the close had a break for the same reason. Weather promises better for shipping sections.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter took an advance today, the Eastern markets ruling higher and an advance of from 1 to a cent and a half is noted locally.

Eggs are also higher an advance of 1 cent being quoted today and in all probability the prices will move on next week. Just at present enough country eggs are coming in to supply the demand, but it will not be long before storage eggs will be on the market.

Poultry prices are a little off and the market well supplied. A peculiar fact is that hens are bringing about as much as spring chickens, the quality of the latter being in excess of the demand and many people preferring a plump, well fed hen for baking to the springs. Meat prices are about the same as yesterday's close.

The following prices are quoted up to noon today, the list being supplied by the secretary of the exchange:

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Was Irregular and Close Was Dull and Easy.

Rise in Call Money Rate Prompted Selling of Stocks.

New York, Oct. 2.—There were sharp reactions at the opening in some stocks from the bulge in prices with which yesterday's market closed. St. Paul fell about 1½, Canadian Pacific 2⅞ and Northern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper ¾. Prices generally were lower in sympathy.

Wide and frequent fluctuations characterized the market, resulting from the heavy covering of the short interest and extensive realizing on rallies. At no time did the market sell lower than the opening and prices ruled well over yesterday's closing at intervals.

St. Paul made up its loss and the same was true of practically all the early weak features.

The market fell into neglect and prices were allowed to slip back on meager dealings. United States Realty, United States Rubber first preferred and Ontario Mining declined 1. Pacific Coast second preferred rose 1. Bonds were firm at noon.

The market was easier in tone, but recessions were small except in Northern Pacific, which fell a point.

Pressure against the metal group discouraged buying and the market sold off to the lowest of the day. Amalgamated Copper yielded 1½ to 63½ and Union Bag preferred 1.

The market closed dull and easy. The rise in the call money rate prompted selling of stocks which extended the decline in St. Paul to 2¼. Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific lost 1 and Westinghouse Electric 2. Chicago & Alton and Sugar rose 1.

Quotations furnished by Gay & Sturgis, brokers, 328 West Superior street:

Stock Gossip.

New York, to Vern R. Culbertson: Today's stock market at the start showed moderate declines followed by a fair recovery on further short covering. The advance was, however, only temporary and it was very evident that under prevailing conditions it is unwise to anticipate any steady upward movemena. The president's speech at St. Louis, which was not given so much consideration as that of yesterday, contained further declaration of his belief that thorough and complete federal supervision should be exercised over the railroads and until he has finally reached the cane brakes of Louisiana, and is isolated during the hours of business activity. We can look for nothing but a traders market with opportunities for fair returns in either direction. Confidence is not apt to be restored by these daily outbursts and we advise caution ,beln satisfied with small profits until conditions generally become more settled.

New York—Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was irregular today, trading being confined mostly to the operation of professionals, who are bearish inclined. The bear element, however, have apparently lost some of their old-time aggressiveness after having received several severe polts in the last few days. Call money was somewhat firmer, but it is thought that rates will soften after the Oct. 1st disbursements commence to flow into New York. The indications are that the market will continue irregular, but we are inclined to favor purchases on breaks.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 2.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 1 to 6 points in spite of steady cables and immediately following the call broke to a net loss of 10 to 11 points, under active liquidation and bearish pressure, which was promoted by the bearish interpretation of the census report, and the idea that bullish figures had been discounted. The census bureau reported that 1,330,535 bales had been ginned to September 25, exclusive of returns from ninety-five counties which ginned 199,432 bales on the same date last year, and local statisticians figured that these returns when received would make the total about 1,550,000 to 1,400,000 bales. The condition figures published at 11 o'clock reported an average of 67.7 per cent which was a little better than recently expected and a further sharp break occurred with prices about 27 to 29 points net lower, and a new low record for the season.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: After a fairly strong opening the whole list became very weak. Metal prices were lower and money was advanced. The traders offered stocks down, but were not able to bring out any long stocks. Still stocks seemed to come out all the time. We believe them a sale. Reports of a reduction in prices at Greene-Cananea, Copper Queen and other Arizona properties had a bad effect.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The Greene-Cananea Copper company has laid off 1,000 men at Cananea. The Copper Queen company has laid off 450 men in Arizona, and the Shattuck company in Arizona, has reduced its shipment 75 per cent.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The strike that was made in the East Butte at a distance of 180 feet north from the station on the 900-foot level, is the richest that has yet been made at the property. The cross-cut penetrated the vein which is nearly 60 feet wide and which assays 10 per cent copper. The company owns 700 feet on this vein. The development on the 900-foot level proves that a number of veins which were cut on the 300 and 400-foot levels have merged at the greater depth and have joined into a large and high grade ore body.

Condition of Cotton.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The agricultural department reports the cotton condition to Sept. 25 was 67.7 as against Aug. 25, 1907.

The census bureau reports 1,430,265 bales counting round as half bales, ginned from the growth of 1907, up to Sept. 25.

On Aug. 25, 1907, 71.6; on Sept. 25, 1906, 71.2; on Sept. 25, 1905, and a 10-year average of 67.5. This is in comparison with 1,189,423 bales for the same period last year. The report showed the number of active ginneries to be 2,177. Of the 700 counties, ninety-five were not heard from.

AN AWKWARD DODGE.

Milton D. Purdy of the United States department of justice said in Washington of a rumor brought to him for confirmation by a reporter:

"This rumor springs from ignorance, crass ignorance of the law. I am surprised that you should have credited it. The originator of that rumor is as plainly ignorant of the law as a certain school boy was of French. This boy's father said to him one night at dinner:

"'Well, how are you getting on with your French, my son?'

"'Very well, thank you, sir,' the lad replied.

"The father beamed with pleasure.

"'Ask politely in French for some peas,' he said.

"There was an awkward pause. Then——

"'But, father,' said the boy, 'I don't want any peas.'"

HERALD'S WEST DULUTH DEPT.

ROBBED IN HIS DREAM

Gust Dahlstrom Told Officers a Very Plausible Story.

But He Had All His Money and a Good Jag.

An occurrence, which has no foundation in fact, outside of the imaginative faculties of an intoxicated man, is the way the West Duluth police label a story of assault and robbery told by Gust Dahlstrom, who was sent to municipal court this morning to answer to a charge of drunkenness.

Dahlstrom's hallucination took plausible and almost convincing form. He was gathered in at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, very drunk and with blood on the front of his shirt. He persisted in telling the officers that he had been held up and robbed on the Proctor road between the power house and Proctor by three men.

Dahlstrom, who had come in from the Virginia & Rainy Lake road a few days ago, said he was drinking with three men at Proctor Monday evening. He said he started down the road and the three men followed him and offered him a drink. While he was drinking, he said, they struck him down and went through his pockets, taking about $35. He said one of them was named Anderson and the other two were Irishmen, whose names he didn't know. He went so far as to give a description of Anderson, with height, weight and details of clothing.

The police didn't doubt the story until they went through Dahlstrom's pockets and found some $32. He said the road agents took money besides that. He was locked up to sober up, and the police began an investigation.

It was found, the police say, that Dahlstrom didn't have any more than $35 altogether Monday evening, that the blood came through his being kicked out of three places after closing time at Proctor Monday night and that, therefore, the supposed robbery took place in the man's dreams. So Dahlstrom was shipped along to answer to the drunkenness charge. He is 36 years of age and married.

IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED.

West Duluth Curling Club Holds Semi-Annual Meeting.

The construction of an addition to rink, the securing of new members, the arranging of more competitions for trophies and the striving for a more prominent place in curling circles of the Northwest, are some of the matters discussed by the members of the West Duluth Curling club at a meeting held at the rink, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Bristol street, last evening.

The entrance to the rink will be changed from the north to the east side and the ticket office, check room and waiting rooms will be enlarged. Talk of an extension of the ice surface was dropped for the time being, but it may be taken up at a meeting to be held later.

M. J. Fillatrault, P. H. Martin, Henry Hewitt, Angus Macauley, J. Allyn Scott and P. H. Martin were chosen on a membership committee. The club now has about ninety members, but efforts will be made to boost it well over the 100 mark before the season opens.

W. B. Getchell, Louis Blechl and J. E. Foubister will take care of any offers of trophies for competition, which may be made to the club. The only offer accepted last year was that of the West Duluth Commercial club, which put up a trophy. Several other offers were made, but they were not given attention and they were allowed to slide. The club will be more active this year and series will be arranged for any trophies which may be offered.

The committee on the selection of skips of rinks for competition for the West Duluth Commercial club trophy reported that it had not completed its work, so more time was given. The enthusiasm shown last night and the large attendance at the meeting is a good indication of what may be expected this year, and it is believed the season will be by far the most successful in the club's experience.

TO ENTERTAIN LADIES.

Commercial Club to Keep Open House Friday Night.

The committee having charge of the arrangements for the entertainment of the ladies at the West Duluth Commercial club, Friday night, has about completed its work, and have prepared a program of entertainment for the members and their ladies which should reflect unbounded credit for hospitality on the organization.

Cards, music, singing and dancing are the means chosen for making time fly pleasantly along. The rooms will be wide open to members and their families. There will be no restrictions and no requirements. The members are all expected to be present and take part in the jollification, which will begin about 8 o'clock. Progressive pedro, with two first prizes and two consolation prizes, will be played by the majority of those present, and any not caring to take part will find other means of enjoyment.

Miss Alma Brotherton will preside at the piano, accompanying the singers and giving several selections. C. O. Appulehagen will sing, and the Misses Effie Brotherton and Eva Sawyer will give declamations. Rasmus Kreidler will do his turn by presiding at the punch bowl.

The members of the club are counting on making a big success of the social venture. The committee has left nothing to be done, but every member will be present to do his part by extending the glad hand of welcome to every visitor, and making certain that none go away without a full measure of enjoyment.

Funeral Sunday.

The funeral of Carl A. Ekholm, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ekholm, who died Monday night, will be held Sunday afternoon. Services will be held at his former home, 130 North Sixty-first avenue west, and interment will be in Oneota cemetery. The boy was about 7 years of age, and died after a month's illness.

KUROKI GIVES A LUNCH IN HONOR OF SECRETARY TAFT IN CITY OF KYOTO

Male Members of Party Then Visit Points of Interest.

Americans' Reception to the City is Very Enthusiastic.

Party Will Sail for Manila on Thursday Evening.

Kobe, Japan, Oct. 3.—Secretary Taft, Mrs. Taft and their party arrived at Kyoto at 7:30 this morning. With Gen. Edwards, Mr. Carpenter, the secretary to Mr. Taft, and Charlie Taft, they occupied a special car provided by the government. Mr. Taft was fatigued, but in good spirits. The approach of the train to Kyoto was signalled by salvos and aerial bombs.

Gen. Count Kuroki, the famous commander of the Japanese right army in Manchuria, met Mr. Taft on his arrival at Kyoto and invited the party to an informal luncheon, after which the male travelers visited many points of interest. Mrs. Taft, however, preferred to go shopping.

The train with the Taft party left Kyoto at 6:35 p. m. and will arrive at Kobe at 8:50 this evening. The party will be welcomed by the governor of Kobe and his staff and the officials of the United States consulate. The station and other buildings have been decorated in Mr. Taft's honor; there will be a display of fireworks when he arrives, and after being driven to the pier the party will be taken in special launches on board the steamer Minnesota. There the formal farewells will be exchanged and the vessel will sail for Nagasaki and Manila at 10 p. m.

At noon yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Taft, accompanied only by Brig. Gen. Edwards, chief of the bureau of consular affairs, and Frederick W. Carpenter, Mr. Taft's private secretary, drove in an imperial carriage, escorted by a troop of cavalry, to the emperor's palace with all the ceremony surrounding a royal reception.

Entering the audience room accompanied by Gen. Edwards, Mr. Taft was greeted pleasantly by his majesty, who invited the secretary to accompany him to an adjoining room, where they conferred in private with the aid of an interpreter, for ten minutes, after which they returned to the audience room. While the private audience was in progress, Mrs. Taft was received by the empress. Both their majesties showed great cordiality in their reception of the American visitors.

SEEKING NEW TRIAL IN KAUFMANN CASE.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arguments will be heard here next Tuesday by Judge E. G. Smith of Yankton, upon the motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. Emma Kaufmann, the wife of a wealthy brewer in this city, who was convicted at Flandreau three months ago of manslaughter in the first degree in connection with the death of her domestic.

FOOD FOR THE NAVY

Enormous Supply to be Provided for Battleship Fleet.

Bids for Six Million Pounds Opened by Supply Bureau.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Elaborate preparations are being made at the navy department for food supplies for the vessels of Admiral Evans' battleship fleet on its coming trip to the Pacific coast. Soon after the determination was reached to dispatch the fleet on its long cruise, the bureau of supplies and accounts began preparing advertisements asking for bids for furnishing the necessary food supplies, and these were accompanied by detailed schedules, indicating just what was wanted. These schedules were sent to large dealers throughout the country, and their proposals for furnishing the supplies needed were opened at the bureau today. The amount asked for approximate 6,000,000 pounds, made up perhaps, of two dozen different kinds of articles of foods, besides quantities of fruit extracts, eggs and table delicacies, are to be delivered at the Brooklyn navy yard. The items for which proposals were asked included the following:

Twenty thousand pounds of prunes, 475,000 pounds of tinned peaches, 50,000 pounds of tinned pears, 225,000 pounds of tinned apricots, 20,000 pounds of evaporated apples, a similar amount of evaporated peaches, 15,000 pounds of pickles, 10,000 gallons of vinegar, 25,000 pounds of evaporated milk, 5,000

GLADYS HAS $10,000,000

Engagement of Vanderbilt Heiress Formally Announced.

She Will Marry Count Laszelo Szechenyi This Fall.

New York, Oct. 3.—Formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt to Count Laszelo Szechenyi of Budapest, is made in the Herald today. The Herald states that the announcement is authorized. No date has been set for the wedding, but it is expected that it will take place at The Breakers, the Vanderbilt mansion in Newport, some time this autumn. The count, who is the youngest son of the late Count Emerich Szechenyi, for some years ambassador from Austria-Hungary to Germany, is now in Newport, having arrived from Europe on Tuesday night. He is 28 years old, rich and good looking, has an hereditary seat in the Hungarian parliament and is one of the chamberlains of the Austrian emperor.

Announcement of the engagement will be received with great interest, both here and in Europe, owing to the prominence of both families. Miss Vanderbilt inherited from her father, the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, a fortune of more than $10,000,000. She came into possession of this inheritance on attaining her majority last August.

Miss Vanderbilt is the youngest child of the late Cornelius and Mrs. Vanderbilt and was introduced to New York society three years ago. Since her debut she has spent considerable time each year in Europe with her mother. They went abroad the last time following a trip to California in April last. They returned to New York Sept. 25, going immediately to Newport.

Miss Vanderbilt is very popular in society. She is accomplished in music and has studied singing in Paris with Jean De Reszke.

WOMEN'S CLUBS TO GET BUSY

For Betterment of the Sanitary Conditions of Markets.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—An extensive campaign for improvement of the milk supply and betterment of sanitary conditions in markets and provision stores is to be carried on throughout the United States this winter by club women in the various cities and towns.

In some individual cases the fight was inaugurated a year ago by a few of the clubs and state federations; this year the General Federation of Women's clubs has taken up the campaign, and through its pure food committee, headed by Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, of Columbia, Mo., will prosecute it vigorously.

Each club affiliated with the general federation will be asked to start a campaign of its own. Health officers, milk inspectors and food inspectors will be appealed to and, if necessary, jolted by legal prosecution.

"White lists," a modified form of boycott, will be made out in each city and town, and club women will patronize only those grocers and butchers who keep their floors and counters clean, their employes immaculate, and their goods screened from flies and dust.

A general appeal on the subject to the club women of the country will appear in the October number of the Federation Bulletin, the official organ of the federation which will be published this week.

MRS. BATONYI BRINGS SUIT

Society Woman Has Summons Served on Her Horseman Husband.

New York, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Aurel Batonyi, formerly Mrs. Burke-Roche, has begun a suit against her husband for divorce. The summons in this and two other suits in the supreme court were served upon him at the Hotel Empire, Monday night, and his lawyer, Edward A. Alexander, will enter an appearance immediately.

Until this is done it will not be known whether the suit for divorce is for an absolute or limited separation, or upon what grounds the other suits are based.

At the time she married the horseman there was a quarrel with her father, and he bitterly reproached her for marrying a man whom he considered so much beneath her in the social scale.

STANDARD HAS MONOPOLY IN THE LUBRICATING OIL SUPPLIED TO RAILROADS

Charges an Excessive Price Therefor and Discriminates.

Attorney Kellogg Believes This Contention Has Been Proven.

Dealings Made Through a Subsidiary Company, the Galena.

New York, Oct. 3.—When the hearing of the federal suit for the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was resumed today, evidence was adduced, which Frank B. Kellogg, conducting the government's case, said he believes proves the contention of the government that the oil combine, through its subsidiaries, the Galena Signal Oil company, and the Waters-Pierce Oil company, have a monopoly of the railroad lubricating oil business and that it not only charges an excessive price, but that it discriminates against certain railroads in the prices charged for its product. The Standard manufactures engine, valve, car and coach oil and Mr. Kellogg said he would show that it controlled 97 per cent of the business.

C. N. Steinbrenner, auditor of the railway department of the Galena Signal Oil company, was the first witness called today. He said that the only companies which he knew sold lubricating oils to railroads were the Galena Signal Oil company and the Waters-Pierce company.

The Waters-Pierce company, he testified, obtains its oil from the Galena Signal Oil company which, in turn, secures its supply from the Standard Oil company at the same price as it is sold to the railroads. The Galena Signal Oil company gets no refund.

Mr. Kellogg then read a letter from Charles Miller, president of the Galena Signal Oil company written on Feb. 23, 1905, to D. D. Marony, vice president of the Pittsburg, Shawmmut & Northern railroad, in which Mr. Miller stated that the Galena Signal Oil company was supplying 97½ per cent of the total railway mileage of the United States, Canada and Mexico with lubricating oil.

REV. JAMES M. KING HAS PASSED AWAY

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The Rev. James M. King, LL.D., executive head of the board of home missions and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, and known throughout the world of Methodism, died at his home here today.

James Marcus King was born at Girard, Pa., in 1839, and was a graduate of Wesleyan university. He was professor of natural science at the Collegiate institute at Fort Edward, N. Y., for six years. He joined the Troy conference in 1868 and was pastor of the Fifth avenue church in that city for three years. He was pastor of the First church at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., for three years and was transferred to the New York conference in 1873. After that he was successively pastor of St. Johns, Washington square, St. James, Eighteenth street, Park avenue, St. Andrews and Union M. E. churches, New York city. He has been corresponding secretary of the M. E. Building church extension since 1899.

FOUR HANG TOGETHER

Italians Pay Death Penalty for Murder of Countryman.

March to Scaffold Together and Die of Strangulation.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 3.—Four Italians were hanged at one time in the yard of the Lancaster county jail here today. They were Anthony Delero, Stephen Carlui, Sivero Rodelli and Joseph Celione, and the crime for which they paid the death penalty was the murder of a fellow countryman, Plato Albamese, who was killed for offering resistance when the four attempted to rob him. The four men were taken from their cells and marched to the scaffold in a body, each one supported by a priest. They presented a firm front, except Carlui, who wavered several times, but braced up on the scaffold. All died from strangulation. On the scaffold Delero, whose right name is Delorenzo, made a statement in which the other three joined. He denied that they went into the shack to commit a robbery and said Albamese attacked him with a razor, and that in self-defense he shot his assailant; that he called for assistance and that Celione responded and also in self-defense stabbed Albamese a number of times.

A BAD SMASHUP AT MINNEAPOLIS

Engines and Cars Collide and Two Men Are Injured.

Minneapolis, Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two men, an engineer and a fireman, were severely injured in a wreck in North Minneapolis at 4 a. m., today, involving three Minneapolis & St. Louis engines and a string of freight cars and a Minneapolis Railway Transfer company engine with freight cars.

C. Faruer, engineer, 2413 Tenth avenue south, Minneapolis, and Oscar Swanson, fireman, 3316 Eighteenth avenue south, Minneapolis, injured, were on Minneapolis & St. Louis engine No. 20. Both are expected to recover.

The transfer company engine and two cars and M. & St. L. engines Nos. 20 and 98 were standing on the main track at Laurel and Colfax avenues north, waiting for engine No. 20 with its train of cars to pass on an intersecting track.

As the latter engine reached the crossing it jumped the track and crashed into engine No. 20. No. 20 was hurled back onto the two other engines and the cars behind.

EXTRA!

BOTH LEADERS WIN THE GAMES

Detroit Wins Again From Washington by 9 to 3.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—Philadelphia has not given up hope. Passed by Detroit and with only a long chance remaining for them to take down the pennant, the Athletics have taken up the fight anew and in desperation will work for victory until defeat is certain, or until victory comes. With the Cleveland series out of the way, only the games with Washington remain to be played. The supporters of the Athletics are counting on a clean sweep there and if kind fortune will be with them and misfortune attend Detroit for a few days, the flag may yet come to Philadelphia.

Dygert, who defeated Cleveland Tuesday, was again sent against Lajoie's crowd today, with Walter Clarkson opposing. Both failed to score in the first two innings and the game had every appearance of being a great pitching duel.

In the third inning, the Athletics fell on Clarkson for two runs, but neither was able to score in the fourth.

Neither Cleveland nor Philadelphia could do anything in the fifth, but in the sixth, the Athletics gathered a brace of runs on good hitting. Both failed to count in the seventh, the inning ending with the score: Philadelphia, 4; Cleveland, 0.

In the eighth inning, there were no scores and Cleveland was unable to do anything in its part of the ninth, the game ending with the score 4 to 0 in favor of the Athletics. Score:

Batteries—Clarkson and Clark; Dygert and Schreck. Umpires—O'Loughlin and Connolly.

DETROIT WINS AGAIN.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The race for the flag in the American league has come to a stage where Detroit has only to hold its own to win. With a lead of .016 on Philadelphia, only a straight line of successes for the Athletics and a corresponding amount of misfortune for the Tigers would take the pennant from the grasp of the Michigan men. In Washington, it cannot be seen how Detroit can lose the pennant. St. Louis, the only team the Tigers have yet to play, is admittedly strong, but Detroit is far stronger, and if the men hold out without injury for the remainder of the week, the flag must certainly go to the Wolverines.

The Tigers have been going at a fearful pace. In the games yesterday, they showed championship class and it is believed here the American league has no stronger organization to send against the Chicago Cubs than that under Jennings' management.

Detroit and Washington played their last game of the series and the season today. Donovan, the strongest thrower of the Wolverines, was sent in to oppose Gehring, the Des Moines recruit, who has been pitching phenomenal ball for Washington. Neither side scored in the first inning, but in the second, Detroit put one man across the plate.

There were no scores in the third or fourth innings, but in the fifth and sixth, the heavy hitters of the Tiger crowd broke loose, driving in three in the fifth and three more in the sixth. In the seventh, Washington made two to Detroit's one, making the score: Detroit, 8; Washington, 2.

SLUM WORKER WEDS NEGRO.

Charles City, Iowa, Oct. 3.—Local society and church circles were dumfounded when the secret marriage of Mrs. Louisa Fairbanks, white, to Walter Roger Hamilton, a negro, leaked out. Mrs. Fairbanks is a prominent member of the Baptist church and had led a band of slum workers. It was while holding a prayer meeting in the slums that she met her negro affinity. Hamilton has been working in a street gang. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. D. Robertson, pastor of a negro Baptist church.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION

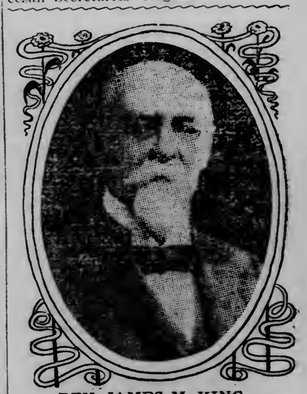

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3.—The actual business sessions of the various divisions and branches of the triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States was begun today when all of the bodies received reports of committees and the presiding officers assigned work to the committees. This business was entirely of a routine character.

In the house of deputies a beautiful tribute was paid to Archbishop Nuttall of the West Indies, who appeared before the house by special invitation during the morning session. He was escorted to the platform and was greeted with resounding cheers from the floor and galleries of St. Paul's church. Dr. Randolph H. McKim, president of the house of deputies, feelingly thanked the archbishop for his visit to the convention and the archbishop responded briefly, complimenting the American church on the progress it has made. He left Richmond today.

Another interesting service took place at Holy Trinity church, when the Woman's auxiliary held its triennial thank offering. The sermon was preached by Bishop Gibson of the diocese of Virginia. The united thank offering amounted to more than $100,000.

The daily morning prayer which each day will open the day's proceedings in the various branches, is a union service and was held today at 9 o'clock at St. James' church. The attendance was so great that many were turned away. The business session began at 10 o'clock in both houses. Presiding Bishop Tuttle immediately laid before the house of bishops a statement of his official acts during the recess of the general convention. An overflow meeting of the Woman's auxillary was held at 11 o'clock at All Saints' church, where a sermon was preached by Bishop Randolph of the diocese of Southern Virginia.

Meetings will be held tonight by the Daughters of the King and the Diocesan Secretaries' league.

THE PRESIDENT TELLS THE PESSIMISTS TO CHEER UP

He Believes That the Present Policy of the Government Will Bring About Permanent Prosperity.

Executive Reaches Cairo After a Night's Trip on the Mississippi and is Warmly Welcomed.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 3.—When President Roosevelt stepped ashore here at 9 o'clock today, he manifested every evidence of having spent a comfortable night on the steamboat Mississippi, and his spoken word confirmed the impression made by his appearance. He retired about midnight last night and there was little to disturb his rest, except two or three demonstrations on the shore which, though violent while they lasted, were necessarily of brief duration.

Quiet as was the after half of the night for the country's chief magistrate, the first portion of it was fully occupied. He was the guest at dinner on the steamer Alton of the Business Men's league of St. Louis and with the entertainment and the speechmaking and conversation that followed the dinner, his time until almost 12 o'clock was fully taken up. The dinner was regarded by all as an event of rare occurrence, and when the president had said his final farewell, not a few were heard to remark that it would become historic. The important feature was the fact that the scheme of a ship channel from the gulf to the lakes received an impetus which all believe will do much towards insuring the earnest pressing of that enterprise. The occasion was also notable that in addition to the president it was attended by no fewer than fifteen governors, the members of the Inland Waterways commission and several representatives of the business world of St. Louis.

The governors attending were: Comer of Alabama, Broward of Florida, Deneen of Illinois, Cummins of Iowa, Hoch of Kansas, Blanchard of Louisiana, Folk of Missouri, Sheldon of Nebraska, Curry of New Mexico, Burke of North Dakota, Frantz of Oklahoma, Chamberlain of Oregon, Crawford of South Dakota, Davidson of Wisconsin, and Brooks of Wyoming, and Governor-elect Noel of Mississippi. The dinner was presided over by President Smith of the Business Men's league, and President Roosevelt was the principal speaker. He requested that his speech be not reported, but consented that the statement might be made that he had announced unequivocally his endorsement of the general principle involved in the scheme for the creation of a ship channel up the river and to the Great Lakes. As he stated the case, he would have a loop in the gulf at New Orleans, that would practically create an arm of that body of water to the lakes. At the same time he was most careful to say that he would not give his assent to any particular scheme of improvement. He also pointed out many of the obstacles of carrying into effect any plan of such vast proportions, and involving so much expense, and while promising all the assistance he could give, he told his hearers that the only way to make success certain was so thoroughly to prepare themselves as to render their arguments unanswerable.

The speech was greeted with prolonged applause, and this endorsement took the shape of words, when Governors Folk, Deneen and Blanchard spoke, all of them pledging their utmost efforts in furtherance of the enterprise. While the dinner was in progress the president was presented with an oil painting of a section of the Mississippi river under present conditions, and the companion piece to represent "Conditions after the completion of the waterway," was promised for the future.

During the night there were pronounced demonstrations as the presi-

TWO DAMAGE CASES ON TRIAL

Two personal injury cases are occupying the attention of juries in the district court today. In Judge Cant's room the case of Mainella against the street railway company is being heard and in Judge Ensign's room the case of Maki against the Cleveland-Cliffs company was started for trial this morning. In the former case Mainella, who was driving along the Woodland car tracks last winter, ran onto a snowbank and tipped over against a street car. He wants $2,025 damages for the spill.

The appeal of the Wisconsin Central Railway company from the award of the appraisers in the condemnation proceedings to acquire a right of way across Elliott & Co.'s grounds in Oneota, is being heard by a jury in Judge Dibell's room.

The railway company seeks to condemn a strip of land 104 by 290, but objects to paying the amount the appraisers decided the owners are entitled to receive.

PLEA OF INSANITY

Is Expected to be Raised by Female Kidnaper.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—Special to The Herald.)—The trial of Ann Ostroki armurzek, who on May 23 last kidnaped the baby in the Plaque family of this city, and took it to Duluth began yesterday in the Hennepin county district court. It is understood that insanity will be the plea for the strange action of Mrs. Jarmurzek in running away with the baby in the family, where she had been taken in off the street and given a home and employment.

As the weather continued to improve later it was expected the other members of the crew would soon be taken off.

ENGINES CAPTIVE.

Ten Are Imprisoned in Roundhouse Because of Turntable Wreck.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Men have been dispatched from here by the Great Northern to Glasgow, Mont., where two engines are fast in the turntable pit and ten engines are held captive in the roundhouse.

It is alleged striking boilermakers had something to do with the accident and a reward is offered for any information connecting them with the accident.

There was an engine on the table at the time and another one was ready to be sent forward. In some way the lever was pulled and the big engine went thundering toward the turntable pit, and crashing into the one on the table, carried it into the pit also. Engineers were sent to Glasgow to lay out a Y so that the engines could be run out of the roundhouse and used.

Lapels

mean much this season. The coat is given character if the lapel is right. But skillful tailoring, such as is employed in Oak Hall Hand-Made, is necessary.

—Lapels may be pointed, peaked or rounded—but they must be broad and deep, if fashion is to be followed.

—The lapels on Oak Hall Hand-made coats give the wearer a distinguished air—make him look well dressed. Yet the man who wears them is economically dressed, because our larger business permits selling on closer margins and therefore lower prices.

—Oak Hall Hand-Made Suits, $15 to $35. Topcoats and Overcoats, $15 to $60. With the greatest variety in Duluth at every price.

TWO DAMAGE CASES ON TRIAL

Two personal injury cases are occupying the attention of juries in the district court today. In Judge Cant's room the case of Mainella against the street railway company is being heard and in Judge Ensign's room the case of Maki against the Cleveland-Cliffs company was started for trial this morning. In the former case Mainella, who was driving along the Woodland car tracks last winter, ran onto a snowbank and tipped over against a street car. He wants $2,025 damages for the spill.

The appeal of the Wisconsin Central Railway company from the award of the appraisers in the condemnation proceedings to acquire a right of way across Elliott & Co.'s grounds in Oneota, is being heard by a jury in Judge Dibell's room.

The railway company seeks to condemn a strip of land 104 by 200, but objects to paying the amount the appraisers decided the owners are entitled to receive.

ASKS FINE OF $3,000,000 FOR TELEPHONE TRUST.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 3.—Alleging 600 offenses in violation of the anti-trust laws of the state, District Attorney H. B. Means has entered suits against the Southern Telephone & Telegraph company and the Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone company, asking that penalties aggregating $3,000,000 be assessed. PLEA OF INSANITY

Is Expected to be Raised by Female Kidnaper.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—Special to The Herald.)—The trial of Ann Ostrokl armurzek, who on May 23 last kidnaped the baby in the Plaque family of this city, and took it to Duluth began yesterday in the Hennepin county district court. It was thought by many that the girl would forfeit her bail and fail to show up when her case was called. On the contrary she was on hand, neatly dressed and much interested in her case. In the work of selecting jurymen she frequently consults Attorney Alex McCune.

It is understood that insanity will be the plea for the strange action of Mrs. Jarmurzek in running away with the baby in the family, where she had been taken in off the street and given a home and employment.

THREE RESCUED,

But Twenty-Two Men Are Still on Wrecked French Ship.

Kilrush, Ireland, Oct. 3.—Three of the crew of twenty-five of the French ship Leon XIII, which went on the rocks near Seafield, County Clare, yesterday, were rescued today. The remainder were gathered in the bow, the only place where they could get any shelter from the waves.

Although the vessel was only about 250 yards in a direct line from the mainland, a rocky barrier between the ship and the shore prevented the life boats from getting into communication with her.

As the weather continued to improve later it was expected the other members of the crew would soon be taken off.

ENGINES CAPTIVE.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Men have been dispatched from here by the Great Northern to Glasgow, Mont., where two engines are fast in the turntable pit and ten engines are held captive in the roundhouse.

It is alleged striking boilermakers had something to do with the accident and a reward is offered for any information connecting them with the accident.

There was an engine on the table at the time and another one was ready to be sent forward. In some way the lever was pulled and the big engine went thundering toward the turntable pit and crashing into the one on the table, carried it into the pit also. Engineers were sent to Glasgow to lay out a Y so that the engines could be run out of the roundhouse and used.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

CATARRHAL ASTHMA

Very Common in October. A Case in Which Pe-ru-na was Used With Gratifying Success.

Mrs. Samuel Shipman, East Delaware, O.

"We Have Used Pe-ru-na in Our Home for Years. My Aged Father Used it for Asthma and I Took it for Catarrh. I Can Recommend it Highly to all for These Diseases."

—Mrs. Samuel Shipman.

THERE is a ferm of asthma very prevalent during the autumn months. It sometimes comes on much like hay fever, but lasts until the first frost. This form of asthma is likely not to trouble the patient except in the autumn months.

It seems to be dependent upon a catarrhal condition of the bronchial tubes and lungs.

This catarrhal condition renders the bronchial tubes very susceptible to irritations. Inhalations of pollen, or dust of any sort, are almost sure to produce a spasmodic condition of the smaller bronchial tubes, which causes difficult breathing exactly like asthma.

A person with perfectly sound, healthy mucous membranes of the respiratory organs is not liable to such an attack. Only these people who have catarrhal irritation of the mucous membranes have any reason to fear this form of asthma.

People subject to asthma in the fall should recognize the cause of their difficulty to be catarrh.

Any remedy that will relieve the catarrhal condition will ofen avert the paroxysm of asthma.

Quite a number of individuals have taken Peruna for this condition, and have found by experience that Peruna does prevent the recurrence of asthma.

We do not recommend Peruna as a remedy for true asthma. Peruna relieves only those cases dependent upon catarrh, as above described.

Peruna is a remedy for one disease only, and that disease is catarrh. But, as is well known to the up-to-date physician, catarrh is capable of producing a variety of derangements, and this explains why it is Peruna has come to be used for so many seemingly different ills.

Any remedy that relieves catarrh will necessarily relieve all of the bodily derangements set up by catarrh.

Asthma in Worst Form.

Mrs. W. M. Harp, Ridge Ave., Troy, Ohio, writes:

"I am going to write to let you know what Peruna has done for me and also to let others know.

"I was subject to asthma in its worst form some four years ago. The least cold I took would make me sick and I would cough and almost smother.

"My mother insisted that I should take Peruna, so I took it with rock candy added.

"When I began taking Peruna I was so run down I only weighed 128 pounds, but in one year's time I gained flesh until I weighed 153 pounds.

"Now, when I or any of my little ones need a tonice, we always take Peruna, and it never fails to do all I wish it to.

"I have often wanted to write you a word of praise for Peruna, but have never taken the time before. I hope Dr. Hartman may prosper and live long."

Pe-ru-na in Tablet Form.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with succeess. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

NEW SOLID VESTIBULED TRAIN FOR DULUTH, RAINY LAKE & WINNIPEG ROAD, STANDING IN YARDS AT DULUTH.

BUSINESS FALLING OFF

Passenger Traffic Showing Decline After Very Busy Summer.

Heavy Freight Movement Will Soon Take Its Place.

From the railroad passenger offices of Duluth comes the plaint that the passenger business is falling off. This is inevitable at this time of the year. Those who spent the summer and some money away from Duluth have returned, those who have passed through Duluth or from summer resorts have reached home again and the sales of tickets are decreasing.

To compensate for the falling off in passenger business, will soon come an increase in freights, but the season for this is hardly here as yet. The big steamship lines are still handling their usual quota of the coarse freights, but their day is coming soon and then the railroads will have the business again for the winter. But in the interim things are just a trifle quiet in railroad circles, both as to passenger and freight business.

GOOD PROGRESS.

Wisconsin Central Work Going Ahead Satisfactorily.

Work on the Wisconsin Central extention into Duluth is progressing steadily, not rapidly, but in a manner to indicate the work will be completed well within the time allotted to it. Chief Engineer Reed said yesterday morning that the progress of the contractors is very satisfactory.

New work which is shortly to be undertaken in connection with this enterprise is the covering for the gas and water mains at Twelfth and Eighth avenues on Michigan street. It is necessary to establish at these points safeguards for the gas and water mains which the tunnel may intersect. The material for this work has arrived and the actual work of installation will begin not later than the beginning of next week. The work on the tunnel is going ahead with satisfactory rapidity and in fact, all along the line from Eighth avenue to West Duluth the contractors are active.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Stockholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, at their annual meeting yesterday, authorized the issue of 4 per cent debenture stock sufficient to finance several additions and extensions to the road. Two additional steamships will be built, or acquired, either for the Pacific or Atlantic service, and two for the lake service. Sir William Van Horne was re-elected chairman of the board of directors, and Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy president.

The reports of the board of directors was unanimously adopted. Sir William C. Van Horne, E. B. Osler, R. B. Angus and L. J. Forget were re-elected directors.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the lease of the St. Mary's & Western Ontario railway.

If it is found impossible to acquire two larger and faster boats for the Atlantic service, they will be built and the Empress of Britain and Empress of Ireland will be transferred to the Pacific service.

The annual report shows an increase in gross revenue from traffic of more than $11,000,000 for the year, but also an increased ratio of working expenses.

At the meeting of the board of directors subsequently held, Sir William C. Van Horne was re-elected chairman of the board, Sir Thomas S. Shaughnessy, president and David McNicholl, vnce president, and the executive committee was appointed, as follows: Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Sir Thomas S. Shaughnessy, Sir William C. Van Horne, Richard B. Angus, Edmund B. Osler and David McNicholl.

EIGHT NEW MEMBERS

Represent "Clover Leaf" on the Alton Board.

New York, Oct. 3.—The directors of the Chicago & Alton, at a meeting in this city yesterday, named eight new members to represent the interest of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western Railway company, known as the "Clover Leaf," which company recently purchased the Chicago & Alton. The directors are: Edwin Hawley, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, Theodore Shonts, George A. Rosa, Joy Morton, S. H. Davis, William G. Beale and H. P. Huntington. The Rock Island directors, who heretofore have been on the board of the Chicago & Alton, resigned in favor of the new interests.

Those elected today, with Herbert B. Beam, S. M. Felton of Chicago, formerly president of the Chicago & Alton, and J. J. Mitchell of Chicago of the old board of the Chicago & Alton, compose the new directorate.

The new board organized and elected officers as follows: President, S. M. Felton; vice president, Edwin Hawley; chairman of the board, Gen. Thomas H. H. MAY NEVER BE SOLVED

Mystery Surrounding Patterson Murder Case Deeper Than Ever.

Mandy Jackson Released and Given $50 Witness Fees.

Who killed Eva Patterson?

The mystery surrounding the murder of the colored woman at the lodging house on Fifth avenue west last July will probably never be solved.

The district court jury says John Johnson did not commit the act, and Mandy Jackson, the only other suspect, has been released, as there is no evidence to show that she had any connection with the case.

These two were the only persons against whom the police had any suspicion. They worked up a strong case of circumstantial evidence against Johnson, but the jury found him not guilty, and the murderer, whoever he is, will probably never be brought to justice unless some entirely unexpected clues develop.

No indictment was returned against Mandy Jackson in connection with the case, the police having no clue on which they might pin a tangible suspicion.

As the case now stands she declared Johnson admitted that he killed Mrs. Patterson, while Johnson claims that Mandy swore to a falsehood. One swore as positively as the other. Mandy claimed Johnson might have shot Mrs. Patterson because he could not win her affections and did not want anybody else in her good graces. Johnson maintains that he had no motive to kill Mrs. Patterson, but that Mandy Jackson was intensely jealous of her and had a motive. So far as known, Mandy was the last person to see Mrs. Patterson alive and that was, according to her story, about 9 o'clock of the night of the murder.

Mandy shook the dust of the county bastile from her feet this morning and is again free to go where she pleases. In view of the fact that she has been held in jail as a witness ever since July 19, she was entitled to witness fees and Judge Dibell this morning decided that $50 would just about fix her account. This does not take into consideration the fact that Mandy had her board and lodging at the county's expense for the two and a half months.

Judge Martin, who defended Johnson and secured Johnson's acquittal, was allowed $35 as his fee, the state paying the customary amount where an attorney is appointed by the court to conduct the defense of a person who is accused and claims to be without funds.

IS REAL HERO.

Actor Kent Reprimands Fresh Drunk and Gets Press Boost.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was an extra performance at a hotel late Monday night in which Sarah Leigh, of the Raffles company, who plays the part of Mrs. Vidal, was the heroine, S. Miller Kent, Raffles, was the hero, and a Fargo man was the low-browed, black-hearted villain. Miss Leigh had pressed the electric button for ice water and when she heard a rap on the door supposed it was the bellboy bringing the water. She was surprised when the intoxicated traveler forced his way into her room and insisted on remaining there despite her protests. She finally succeeded in getting him out of the room and told Kent of the affair. Kent was furious and lost no time in telling the traveler what he thought of him. The Fargo man took the merciless calling down without a word and Kent was restrained from beating him by a crowd which had gathered.

STOCKHOLDERS WERE DUPED

Independent Telephone Securities Caused Them Heavy Losses.

The Rochester (N. Y.) Times of Dec. 10, 1906, stated:

"The United States Independent stocks and bonds were first offered on the Rochester stock exchange Dec. 11, 1905, and the day closed with the stock offering at 50¼ and 50 bid. Last Wednesday, only a few days less than a year from the first sale, the United States Independent stock was sold on the exchange at 4. The so-called 'bonds' of the United States Independent started on Dec. 11 last at 80 bid and offered at 82; Wednesday they were 23."

On Dec. 12, 1906, the same paper stated:

"A lawsuit involving the methods by which control of the Rochester Telephone company was secured by the holding company, known as the United States Independent Telephone company, will be tried in the next term of the supreme court, convening in January. Just how much of the mystery surrounding the supposedly legitimate birth of this financial waif (the United States Independent Telephone company) will be cleared away by this lawsuit is a matter of interesting speculation on the part of many. It is stated by Assistant District Attorney Masten that Chandler (the plaintiff) was sought to take one so-called 'bond' of the so-called United States Independent Telephone company, estimated then to be worth $80, and three shares of so-called common stock of the same company at an estimated value of $40 per share, making a total paper value of $200 for each share of the Rochester Telephone company's stock. Had Chandler so taken the issues at their then market value and held them until today, their market value, according to quotations, would be but $37.50 for the bond and three shares of stock. The actual selling value of his entire $600 worth of Rochester Telephone stock now would be but $112.50, showing a loss of $487.50. This actual picture of what has happened to one block of three shares of Rochester Telephone company stock gives a small idea of what holders of several dozens, scores, or hundreds of shares have to consider after only one year of life in a holding company."

The United States Independent company referred to was a fifty-million-dollar concern, that is, on paper, and it would seem that for securities that represented mere wind and water this company actually obtained control of active operating properties, and that now the people who owned and controlled the smaller operating companies have to show comparatively nothing for the securities they formerly considered valuable.

The promoters who organize these mushroom concerns and promise so much are apparently the only ones who make a profit. It seems that some people will never learn that there is more truth than poetry in the saying that "a fool and his money soon part."—

A HUNTING EXPEDITION

Remnant of Bowstring Club Leaves Tonight for Squaw Lake.

Dr. W. H. Magie, C. S. Carpenter and Ed H. Windom will compose a small but capable hunting party which will leave tonight for Squaw Lake in the Big Fork country. They are going after birds and expect to be gone for an indefinite time, several weeks anyway. They will be joined from Oct. 9 to Oct. 15 by some five or six prominent Duluth hunters who will leave at different times and intend to remain on the hunting grounds for varying periods.

The hunters disclaimed membership in the Bowstring club when seen this afternoon. They declare that the old Bowstring club is no longer in existence, though some years ago it was an active organization and a prominent one.

THE POTATO CHAMPIONSHIP

Wrested From Colbyville by Hunter's Park Man.

Hunter's Park people have more bears, raise bigger vegetables, taller corn, better apples and generally surpass their fellow citizens in many respects.

The other day Thomas Brian of Colbyville brought in a potato weighing 1& pounds, and said he had some at home which weighed over two pounds, but they were not so perfect in shape as this one, which was almost a perfect oval, with no protuberances.

But today Thomas Clark, deputy register of deeds, who resides at Hunter's Park, brought to The Herald office two potatoes raised in his garden, one of which weighed two and one-half pounds and the other two pounds and two ounces. The two potatoes completely filled an ordinary fruit basket. "I just want to show," said Mr. Clark, "that we can raise bigger potatoes in Woodland than Tom Brian can at Colbyville. His potato weighed only a pound and three-quarters, which would be considered a very ordinary size as compared with the spuds we raise at Hunter's Park."

SOLOMON NOT THE AUTHOR.

Professor Haupt Declares Songs Were Written 600 Years Later.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 3.—Paul Haupt, professor of Semitic languages in the Johns Hopkins university, who astonished biblical students a year ago by a flat denial that Jonah was ever swallowed by a whale, announced today that he had finished his translation of the songs of Solomon. He declares Solomon never wrote the songs.

"The Songs of Solomon," said the professor, "were written fully 600 years after his reign which was in 950 B. C. The book was written in the neighborhood of Damascus."

A SURVEY!

It is quite common in Duluth nowadays to hear people make complimentary remarks about Columbia advertisements because they are different, home-made, and short enough to be read by the busy people on the shores of Kitchi Gammi. They aim to be heart-to-heart talks on subjects of dress as given to the advertising man by the well-posted managers of the different Columbia departments.

"Good advertising pays" is a trite old saying, but after all it doesn't pay unless backed up with merchandise and methods of true merit. Our ads may bring these ever increasing multitudes to the store, but the uniformly high quality and relatively low prices of our goods do the selling, and the open, clean and irreproachable Columbia methods make steady customers of economical buyers. In other words, good advertising consists of more than a little clever word-juggling in the newspapers.

Come in and survey the new lines of excelling Fall merchandise which we've run into Duluth. You will find them on the level and us on the square.

IT MAY PROVE WHAT YOU NEED

Thousands Will Benefit If Statement Made is True.

It may be that some persons will be inclined to doubt the statement made by an eminent authority, at a recent meeting, that with a mixture of dandelion, kargon and sarsaparilla, he would give prompt relief to any sufferer of rheumatism or the usual form of backache, caused by inactive clogged kidneys, yet many cases of long standing that had been entirely relieved were cited to prove the truth of his assertion. The same authority further stated that many cases which failed to yield to the healing waters of the famous health resorts, or the usual remedies as prescribed, salicylate of soda, potash, colchicum, etc.—were readily relieved by the use of this simple mixture—Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful dose after meals and at bedtime.

A well known druggist, when approached upon the subject, stated that while this prescription, as written, is new, the ingredients are continually prescribed by the best physicians, and any good prescription pharmacy has them; they are inexpensive and harmless to use, and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

If the claims made for this mixture are only partly correct, it would seem that no sufferer here could afford to leave the prescription untried.

RAT BREAKS UP COURT SESSION

Officers and Spectators Engage in an Exciting Chase.

The dignity of municipal court was given a severe jolt today when just as the prisoners were about to be arraigned, a big, grizzled rat made a dash across the floor in an effort to get out into the corridor and to safety.

"A rat, a rat!" yelled some one and Judge Cutting went straight up to the top of his desk, where he perched in safety while the race to catch the rodent went on. Chief Troyer made good his reputation as a sprinter, and with City Attorney McKeon a close second, he sprinted here and there while the terrined rodent dashed between the legs of Clerk Loyd, ducked a big cuspidore hurled at its head by a newspaper man and made for the corridor.

"Catch him, chief," screamed the city attorney, who by this time had armed himself with a long pole used to lower the windows. "Kill him, boys, kill him!" screamed the court from his point of vantage.

It was a busy day for that rat and there was no escape. But he died hard and it required several blows from the pole the city attorney wielded with much dexterity to put the old fellow out of commission.

"By thunder, he's a big one!" remarked the chief of police, as he stood viewing the remains.

Judge Cutting by this time felt safe in coming down from his perch and the prisoners were forgotten for a time, while everyone gathered around to take a look at the dead body of the old patriarch of the rodent family which have been a pest and annoyance at the city hall for years.

WANTED DIVORCE, NOT AN ARREST

Mrs. William Gronquist had no intentions of having her husband arrested when she called upon City Attorney McKeon yesterday. At least, she told the court so this morning, and the case against her husband was dismissed.

Mrs. Gronquist told the city attorney a tale of woe which consumed a good half hour yesterday, but all she wanted was a divorce, not to have him locked up upon the charge of drunkenness.

Mrs. Gronquist signed the complaint against her husband yesterday and he was arrested last evening. She learned then for the first time that it was owing to her complaint that he was in trouble and she hurried to the police station to make amends.

"Why don't you make up with him?" asked the court. Mrs. Gronquist made no reply, but as the husband and wife went away together it is likely that their differences were adjusted, for a time at least, although she stated today that she wanted a divorce and could not live with her husband because of his drinking and cruel treatment of her.

CUT THIS OUT

Fine Recipe for the Quick Cure of Coughs and Colds.

"Mix half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and half a pint of good whiskey; shake well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

This is the formula prescribed by the renowned throat and lung specialist who established the camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine and whose remarkable cures attracted wide-spread attention among the medical fraternity. He declares that it will heal the lungs and cure any cough that is curable and will break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients can be secured from any prescription druggist at a small cost and is easily mixed at home.

Be sure not to buy the ordinary bulk oil of pine nor patent medicine imitations, as they will produce nausea, on account of the impurities they contain and frequently do permanent injury to the kidneys.

The real "Concentrated" oil of pine is put up for medicinal use in half ounce vials enclosed in small wood cases which protect it from heat and light. It is also said to be an excellent remedy for lumbago and all forms of uric acid rheumatism. For this purpose it is taken raw; a few drops on sugar night and morning.

HIBBING MAN IN A THEATER DEAL

C. H. Miles Entering Vaudeville Field of Twin Cities.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles H. Miles, proprietor of the Miles hotel and the Miles theater at Hibbing, said to be a man of considerable wealth, has entered the Twin City amusement field. He announces that he proposes to erect in Minneapolis a vaudeville theater to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. It is known that he has been looking for a site for several months past.

Last week Mr. Miles purchased a three-fourths interest in the lease and fixtures of the new Majestic theater, on Cedar street, near Seventh, St. Paul.

Mr. Miles, it is known, is inclined to discontinue the bookings of the Considine-Sullivan circuit and to make the Majestic an independent house. Furthermore, he has been offered leases of vaudeville theaters at Fargo and Grand Forks. Vaudeville houses at Bismarck, Dickinson, Valley City and Mandan, N. D., controlled by Joseph Hart, and the Clark circuit in Montana are likely to be added and thus a circuit that will insure twenty weeks bookings to vaudeville acts will be formed which can easily be extended by the addition of houses between the Twin Cities and Chicago.

This plan has been favorably discussed by the managers of the smaller vaudeville houses in the Northwest for some time, and they are eager to form a combination which has only needed the leadership of an amusement manager of standing.

MAY POSTPONE FREE DELIVERY

Inadequacy of Postoffice is Largely to Blame.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the city council has taken the necessary steps to number all the houses in the city, and also to fill in several gaps in the sidewalks, in order to make the mail carriers' work easy when they get started, the present outlook is that free delivery in Virginia will be long delayed. The trouble is that the present postoffice quarters are rather small, and there is little disposition on the part of the postoffice authorities to move.

One of the two postoffice inspectors sent here to investigate local conditions reported that the present postoffice quarters were ample in size, while the other one was just as positive that they were not, and his idea seems to have prevailed with the postoffice department at Washington, as nothing has been heard of the free delivery matter of late.

Chief Deputy Postmaster Peterson inclines to the belief that the present quarters are large enough to handle the free delivery business, in addition to the other work of the office.

Since the matter was first agitated, the Commercial club has been in a moribund condition, and there is nobody to push the matter with the authorities.

MURDER TRIAL ON.

Peter Mathieson Charged With Killing Johanson at Tenstrike.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of Peter Mathieson for the alleged killing of Johan Johanson at Tenstrike, last February, began in the district court Tuesday. The state claims the killing was done for the purpose of robbery, some of the deceased's certificates of deposit after being found in Mathieson's possession. The defense is accidental death. Mathieson claiming that a gun went off as he laid it down to fix the fire in the cabin in which he and Johanson lived.

McIntyre, founder of the Tribune, and a heavy property holder here, declared his faith unshaken in the town and said that he proposed to put up a brick building next year on his property at 306 Cedar street. He has traveled extensively of late and says he finds no better town or a better field for investment than here.

L. G. Sicard, cashier of the Marchants and Miners State Bank of Hibbing, has resigned his position and will shortly leave for Fort Smith, Ark., where he will go into the banking business with a brother.

BOY STILL MISSING.

Many Theories Afloat as to Fate of George Patka.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The search for George Patka, the missing Winton boy who disappeared so mysteriously noon Monday while on his way home from school, continues, and the mystery surrounding the case deepens. The river and lake in the vicinity of Winton have been dragged to no avail while searching parties moving in skirmish formation have covered every foot of ground for miles around the boy's home. Many incline to the belief that the boy was kidnaped, but just for what reason is not explained. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patka, the parents of the missing youth, are nearly distracted over the affair.

ORE UNDER TOWN.

Report Revived That Biwabik May Have to be Moved Very Soon.

Biwabik, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rumors of moving the townsite of Biwabik, because of underlying ore are being revived. It is said that the operations that have been carried on by drillers for several months have shown there is sufficient rich iron ore underlying the town proper to warrant the expense of moving it off. Little can be learned confirmatory of these reports. Neither can it be ascertained just what company will eventually acquire the ore in question. The Longyear Exploration company is said to have expended by far the largest sum of money in these drilling operations and naturally this company is expected to profit in proportion thereby.

TRANSFORMATIONS.

Curious Results When Coffee Drinking is Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old coffee toper to quit the use of coffee as it is for a whisky or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the coffee user can quit coffee and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage, for when Postum is well boiled and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavour than most of the coffee served nowadays, and to the taste of the connoisseur it is like the flavour of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee is left off and Postum used, for the reason that the poison to the nerves—caffeine—has been discontinued and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing from coffee to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

THE PRESIDENT TELLS THE PESSIMISTS TO CHEER UP.

dential boat passed Cape Girardeau and Grand Tower, but they came too late to receive public recognition from the president.

The Mississippi was escorted down the river from St. Louis all the way to Cairo by ten other boats, and it was met early in the morning by a huge excursion steamer from this city, which carried not only several hundred passengers of both sexes, but also a vociferous steam calliope, which, for the time, monopolized the noise-making on the middle stretches of the Father of Waters. The president and the party drove to St. Mary's park, where a great crowd was assembled.

After referring to the fact that Charles Dickens selected the region where they were assembled as the seat of his forlorn "Eden" in "Martin Chuzzlewit," the president said:

"I commend a careful reading of 'Martin Chuzzlewit' to the pessimists of today, to the men, who instead of fighting hard to do away with abuses while at the same time losing no jot of their buoyant hopefulness for the country, insist that all our people, socially and industrially, in their private lives no less than as politicians, newspaper men, and business men, are at a lower ebb than ever before. If ever any one of you feels a little downcast over the peculiarly gloomy view of the present taken by some well-meaning pessimist of today, you will find it a real comfort to read 'Martin Chuzzlewit,' to see what a well-meaning pessimist of the past thought of our people sixty-five years ago; and then think of the extraordinary achievement, the extraordinary gain, morally no less than materially, of these sixty-five years. Dickens can be read by us now with profit; Elijah Pogram, Hannibal Chollop, Jefferson Brick and Scadder have their representatives today, plenty of them; and the wise thing for us to do is to recognize that these are still types of evil in politics, journalism, business and private life, and to war against them with all our hearts. But it is rank folly to regard these as the only or the chief types in our national life. It would be foolish to ignore their existence, or the existence of anything else that is bad in our national life; but it would be even more foolish to ignore the vaster forces that tell for righeousness.

"In a broad general way we should apply in the affairs of the national administration, which deals with the interests of all our eighty-odd millions of people, just the same rules that are necessary in getting on with our neighbors in our several neighborhoods; and the nation as a whole should show substantially the same qualities that we would expect an honorable man to show in dealing with his fellows.

> "The policy of 'peace with insult' is the very worst policy upon which it is possible to embark, whether for a nation or an individual.

"To be rich, unarmed, and yet insolent and aggressive, is to court well-nigh certain disaster. The only safe and honorable rule of foreign policy for the United States is to show itself courteous toward other nations, scrupulous not to infringe upon their rights, and yet able and ready to defend its own. Let us build up and maintain at the highest point of efficiency the United States navy. We have an enormous coast line, and our coast line is on two great oceans. To repel hostile attacks the fortifications, and not the navy, must be used; but the best way to parry is to hit—no fleet can ever be worn except by hitting—and we can only hit by means of the navy.

"The national government alone has sufficiently extensive power and jurisdiction to exercise adequate control over the great interstate corporations. While this thorough supervision and control by the national government is desirable primarily in the interest of the people, it will also, I firmly believe, be to the benefit of those corporations themselves which desire to be honest and law-abiding. Only thus can we put over these corporations one competent and efficient sovereign—the Nation—able both to exact justice from them and to secure justice for them, so that they may not be alternately pampered and oppressed. The first need is to exercise this federal control in thoroughgoing and efficient fashion over the railroads.

> When this control is exercised in some fashion as it is now exercised over the national banks, there will be no falling off in business prosperity. On the contrary, the chances for the average man to do better will be increased.

"I do not believe that our efforts will have anything but a beneficial effect upon the permanent prosperity of the country; and, as a matter of fact, even as regards any temporary effect, I think that any trouble is due fundamentally not to the fact that the national authorities have discovered and corrected certain abuses, but to the fact that those abuses were there to be discovered. I think that the excellent people who have complained of our policy as hurting business have shown much the same spirit as the child who regards the dentist and not the ulcerated tooth as the real source of his woe. I am as certain as I can be of anything that the course we are pursuing will ultimately help business; for the corrupt man of business is as great a foe to this country as the corrupt politician."

CHILLY FOR BARE KNEES.

But the Kilties Didn't Mind Such Trifles.

Even the chill Duluth breezes didn't affect the bare knees of the "Kilties."

The knees which have braved the fogs of London, the tropical suns of Mexico, the snows of Winnipeg, and the soft breezes of Sunny France were not bothered by the northeaster of Duluth, and the Kilties started to parade in Duluth at noon today. But the rain soon drove them to shelter, not because of their knees, but because of their costumes and musical instruments which had to be protected.

It was unfortunate that the parade had to be called off or rather cut short, for the march of the Kilties in their novel costumes is a sight that Duluth does not often have a chance to witness.

BOX CAR BOARDERS.

Brothers Canght by Police in Side-Door Pullman.

Andrew and John Holman, two brothers on their way to the woods, took possession of a box car for the night last evening and had just settled down to rest when they were gathered in by the police. The two brothers were arraigned this morning and sentence suspended. They had railroad tickets to the town near their jobs and the court gave them an opportunity to get out this evening.

James Kelly, charged with drunkenness, was given the option between a fine of $10 and costs or ten days on the hill. This is his second offense.

Edward Thomas, the Bayfield, Wisconsin, laborer, who was arraigned a few days ago on a charge of drunkenness, was gathered in last night and the court gave him $10 or ten days.

There were only a few cases in court this morning and of minor importance.

HEAD BLOWN OFF.

Girl Accidentally Killed While Shotgun in a Car.

Harvey, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Sophia Pepple, the 19-year-old daughter of Jacob Pepple, living ten miles northeast of Fessenden, was accidentally shot and killed while handling a shotgun in a cook car near Fessenden.

Miss Amelia Krause, the only person in the car at the time of the accident, says Miss Pepple was cleaning up the car and in moving the shotgun from one place to another in the car she accidentally let it fall on the floor, striking it in such a manner that it was discharged. The bullet entered her right eye, blowing the entire top of her head off.

IT WAS SUICIDE.

Owatonna Saloonman Killed Himself Because of Drink Habit.

Owatonna, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of his inability to throw off the drink habit, which prevented the girl of his choice from marrying him Frank Nikalwaske, a well known saloonman shot himself. The coroner's jury found that death was suicidal rather than that he was murdered as sensational stories set afloat first claimed.

Nikalwaske was found behind his bar with a bullet wound in his head. The blood was pouring forth in a stream and he was at first thought to be dead. Upon investigation, it was found that life was not extinct and he was taken to a hospital, where he lingered until yesterday.

The revolver with which the deed was done was found in his hand, and it is rather difficult to understand how a theory of murder could have been built up. It was based largely upon the fact that he apparently had no financial worries and seemed light hearted and happy among friends.

TORGENSON IS PLACED ON TRIAL

Charged With Hitting Neighbor With a Padlock.

Hans Torgenson, who is indicted for assault in the third degree, is being tried in the district court this afternoon.

It is alleged that Torgenson assaulted E. P. Engren at Pike Lake July 3 last and hit him with an iron padlock wrapped up in a handkerchief. The defense, it is understood, will be that Sorenson was first attacked by Engren, who was getting the best of him when Torgenson struck the blow in self-defense.

Liver Pills

Ask your doctor if he knows a better pill for a sluggish liver than Ayer's Pills. Then follow his advice.

It is impossible, simply impossible, for any one to enjoy the best of health if the bowels are constipated. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be daily removed from the body or there will be trouble, and often serious trouble, too. Ayer's Pills aid nature, that is all. J. C. ITCH IN THE SKIN, NOT IN THE BLOOD.

People With Eczema, Etc., Make Grievous Error by Taking Medicine Into the Stomach.

When your hand is scalded with hot water until it blisters and burns, you don't drink medicine to cure it. You apply a healing lotion to the injured skin.

Eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, barber's itch and other such diseases of the skin cannot be cured by filling the stomach with medicine any more than you can cure a burn by drinking medicine. To cure these diseases you must apply the remedy on the part affected. The diseases named are caused by germs in the skin. Kill the germs and the disease goes away and the skin is left pure and white as nature intended it to be.

That mild, simple liquid, oil of wintergreen, properly compounded in D. D. D. Prescription routs the germs and heals the skin so perfectly that you can never tell where the disease was.

"No tongue can tell nor pen portray what I suffered for ten years from Eczema," writes Mrs. R. R. Latta of Garrison, Mo. "I was treated by the best doctors in the West, but received no benefit. Three bottles of D. D. D. cured me sound and well. Six or eight months have passed and there is no sign of a return. My advice to all is, don't delay. Begin the use of D. D. D. at once and be cured."

We have carried D. D. D. for a long time because we know it takes away the itch and we believe it to be an infallible remedy in the treatment of Eczema and other skin diseases. Lyceum Pharmacy, Duluth, Minn.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—The world famous Kilties' Band, under auspices of Clan Stewart.
METROPOLITAN—Empire Burlesquers.

Green Room Gossip.

The Mack-Leone players have been putting in a strenuous week of rehearsing Nat Goodwin's great success "In Missouri" and they are planning to make it the most complete production they have yet given in Duluth. The company has had more time to put on this play than any they have yet produced, owing to the fact that the Lyceum was filled every night for the last week, with the regular road attractions, and the many friends the players have made in Duluth expect to see them outdo themselves when they return to the Lyceum next Sunday afternoon and night, and again on Wednesday and Thursday.

Next week will be an eventful one at the Lyceum. Ezra Kendall, one of the greatest comedians of the present day, will be here during the first part of the week in "Swell Elegant Jones," and during the latter part of the week the big Frohman production of "The Hypocrites" brought direct from Chicago, will be seen.

This afternoon and tonight the Kilties, Canada's famous military band, will be the attraction at the Lyceum, giving two concerts under the auspices of the Clan Stewart. The Kilties are probably as well known as any band in the world, not excepting even Sousa's. A big audience was attracted this afternoon, and the seat sale promises well for tonight.

"The Heir to the Hoorah" will return to Duluth tomorrow, giving three performances on Friday and Saturday, a Saturday matinee being booked. "The Heir to the Hoorah" was one of the treats of last season's bookings at the Lyceum, and if the production has been kept up to the original standard, which is claimed to be the case, Lyceum patrons will be taking no chances on seeing it.

Errors of the typesetters will always be a bugbear to the newspaper writer, and they will creep in at times. In the review of Isabel Irving's performance, the critic was made to say that there was "no" excuse for the play's existence as a character study, whereas he intended to write "a good" excuse.

The comedians in the Empire Burlesquers' company have an amusing faro game during the action of "The Slave Mart," the elaborately staged afterpiece given by the company at the Metropolitan this week. Some of them win fabulous sums by making "minds bets." Finally the dealer gets jealous and he makes a mind bet of his own. In order to make it good, his first mind bet fails to win, and he turns the money over to the other players, planning to recoup next time, when he will make a bet in his own favor. But it is too late. The other players, by a unanimous decision, decide that no more mind bets go.

NEGRO CONFESSES CRIME.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Layton Hines, colored, arrested on suspicion of being connected with the murder of Anna Markowit of Covington, Ky., and Abe Cohen of Indianapolis, Ind., in this city near McCabe's Park on Aug. 4, has made a full confession according to Sheriff Bees. He is said to have confessed that he shot Cohen, assaulted the girl and then strangled her to death.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL.

What constitutes beauty in a woman? Not the features, surely, for tastes vary so that features that appear beautiful to one person are ugly to another. What then? Why, surely the hair and the skin, and these any up-to-date woman can surely improve. If your hair is not as long and full as you desire, the use of E. Burnham's Hair Tonic will positively produce the desired results. If your complexion is bad, Burnham's Cucumber Cream will remedy that defect.

A hundred other valuable suggestions will be found in the useful little booklet "How to be Beautiful" which E. Burnham has prepared at considerable expense and which will be given you free if you will call at the Toilet Goods Department of Mattix Drug Stores, Lyceum Pharmacy and Lenox Drug store, where a full and complete line of these famous E. Burnham Toilet Preparations will be found.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Since the convention opened many new names have been discussed for the office of president of the state federation of women's clubs, and each one of the women mentioned would undoubtedly fill the place worthily. Instead of a scramble for the position, nearly every one declares that it is impossible for her to accept such an honor.

Those discussed are Mrs. J. W. Edgerton of St. Paul, Mrs. W. B. Mitchell of St. Cloud, Mrs. E. J. Lewis of Sauk Center, and Miss Alice Mott of Faribault. Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth, the present executive, positively refuses to consider a second term.

One of the most important and most interesting of the events of the meeting is the president's address and this year this address is of special interest to Duluth women, as Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city is president of the federation. Mrs. Washburn's annual address, presented at the meeting this afternoon, was in part as follows:

"As I think back to the meeting of twelve years ago, at Stillwater, (my first meeting), as I remember the women who took part in that convention, many of whom are still active in federation work; as I compare their present attitude on different matters with their attitude at that time; as I notice my own changed point of view of various things, I can but feel that the federation has justified itself on that ground alone, viz., the individual development which its opportunities and experiences have given its members.

"We came to these early meetings just bristling with our petty local ideas—ready to fight for them if it seemed necessary. The only view of the world which many of us had known was that taken from our own burg—almost from our own house door—the cares and perplexities of home making, as well as its pleasures, rendering it well nigh impossible for us to get any larger view of the universe and its interests. In truth we did not know what we wanted, nor dreamed that we needed any different view.

Broader Views.

"I am not saying that there were not some splendid women, who already had this broader view, women whose lives had been more care free, whose opportunities had been greater. To them the benefit of federation has shown less in individual development. But we all know that the great body of our organization is made up of women whose lives are crowded with the cares and the details of home management. And we are glad that of such is the body composed. To them the federation has come as a revelation. They have been able to attend some of its meetings; they have caught its spirit from those who have gone to state and national conventions; they have made friends from other localities, and have learned to look at life partially through their eyes. The consequence is that angularities have been smoothed down; local assertiveness is passing away; the rights of the majority are recognized, and that an individual or a minority should impede the will of the majority is no longer tolerated. To be voted down is not now a personal affront; it was so considered at times twelve years ago. But is it strange? Until the advent of the federation, what opportunity had women of knowing from other parts of the state or country? How could they learn to look at things in this larger and more impersonal way? To the average man come these opportunities through his every day business life. But the occupation of the average woman makes it impossible for her to get a similar experience. What wonder if her thoughts have been personal, trivial and petty, or that her outlook has had a distinctly local coloring?

"So much for the development of the woman as an individual. Has federation anything to offer her which has been of benefit to her as a member of the family, as a wife, mother, daughter, sister? Most assuredly. If in no other way, then by indirection. In so far as a person has been improved individually — character strengthened, outlook broadened—just in so far has she become a better and stronger influence with her associates. If she has availed herself of the opportunities which it offers, the young mother must have obtained from the federation many valuable suggestions as to the care of her child; the inexperienced housekeeper goes home from some federation meeting with new ideas as to her home, its care, its furnishing, its decoration. Is she not a happier and more valuable homemaker than though she had never caught this inspiration which has put new interest and beauty into her every day cares? I might, if it were necessary, multiply similar instances.

"Women who, through their club or their federation interests, have made themselves familiar with municipal problems, have learned new methods in civic improvement or have familiarized themselves with the conditions and needs of their state institutions, are certainly very much better fitted to talk intelligently on these subjects and to contribute what little influence they may have toward any effort for civic or social betterment. Thus is the social fabric strengthened by the activity of women's clubs, provided that good sound judgment prevails and that no one line of work is over emphasized to the detriment of others. Although the public does not seem to realize it, yet the federation's most constant and most emphasized sermon is on the first importance of the home as woman's field of labor.

Its Public Value.

"The value of the federation as an agency for co-operating with other organizations working for public betterment, is beginning to be recognized. We are asked by the American Civic association to assist them in their efforts for civic improvement; by the national society, organized for the purpose of getting the duty removed from imported works of art, to help them in their work; to co-operate with the state and national anti-tuberculosis organizations in their efforts to stamp out the terrible white plague. In regard to our purely educational work, quite a decisive step in the way of co-operation has been taken during the past year. Six national societies, through their educational committees, have united their forces and have asked for a department in the National Educational association. These societies are the General Federation of Women's clubs, National Society of Collegiate Alumnae, Women's Christian Temperance union, Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Southern College Women and National Congress of Mothers. The result is that at the next annual meeting of the National Educational association, these combined societies will have a department and a program for which they alone are responsible.

"These big things cannot be done by individual clubs nor even by a state federation. It is our place, when such things are undertaken, to fall into line and help carry out suggestions from headquarters.

"Perhaps this would be quite the appropriate time to congratulate the federation and its industrial school committee in particular, upon the successful issue of last winter's arduous campaign. We are now assured of the new school for delinquent girls, so much needed.

"Our thanks are due to Governor Johnson for his compliment to the federation and his tribute to the efficient work done by its committee, in his appointment of the board, every member of which is now, or has been at some time, actively interested in federation work.

Advocated Nothing New.

"While rejoicing over the success in this matter which we claim for our own, we must be modest and must remember that we were not pointing out to the legislature, to the board of control or to the officials of the Red Wing school, any new or unheard of reform. We were simply trying to assist them to carry out a policy which they, eight years ago, deemed to be necessary. We certainly educated public sentiment in the matter until there was a universal demand throughout the state for the new institution. As public educators, we feel that we have few equals.

"The activity of the art committee should receive special mention. The federation art gallery, a small thing to be sure, but our own and the best we have, has been kept in active circulation. Since last October it has been exhibited in twenty-one different towns, assuredly a good record. We feel that money put into additional pictures for this gallery would be well expended, and would recommend that an appropriation for this purpose be made.

"There must be a closer co-operation of state and national work. It is what Mrs. Decker has striven for most earnestly during her administration—co-operation and co-ordination—between state and state, between state and nation. We are not sufficiently familiar with the plans and projects of the general federation. We do not know all that it has to offer us. There can be no rivalry, no jealousy, between state and national organizations. The former is a vital organ of the latter. Circulation between the two should be free and unimpeded. In truth, if we have learned the lesson of federation, if we have rid ourselves of the personal and petty, there will be no rivalry or jealousy anywhere—between individuals, clubs or states.

To Extend Influence.

"I am anxious that the influence of the federation shall continue to be exerted toward the extension of courses in manual training in public schools; toward the establishment of courses in domestic science; toward a general desire for the better art and better handicraft; toward the strengthening of a sentiment against child labor and in favor of the demand for only such ready made garments as have the Consumers' league labels. Do you realize what a powerful educational force we have become? And how much more powerful we are bound to be in time? The force is derived from various sources—from individual women, who have become better educated in these different practical matters; from club programs in every little town in the state; but most of all from our federation meetings, where these questions are brought prominently forward and are discussed ably and freely by special speakers and by the members at large. From the meetings this influence sifts out far and wide, through the press, sometimes through the pulpit, always through the speech of the people. We cannot measure, nor do we sufficiently appreciate the worth of this silent influence of the federation. If we have helped to secure an art commission, a forest reserve, or a state institution, we are not slow to appreciate, nor do we hesitate to mention what we have accomplished; but I often think that this strong, quiet force which we are setting in motion will count for quite as much as a factor in the progress of the world and in the betterment of humanity, as will more definite results upon whose accomplishment we rather pride ourselves.

"In conclusion, I want to tell you how grateful I am to each of you for the way you have treated me while I have been your president. You have done my work much of the time while I have disported myself in pastures green and under sunny skies—calmly taking the credit for your work and the honor pertaining to my position.

"The friendships which I have formed while serving you, friendships both within and without the state, are among the choicest things the federation has given me. They are treasures, too, which will be mine for all time. Surely they alone are well worth the two years of care and responsibility. As we separate now, to meet again, let us hope at many similar gatherings, remember that I shall take with me the warmest feeling and the kindliest regard for you all; and, above all, that I shall ever cherish a feeling of the deepest gratitude for those who have so materially assisted me in my labors and who have lightened the burden of responsibility."

The much-quoted Persian gentleman who enjoyed life back of the mists of a lordly intoxication, was not very easy to please. In the autumn of the year he considered that if he had "a loaf of bread, a jug of wine, and Thou" beside him in the wilderness, that it became quite a paradise. He didn't live in Duluth. For here, with nothing but a ham sandwich, the air as the only intoxicant, and "Thou" forty miles away, the wilderness makes a pretty passable paradise. Those of you who have never sat out under a greenwood tree, and eaten any little thing you may happen to have along, some time during a Duluth October, do not know what pure ecstacy is. Try it soon.

It's perfectly lovely!

PANIC.

The fleet is going to sail for the Pacific, whether or no, and the Pacific coast is smiling happily, the Atlantic coast is writhing in the depths of gloom and hysterical apprehension, while the mid-continent folks look on complacently and wonder what all the fuss is about.

The ludicrous attitude of the Atlantic coast newspapers, particularly those of New York, is vastly diverting. New York is the worst, though Boston trails along with a fainter protest. Yet Boston has a reason for being a little circumspect in betraying its alarms. There was a time within the memory of most of us when the country was laughing at Boston because of its silly fear that the Spaniards were going to bob up suddenly out of the ocean mists and shoot up the town. Boston has been rather shame-faced about that incident, so it is not clamoring so anxiously about the movement of the fleet as it might be.

> The navy is going to the Pacific ocean for war with Japan, and Japan recognizes the fact and is energetically preparing for it. Once the operation of transferring our ships to Pacific waters has been accomplished, war is inevitable. It is an insane project. It is one of the most serious situations that have confronted this country.

Hysterical and neurasthenic imaginings could go no further than this. It is true that the departure of the fleet for the Pacific leaves no protection for New York from the assaults of the enemy; but who is the enemy, and who threatens assault?

The probability that in the absence of the fleet somebody will bombard Manhattan is just as keen a danger as that the movement of the fleet to the Pacific will cause war with Japan.

The movement of the fleet to the Pacific is just plain good sense, and Japan can't help recognizing it as such. It is no declaration of war, nor is it a threat toward Japan. Our Pacific fleet is light, and our interests that need guarding are mostly there. Whether the cruise is merely for practice, or whether it is designed to protect the string of possessions that spans the Pacific from Hawaii to Luzon, it is a move that is dictated by common sense, and there is nothing warlike about it.

This would all be amusing if, in the bitterness of its malice because the president did not take its advice and leave the fleet to protect New York, the Sun descends to something that is very closely akin to positive treason. Says the Sun:

> Those who apparently have the right to express authoritative explanations of the object of transferring the navy to the Western ocean persist in saying that it is for practice. We regret to say that we share the Japanese belief that the explanation is false. The navy is going to the Pacific ocean for war with Japan.

This is permitting panic to push argument too far. This statement is a deliberate lie, and if there is anything that can bring on war between two friendly nations like Japan and the United States, it is such absurd falsehoods as this, which, though perfectly understood at home, may be taken seriously in Japan.

EXTEND RAILROAD STREET.

The city council should by all means grant the request made to it by a number of Duluth jobbers, that Railroad street be extended from Fifteenth avenue west, where it now ends "in the air," to Garfield avenue.

This will require the condemnation and improvement of only a very short distance, as shown by the map published in The Herald last evening, and the expense will be very slight compared with the good that will be accomplished.

At present Railroad street from Sixth avenue west to Fifteenth avenue west is more or less of a fizzle because of its blind western end. If it is continued on to connect with Garfield avenue, it will furnish a short and practicable route from the Fifth avenue wholesale district to Superior, and it will be a great advantage to the jobbing interests of Duluth.

There is another reason, and perhaps a stronger one, why the proposed extension should be made, and that is that it would furnish a second route between Duluth and the West end and West Duluth in case anything happened to block the Superior street thoroughfare at the Point of Rocks. A heavy fall of rock from the cliff that beetles over Superior street might shut off communication for heavy teams between the downtown and West end district any time. If Railroad street is made a practicable thoroughfare to Garfield avenue, however, there would be a reserve route for use in such emergencies.

For these two reasons, and because it is an obviously necessary improvement the good results from which will enormously outweigh its cost, the city council should heed the request of the jobbers, and make provision as soon as may be for opening up and improving the extension.

GET TOGETHER.

It is time that the farmer and the automobilist were getting together.

At present there is a very evident dissension between them that is blocking the progress of the good roads movement to a considerable degree, and it is a pity that this is true, because it is evidently a misunderstanding, and meanwhile it is delaying a progress that both want to see.

There is an unmistakable sentiment of hostility in this state to the state highway commission plan of improving the roads, and it is due entirely to the fear of the farmer that the automobilists control the state highway commission, or that they will control it.

The farmer wants the roads improved, but he hates the automobilist, and that hatred carries him so far that he would almost rather see bad roads maintained than to have them improved and used by the automobile owners.

This is prejudice, but it is a prejudice founded on a fact, and that fact is the existence of a few senseless, heartless and reckless automobilists who look down upon the farmer as a groundling, and who care little what havoc is created by their negligent devotion to speed and the exhiliration of fast driving, which they can't have in the cities—though they get it there too much—and therefore think they ought to have it in the country.

The first thing the automobilists should do is to take in hand this sort of fanatic and train him into decent regard for the rights of others. The few who abuse their privileges are responsible for the discomfort of the many. The legislature of Minnesota is controlled by the farming communities, and this has come very near producing automobile legislation that would, if rigidly enforced, make automobiling about as interesting as riding a velocipede. This can all be traced back to the careless automobilists who speed through the country leaving panic and disaster in their trails. If it were not for these careless individuals the farmer would get over his prejudice, and he and the automobilist could work together for good roads.

Good roads are needed in order to facilitate the transportation of farm produce to market. The automobilist's benefit from them is incidental only, and is but a small factor in the large view that shows how desirable good roads are. Yet the automobilist can be of real assistance to the farmer in getting good roads, and there is no reason why they should be at sword's points when they both want the same thing.

But as stated above, the farmer and the automobilist will never get together until the latter takes care of his fellows who have created the prejudice that exists. Farmers have rights as much as city people, and automobilists must respect them. When they do,—and most of them do now,—the farmer will get over his prejudice, and will join heartily in the good roads movement.

THE LAKES-TO-GULF WATERWAY.

It was a little startling to read in this morning's paper that President Roosevelt, in his speech at St. Louis yesterday, had unqualifiedly commended the Chicago lakes-to-gulf waterway project, and that he had declared it to be a "national task."

This was very sudden, even for a president who has been lightly termed "All of a Sudden Teddy."

But he didn't say anything of the sort. He said that the improvement of the Mississippi is a national task, and it is; he approved its improvement, and that was proper, too. But he did not even mention the lakes-to-gulf project, not to speak of approving it. He did, however, at a dinner in St. Louis last night, say that in a general way he approved of the idea, though he is not committed to any plan.

There are two matters to be considered in connection with the Chicago plan for a deep-water channel from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi: First, whether it can be accomplished without drawing off so much water as to lower the Great Lakes levels and interfere with the greatest fresh water thoroughfare on earth; and second, whether Illinois instead of the nation should not bear the bulk of the cost if it is decided that it can be done without injuring the Great Lakes channels.

The first is the more important of the two. The Great Lakes furnish the only west to east waterway by which the grain and lumber and iron ore of the West can be shipped cheaply to the East. To injure such an important waterway in the interests of any other waterway conceivable would be the height of folly. It cannot and must not be done; if the lake states can't stop it Canada can and will.

If it is shown that this danger does not exist, the channel ought to be built, and the fact that it would benefit Chicago instead of some other city should not be considered as any sort of an argument against it. Every practicable waterway in the country should be developed to its fullest capacity as soon as practicable.

THE PARCELS POST.

It is worthy of note that the principal changes in the postal service that have been made recently, with the exception of the establishment of the rural free delivery, have been to facilitate and cheapen the exchange of mail with foreign countries.

Native patrons of the postoffice can hardly fail to wonder why it is that cheaper and easier postal facilities are being extended to foreign countries, and that none are extended to the people of this country.

For instance, this country has the parcels post, but only to foreign lands. Again, beginning this month postal rates on letters are reduced to foreign countries, but they remain the same in this country.

The old foreign postal rate on letters was 5 cents for each half ounce, but now it is 5 cents for the first ounce and 3 cents for each additional ounce. A 2-ounce letter that used to cost 20 cents now costs 8 cents. Incidentally, the postoffice has placed upon sale reply coupons at 6 cents which can be exchanged in other countries for the equivalent of a 5-cent stamp. Thus if you write to England, and wish to prepay the reply, you may buy one of these coupons, where before there was no way to prepay the reply unless you happened to have stamps of the country to which you wrote.

The only result from this will be that the people of this country will demand the same facilities that we extend to foreign countries, including the parcels post. This reminds us that the Luverne Herald has disputed this newspaper's statement that the parcels post will come "because it is so clearly a benefit to the people at large." The Luverne paper questions this, and says that it is largely the country people that will be affected, and that city folks will be little concerned in it. This is based on the assumption that the city mail order houses will be the principal patrons of the parcels post, and the Luverne Herald proceeds to show that while this might be a gain, it would be over-balanced by a great loss in the destruction of the small independent dealers of the villages.

The Herald does not believe that this fear is warranted. It favors the parcels post for the same reason that it favors cheaper letter postage and lower express and freight rates. Anything that makes it cheaper to exchange goods and communications is a public benefit, necessarily. The country papers that oppose the parcels post want express rates lowered, yet if lowering parcels post rates would ruin the country merchant, so would the reduction of express rates or, to a lesser extent, the reduction of freight rates.

The opposition to the parcels post is based on the assumption that the rates will be flat, like letter postage. In a country so broad as this, such rates would be impracticable. They must be based, to a considerable extent, on distance, and thus the country merchant, with his short distance to his customers, will benefit very largely and will have an advantage over the distant mail order house.

Drainage, good roads and a settlement campaign are are all that is needed to make Northern Minnesota the garden spot of the Northwest.

It is worth something that the dispute now is not whether we are to revise the tariff or not, but when we shall revise it and who is going to do it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"My uncle gave me a 10-cent, two-foot rule and that was all that anybody ever gave me."

Take this as a text for a sermon on what constitutes a self-made man. It is all that is necessary to manufacture one according to A. H. Farnam of Aberdeen, Wash., who was at the Lenox yesterday and left this morning for Ohio. Mr. Farnum is taking such a trip as he has long hoped for, traveling in the daytime and laying over at good hotels at night, following his own sweet will in the matter of direction and objective.

Mr. Farnum is one of the old school of lumbermen. He has followed the lumber business from the old days in the Michigan towns to the new days of Wasnington pine and fir. He had not been in Duluth for ten years till yesterday, though he had been here several times previously and was one of the members of a lumbermen's association which came to Duluth to witness the launching of the steamer Christopher Columbus in 1893.

He was at that time located in Ewen, Mich., one of the deserted lumber towns of the upper peninsula. He recalled a reference to Baraga in The Evening Herald of yesterday and congratulated the people of that village on having an experience such as few lumber towns has ever enjoyed. He had seen many lumber towns blossom like a rose and wither as rapidly.

Mr. Farnam said he had been in the lumber business ever since the war and when asked if he had participated in the great Civil conflict admitted that he had served in the Second Ohio cavalry. This was when he was a youth. His father died when he was 8 years of age and excepting a few years spent with an uncle, who had presented him with the measuring appliance previously referred to, he had made his own way in the world. Following the war he entered the lumber business. He followed the pine through Michigan till at Ewen he saw almost the last of it fall. Then he went West and is now president of the Aberdeen Lumber & Shingle company which owns two shingle mills and one lumber mill and has a payroll of $12,000 a month.

The old lumberman does not fear that Aberdeen will follow the old Michigan lumber towns, because like Seattle and Portland and other coast towns it has too many natural advantages. Chief of these is a harbor which under government improvement will take care of steamers drawing thirty feet of water, if any of that draught are ever built. The government has already spent $1,000,000 in improving this natural harbor and has appropriated $777,000 more.

Mr. Farnam will journey to Sand Lake, Mich., to visit a brother whom he has not seen in many years. From there he goes to Ohio to visit his boyhood home in Akron and after that he will journey gradually to New Orleans, through Old Mexico and the Southwestern states till he arrives at Los Angeles, where he will spend a quiet winter amid flowers and sunshine. He will return to Aberdeen in the early spring to keep up the work of amassing the large fortune which was first measured by a 10-cent, two foot rule, fifty years or so ago.

A. R. Gray of Louisville, Ky., was at the St. Louis yesterday and he decided that he had not gotten as far East as the number of miles from Butte would indicate. He had been out in that camp for some months on a business not remotely connected with mining and while there he had purchased a broadbrimmed Stetson hat of the sort that is very common in the West. He intended when he reached Duluth to replace this hat by one more in the Eastern mode, but found that when he arrived here he did not feel at all out of place because many of the people he met on the street while going to the hotel sported the same kind of headgear. He is leaving for home today via Chicago and he will wear the big hat into the Windy City as an experiment, hoping there to create the mild sensation which he had expected to become responsible for when he reached the Zenith City.

THE WEATHER.

It was a little different today, but the weather man does not expect anything very serious out of it, though it clouded up and rained a bit this morning. He expects generally fair weather, though partly cloudy, tonight and tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 48 degs. and yesterday's highest was 68 degs.

A year ago today smiling skies, a genial sun and a bracing air made it charming.

The sun rose at 6:10 this morning and sets at 5:44 tonight, making 11 hours and 34 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Arizona low pressure has moved its center to New Mexico. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused showers or thunderstorms over the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, and higher temperatures over Central valley states. The Oregon high pressure has advanced to the Upper Rocky mountains and has caused cooler weather over North Dakota and Manitoba. Barometric pressures remain high in Atlantic states. Another disturbance is delevoping over Western Canada, attended by warmer and showery weather in British Columbia. Generally fair weather is indicated for this locality during tonight and Friday."

He's So Serious.

His bump of humor, I should say,
Is something of a cavity.
He has a very solemn way—
A mien of awful gravity.
A smile, he thinks, has an effect
That's somewhat deleterious,
While laughing's highly incorrect.
He's very, very serious.

He always utters words of weight
With ponderous formality,
As not for just the current date,
But framed for immortality.
His silence is impressive, too;
It's dignified, mysterious.
Whatever he may chance to do,
He's very, very serious.

He takes himself in earnest, but
His theory's erroneous.
He's just a pompous sort of "mutt,"
A latter-day Polonius.
Excuse the slang, but he's the "bloke"
Who just seems born to weary us.
It's funny, when he's such a joke,
That he should be so serious.

A Wavering Henchman.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Senator Stone says he is not informed whether Mr. Bryan wants the nomination next year or not, but believes he can get it. Where are the old enthusiasm and confidence?

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The storm yesterday did considerable damage in various parts of the city. A new house on Fifth street, which is being built by Prof. Parsons of the business college is all twisted and racked and may have to be taken down. The new Baptist church between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east was also badly twisted out of shape and the fence around the ball park was also leveled to the ground. Several handsome shade trees around B. Silberstein's residence on Second street fell victims to the fury of the storm.

At a meeting of the board of education the tax levy for school purposes was fixed at $90,000, an increase of $10,000 over last year. The additional amount is for the building fund. Superintendent Denfeld was directed to report at the next meeting on what can be done in regard to opening a night school.

Bradstreet's mercantile agency is making arrangements for the establishment of a branch office in Duluth as soon as a suitable office can be found.

The Duluth postoffice report for September shows the total number of pieces handled was 457,719.

D. D. McLean has a large force of men rushing the work on John A. Willard's building, corner of Seventh avenue west and Superior street. This building will contain four stores 25x70, and the second floor will be finished for offices.

Owing to the continued and serious illness of Mrs. Martin, Judge Martin has been unable to occupy the municipal court bench for several days.

John McKinsey's house, corner of Twenty-third avenue west and First street, was burned last night. No insurance.

The Hotel La Perl has changed hands, ex-Sheriff I. T. Torrance of Wood county, Wis., being the new proprietor.

George W. Bell, for the past year employed as Indian farmer at the Chippewa reservation at Sucker Point, near Tower, left the latter place Saturday night for his home. He took a canoe on Lake Vermillion and has not been seen since. The canoe has been found bottom side up and Bell was undoubtedly drowned. He leaves a wife.

J. H. Murphy to George H. Claypool, east half of lot 36, block 46, Central division, $15,000.

W. P. Strickland to Maggie H. Curtis, lot 407, block 86, Second division, $1.375.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hibbing Tribune: At this rate Mr. Kellogg of Minnesota will be more than a possibility for the presidential chair.

Brookston Herald: It is pointed out by interested parties that the prosecution of the trusts will cause the poor to suffer with the rich. But there are a lot of poor people who would prefer that rather than to suffer alone.

"F. M." in Stillwater Prison Mirror: The henpecked man is not a game bird and newspaphers have a license to take a shot at him in any old season.

Redwood Reveille: We probably never had a president who had as many of the people's rubbles cast at his feet as has the present occupant of the White House.

Battle Lake Review: The Republicans of this state are having quite a time in trying to find a man to run for governor. About every five minutes some fellow is nominated by some loyal party worker looking for an appointment, and the nominee sits up and declines the nomination with thanks and cold feet.

Lamberton Star: It is hard to tell who will be the Republican candidate for governor next year, but if the Minneapolis Journal and Joel Heatwole will make the selection it will be easy to tell who will be defeated for the nomination.

Dawson Sentinel: When the corporations say that so and so isn't a safe man for president or governor or congressman, it is a safe prediction that the common people would make no mistake by putting him in office. When the corporations say a man isn't safe, they mean he isn't safe for them. It wouldn't be a bad idea to try some of these "unsafe" men at the very next election.

Floodwood Broadax: Every now and then some one will ask us why the Northwest is Republican in politics. That's easy, they are not Republicans, they simply vote the Republican ticket from habit, but talk Democratic doctrines from principle.

Willmar Journal: The tariff on lumber is not only a premium on the destruction of home forests, but a premium on the destruction of homes as well.

Aurora News: The latest tragedy on the range can be directly traced to the blind pigs. According to all the evidence at hand the men directly concerned became intoxicated at one of those joints and there planned the murder that baffles the county authorities. It is but another instance of the necessity of suppressing the vicious joints that have done so much harm to the range and its queer admixture of nationalities and peoples.

Virginia Virginian: A majority of the newspaper boys of the Eighth district are beginning to hand our congressman some nice packages. Others are busy wrapping up some which they expect to present him before the next campaign.

Hendrum Review: A parcels post with an equal rate for all distances would be a detriment to the newer portion of the country. It would bring everything down to the cost at the cheapest place of production within the country. If we are to have a parcels post it will be necessary to have a distance rate. A single rate may have proven successful in England and Germany, but it must be remembered there are single states in the United States covering more territory than either of the countries.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: You have to sell advice to make anybody believe it is worth following.

A rich man never has to spend money the way a poor man does to prove it.

It's very surprising to kiss a girl in the dark when you think she is somebody else.

The way to have a woman agree with you about how to bring up children is not to be married to her.

A woman calls a man a good husband when she is very fat, but he always speaks of her as his little girl.

His Neglect.

He used to tell her she was fair,
And she was glad to hear his praise;
He guarded her from danger where
They used to cross the crowded ways;
He used to tenderly assist
Her from the carriage or the car;
But now his gallantry is missed.
How brief such favors often are!
He never tells her she is sweet,
He never offers her an arm,
Or guards her in the crowded street
From anything that offers harm.

He used to praise her soulful eyes,
But many years have passed since then;
She used to listen with glad sighs
To hear him say the words again.
He never tells her now that she Possesses charms which make him glad;
He never lifts her gallantly
Across the places that are bad;
Yet do not blame him or declare
With thoughtless haste that such is life;
He has no right to call her fair—
The lady is another's wife.
—S. E. KISER in the Chicago Record-Herald.

Harvest Song.

Sound the loud trimbrel (whate'er it may be),
And strike up a tune for a hop;
For the year's work is done, and the victory won;
We have a most bountiful crop.

Chorus:
For we are jolly farmers
From the street called "Wall,"
And the seasons never harm us,
For we do not work at all.

We have mowed the ripe farmer from out the Wild West;
We have stored up the ranchers in bins;
And the poor old consumer (just witness our humor)
Must soon pay us well for our sins.

Chorus:
Wall street farmers are we,
And by us has the world been shown
That if you are wise, it may be
That you reap where you have not sown.
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Baltimore American: "What do you think an ideal quick lunch is?"

"I can suggest nothing more like it than a hasty pudding on a fast day."

Hook—I should say he does. He can't even pass a grass widow without sneezing.

Detroit News: "Men are so queer. Tell them after the honeymoon that your love is growing cold and they never glance up from the paper?"

"No; but tell them the soup is getting cold and they jump about ten feet."

Washington Star: "Do you expect to reform your city?"

"No," answered Mr. Ward Heeler, "I don't expect to do that. But I hope to put some of those opposition grafters to a lot of trouble before I quit."

Baltimore American: Enthusiastic Agent — In addition to its other perfections, there is hot air in this house.

Prospective Buyer—You needn't tell me that, mister. I guess I know it when I hear it.

Chicago Tribune: "The trouble with all of us," Mr. Pneer was saying, "is that we don't live close enough to nature."

"I do," snapped his wife. "I haven't had a new dress for six years!"

Philadelphia Press: Cassidy — I see some wise scholar is claimin' that Adam and Eve wuz Chinese.

Casey—What a fool he is! Shure he might know they was Irish, bekase they waz evicted.

St. Louis Republic: "Do you think they will ever discover the north pole?"

"Surely. But not until there ceases to be good money in lecturing about it."

Physique and Social Rank.

La Revue: The stature of the poor is less than that of people in easy circumstances, whatever may be the age of the individual considered; for example, in poor children the height is 1 meter 46 centimeters at the age of fourteen; in well to do children of the same age it is 1 meter 50 centimeters; poor men stand 1 meter 64 centimeters high, whereas men in easy circumstances of the same age are 1 meter 68 centimeters in height, both being of the same physical type.

The weight of the body, whether considered absolutely or in relation to the height, is greater in the well to do classes: 35 kilogrammes, for example (relative weight 24), for 13-year-old boys in comfortable circumstances, and 38 kilogrammes (relative weight equals 23) for poor boys of the same age.

The circumference of the head is less in the poor: 524 millimeters for poor children at 11 years of age and 533 millimeters for well to do children of the same age; 554 millimeters for well to do adults of 20 years, and 547 millimeters for poor adults of the same age and race.

In like manner for the height of the forehead, the probable capacity of the skull, the probable weight of the brain, the poor classes give measurements inferior to those furnished by the subjects of the well to do classes.

The interior development of the skull, when compared with the total circumstances, is greater in the well to do; 43.3 in people of that class at the age of 20, and 44.8 in poor people of the same cephalic type and the same age.

Among the poor the facial angle is rather less—81 degrees for the well to do and 77 degrees for the poor (these figures are given by M. Bertillon, perhaps).

On the other hand, certain characteristics which are considered as constituting a "rapprochement" with those of the colored races, such as the greater width of the jaw and the greater bizigomatic diameter, are more accentuated in the poor.

The force, measured by the dynamometer, is much less in poor children at all the ages examined.

Light on the Negro Question.

New York Times: Politics has been and is a bar to the advancement of the negro in this country. As Secretary Root has pointed out, the enfranchisement of the race before it was prepared for enfranchisement was the fundamental error of the Republican party. We understand that Mr. Roosevelt has ceased making appointments of negro office-holders in the South, and we trust he has ceased in recognition of this fundamental error, realizing that every such appointment is an added calamity to the race.

Another Railroad Smasher.

DISPOSING OF SHOAL

Channel is Now 245 Feet Wide in Narrowest Part.

Another dredge is now at work on the Nemadji river shoal over at Superior basin and still another will probably be put on tomorrow by the Duluth-Superior Dredging company, which has the government contract for this work, and it is expected the big shoal will be entirely disposed of before the end of the season.

Since the last report was sent out by Maj. Fitch to the United States lake survey at Detroit regarding the work on the Nemadji shoal, considerable progress has been made. The dredges have been at work constantly and a big portion of the shoal has been removed since that time.

Instead of a chanle 135 feet wide through the shoal, there is now a channel 245 feet in width extending for a distance of 500 feet from the deep water of the Superior harbor basin to the Superior front channel which is 400 feet wide. The channel runs down past the mouth of the Nemadji river to a point near the red channel buoy No. 2 at the turn.

Opposite the Great Northern ore docks the dredges have been cutting into the shoal in the harbor basin, so that the deep water now extends for a distance of 1,100 feet from ore dock No. 3 and a distance of 800 feet from dock No. 1. When the work is entirely completed the harbor basin will have the same area that it did ten years ago when the original dredging was done.

SMALL BOATS MAY PASS.

The Government Inspector Says There is Room at Bridge.

According to the report of the United States harbor inspector to Maj. Fitch, tugs can pass by the remains of the north pier of the Northern Pacific Rice's Point bridge, which was demolished yesterday by the steamer Hoover & Mason. There is not sufficient room for big boats however.

The inspector reports that the tugs can pass by keeping to the south side of the center of the channel there being about seventy feet from the center pier and a depth of 22 feet. Two buoys with a red flag have been placed at each end of the opening to warn masters of the danger.

Until the stone which composed the pier is removed big boats must pass through the other channel. Capt. Reid is now at work removing the pile of stone and driving temporary piling.

DEEPEN CANAL ENTRANCE.

Old Hickory Will Soon Begin at Superior Entry.

The Duluth-Superior Dredging company, which has the contract for all the government harbor work this season will soon begin the work of dredging out the entrance to the Superior canal. The big dredge Old Hickory will do this work.

The job corresponds to the work which was done at the entrance to the Duluth canal during last August. It will probably take a couple of weeks to complete the work. For some time the Old Hickory has been doing private dredging about the harbor.

STEAMER CANADIAN HERE.

New Boat Built in England Comes Here for Grain Cargo.

The steamer Canadian, a brand new boat just brought over from England, where she was built, arrived in the Duluth harbor today and is taking on a cargo of grain. The Canadian belongs to a new Canadian Steamship company and will be used to carry grain from Port Arthur and Fort William and also from the Head of the Lakes. The Wolvin company is the local agent for the new company. The Canadian is a trim looking steamer and is attracting considerable attention here.

TO LAUNCH THREE VESSELS.

Shipbuilding Company Completes Construction of Several Steamers.

Cleveland, Oct. 3.—Three vessels will be launched at yards of the American Shipbuilding company next Saturday. The Arthur H. Hawgood at Bay City, The Verona at Lorain, and the Harvard at Buffalo. The Tug Harvard is built for the Great Lakes Towing company. The Verona will be the sixth steamer on the Lackawanna fleet to be launched and the Hawgood is for W. A. and A. P. Hawgood of this city.

REID REPAIRING BRIDGE.

Will Have to Blow Up Stone Pier---Drives Piling.

Capt. James Reid has secured the contract of making temporary repairs at the Northern Pacific Rice's Point bridge and has driven in wooden piling for the pier. Where the stone pier was knocked into the water he will have to blow it up to get it out of the way.

Some time today the Northern Pacific hopes to be able to run trains over the repaired bridge. The trains which have been running around by Grassy Point have been generally about half an hour late.

The steamer Hoover & Mason, which struck the bridge was not badly damaged and proceeded to the ore docks for her cargo. It is thought that the wheelsman misunderstood an order, thus causing the accident.

Steamer Niagara Aground.

Ore Steamer Ashore.

Amherstburg, Oct. 3. — The steamer Amasa Stone ran aground below Bay Point yesterday. The wrecker Newman is lightering the cargo and it is expected the steamer will be released today.

Grain Trade Broadens Out.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The grain trade is broadening out and is now able to care for more tonnage than any previous time this season. Rates hold firm at 1¾ cents on corn. Charters to Buffalo: John Oades Robert Mills, wheat at 2 cents; D. M. Whitney, corn; Neptune, oats at 1½ cents.

Cleveland, Oct. 3.—Grain shippers at Duluth are bidding for tonnage at 2¼ cents on wheat to Buffalo, and a number of steel ships are being chartered. One is offered more freely than it has been for some time, and the down freight market is in better shape. There is no change in the coal trade.

Master of New Tug.

Cleveland, Oct. 3.—Capt. Thomas Hagan who sailed the tug Schenck at the Soo for a number of seasons, will bring out the new tug, A. C. Harding, which was built by the Great Lakes Towing company at Chicago.

The Harding will stop at St. Ignace, where she will pick up the schooner Wayne and bring her to Cleveland. The Harding will then go to Buffalo after the new lighter.

GUARANTEED UNIVERSAL STOVES AND RANGES BEST IN THE UNIVERSE

The Proof of the Goodness of a Stove Lies In The Use Thereof

Let Us Place a Universal In Your Home on Trial

You use it—give it a good thorough test for thirty, sixty or ninety days and then if the stove has not proven itself a thoroughly capable stove we will gladly take it away and refund your money.

Many stoves look good on paper and from many descriptions given in the most glowing terms, one might infer that nothing could possibly equal them. But when it comes right down to actual test—a test right in the coldest of winter—they fail to perform the duties expected of them and the result is that you have on your hands a worthless article.

In buying a Universal you run no risk—we do not ask you to take our paper picture or paper talk for its goodness, but are willing that the heater itself (or range or cook stove) should prove its own worth.

Could any proposition be fairer? Then let us place one in your home.

IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL

Our Terms On Any Universal:

Not only will we place any Universal in your home on trial but we will arrange satisfactory weekly or monthly payments, so that you can have the use and benefit of your stove while paying for it.

We will take your old stove as part payment—or you can pay for it $5 down and $5 a month. Suit your convenience.

JOHNSON IS ACQUITTED

Jury Finds Him Not Guilty of Eva Patterson's Murder.

Accused Denied Flatly Story Told by Amanda Jackson.

John Johnson, colored, who was accused of the murder of Mrs. Eva Patterson, at 23 Fifth avenue west, July 19 last, was acquitted about 7:30 o'clock last evening, after the jury had deliberated over the evidence about an hour. It is understood that three or four ballots were taken in the jury room, and that at no time were there more than two votes for conviction.

As soon as Johnson understood that he was a free man once more, he broke down and cried for joy, and, surrounded by a large number of his colored friends, he formed part of a jubilee procession as they left the courthouse.

Amanda Jackson, on whose testimony the state relied to convict Johnson, was released from the county jail today, where she has been held as a witness ever since the shooting of Mrs. Patterson.

The Jackson woman testified that Johnson, with whom she had been living, told her that he had shot Mrs. Patterson. She told a damaging story, that was corroborated in some particulars by other circumstantial evidence collected by the police, but Johnson denied the story flatly, and the jury seemed inclined to believe him, or at least to give him the benefit of a doubt. Both Amanda and Johnson made good witnesses, and neither was shaken in their testimony.

Johnson Only Witness.

Johnson was the only witness in his own behalf. He went on the stand, after Judge Martin had given a history of his life, and swore to all the things his counsel had stated. He claimed that on the night of the shooting he went home from Parker's barber shop a few minutes before 12 o'clock, and was admitted to the house by Amanda. He said Amanda began quarreling with him over the Patterson woman, and he left the house and started down to a hotel at 116 Michigan street, to spend the night, but was overtaken by Amanda just as he reached the building.

Johnson testified that Amanda wanted him to go home, and threatened to raise a rumpus that would result in the arrest of both if he did not go home, so he consented to go with her. The witness claimed they walked up Sixth avenue west from Michigan street to their lodging house. He claimed he knew nothing of the murder of Mrs. Patterson until he read it in the paper the next morning.

Under cross-examination he admitted that he had been living in St. Paul with Amanda for two months, when his wife came in on them from Jackson, Mich., the former home of the Johnsons. This admission was made after Johnson had previously testified that he met Amanda on the street in St. Paul and took her home, introducing her to his family and taking her in as a boarder. This was the only instance, however, where Johnson was tripped by the state in his testimony.

Johnson stated that he was born in South Carolina, where his parents are now living. He admitted that he deserted his wife and two children to live with Amanda Jackson, after she had promised to work for him and let him live "like a gentleman." He admitted that he was very much taken up with Mrs. Patterson, and wanted to get rid of Amanda. Johnson also testified that Amanda had made threats that if he did not keep away from Mrs. Patterson something would happen, and it "would not be another Buchanan case."

County Attorney Norton argued the state's case to the jury in about thirty minutes, and Judge Martin, who defended Johnson, took about the same length of time.

Judge Dibell instructed the jury to return either a verdict of guilty in the first degree, or of acquittal.

MALOVICH DISCHARGED

Murder Suspect Will Not Have to Stand Trial.

Carla Malovich of Chisholm will not have to face his trial for murder in the third degree, the case against him having been dismissed this morning, on a motion by County Attorney John H. Norton.

According to the evidence in the case there was a quarrel among the Montenegrins in the camp, near Chisholm, and the foreman, to frighten the rioters, fired several shots in the air from his revolver. Malovich, hearing the shots, looked out from the door of his shack, and also opened fire with his revolver. One of the shots hit the foreman and killed him.

It was the opinion of the authorities that the shooting was accidental, and that Malovich did not intend to hit the foreman. He simply lost his head when the shooting began, and fired at random.

Malovich was released from custody this morning.

COW WAS A WANDERER

Other Cases Before the West Duluth Justice Court.

Julius La Lone, living at 103 North Fifty-fourth avenue west, will be given a trial before Justice J. E. Flack today on a charge of letting his cow run at large.

Complaint was made by Poundmaster Michael Shannon, who has a grievance. Mr. Shannon believes that since he has the powers of the cow-law in his hands, he sould be allowed to discarge his duties without interference on the part of irate cow owners. La Lone's cow has been one of the banes of Mr. Shannon's life. She wandered around the neighborhood without restraint or fear, but seemed to have some system whereby she knew when the poundmaster was around, for then she disappeared.

Tuesday, after receiving a number of complaints against La Lone's cow, Mr. Shannon set out to find the animal. He came upon her unawares, while she was wandering about, free of ropes, attendants and other restraining things. He took her in tow and started for the pound, but before he got there, Mrs. La Lone and a son happened on the scene, jerked the rope out of the officers' hands, and led bossie triumphantly away.

Yesterday, the cow was out on another ambling spell, when the poundmaster happened on her again. She was taken in charge and led to the pound, while a warrant was sworn out for her owner.

Charles Ellison, proprietor of the Elco theater, has had considerable trouble with young men who hang around the lobby, smoke, talk and make things unpleasant for the patrons of the place. Last evennig, Ed Greves, one of a crowd, was arrested charged with using abusive language to Mr. Ellison. He was brought before Justice Flack this morning and paid $5 and costs, pleading guilty to the charge. He denied that he had used the language claimed in the complaint, but pleaded guilty to avoid the trial.

Christ Holstein, an employe of the D., M. & N. railroad at Proctor, will think twice before he lets liquor get away with his reason in the future. He was assessed $50 and costs by Justice Flack yesterday afternoon on a drunk and disorderly charge, with the alternative of sixty days in the county jail. He was still in the West Duluth station this morning, waiting for his friends to round up the money.

Holstein came down from Proctor Tuesday, took on a cargo and sailed forth. He steered into the home of Arthur Bushell on Sixty-third avenue and frightened the family, two of the girls escaping from the house and calling for the police. Holstein was taken to the station and arraigned before Justice Flack. There were circumstances, which the judge thought called for severity and the big fine was the result.

STOLE SIDEWALK.

Contractor Kilton is Victim of Many Petty Thefts.

Contractor W. F. Kilton, contractor for the city, who has constructed nearly all of the board walks laid in Duluth this summer, is looking for some residents in the vicinity of Oneota street, and if he comes on them they will appear in court.

During the past summer Mr. Kilton says he has lost fully 1,500 feet of lumber, carried off by thieves, who visit his lumber piles during the night to secure boards suited to their needs.

His West Duluth operations during the past summer were confined to Oneota street, and day after day pieces of lumber disappeared in air, as it were. Most of the lumber stolen from him was taken while he was engaged on the Oneota street job, and he doesn't like it a little. Only one piece of the entire lot was recovered. He had two boards, 18 feet long, 10 inches wide and 2 inches thick, which were designed for a special purpose. One night one of the boards disappeared. Mr. Kilton went on a hunt for the board, as he needed it sorely, and he discovered it in the yard of an Oneota street resident. He didn't prosecute, but more thefts may bring out some prosecutions.

SUFFERING OVER.

No More Stubbed Toes on Bay View Sidewalk.

The suffering people who have judged holes, been tripped by loose boards and stubbed their toes on the sidewalk leading to Bay View Heights and Proctor, have relief in sight.

The city has ordered the construction of 1,000 feet of new board walk, to replace the worst portion of the present walk, and the entire distance will be thoroughly gone over, and such parts of the walk as need repair will be given attention.

Contractor W. F. Kilton this week began work on the construction of the 1,000 feet of new walk, strting at Sixty-ninth avenue and Tacony street and proceeding west up the hill. The walk has long been a cause of suffering to those having occasion to use it, and the beginning of repair work is viewed with pleasure.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. Emil Krsons of Sixty-third avenue west was surprised at her home last evening by a number of her friends. The occasion was the anniversary of her birth and she was presented with a beautiful glass table set. Music was furnished for dancing and a very pleasant evening was spent. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Isaacson, Mr. and Mrs. Matt, Mrs. Minnie Anderson, Mrs. Horman, the Misses Nellie, Grace and Sadie Anderson, Kauppi, Minnie Isaacson, Elmire Johnson, Horman, Caroline, Horman, and Messrs. SUPERIOR NEWS

GIRL BRIDE RELEASED.

Superior Police Permit Mrs. Annie Crafts to Go Free.

Mrs. Annie Crafts, nee Anderson, of Superior, who was arrested Wednesday night in Superior on complaint of her father, was released this afternoon. The father desired her arrest as an argument in favor of her leaving her husband. The latter was the subject of popular clamor in Superior last night, Anderson's neighbors chasing Crafts and his bride for a considerable distance when they returned to Crafts' former home, 3509 Seventeenth street, Superior.

The clamor was due to the fact that Crafts is 36 years of age and the girl only 15. They were married Sept. 24, by Rev. Alexander Milne, on the representation, it is claimed, that the girl was of marriageable age. Crafts eluded the Superior people and police in the chase, but the bride fell exhausted and was captured. Her release by the police today leads to the belief that she has decided to return to her father. Crafts in the meantime has sought parts unknown.

INSPECTING THE ELEVATORS

Building Inspector Making His Semi-Annual Investigation.

The semi-annual inspection of the passenger and freight elevators in the city is being conducted under the supervision of the building inspector, and the report as to the conditions of elevators and those not conforming to the law will be made soon.

There are about 120 elevators in the city and to inspect them carefully requires considerable time and attention to details.

At the last inspection quite a large percentage of elevators were condemned and owners warned to comply with the ordinance.

The failure of owners to meet the requirements means action on the part of the city attorney to compel them to live up to the ordinance.

GOT BEER IN ALLEY.

Sunday Crowd Behind Saloon Made the Police Suspicious.

Roderick McIntosh, bartender for Alex McQuien at 612 West Superior street, was arrested today on a warrant sworn out by Chief Troyer charging him with lifting the lid Sunday. He will have his hearing this afternoon.

Police officers claim that they noticed numerous little groups of men here and there in the rear of the Bowery saloons drinking out of bottles and for a time it was difficult to learn where they were securing their liquor. As soon as a police officer showed up, the groups dispersed and a man was kept on watch to give warning, according to the police.

KILLS BIG BEAR.

The carcass of a monster black bear weighing considerably over 200 pounds lies in front of a meat market on East Superior street and is the first one killed this season in this vicinity.

A farmer living near Kenwood, about three miles from Duluth, shot the animal and brought it in today.

The berries are about gone and the bears are driven to hustling for food. They are a menace to the lives of chickens and small animals about the farms, and farmers in the vicinity of Kenwood are loading up their rifles preparing to settle the career of the unwelcome visitors. The farmer who brought in the one killed yesterday stated that he had seen several others recently and that they seemed more numerous than in times past.

CHILDREN WERE SIGHT-SEEING

"My name's Josephine Ethel Morris and Me and Georgie just wanted to come up town, so we did," and a bright-eyed little girl who was picked up on Lake avenue near Superior street nodded her head and munched the big apple the kind-hearted officer gave her, with much satisfaction.

The children, a little boy about 3 years of age, a girl probably two years his senior, live on Thirty-eighth street, Park Point, and the long walk to where they were picked up by Officer Dickman did not seem to bother them in the least.

It must have been fully three miles that the children walked in the dripping rain on their way "tummin up town" as the little girl expressed it.

Their parents were informed where they were and came after them this afternoon. The children made friends readily with the police officer and they were filled up on candy, apples and pears to their hearts' content.

Washington, Oct. 3. — Twice victorious over Washington yesterday afternoon, coupled with the defeat of Philadelphia by the Clevelands, Detroit lacks only a fraction of a per cent of being the undisputed champions of 1907. Already Manager Jennings and his men are hailed as the victors, and last night they were overwhelmed with congratulations from all points in the American league circuit and elsewhere. Their almost unexampled exploit in going into "the enemies' country" and bringing a close and stubbornly fought contest to a successful issue compels admiration in every quarter, and it is felt here in Washington, at least, that the team which will battle for world championship honors this year measures fully up to that which lowered the colors of the National league champions last year.

In virtually winning the American league championship yesterday Detroit fairly outplayed Washington. Fifteen men were in the line up for the local team, first and last, but they could not stop the Tigers at any stage of the eighteen innings played. Manager Jennings selected Killian to pitch the first game, but after three innings he retired in favor of Mullin, who finished the game so well that he came back and pitched the second game in even better form. Four Washington twirlers in turn faced the Detroits in the opening game, but they all looked alike to the coming champions, and each was touched up sharply.

Oberlin was the last of the quartette to try to stem the tide, and he was again sent in for the last half of the doubleheader. He lasted but one inning, the visitors scoring three runs off four hits. Charley Smith, who also had figured in the box earlier in the day, finished the game. He was hit safely thirteen times. Cobb's base running was the feature. He stole four bases in the first game. Schaefer led the winners at the stick, getting eight hit, four in each game. Cobb was a close second with seven Blankenship batted wet for the locals, luling off six hits, three in each game.

Athletics Lose.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The chances of the Philadelphia Americans winning the championship were lessened yesterday by their defeat at the hands of Cleveland. They still have a chance, although practically a hopeless one, to land the flag. For Philadelphia to win the pennant, Detroit must lost two of its four remaining games, while Philadelphia must win all five on its schedule. This would give Philadelphia the pennant by a fraction of a per cent.

The home team yesterday fought every inch of the ground to stave off defeat, but the steadiness of Thielman when men were on bases proved too great a stumbling block. Plank outpitched Thielman but Cleveland's hits were most opportune. Cleveland took the lead at the start and was never headed.

OLIVE S. IS A WINNER

Classy Little Pacer Has Made $500 for Her Owner.

Capt. Stevens Was Willing to Sell Her for $150.

Capt. D. E. Stevens, owner of the pacer, Olive S., and Fly, a running horse, last evening received a telephone message from Iron River, Wis., to the effect that the horses had won the events in which they were entered there yesterday. The victory of both horses is a notable one, as some of the best talent in Wisconsin is entered in the races at Iron River, which will continue today.

Olive S. has about as good a record on the track this year as any horse Duluth has sent out on the Minnesota and Wisconsin tracks. At Hibbing last week, Olive S. took down two firsts and a second, with some of the best horses of her class entered.

Good judges of horse flesh agree that she is a comer. She travels smoothly and with a good man behind can show the way to many horses with better marks. Up to this year, her racing possibilities had not attracted any attention, even from her owner. She was placed at the West end driving park this spring with the Elliott & Runquist string and under the able training of Lor Matthews has developed into a classy pacer.

"Olive S.' performances this year have surprised me," said Capt. Stevens, when he heard of yesterday's results. "I didn't think she had the speed in her. Last spring, just about $150 would have taken her off my hands, but there was nobody to offer that amount. So I placed her in Matthews' charge and was soon given to understand that she was worth something. In the early matinee at the West end park, she showed good form, and her performance at Hibbing last week gave me faith in her. She has earned about $500, net, for me this season and I think I am very fortunate I did not let her go for a small sum last spring."

DAY FOR FAVORITES.

Fifth Race, Feature at Latonia Taken in Drive by Colloquy.

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Favorites won four of the seven races at Latonia yesterday. The fifth event, a handicap for all ages, was the feature. Colloquy, the favorite, with 125 pounds up, won the race in a drive from Lens, with Miss Sain third.

The track was good.

COLTON NOT AN OPTIMIST

"I can't say that the outlook is any too promising. Shy on a punter, weak in a few spots in the line, and with most of the boys sore and stiff from the Two Harbors game and the hard practice necessary to drill them in the different plays, the team I send against Ashland Saturday will not be a world-beater," was the statement of Coach Colton of the Central high school football squad, last evening.

The failure to develop a punter is worrying the coach. McDevitt of last year was an exceptional punter, and his loss is felt keenly. Colton has tried several of the boys, but none seem to be able to come up to the required standard. Cook, a husky boy with a fair ability to boot the ball, was tried out at full back, last evening, and given plenty of opportunity to punt, but Colton wasn't altogether satisfied with his work. He will keep at it, however, until he does find a man, or develop one, who will be able to send the ball away quickly, and for distance.

Colton is not sparing the boys. He isn't a bit optimistic, and good, hard work on the part of the squad is the only thing to satisfy him. He has the first team sail into the remainder of the squad every evening and he keeps them right on the go. The gang lined up against the first team in scrimmage work is by no means weak, and the men on the first team are getting their full amount of work every evening.

Last evening the team was lined up as follows: Center, McComber; Quinn and Helmer, guards; Paine and Crawford, tackles; McFadden and Ostergren, ends; Caulkins, quarter; Bowen and Cummings, halves, and Cook, full back. The eleven were put through stiff signal practice and scrimmage work, and they came out of it in good shape. Tonight more hard practice will be given them, but tomorrow evening the work will be lighter.

Reports from Ashland are disconcerting, to say the least. The Ashland squad is undoubtedly strong, and the supporters of the Central aren't doing any crowing. They are hoping, but claiming nothing, and Colton says only the best that his team can give will count for anything.

FAVORITE IS BEATEN.

Sewell, 10 to 1 Shot, Takes Mercury Handicap at Brighton Beach.

Brighton Beach, Oct. 3.—Sewell, a 10 to 1 shot, won the Mercury handicap, six furlongs, at Brighton Beach yesterday, in the fast time of 1:12 2-5. Bat Masterson, a long shot, cut out a fast pace to the stretch where Sewell took command and won by a length. Suffrage, the even money favorite, ran a bad race.

DULL PERIOD IS AT HAND

Iron Trade Adjusting Itself to Meet Coming Conditions.

Cleveland, Oct. 3.—The Iron Trade Review says: Slowly and without any approach to panicky feeling the iron trade is adjusting for a comparatively dull period and the hope that there will be no serious depression in business. Buying by some interests is undeniably light, and it is probable that orders placed by railroads will decrease as the diminished tonnage of iron and steel products to be hauled releases rolling stock and decreases the demand for new cars.

It is expected that large orders for steel rails will be placed after the new rail specifications are agreed upon by the joint committee which has been considering them for some time.

Conditions in this country are reflected in England and there seems to be a world wide tedency toward decreased activity in the iron and steel business. Export business is, however, showing indications of improvement. An inquiry is peding for 20,000 tons of rails for Turkey, with the prospect that bridge material will be shipped to Chili, China and Japan.

Increasing willingness of manufacturers to close plants for needed repairs is shown in many instances.

The pig iron market continues very quiet with sales limited almost entirely to small lots. There are, however, some inquiries for round tonnages of basic, both in the Pittsburg and New York districts, and consumers are finding difficulty in placing their orders. Orders for structural material last month amounted to more than 120,000 tons, of which only about one-fourth went to the principal producers.

WOMAN GETS DAMAGES.

Jury Awards Klara Lindstrom $300 Against Railway Company.

Klara Lindstrom was awarded $300 damages against the South Shore road in a verdict returned in district court yesterday afternoon. She sued for $1,000 damages.

The plaintiff alleged that she was compelled to ride in a baggage car, on account of the crowded condition of the train, and contracted a severe cold.

The damage case of Pasquale Calo against the Greer Construction company and others was dismissed in Judge Ensign's room, yesterday. The action had been started against the wrong people. Calo wanted $50,000 damages for injuries received in being hit on the head with a rock blown out of an adjoining mine by the force of an explosion.

SHOT FOR BEAR.

Northern Michigan Man Filled With Buckshot by Hunter.

Stager, Mich., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Italian, name unknown, was picked up by the crew of a Northwestern freight train, near here, in a badly wounded condition. He was taken to Florence, Wis., and placed in a hospital. His body is filled with buckshot, and it is believed that the man was in an intoxicated condition, and while lying near the track some hunter in the darkness mistook him for a bear and shot him. The man will probably die.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

With a roar like that of a cannon a big meteor fell in the mountains back of Elizabethville, Pa., Tuesday night, setting fire to the forest and frightening hundreds of people. The roar and following report as the meteor struck the earth were heard all over the northern end of Dauphin county.

Clark Steen, one of the accountants who investigated the $116,000 shortage recently in State Tax Clerk Letten's books at New Orleans, has disappeared under suspicious circumstances. Clothing identified as his was found in an empty skiff in Lake Ponchartrain with a note indicating that he had committed suicide.

Secretary Root and his party continued to be the recipients of the lavish hospitality and bounteous attentions which have been accorded them since their arrival in the republic of Mexico.

Vice President Fairbanks spent Wednesday in Louisville, Ky., having visited the city for the purpose of attending the horse show. He was the guest of Mr. John Middleton, who gave a luncheon in his honor, and also a box party at the horse show last night, where the vice president was the recipient of many attentions.

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

S. S. S. is the only safe and reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and in addition to curing this vile disorder, S. S. S. builds up every part of the system. Mercury and potash cannot cure the trouble; they can only mask it in the system for awhile, and when they are left off the disease returns, usually, in worse form than before, and the patient finds he has damaged his health with these strong minerals, which disease the delicate lining of the stomach, affect the bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia and often set up Mercurial Rheumatism. It will not do to trifle with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day it remains in the blood it is progressing toward a dangerous stage, and will in the end get beyond the control of any treatment. S. S. S. cures blood poison in the right way, it goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of the virus. No bad results are ever experienced from the use of S. S. S. It is gentle and pleasant in its action, and forty years of cures warrant the statement that S. S. S. is not only a safe but a certain treatment. Washington, Oct. 3. — Twice victorious over Washington yesterday afternoon, coupled with the defeat of Philadelphia by the Clevelands, Detroit lacks only a fraction of a per cent of being the undisputed champions of 1907. Already Manager Jennings and his men are hailed as the victors and last night they were overwhelmed with congratulations from all points in the American league circuit and elsewhere. In virtually winning the American league championship yesterday Detroit fairly outplayed Washington. Manager Jennings selected Killian to pitch the first game, but after three innings he retired in favor of Mullin, who finished the game so well that he came back and pitched the second game in even better form. Four Washington twirlers in turn faced the Detroits in the opening game, but they all looked alike to the coming champions, and each was touched up sorely.

Oberlin was the last of the quartette to try to stem the tide, and he was again sent in for the last half of the doubleheader. He lasted but one inning, the visitors scoring three runs off four hits. Charley Smith, who also had figured in the box earlier in the day, finished the game. He was hit safely thirteen times. Cobb's base running was the feature. He stole four bases in the first game. Schaefer led the winners at the stick, getting eight hits, four in each game. Cobb was a close second with seven Blankenship batted well for the locals, piling off six hits, three in each game.

Athletics Lose.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The chances of the Philadelphia Americans winning the championship were lessened yesterday by their defeat at the hands of Cleveland. They still have a chance, although practically a hopeless one, to land the flag. For Philadelphia to win the pennant, Detroit must lost two of its four remaining games, while Philadelphia must win all five on its schedule. This would give Philadelphia the pennant by a fraction of a per cent.

The home team yesterday fought every inch of the ground to stave off defeat, but the steadiness of Thielman when men were on bases proved too great a stumbling block. Plank outpitched Thielman but Cleveland's hits were most opportune. Cleveland took the lead at the start and was never headed.

OLIVE S. IS A WINNER

Capt. Stevens Was Willing to Sell Her for $150.

Capt. D. E. Stevens, owner of the pacer, Olive S., and Fly, a running horse, last evening received a telephone message from Iron River, Wis., to the effect that the horses had won the events in which they were entered there yesterday. The victory of both horses is a notable one, as some of the best talent in Wisconsin is entered in the races at Iron River, which will continue today.

Olive S. has about as good a record on the track this year as any horse Duluth has sent out on the Minnesota and Wisconsin tracks. At Hibbing last week, Olive S. took down two firsts and a second, with some of the best horses of her class entered.

Good judges of horse flesh agree that she is a comer. She travels smoothly and with a good man behind can show the way to many horses with better marks. Up to this year, her racing possibilities had not attracted any attention, even from her owner. She was placed at the West end driving park this spring with the Elliott & Runquist string and under the able training of Lon Matthews has developed into a classy pacer.

"Olive S." performances this year have surprised me," said Capt. Stevens, when he heard of yesterday's results. "I didn't think she had the speed in her. Last spring, just about $150 would have taken her off my hands, but there was nobody to offer that amount. So I placed her in Matthews' charge and was soon given to understand that she was worth something. In the early matinee at the West end park, she showed good form, and her performance at Hibbing last week gave me faith in her. She has earned about $500, net, for me this season and I think I am very fortunate I did not let her go for a small sum last spring."

DAY FOR FAVORITES.

Fifth Race, Feature at Latonia Taken in Drive by Colloquy.

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Favorites won four of the seven races at Latonia yesterday. The fifth event, a handicap for all ages, was the feature. Colloquy, the favorite, with 125 pounds up, won the race in a drive from Lens, with Miss Sain third.

The track was good.

COLTON NOT AN OPTIMIST

"I can't say that the outlook is any too promising. Shy on a punter, weak in a few spots in the line, and with most of the boys sore and stiff from the Two Harbors game and the hard practice necessary to drill them in the different plays, the team I send against Ashland Saturday will not be a world-beater," was the statement of Coach Colton of the Central high school football squad, last evening.

The failure to develop a punter is worrying the coach. McDevitt of last year was an exceptional punter, and his loss is felt keenly. Colton has tried several of the boys, but none seem to be able to come up to the required standard. Cook, a husky boy with a fair ability to boot the ball, was tried out at full back, last evening, and given plenty of opportunity to punt, but Colton wasn't altogether satisfied with his work. He will keep at it, however, until he does find a man, or develop one, who will be able to send the ball away quickly, and for distance.

Colton is not sparing the boys. He isn't a bit optimistic, and good, hard work on the part of the squad is the only thing to satisfy him. He has the first team sail into the remainder of the squad every evening and he keeps them right on the go. The gang lined up against the first team in scrimmage work is by no means weak, and the men on the first team are getting their full amount of work every evening.

Last evening the team was lined up as follows: Center, McComber; Quinn and Helmer, guards; Paine and Crawford, tackles; McFadden and Ostergren, ends; Caulkins, quarter; Bowen and Cummings, halves, and Cook, full back. The eleven were put through stiff signal practice and scrimmage work, and they came out of it in good shape. Tonight more hard practice will be given them, but tomorrow evening the work will be lighter.

Reports from Ashland are disconcerting, to say the least. The Ashland squad is undoubtedly strong, and the supporters of the Central aren't doing any crowing. They are hoping, but claiming nothing, and Colton says only the best that his team can give will count for anything.

FAVORITE IS BEATEN.

Brighton Beach, Oct. 3.—Sewell, a 10 to 1 shot, won the Mercury handicap, six furlongs, at Brighton Beach yesterday, in the fast time of 1:12 2-5. Bat Masterson, a long shot, cut out a fast pace to the stretch where Sewell took command and won by a length. Suffrage, the even money favorite, ran a bad race.

DULL PERIOD IS AT HAND

Iron Trade Adjusting Itself to Meet Coming Conditions.

Cleveland, Oct. 3.—The Iron Trade Review says: Slowly and without any approach to panicky feeling the iron trade is adjusting for a comparatively dull period and the hope that there will be no serious depression in business. Buying by some interests is undeniably light, and it is probable that orders placed by railroads will decrease as the diminished tonnage of iron and steel products to be hauled releases rolling stock and decreases the demand for new cars.

It is expected that large orders for steel rails will be placed after the new rail specifications are agreed upon by the joint committee which has been considering them for some time.

Conditions in this country are reflected in England and there seems to be a world wide tedency toward decreased activity in the iron and steel business. Export business is, however, showing indications of improvement. An inquiry is peding for 20,000 tons of rails for Turkey, with the prospect that bridge material will be shipped to Chili, China and Japan.

Increasing willingness of manufacturers to close plants for needed repairs is shown in many instances.

The pig iron market continues very quiet with sales limited almost entirely to small lots. There are, however, some inquiries for round tonnages of basic, both in the Pittsburg and New York districts, and consumers are finding difficulty in placing their orders. Orders for structural material last month amounted to more than 120,000 tons, of which only about one-fourth went to the principal producers.

WOMAN GETS DAMAGES.

Jury Awards Klara Lindstrom $300 Against Railway Company.

Klara Lindstrom was awarded $300 damages against the South Shore road in a verdict returned in district court yesterday afternoon. She sued for $1,000 damages.

The plaintiff alleged that she was compelled to ride in a baggage car, on account of the crowded condition of the train, and contracted a severe cold.

The damage case of Pasquale Calo against the Greer Construction company and others was dismissed in Judge Ensign's room, yesterday. The action had been started against the wrong people. Calo wanted $50,000 damages for injuries received in being hit on the head with a rock blown out of an adjoining mine by the force of an explosion.

SHOT FOR BEAR.

Northern Michigan Man Filled With Buckshot by Hunter.

Stager, Mich., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Italian, name unknown, was picked up by the crew of a Northwestern freight train, near here,, in a badly wounded condition. He was taken to Florence, Wis., and placed in a hospital. His body is filled with buckshot, and it is believed that the man was in an intoxicated condition, and while lying near the track some hunter in the darkness mistook him for a bear and shot him. The man will probably die.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Secretary Root and his party continued to be the recipients of the lavish hospitality and bounteous attentions which have been accorded them since their arrival in the republic of Mexico.

Vice President Fairbanks spent Wednesday in Louisville, Ky., having visited the city for the purpose of attending the horse show. He was the guest of Mr. John Middleton, who gave a luncheon in his honor, and also a box party at the horse show last night, where the vice president was the recipient of many attentions.

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

S. S. S. is the only safe and reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and in addition to curing this vile disorder, S. S. S. builds up every part of the system. Mercury and potash cannot cure the trouble; they can only mask it in the system for awhile, and when they are left off the disease returns, usually, in worse form than before, and the patient finds he has damaged his health with these strong minerals, which disease the delicate lining of the stomach, affect the bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia and often set up Mercurial Rheumatism. It will not do to trifle with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day it remains in the blood it is progressing toward a dangerous stage, and will in the end get beyond the control of any treatment. S. S. S. cures blood poison in the right way, it goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of the virus. No bad results are ever experienced from the use of S. S. S. It is gentle and pleasant in its action, and forty years of cures warrant the statement that S. S. S. is not only a safe but a certain treatment. Home treatment book on this disease and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

DESERTERS' DIRECTORY

"Yellow Book" Being Compiled by Striking Telegraphers.

Local Union Official Will Patch Up Michigan Trouble.

The striking telegraphers of Duluth are going to invade Upper Michigan in an effort to boost their side of the controversy with the Commercial telegraphers.

Upon the suggestion of General Secretary Wesley Russell of the Commercial Telegraphers of America, Richard Jones, the local secretary-treasurer, will probably take a journey down the South Shore tomorrow or next day and mend some of the strikers' fences.

He will go first to Marquette and get an understanding with the operators there. It is said that they never went out there, because they never received official orders to do so. They are ready to strike, but were cagrined because official notice to do so was not given them.

Judging from the advices they are receiving from all over the country, the telegraphers' cause is progressing. Word was received at the local strike headquarters today from Dallas, Texas, saying that the attorney general of that state was about to begin legal proceedings against the Western Union and Postal companies, to make them show cause why their charters in the Lone Star state should not be revoked.

"At the national headquarters in Chicago, a 'yellow book,' containing the names and an appropriate sketch about each deserter from the strikers' ranks and other 'scabs' is being compiled," said Richard Jones, secretary of the local union today.

"The volume, when completed, which will be interesting, will be placed in the hands of all the unions in the country. We cannot easily forget those who have betrayed us. The book will undoubtedly contain one or two interesting items from Duluth."

SENATOR BORAH IS ACQUITTED

Verdict of the Jury Very Popular With People of Boise.

Boise, Oct. 3.—United States Senator William A. Borah last night was acquitted of the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government out of valuable Idaho timber lands.

The case was submitted yesterday without argument on the part of the defense, and the jury was out just long enough to take one ballot. The verdict was greeted by cheers and applause, which the court officers made no effort to restrain. This demonstration in the court room served only as a beginning. As soon as the news reached the outside, bells were rung, and the fire department made a spectacular run through the principal streets, stopping eventually at the Idaho hotel, where Senator Borah, surrounded by several hundred of his fellow citizens, was escorted.

A brass band appeared as if by magic as the senator reached the hotel steps, and played "Hail to the Chief."

The streets about the hotel were blocked by a cheering throng, whose shouts mingled in the strain of the fire engine whistles and the clang of trolley bells. Senator Borah thanked the people for the demonstration and the confidence they had reposed in him throughout the trial.

At the Idaho hotel a demonstration for Senator Borah was introduced by James B. Hawley, counsel for the defense.

Senator Borah said it was now a proper time for him to express his opinion of the events of the last three months.

"I have felt the humiliation deeply," he continued, "especially because of the manner in which the name of my dead friend, Frank Steunenberg, has been brought into the case. I am glad to say I was his friend—the friend of a man who gave up his life for his state and his country. Political capital has been, or tried to be, made out of my indictment, but I am glad to say some of my staunchest friends during this trial have come from the other side. The only reason I was indicted appears to have been that I was the friend of Frank Steunenberg. Again I say to you I am proud of the honor of that friendship. But there are always some hyenas about who delight in the defamation of the dead.

Yesterday was a banner day for Carlton county.

The first carload of wheat ever shipped out of Carlton county arrived in Duluth yesterday consigned to the Van Dusen-Harrington company.

It was spring wheat, 645 bushels in all, raised by Martin Hanson, a well known Carlton county farmer, residing on section 44, 48-17, about six miles south of Carlton.

Mr. Hanson received something over $1 per bushel for his wheat, which he claims is a far better grade than he formerly raised on his farm in Marshall county, Iowa.

This is not the first time that wheat has been shipped to Duluth from northern counties, as there have been numerous occasions when a small quantity was sold to the Duluth market. It it the first time, however, that a whole carload has been shipped here and the Carlton county farmers and those who are handling farm lands in that county are sitting up and taking notice of the fact.

TRAFFIC IS VERY LARGE

Interstate Bridge Ferry Transfers 1,500,000 People in Year.

Only Two Minor Accidents Since Service Was Established.

Since the interstate bridge, connecting Duluth and Superior, was put out of commission, a year ago Aug. 15 last, 1,500,000 people have been ferried across between the street car lines of the two cities. About 125,000 people are transferred per month.

Capt. D. E. Stevens, who operates the ferry, says that with all this heavy traffic he handles with his boats, there has not been a serious accident. In fact, there have been but two accidents, two drunken men having fallen overboard. These were rescued without difficulty and suffered nothing from the ducking.

Considering the fact that the ferry operates across what is termed the "gate" to the upper bay and river, a point where four channels meet and boats are constantly passing during the season of navigation, the record established by Capt. Stevens is a good one. Only five weeks during last winter, when the tug was laid up for repairs, was the ferry out of service.

Last evening the tug Pacific was put back on the ferry service at the interstate bridge, after being in drydock nearly all summer. The Pacific has almost been rebuilt. She has a new hull, resheathed with steel, which protection will place her in trim for ice breaking this winter, as Capt. Stevens intends to maintain the ferry service without interruption during the winter months. Besides the new hull, the tug has undergone a large number of improvements. A new cabin has been constructed which is heated with steam. The floors and the rail of the tug have been covered with strips of the heavy belting used in the elevators at the Head of the Lakes. The belting is made of rubber and cotton and will, it is claimed, do away with the slippery condition on the boat during wet weather.

During the summer the tug Minnie Carl handled the ferry business while the Pacific was in drydock.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

IT MAY PROVE WHAT YOU NEED

Thousands Will Benefit If Statement Made is True.

It may be that some persons will be inclined to doubt the statement made by an eminent authority, at a recent meeting, that with a mixture of dandelion, kargon and sarsaparilla, he would give prompt relief to any sufferer of rheumatism or the usual forms of backache, caused by inactive clogged kidneys, yet many cases of long standing that had been entirely relieved were cited to prove the truth of his assertion. The same authority further stated that many cases which failed to yield to the healing waters of the famous health resorts, or the usual remedies as prescribed, salicylate of soda, potash, colchicum, etc.—were readily relieved by the use of this simple mixture—Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful dose after meals and at bedtime.

A well known druggist, when approached upon the subject, stated that while this prescription, as written, is new, the ingredients are continually prescribed by the best physicians, and any good prescription pharmacy has them; they are inexpensive and harmless to use, and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

If the claims made for this mixture, are only partly correct, it would seem that no sufferer here could afford to leave the prescription untried.

MINNESOTA

TO RECLAIM U. S. LANDS

Ditch to be Dug Between Rapid River and Red Lake.

Government Engineers at Present Working on Feasable Plan.

Spooner, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Minnesota government lands are to be drained in accordance with Congressman Steenerson's homestead bill. The United States geological survey has been at work for a couple of months taking the different altitudes along Rainy river and tributaries. Engineer Alfred P. Meade on the United States drainage survey has given out some of the details of the work accomplished. The drainage survey is a part of the United States geological survey.

A main ditch will be dug from Rapid river to Red Lake. Rapid river is a distance of eight miles east from Spooner. The ditch proposed for construction will have a lock at the upper end, which will be in use during excessive rainfall. Into this main ditch, lateral ditches will be dug, into which they can empty their supply of water. This plan of survey is feasible as Red Lake has an altitude of 1,172 feet, while Lake of the Woods has an altitude of 1,061 feet.

Some of the altitudes of the towns along the Canadian Northern railway, which have been found, are: Spooner, 1,081 feet; Pitt, 1,109 feet; Graceton, 1,149 feet; Williams, 1,155 feet; and Roosevelt, 1,164 feet. Altitudes have also been taken of Winterroad lake. Along the south side of Winterroad river to Pitt, a distance of eighteen miles, is a fall in the neighborhood of 120 feet.

Engineer Meade will proceed to estimate the altitudes from Rainy river to Red lake.

COAL NEAR ST. CLOUD.

Company Organized to Thoroughly Prospect John Guhl's Farm.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A company composed entirely of local parties has taken an option on the 240-acre farm of John Guhl, section 28, town of St. Wendel. The company expects to prospect for coal. The option is taken for a period of one year and if coal is discovered in large enough quantities to pay working, will be purchased at a price of $100 an acre.

Coal was discovered on the Guhl farm some weeks ago.

For some years past there has been a report that there was a deposit of coal on the property. No investigation was ever made, however. A few weeks ago two well diggers from this city were sinking a well at the farm. After going about a hundred feet they struck a layer of coal. The deposit was about fifteen feet in thickness. The well diggers sent a sample of the coal to the state laboratory for an assay and were later informed that the deposit showed a good grade of coal. Minneapolis parties became interested and were making preparations to take an option on the property. The local company, however, are on the ground floor and succeeded in getting the first crack at the property. It is the plan of the local men to make an investigation immediately.

SHOT AND BLED TO DEATH.

August Tolefson, 18-Year-Old Boy, Killed Near Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—August, the 18-year-old son of Ole Tolefson, a farmer in the town of Nokay Lake, was accidentally shot while hunting on Tuesday evening. He was in a boat and attempted to pull a gun over the seat by the barrel. The charge struck his left leg above the knee, severing an artery and he bled to death before he could be got to a surgeon. His father is in North Dakota harvesting. His mother died four years ago.

WISCONSIN

FIND A FORTUNE IN MISER'S HUT

Too Stingy to Live Decently Was Lander Merrick.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fifty years the life of a miser, then dying among strangers and possessed of a fortune of many thousand dollars was the story of the life of Lander E. Merrick, who died here Tuesday.

The old man came to Kenosha county in 1840 and lived in the town of Randall until two years ago, when officials found him nearly starved and took charge of him and his property.

A guardian was appointed, and when the hut which he had occupied, was searched $35,000 in cash and securities was found. George W. Eldridge of Richmond, Ill., former state senator, a nephew, will receive a portion of the estate.

CHIPPEWA FALLS WILL HAVE BIG SANITARIUM.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the efforts of the Progressive league of this city, assisted by Dr. Clarke Gapen of Madison, Wis., Chippewa Falls will soon be the site of one of the largest and most modern sanitariums in the United States. The plans, made by Architects Claude & Starke of Madison have been approved by the league, and Dr. Gapen is now at work on a prospectus of the institution.

The sanitarium will cost about a quarter of a million dollars, and will be so constructed that additions can be made to it from time to time. The plans are unique and original, combining the elements of the country residence and health inn. The name, "Greenway Court, a Health Inn," which Dr. Gapen has suggested, but which has not as yet been definitely adopted, gives some idea of the character of the proposed structure.

CLOSE INDIAN SCHOOL.

NO FREE LUNCHES.

St. Paul Council Passes Ordinance Forbidding Them Over Mayor's Veto.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Paul's anti-free lunch ordinance stands, at least so far as the board of aldermen is concerned, as that body by a vote of nine to three has passed it over Mayor Smith's veto. All of the aldermen were present when this action was had. A petition signed by forty-five saloonkeepers against the ordinance was presented. Attorney G. B. O'Reilly, who presented the petition said the ordinance savored of government paternalism and interfered with the rights of a citizen to conduct his business as he saw fit.

Alderman Tiffany claimed that the working of such an ordinance had been successful in Minneapolis, where Mayor Jones said it kept many from saloons who went there to get something to eat. President Rohrbeck of the Retail Liquor Dealers' association spoke for the ordinance as a sanitary measure claiming the butchers worked off their inferior meats on saloonmen. It is expected the validity of the ordinance will be tested in the courts.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Duluth Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Letitie Cole of 467 Mesaba avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I am pleased to repeat what I have said again and again recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Five or six years ago, when suffering from disorders of the kidneys, which had become aggravated by over-exertion and severe colds, I looked about in vain for a long time for relief, trying many different remedies which were recommended to me, but not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills did I find the long-sought for benefit. The first dose or two helped me, and I continued taking them until the heavy, aching through my back and kidneys was gone, and the kidney secretions had become natural. The treatment improved my health in every way, and the results have been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SECURES LEASES ON CUYUNA RANGE

Pittsburg Man Interested in Crow Wing Iron Lands.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—There have been filed in the office of the register of deeds four mining leases that mean much for the development of the iron mines in Crow Wing county. The leases are identical, except in the descriptions, and cover according to the government surveys 993 acres in the town of Allen. The leases which were executed by George W. MacMurphy of Pierce county, Wis., as lessor, and E. M. Hukill of Pittsburg, Pa., as lease, and provide that there shall be a payment of 30 cents per ton royalty and a minimum of 100,000 tons the first year, 140,000 each the second and third years, and 200,000 tons each year thereafter during the life of the lease, which is fifty years.

Mr. Hukill, the lessee, is a veteran capitalist of the Smoky City, and has been for over a quarter of a century prominent in the development of the iron, coal, petroleum and gas industries of Pennsylvania. His advent into the Cuyuna range is another strong indication of the faith Eastern men have in the Cuyuna range.

Mr. Hukill has made several visits to this section the past few months and though very reticent as to his plans it was known that he was investigating the MacMurphy lands.

VALUABLE BRIDLE.

Made in Montana Prison and Sent to St. Cloud to be Raffled.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — Sheriff B. J. Moritz has received a bridle from a prisoner at the Deer Lodge, Mont., prison which he valued at $300. The bridle was made by George Schmitt, who claims he formerly lived in this city and heard of Mr. Moritz. He was arrested at Butte, about a year ago charged with assault and was convicted and sent to the state penitentiary. Schmitt wants the sheriff to raffle the bridle.

The piece of harness is made completely of horse hair. It is a piece of work which to those who have seen it seems impossible for a man to make by hand. One man stated that if the bridle is sold for $250 the maker will not receive over 50 cents a day for his labor.

PLENTY OF CARS SAYS LOUIS HILL

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—When President Louis Hill of the Great Northern was here Monday, after looking over the new Aneta cut-off, he spoke enthusiastically about his system being able to handle all business.

"We have 42 per cent more engines than we had eighteen months ago, which means a very much larger per cent of increase in power, and in the same period we have added 10,000 cars to our equipment," said Mr. Hill. "Whatever congestion there may be the coming fall and winter will not be due to an insufficient supply of cars and engines.

"During the past season we have handled more than twice as much coal as a year ago. Local consumers, however, have not yet laid in supplies as largely as they should.

"No new extension work is underway, but a good deal of old extension work is nearing completion, the most important undertaking being the cut-off between Great Falls and Billings. Grading on this line will be finished in December, and operations will begin the early part of 1908. This line runs through some difficult country, but the maximum grade is four-tenths of 1 per cent. It will give us an outlet into Burlington's territory in Nebraska.

"The recently completed Aneta line is also important. We finished the double track work this summer between Rugby and Devils Lake.

"Traffic from the coast will leave our line for the Burlington at Virden, Mont., and traffic this side will have the benefit of the new double track and also five alternate lines radiating southward from the main line, not including the Duluth extension, which makes the sixth alternate line."

ENGINES ARE "DOPED."

Sensational Charges Made Against Striking Boilermakers.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 3.—The Great Northern is finding it most difficult to get some of the trains through during the boilermakers' strike which is now on. It is claimed that the boilers of the engines are being "doped" presumably by the strikers, with some kind of acid, likely muriatic or blue vitriol, which causes the water to foam up and not give off steam. The entire reservoir at Stanley, N. D., has been "doped" and at Minot Sunday a stock train was held up for six hours. Considerable trouble is being caused in the same manner in the local yards, and many of the trains are delayed on that account.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Mayville, N. D.—The tenth annual conference of the Methodist church has commenced here with Bishop Hoague of Evanston, Ill., presiding.

Fargo, N. D.—Manager Weston of the local branch house of the International Harvester company, stated yesterday that the harvester business in his territory of the state was good this year. Not as many sales were made in the central and western parts of the state, but more machines were sold in the Red River valley.

Garretson, S. D.—The Farmers' Elevator company is the name of a new firm in Garretson. The company was organized recenty and has $5,000 capital. J. F. T. Burns is president.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Dr. Mulligan, who has been pursuing advanced work in internal medicine and surgery in Edinburgh, London and Berlin, Germany, has returned and will occupy his old offices over Schlaberg & Griffin's drug store.

Trenton, N. D.—P. A. Wallin, section foreman here on the Great Northern, was struck by No. 3 and instantly killed. He had been drinking heavily and while the rest of the crew were at dinner he went to sleep on the hand-car. He was awakened by No. 3, and was trying to pull the hand-car off the track when his friends warned him to jump. He jumped and landed in front of the engine.

Churchs Ferry, N. D.—The remains of Frank Clarke, the Niles station agent who shot himself, were shipped to his former home at Alden, Minn., for burial. Miss Dye, whose going away induced Clarke to commit the rash act, has returned to her position at Grand Harbor and will abandon her intended trip to the coast.

Pembina, N. D.—A heavy sleet storm prevailed here for a short time Tuesday. Thrashing was delayed again.

FOREIGNERS SCRAMBLE FOR AMERICAN WHEAT

All Former Records on Export Business Are Shattered.

Europe Even Pays the Price for No. 1 Northern.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 3.—Hungry foreign buyers took every offering of American wheat today, and all records for export trade were shattered.

"It was probably the biggest export day America ever saw," said Julius H. Barns of the Ames-Brooks company, and president of the Duluth board. "America probably worked 2,000,000 bushels of grain today for export, and we disposed of 500,000 bushels ourselves. The foreign markets took all offers made of American grain, including durum, Manitoba and even No. 1 northern."

The sale of No. 1 northern wheat for export is a most unusual occurrence, and shows the strength of the foreign markets better than anything else. It is very rarely that this grade of wheat is sought by foreign buyers, on account of its price, and they usually content themselves with durum. Today, however, it was anytaing they could get, and they were willing to pay the price. Of the 500,000 bushels sold from Duluth, it is understood that about one-fifth was No. 1 northern.

With such a heavy foreign demand American consumers are beginning to wonder where the wheat is coming from. The American crop will not allow as much for shipment this year as it did last, and the bulls certainly had their own way with the market today.

Northwestern Canada has very little wheat to offer and the world is looking to the Northwestern states for grain at the present time. Duluth and Minneapolis led the markets today, and there were heavy bulges everywhere. The active options in all the American markets were up more than two points at the close, so strong was the demand from theforeigners. The foreign markets were away up. Liverpool closed 1¼d to 1¼d higher, Antwerp 2½c higher, Berlin 1½c higher, and Budapest 2c higher.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week are estimated at 800,000 bus.

The December option closed 2½c higher in Duluth, 1⅞-2c in Chicago, 2⅛c in Minneapolis and 2-⅛c in New York. The May option closed 2½c higher in Duluth, 2c in Chicago, 2⅛-¼c in Minneapolis and 2¼c in New York.

December corn closed ⅞c higher in Chicago and was unchanged to ⅛d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅜-½c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was a firm undertone to wheat market with values at the immediate start unchanged. There was no particular changes noticeable, but the weaker American cables yesterday caused buyers to hold off. Following the opening there was a sharp advance, prices gaining ¾d with active trading and offerings light. This support was due to unfavorable news from India, the firmness of spot and a cable from Australian shippers who report the outlook as being very unfavorable. Some speculative selling caused a slight reaction, but on the decline bull interests bought freely and sellers became few. The undertone at mid-day was firm, although prices were off ⅛d to ¼d from the high point.

"Corn was quiet with early values ½d to ¾d lower, being influenced by the weaker American cables yesterday and the fact that the general demand was light. Later there was a slight recovery particularly in the distant month due to the strength in wheat."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,062,000 bus., last year, 1,046,000 bus. Shipments, 856,000 bus., last year, 618,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 226,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 971,000 bus., last year, 329,000 bus. Shipments, 871,000 bus.; last year, 261,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 42,000 bus.

In the face of the heavy demand, wheat advanced with active trading in the Duluth market. December wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.07⅛, advanced to $1.07¼, declined to $1.07⅛, rallied to $1.08⅜, went off to $1.08, rallied to $1.08⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of 2¼c over yesterday. May wheat opened 1½c higher at $1.12¼, declined to $1.12, rallied to $1.13¾ and closed at $1.13⅜, a gain of 2½c over yesterday.

Cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2½c over December for No. 1 northern. Durum wheat closed 1¾c higher.

Flax was in big demand during the day and had an advance of more than 4 points over yesterday. Buying was active throughout the session. All the world seemed anxious to buy flax in the Duluth market today and the prices soared. October opened ⅝c higher at $1.27, advanced with active trading to $1.30⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of 4½c over yesterday. November flax opened ¼c higher at $1.25, advanced to $1.29, slumped to $1.27⅞, soared again to $1.29½ and closed at that price, a gain of 4¾c over yesterday.

December flax opened ¼c higher at $1.20, advanced to $1.20⅞, declined to $1.20½, reacted to $1.23¾, declined to $1.22, soared to $1.24 and closed at that price, a gain of 4¼c over yesterday. May flax opened ¾c lower at $1.25, advanced to $1.28, declined to $1.27⅜, reacted to $1.29½ and closed at that price, a gain of 4¼c over yesterday.

The coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong on Higher Cables and Advance on Minneapolis Curb.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The wheat market today opened strong because of an advance of 1d at Liverpool, and higher prices on the Minneapolis curb. The principal buying was by shorts. December wheat opened ⅝c to ¾c higher at 99¾c to 99⅞c and sold at $1. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 729 cars against 541 cars last week and 732 cars one year ago.

The close was strong with December up ⅞@2c at $1.01@¼.

The corn market was firm because of small receipts and the prediction of cold weather in the northwest. December corn opened ¼@⅜c to ½c higher at 57⅝c to 57¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 490 cars with 167 of contract grade.

The close was strong with December ⅞c higher at 58¾@½c.

The oats market was firm along with wheat and corn. December oats opened ⅛@¾c higher at 32c and sold at 32@⅜c. Local receipts were 250 cars.

Chicago to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was a rattling good speculative trade in wheat and an advance of about 2 cents for all months from the close yesterday. The volume of business was not in proportion to the action in prices. The public is not taking a large part in the trade at present and professional leaders who are already long on wheat are doing everything in their power to create bull enthusiasm and give prices as much swell as possible while the foreign situation is strong enough to be a bull help. If the clubs finished here at the close of over 200 boat loads export business proves true no one will care to fight the advance.

Corn prices lost about 1c yesterday and recovered about 1c early today and held firm and steady the rest of the session without any great feature in the market. Sage of the Iowa bureau, says, a great amount of corn in that state was subject to injury when frost came last week. Wet weather over much of the corn belt is the bullish factor. Would buy on breaks if possible.

Oats—There was a little independent action in oats trade. The bull leader from the wheat trade, personal at one time. A large house with Northwest connections bought a round lot of May oats.

Provisions—Weakness in products for several days has been largely due to an absence of support from packers for the near months. Strong grain markets also helped the January stuff.

SHERMAN LAW TOO RADICAL

Is Opinion of Members of Wholesale Druggists' Association.

Denver, Oct. 3.—According to a resolution adopted yesterday by the annual convention of the National Wholesale Druggists' association now in session here, the Sherman anti-trust law "is entirely too radical and should be amended to new legislation enacted to permit reasonable trade agreements." The resolution declares the belief of the association to be that the literal application of the Sherman law will create the greatest possible restraint of trade although that is the condition it is intended to prevent.

The association also declares cocaine to be the most pernicous of all drugs and one of its members suggested that the sales to retailers be limited to an ounce at a time, just enough to use in prescriptions. The National pure food law received hearty support.

Edgar D. Taylor, Richmond, Va., was today elected president, and E. Berger, Tampa, Fla., secretary. William B. Strong, Milwaukee, was named as a member of the board of control.

DECAMPS OWING MANY.

North Dakota Farmer Disposes of His Grain and Takes French Leave.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is much bitterness expressed in the town of Spiritwood, in the eastern part of Stutsman county, over the action of John McDonald, who is said to have taken French leave, while many creditors mourn his departure.

According to the reports that are current in Spiritwood, McDonald sold his wheat, already heavily mortgaged, last Thursday, and started to settle up his accounts, leaving supposedly for Valley City, there to meet a creditor, but since boarding the train he has vanished into thin air.

There is said to be about $2,000 standing against him in amounts from $300 to $1,000 or more, and scattered among merchants, farmers and also a local bank. All of McDonald's goods have been attached by the sheriff. McDonald came to this county about five years ago, working at one time on a road grader, and since then his rise has been rapid.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Started Lower, But Recovered, Closing Dull and Heavy.

Prices Established Quite Generally Above Thursday's Closing Level.

New York, Oct. 3.—Prices started downward under a brisk outpouring of stocks, the usually conspicuous issues leading the the decline. Great Northern preferred, fell 1¼, Canadian Pacific, 2¼; Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway preferred, U. S. Steel and Amalgamated Copper in the neighborhood of a point, and St. Paul, Atchison, Louisville and Nashville, and American Smelting, large fractions. Erie first preferred, rose 1.

Room traders furnished the bulk of the business and as they were mostly arrayed on the bear side the market was without sustaining force, except when they covered. Rallies did not amount to much and prices yielded readily when selling was renewed. Northwestern lost 3¾, Union Pacific and Grandy Mining, 2; Northern Pacific, 1⅝; Minneapolis, St. Paul and S. S. Marie preferred, 1½, and others a point.

There were large sales of stocks for London account, and the firmness of the call money market also was a depressing influence. American Cotton Oil preferred sold at a decline of 6, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Soo, 1⅜. A fractional rally followed the decline. Bonds were easy.

The market closed dull and rather heavy. Prices were established quite generally above yesterday's closing level by the continuance of the recovery. Mexican Central's gain reached 2, Chicago & Alton, 1½; St. Paul and Amalgamated Copper, 1¼, and American Smelting, Anaconda, General Electric, the Sugar stocks and Brooklyn Rapid Transit, 1. Toledo, St. Louis and Western preferred fell 1½, Wabash, 1, and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Soo Ste. Marie preferred, 3.

Stock Gossip.

New York—London sold some 50,000 shares of stocks in New York today and it was reported that Amsterdam and Frankfort also were sellers of stocks here on cabled orders. Private cables to Wall street houses alleged that uneasiness was felt in those foreign markets over the possible effect on the relations between Japan and the United States because of the dispatch of the American battleship fleet to the Pacific. The feeling was said to be based on the tenor of the London dispatches published in New York and recabled abroad.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: It would seem that the bears are rather too bearish in stock market circles in regard to both the industrials and stock market outlook. The professional element who are bearishly inclined dominate the trading at this time and, although they have met with considerable success, they have not, however, been able to dislodge long stock to a sufficient extent to cause short commitment on a very large scale at this level. The future possibilities of standard copper issues should not be lost sight of when selling stocks at this level. It is generally thought that the monetary situation will improve when the October disbursements commence to flow to the financial center.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Oct. 3.—Cattle receipts, 1,000; steady and unchanged. Hogs, 1,200; 10c lower; range $5.40@6.30; bulk, $5.80@5.95. Sheep, 1,000; active and fairly steady and unchanged.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 3.—The cotton market opened steady at 2 to 6 points decline, as the result of weak Liverpool cables, continued favorable weather conditions south, a fresh wave of liquidation and bear pressure. The market late in the forenoon rallied half a dozen points on coverings, influenced by a light Houston estimate. On the recovery wire houses with southern conections again became free sellers. The leading speculative interest estimate the new crop at 13,533,010 bales.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 5 points lower; middling uplands $1.55; middling gulf, 11.80. Sales, 1,450 bales. Futures closed quiet and steady; closing bids: October, 10.67; November, 10.66; December, 10.81; January, 10.87; February, 10.92; March, 10.98; April, 11.02; May, 11.06; June, 11.07; July, 11.12.

Washington, Oct. 3. — Treasury statement: Available cash balance, $239,841,267. Gold coin and bullion, $47,929,727. Gold certificates, $33,560,610.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 3.—Close: Money on call strong, 3@5½ per cent; ruling rate, 5½ per cent; closing bid, 7¼ per cent; offered at 7¾ per cent. Time loans firm; 60 days, 6 per cent; 90 days, 6½ per cent; six months, 6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 7 per cent; sterling exchange weak with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.55@4.85.60 for demand and at $4.82.20@4.82.25 for sixty-day bills; commercial bills, $4.81½@4.81⅝. Bar silver, 66½c. Mexican dollars, 51⅝c. Government bonds easy; railroad bonds easy.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 3.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market quiet. Owing to the high price of all feeds, horse dealers are hesitating and are in doubt as to the trend of the market in the near future. While they have heavy supplies of draft and logging horses on hand at present, they do not care to load up with more until conditions become more settled. Following somewhat lower values rule:

Drafters, extra	$170@255
Drafters, choice	120@170
Drafters, common to good	70@120
Farm mares, extra	165@250

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The weakness in Boston Consolidated was the feature of the market here today. New York seems to be selling this stock freely, and we look for lower prices in it. Greene-Cananea is still going down, and the lawsuit of Old Greene stockholders is causing some liquidation. Butte and Range are very dead, and fluctuate according to the will of the traders. The metal situation is as bad as ever, and the turn has not come yet. However, this is no time to sell stocks, and the rally will come when the banking interests in New York see that Roosevelt has been discredited enough.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: Boston copper shares opened rather weak, although after the opening transactions there was no pressure to sell and on the weakness stocks were well bought. Most of the selling was by traders, especially in Boston Consolidated, where the center of attack seemed to lie. There is no real news to account for the bear attacks made in certain spots, only that traders seem to follow any weakness, however trifling, in Amalgamated.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Fall apples are coming in quite plentiful this week and there is a brisk demand for all of the early fall varieties on the market. H. Knudsen of the Knudsen Fruit company has shipped a fine car of crabapples to Duluth from the Bitter Root valley, Mont., and the same are pronounced to be the best ever seen on this market. They are of the Alexandria variety.

Following are the prices quoted up to noon today, the list being furnished by the secretary of the exchange:

WITNESS SAYS STANDARD FOUGHT UNITED STATES PIPE LINE EVERY STEP

To Prevent Them From Reaching the Atlantic Seaboard.

Brother of Ida Tarbell Gives Evidence in Hearing.

Treasurer Tilford's Memory Bad Concerning a Big Loan.

New York, Oct. 4.—W. W. Tarbell, treasurer of the Pure Oil company and the United States Pipe Line company, testified today in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company. Mr. Tarbell said the Standard fought the United States Pipe line at every step to prevent it from reaching the seaboard with its pipe line. Mr. Tarbell is a brother of Miss Ida Tarbell, who has written extensively of the affairs of the Standard Oil company.

Wesley H. Tilford, treasurer of the Standard, was on the witness stand when the hearing opened today, and Mr. Kellogg questioned him about large advances made by the Anglo-American company, a subsidiary company, to James McDonald, a director of the company.

"Do you know anything about a loan of $2,000,000 made to Mr. McDonald?"

"I do not," replied Mr. Tilford.

"Didn't that loan represent the pur-

TO ELIMINATE THE TRAFFIC

In "White Slaves" in the United States, is Intention.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor, and Frank P. Sargent, commissioner general of immigration, have determined to eliminate the "white slave" traffic from the United States if possible.

On his recent trip through the Northwestern and Pacific coast states, Secretary Straus's attention was directed to the increasing importation of women for immoral purposes. The Japanese and Korean Exclusion league informs him that hundreds of Japanese women were being brought to America surreptitiously and set in practical slavery after their arrival here. It was stated the women were sold by their importers precisely as if they were so many bales of goods.

Secretary Straus ordered a rigid investigation, and it was discovered that the "white slave" traffic was far more widespread than had been suspected, involving the importation into America not only of Japanese women, but of women from France, Austria, and other European countries.

It is proposed to have a careful inquiry instituted in all of the large cities, particularly and a round up of alien immoral women will be made. Those who have not been in the country three years and are found to have been brought here illegally will be arrested and subsequently deported. Before they are returned to their native lands, however, they will be required to furnish evidence against those responsible for the traffic. It is proposed to make examples of such men and women by securing convictions, if possible, and sending them to prison.

EFFECTS OF STRINGENCY

In Money Markets on Contractors to be Investigated.

New York, Oct. 4.—The National Surety company of this city is completing arrangements for a convention here of its agents from all parts of the United States. One of the reasons for this novel gathering is the desire of the company to find out the exact effects of the prevailing money stringency upon the credit of contractors and others who make use of surety company bonds.

Contractors who have taken on big jobs, giving surety company bonds to insure their proper completion, are in many instances finding it hard to finance the work. As the bonding companies are practically behind these contracts, they are deeply interested in the outcome of the tight money market.

MUST FOREGO "PASTIME" OF ATTENDING FUNERALS.

Pottstown, Pa., Oct. 4.—With the record of 3,692 funerals that she has attended, Mrs. Rebecca Wentzel, an octogenarian of this city, who since she was a young woman has been gratifying a peculiar whim to see people buried, must now forego the "pastime" as she called it, because of advanced age and illness.

BOARD OF MISSIONS

Makes Its Annual Report to the Episcopal Convention.

House of Bishops and House of Deputies Meet Together.

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 4.—The general Episcopal convention today observed missionary day. The house of bishops and the house of deputies met in joint session in the hall of the latter at 11 o'clock, the bishops occupying seats on the platform, with Bishop Tuttle presiding. The bishop of Albany, as chairman of the board of missions, presented his triennial report.

Reports were received from the Woman's auxiliary, the Sunday school auxiliary, the American church building fund commission, the American Church Missionary society, and the Church Missions Publishing company. Dr. Arthur S. Lloyd, general secretary of the board of missions, delivered an address on the progress of the churches mission at home and abroad.

After midday prayers for missions, an address was delivered by Dr. Reese E. Alsop, member of the deputation to visit the missions abroad. He spoke of the work being done in the Far East.

George C. Thomas of Philadelphia gave some interesting facts concerning the offerings of missions during the last three years.

Before the joint session today, the house of deputies received the visiting bishops from Canada and Australia. Brief speeches were made.

CANNOT AGREE ON STEEL RAIL

Manufacturers Unable to Make One Demanded by Roads.

Cleveland, Oct. 4.—There is said to be a hitch in the negotiations now in progress looking to the manufacture of a perfect steel rail because the steel rail manufacturers assert they cannot make the rail demanded by the committee of the American Railway association. It is in the chemical composition of the steel that the railway men and the steel makers cannot agree. The railway committee wants a rail low in phosphorus and higher in carbon, with a quarter of the molten mass at the top of the ingot cut off as a "discard."

Further meetings on the subject are to be held, but it is stated that when E. H. Gary calls the general meeting of the railway and steel manufacturers together there will be two reports presented instead of a joint report.

WOMAN BURNS CLOTHES.

Will Have Nothing to Wear When She Leaves Workhouse.

Minneapolis, Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sarah Slater, who is doing time in the Minneapolis workhouse, will find herself in an awful predicament when she leaves the place at the end of her sentence.

Thursday morning the matron left her in a room to wash her clothes, and the prisoner, instead of washing them, jammed the whole outfit into the stove and burned them up.

When her sentence is over, and the workhouse uniform is taken away, what is she going to do?

Sarah was sentenced recently for selling articles on Nicollet avenue.

RICE CROP GOOD.

Tokio, Oct. 4.—The final official forecast of this year's rice crop shows it to be 13½ per cent above the average.

KIDNAPER IS GUILTY

Jury So Finds Anna Jarmuzek, Who Stole Baby.

Jury Asks Clemency for Girl, in Returning Verdict.

St. Paul, Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anna Ouestrusky Jarmuzek, the Minneapolis kidnaper, has been found guilty by a jury and is now awaiting sentence. Anna is the young Polish girl, who startled the Twin Cities by kidnaping the Glaque baby, a youngster only a week old, and taking the child to Superior.

The girl, who is evidently weak-minded, showed no outward signs of distress when the verdict was read, but she broke down and wept when the jail was reached. She declared then that she did not intend to steal the baby, that she only wanted to borrow it.

In returning the verdict, the jury asked for clemency for the prisoner. Her explanation was that she borrowed the child for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation between herself and husband. She wanted to make him believe that it was her own baby.

Because of the known mental weakness of the young woman, the verdict was a surprise to many.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN WAITING

Private Coaches for Southern Trip Arrive at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—President Roosevelt's special train, when he leaves Memphis early tonight, will be run over the line of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain railway system. The train, consisting of three coaches, which was used by the president on his trip from Washington to Keokuk, reached Memphis this morning, via St. Louis. Attached to the train will be the private cars of Vice President Clark and General Manager Sullivan of the Iron Mountain road. All arrangements connected with the trip are in the keeping of Passenger Traffic Manager C. L. Stone.

The train will run direct to Lake Providence, La., where a short stop will be made at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. The train will then proceed to Alsatia, La., a small way station, where the cars will be side tracked. Here horses and guides will be awaiting the visitors, and the trip to the camp will be begun immediately upon the arrival.

Besides several railway officials, only a few friends will accompany the president on this trip. Among these will be his host, John McIlhenny, and Representative Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana. A pilot engine will precede the presidential train over the entire route.

THREE HUNDRED LIVES LOST AND MORE THAN 13,000 BUILDINGS BURNED

In the Great Fire Which Destroyed City of Hakodate.

Worse Calamity Than the Earthquake at San Francisco.

Forty-Five Thousand Persons Shelterless With Winter Coming.

Boston, Oct. 4.—The great fire which recently destroyed four-fifths of the city of Hakodate, the capital and the metropolis of Hokkaido, Japan, was a far greater calamity to the Nippon empire than the San Francisco earthquake was to the United States, according to an account of the conflagration received by Rev. James L. Barton, secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, whose headquarters are in this city. Rev. Dr. Barton received a detailed statement from the board's representatives in Hokkaido, Rev. George M. Rowland, D. D. Rev. Rowland states that 300 persons lost their lives in the fire. Thirteen thousand buildings, constituting four-fifths of the entire city, were reduced to ashes, and 45,000 persons are shelterless, with the severity of winter approaching.

The business section of the city, with all public buildings, and thousands of dwellings were obliterated. So rapidly did the flames spread that many persons were unable to escape.

Practically all of the Christian missions and houses of Americans and Europeans were burned.

According to the census of 1896 Hokodate had a population of 78,040.

CLOSE CALL FOR PASSENGERS ON ASHTABULA CAR.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Oct. 4.—Fifteen passengers, including several women and a motorman and conductor, had a narrow escape late last night from plunging to their death from the Ashtabula & Pennsylvania electric railroad viaduct to the Ashtabula river, 100 feet below. The passengers were in a panic and several were injured by flying glass. A trolley pole prevented the car from making the plunge. The body of the coach left the tracks and one end hung suspended over the river. The accident happened about a mile from the Lake Shore bridge, where the Ashtabula horror occurred thirty years ago.

ADMIRALS IN TERROR

Order Compelling Them to Swim Issued by Newberry.

Consider It Worse Than Riding Order to Generals.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Great consternation is felt in the navy over an announcement made by Assistant Secretary Newberry that rear admirals must shortly undergo a test to show whether they can swim or not. In the army a test of whether colonels can ride horseback has already been ordered. Mr. Newberry's declaration in favor of a swimming test for admirals, however, is considered far worse, although the average colonel weighs several times more than his horse.

The assistant secretary's plan is to have rear-admirals dive from shore and swim to their ships. Many admirals who have not moved a wheel for years except from the navy department to the club

ANARCHISTS CAPTURED

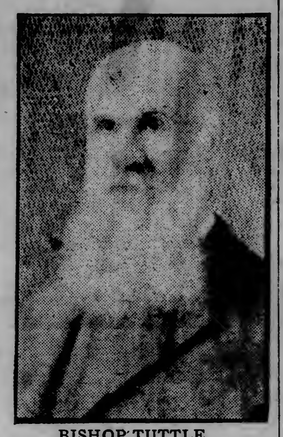

Odessa Police Gather in Fifty-Three at Meeting.

Odessa, Oct. 4.—A strong detachment of police, mostly in plain clothes, had a desperate fight with a band of anarchists last night, resulting in the capture of fifty-three of them. The police, hearing that the anarchists were meeting in a certain house, prepared to surround it, and were about to break into the building when the anarchists discovered their presence and fired on them, killing Assistant Chief of Police Delfinsky and wounding several plain clothesmen. The police then made a rush for the building, and a fierce hand-to-hand fight followed, during which a woman was killed and two men were mortally wounded, and nearly all the anarchists captured.

END OF THE BASEBALL SEASON.

INTERIOR WATERWAYS CONVENTION OPENS AT THE CITY OF MEMPHIS

BISHOP TUTTLE,
Who Is Presiding Over the General Convention of the Episcopalians at Richmond.

Thousands of People Assemble to Greet the President.

Greatest Display of Flags and Bunting in City's History.

Among the Delegates to Meeting Are Sixteen Governors.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Thousands of citizens and visitors are thronging the streets of Memphis to do honor to President Roosevelt and many distinguished men, who are here attending the second annual convention of the lakes to the gulf waterways convention, which met at the Auditorium rink today. Never before in the history of Memphis has such a lavish display of flags and bunting been in evidence. The buildings on the principal streets are a mass of color and pictures of the president are numerously displayed throughout the city. The day opened with a downpour of rain which showed no evidence of abatement as the morning advanced.

President Roosevelt is scheduled to arrive here by steamboat from Cairo at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Preparations on an extensive scale have been made for his entertainment. Carriages will pass in line at the landing barge and the president and members of his party will be taken in charge by a reception committee and driven through the principal business and residence thoroughfares to the Auditorium rink, where the president will address the delegates to the waterways convention. Returning, the president and his immediate party will board a special train and start for his proposed hunt in Louisiana.

Among the delegates to the convention are governors of sixteen states, United States senators, representatives, noted engineers and prominent men from all sections of the territory traversed by the Missouri river and its tributaries.

President W. K. Kavanaugh of St. Louis called the convention to order at 10:45 o'clock.

The morning session was largely taken up with the appointment of committees.

MORMONS EXPELLED

Three American Teachers Are Driven Out of Germany.

Failed to Observe Warnings Prohibiting Their Teachings.

Dresden, Saxony, Oct. 4.—Three American Mormons have been expelled from Germany because they persisted, despite final warnings prohibiting them from spreading their propaganda, in conducting river baptisms and making converts. They were arrested and summarily taken under guard to the frontier.

The imperial authorities decided in 1903 that it was not desirable to allow Mormon agents to continue their activity in Germany, but owing to the representations of the American embassy in Berlin and of Chief Missionary Cannon, whose field of activity was Central Europe, with headquarters at Berlin, the foreign office allowed the Mormons a month in which to settle their affairs and leave the country.

There were at that time fifty Mormon missionaries in the various German states and the grounds for their expulsion were teachings contrary to public morality and social order. It was also agreed with Mr. Cannon that all the Mormons who were American citizens should discontinue proselyting in Germany. The German converts, of whom there were several thousands and who continue to follow their new faith under native pastors, were subjected to various police hindrances. Mr. Cannon, who moved his Central European headquarters to Switzerland, it is understood, has since returned to Salt Lake City. It is now presumed his successor is re-entering the German field for Mormon missionary work, from which formerly many women converts were sent to Utah.

NOVEL CHARGE AGAINST SHERIFF

Accused of Malfeasance for Not Preventing Double Crime.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through a local attorney, who has been employed in the case, it is learned that very soon proceedings will be instituted in the courts to oust Sheriff Albertson of Ottertail county from office, on the grounds of malfeasance, as the outgrowth of his alleged neglect in not arresting Jens Loff, who last Saturday killed his wife and then himself, when an officer came to arrest him on a warrant for threatening a neighbor.

Saturday afternoon a deputy drove to the Loff farm, a short distance from Fergus Falls, and read the warrant to Loff, while the latter was standing in his yard. Loff excused himself, stating that he wanted to go into the house to make preparations to return to town with the deputy. Just as soon as Loff went in to his home, he secured his shotgun and deliberately shot his wife through the head. She fell to the floor and succumbed in a few minutes. Loff, crazed by the enormity of his crime, rushed out of his house, gun in hand, to a nearby cow pasture, and before the deputy sheriff could catch him, he had put a bullet through his own head.

The relatives of the deceased wife are starting proceedings against the sheriff, on the ground that the deputy had no right to allow Loff to get out of his custody once he had served the warrant for his arrest. They further claim that the sheriff is responsible for the acts of his deputy.

CARUSO CRIES AT BUDAPEST

Because of Indifference of Audience to His Singing.

London, Oct. 4.—Dispatches from Vienna report that Caruso, the tenor singer, had such a trying experience in Budapest that it spoiled his voice during a recent performance. He was engaged to appear Tuesday night as "Rhadames" in "Aida." Before the performance he learned that the seats had not been booked, presumably because of the high prices demanded.

This indifference to his skill and fame piqued him, it is stated, and he asked that the performance be postponed. He was told that this was impossible, and he thereupon reluctantly appeared. He sang indifferently, much to the disappointment of the audience, and the applause meted out to him was naturally limited.

When in his dressing room, after the performance, it is stated, he burst into tears, declaring that he had never experienced such treatment in his life.

VIRGINIA EDITOR SAYS

Grand Jury Accused George Washington of Swearing Falsely.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Documentary evidence has just been discovered in Fairfax county, Virginia, to prove that George Washington was not always regarded by his neighbors as a model of veracity.

At the May term of the Fairfax county court in 1760 he was publicly "presented" by the grand jury for swearing to a false list of taxable property. In other words, twelve citizens of his home county officially branded him as a tax dodger.

The discovery of this record was made by Capt. S. H. Donahue, editor of the Fairfax Herald, the weekly paper of Fairfax courthouse.

Capt. Donahue found a report of the grand jury, in part as follows:

"We present George William Fairfax, George Washington, John Carlyle, Daniel French, Robert Bogges Catesby, Cocke, Townshend Dade, Sylbill West, Garrard Alexander, Jaulma Minor, William Ramsay, Benjamin Grayson, George Mason, John Plummer, Daniel McCarthy and Abraham Barnes for 'not' entering their wheeled carriages agreeably to law as appears to us by the list delivered to the clerk of the county."

YOUNG MAN IN TROUBLE

Winnebago City Boy Faces Trial on Two Charges.

Arrested at Y. M. C. A. for Obtaining Money Under False Pretense.

L. A. Hume, a neatly dressed and good appearing young man was arraigned in municipal coourt this morning upon two charges, one that of petty larceny in the theft of an overcoat from the office of Attorney Joseph Reynolds. He pleaded not guilty to this charge and was held to the grand jury in the sum of $500 bonds.

To the other charge, that of passing a worthless check upon H. G. Gouth of the Delmonico restaurant for $15, he pleaded guilty, and his hearing was continued to Nov. 9 for sentence.

The young man was arrested at the Y. M. C. A. rooms yesterday on the latter charge and in the search of his clothing at the police station a pawn ticket for $5 was located. Mr. Reynolds, in whose office he had been given desk room to work as a public stenographer, notified the police of the loss of an overcoat and other things and the young man was suspected of the theft.

Young Hume comes from a good family in Winnebago City, Minn., and his father was here but a short time ago to look him up, he becoming alarmed at the failure of the boy to write to him. It is stated that he has been in difficulty in other cities and had to leave because of scrapes he got into.

THINK HE IS OLD TIMER.

Forgery Suspect Was Familiar With Criminal Procedure.

The police believe that they have captured a pretty slippery individual in the person of Frank Morgan, arrested some days ago charged with passing a forged check upon Jacob Lieberman, a second hand dealer, doing business at 405 West Michigan street. The check called for $12.70 and was drawn on a local bank. It was pronounced worthless when presented for payment. Morgan showed remarkable familiarity with criminal court procedure when arraigned, according to the police, and he waived examination, demanding a jury trial.

He is a cripple, and walks with a halt. His photograph will be sent to the police of other cities, for identification, if possible.

It's Girls' Day Tomorrow —No School!

Since we believe the old adage which reads, "As the Twig is Bent, So the Tree is Inclined," we take it as a self-imposed task to dress girls in that degree of style which will fit them to be "Well-Dressed Women." We realize that it is a difficult task for the makers to combine that stylish appearance with that durability which will withstand the happy-go-lucky, school girl wear (and abuse). Therefore we are overly exacting and pay particular attention to the material, workmanship and incidental trifles which go into the detailed construction of our Child's Store Garments.

NEIGHBORS WAR OVER ALLEY

Heated Argument Over Opening West End Thoroughfare.

The board of public works listened to some rather animated discussion in the hearing for the condemnation of an alley between Fifth and Sixth streets and Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues west today, and deferred action until later.

The residents of the alley remote from the streets, claim that they are being shut off from the streets by the residents living nearer. On the other hand, it is maintained that the residents near the streets have connection with the thoroughfares without the use of an alley and are not anxious for the same.

There was considerable heated discussion by the parties interested and the board held the matter over for a time. It appears that the alley and its use have been the cause of engendering considerable ill feeling among the residents and the same was well aired in the hearing today.

SCHOOL FOR THE NEGROES

Principal of the Noxubee Institution in the City.

Prof. S. J. Hunter, principal of the Noxubee industrial school at McLeod, Miss., a non-sectarian school for the education of the negro, is visiting Duluth again in the interest of his institution, and is stopping with Henry S. Merry, the letter carrier, at 729 East Sixth street. Prof. Hunter is accompanied by his financial secretary, S. S. Furr. They are endeavoring to raise an endowment fund of $10,000 for the school, and are meeting with much success. The institution is now supported in three ways—by a sum donated by the county, by private donations and an annual harvest time convention on the school grounds, when second hand clothing is sold at low prices to all who attend. Prof. Hunter is making an especial appeal on this visit to Duluth for contributions of second hand clothing. The work being done at Noxubee has been highly commended by all who have investigated it. The roster this years shows 375 pupils, and a competent corps of teachers, but for lack of space and equipment, the doors must be shut to many who are applying for an education, 100 boys and girls being crowded into small log cabins at present.

THE MAYOR IS UNDECIDED

Does Not Know Himself Whether He Will Run Again.

"I honestly don't know whether I will run again or not," said Mayor Cullum last evening, when asked if he intended to remain in the political game this year.

"There are some projects in which I am deeply interested, notably those of free playgrounds for children, and the improvement and enlargement of Duluth's park system. I greatly want to see these things through, and carry out the plans regarding them, but there are other reasons which may deter me from running again. I honestly do not know myself whether I shall run again this year or not."

OPEN BIDS FOR LIBRARY ROOF

Big Difference is Noted in the Offers Submitted.

Bids for repairing the library roof and making other changes were opened for the second time today by the board of public works and a decided increase over the last ones submitted was noted.

Peter Olson submitted a bid for $12,580, and in addition thereto an estimate of $13.50 per cubic yard for cement filling. It is not known what amount of cement filling is necessary, but it is said to be considerable and this would bring the amount of this bid up pretty high.

E. Zauft, submitting the other bid, put his price for the work at $5,660, with an addition of $21.60 per cubic yard for concrete filling.

The board will take action on the bids Monday. The members are anxious to get the contract let so that the work may be done during good weather.

The differences in the bids submitted are considered remarkable by the board and can hardly be accounted for.

The hearing on the assessment for paving Commerce street from Fifth avenue west easterly to the slip between Third and Fourth avenues west is being heard this afternoon.

The paving is to be of sandstone blocks and there are some 275 feet to be relaid, the balance of about a block being for new paving. The building of a sanitary water sewer in the street in connection with the paving was considered.

JUSTICES NOMINATED.

New York, Oct. 4.—The Republican state committee today unanimously nominated Edward T. Bartlett and Willard Bartlett as candidates for associate justices of the court of appeals. Resolutions endorsing the administrations of President Roosevelt and Governor Hughes were adopted without dissent.

ENTERS WHOLESALE FIELD.

Johnson & Moe Opens Jobbing Department of Ready to Wear Apparel.

Johnson & Moe, the popular big West end department store, has added another important department. The firm has entered the wholesale field and will job ready-to-wear apparel for ladies and misses. The department was begun in a small way last season and has grown to very encouraging dimensions. The goods are the product of an Eastern manufacture, with whom Mr. Moe made arrangements last summer, and are second to none in America.

The inauguration of this department has greatly increased the popularity of the firm's cloak and suit department, as patrons have an opportunity of buying these goods at greater values than ever, and in an increased variety. It is another indication of the progressive spirit of the store, which aims at giving its patrons the very best.

Mr. Moe is now showing samples for spring.

FOREIGN VESSELS MAY BE USED TO CARRY COAL.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Attorney General Bonaparte has decided that the navy may use foreign vessels for transporting coal from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast in foreign bottoms when sufficient American vessels cannot be had, or the charges made be excessive and unreasonable. It is expected that contracts for shipping over 90 per cent of the coal for the use of the battleship fleet on its coming 14,000-mile cruise to the Pacific will be awarded to vessels of foreign register.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 4.—The State Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday elected Mrs. C. G. Higbee of St. Paul as president, Mrs. Alson Blodgett of Faribault, corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth, general federation secretary, and Mrs. H. N. McCusick of Stillwater, historian. The following were elected district vice presidents:

First, Mrs. M. F. Smith; second, Mrs. T. C. Collins of Windom; third, Miss Margaret J. Evans of Northfield; fourth, Mrs. Russell R. Dorr of St. Paul; fifth, Mrs. M. C. Wells of Minneapolis.

More probation officials are needed in Minneapolis, according to a paper read by Mrs. Mary S. Howe of that city.

A well organized committee, which will assist in locating tuberculosis cases, and which will agitate before the legislature and city officials the matter of a compulsory registration of tuberculosis patients, is a necessity if Minnesota would make any kind of a fight against the menacing white plague. Women will probably be appointed by the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs at this convention, to co-operate with the committee in its efforts, and these residents of the cities and towns will confer with the local physicians as to the wisest course to pursue in regard to the care of the tuberculosis sick. Mrs. George H. Christian of Minneapolis, chairman of the federation committee on health and hygiene, made these suggestions in her report before the convention, which was read by Mrs. C. A. Dibble of St. Paul.

Mrs. Howe traced the history of the juvenile court in Minneapolis, and the growth of the detention home movement until now, when the sum of $5,000 will be appropriated to establish and maintain a home of detention in the Minneapolis district.

The art interests of the state were discussed at Wednesday night's meeting. Prof. Maria Sanford told of the work of the state art association, which every year sends an interesting collection of pictures, drawings and craft work at some town in the state for exhibition, and encourages local artists by prizes and awards.

The address of the evening was on "The Relation of Life and Art," by Mrs. Robert Seymour of Duluth, whose remarks have been enjoyed by many club women.

Last evening's program was interesting. Dr. Richard Burton of Minneapolis, Miss Lily Long and Charles M. Flandreau of St. Paul, Miss Margaret McGiffert of Duluth and Prof. George Huntington of Carleton college, read from their writings. Mrs. Frank White, wife of the former governor of North Dakota and president of the Valley City club, brought the greetings of her state convention, having journeyed solely for the purpose of attending the meetings.

The convention closed last evening.

Saturday Club.

The first study meeting of the year of the Saturday club will be held tomorrow afternoon at the club room of the library. The study of the literature, art and history of Italy will be studied during the year. The leader for this meeting will be Mrs. H. S. Ely.

River Excursion.

An outing has been arranged for the members of the Young Women's Christian association and their friends for tomorrow when an excursion up the St. Louis river to Fond du Lac will be enjoyed on the steamer Newsboy. But few excursions are run on the river so late in the year, although the beauty of the scenery is more attractive than at any other time of the year, and a large number will be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity for one more trip.

Club Luncheon.

Mrs. G. A. St. Clair was hostess at a charmingly appointed luncheon yesterday at the Country club. The table decorations were in white rosebuds and ferns, and the guests were:

Mesdames—
Homer Collins, Beriah Magoffin,
W. J. Olcott, W. C. Agnew,
Charles d'Autremont, Frank Lynam,
J. Q. A. Crosby, A. W. Dutton,
Miss Lillian St. Clair.

Cecilian Musicale.

The first musicale of the season of the Cecilian society was given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strong of East Fifth street. The club will this year continue the study of opera, and at the first meeting which was devoted to orchestral music, the friends of the members were entertained. The evening's program was in charge of Mrs. Carl F. Sheldon, and the numbers were presented by Mrs. Sheldon, George Tupper, Miss Ethleen Fee, W. S. Wingate, Mrs. Leo Ball, Miss Elsie Smith and Messrs. Bergh, Hartman, Levine, Halton and Miss Capron. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Gustav Flaaten and Miss Fee.

The evening was enjoyed by a large number of guests.

The remaining meetings of the year will be held as heretofore, in the afternoons.

Forward Guild.

The Forward Guild of the First Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Miss Abby Upham of 1523 East Third street at 3 o'clock. This will be the first meeting of the fall of this society of the church, and the young women of the congregation are invited to attend.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Home raised bear meat, 40 cents a pound.

Ducks and chickens.

Lamb roasts.

Mint, 5 cents a pound.

Endive, 8 and 10 cents a bunch.

Tomatoes, 40 cents a basket.

Delaware grapes, 35 cents a basket.

Concord grapes, 35 cents a basket.

Bellflower apples, 80 cents a basket.

Bartlett pears, $1 a peck.

There is a standing order in one of the markets for bear meat, and this wild desire of some folks may today be satisfied for the first time this season. A nice, large, good natured, playful, life loving, dear, black bear is lying cold in death in one of the markets and if that's what you like you can have a portion of him at 40 cents a pound. Before his untimely departure from life he roamed the woods and fields and nicely paved streets along the county road back of Seventeenth street. He probably admired the famous view of our city and harbor from the boulevard and admired the play of moonlight on the water and beautiful changing colors of the trees and the invigorating and appetite-bringing air of the autumn—and now he can be bought for 40 cents a pound for the best cuts.

It is too perfectly awful. A black bear always seems so young and irresponsible and dependent and dear (the market column has never met a live one on an unfrequented road) that the thought and sight of a dead one causes the tears of maudlin compassion to well up and pour down greatly to the detriment of work that must be done in spite of this shocking tragedy in our midst.

Only 40 cents a pound, the price of a bright young black bear life! And some portions as low as 10 cents a pound!

WAS FORCED TO RESIGN

R. P. Roberts Claims He Was Forced Out of Weather Bureau.

Was Building Modest Home Next to Government Property.

R. P. Roberts, who for several years has been connected with the Duluth weather bureau, has tendered his resignation, and he claims that he has been practically forced out of the service because of the fact that he was building a small and modest little dwelling on a lot immediately adjoining the handsome station of the weather bureau.

Mr. Roberts, owing to the location of the weather bureau, decided to buy a lot on the boulevard and make his home within walking distance of his work.

Mr. Roberts' story of the affair is as follows:

"All went well until after Prof. Cox had been here on an inspection tour. At that time I was raising my house to put a foundation under it, and it was an unsightly affair with timbers strewn all around, and dirt covering the lawn. When Mr. Cox caught sight of it, I heard him say to Mr. Richardson: 'What in the dickens is that?'

"A short time after he left I received a letter from the chief notifying me that I was to be transferred. I wrote and told him that I had invested every cent of my savings in my house, and that it took every cent I could save to make the payments. If I moved I would have to pay rent, and the expense of moving would tie me up so that I would have to sacrifice my home.

"The answer I received came through Mr. Richardson and was as follows: 'In answer to your letter of the third instant, forwarded through the official in charge of your station, and also to your personal letter of the sixth instant, I have to say that you were given advance notice of your relief from the Duluth station in order that you might have ample time in which to arrange your personal affairs. Your orders will not be issued until about the first of October.'

"I answered that if I were given a promotion sufficient to reimburse me for the expense of changing I would go.

"The answer received was as follows: 'Roberts' statement that it will be agreeable to him in case he is given promotion, to which he is not eligible and will not be for several years, borders on insubordination. Have him answer whether or not he proposes to use time allotted to him between now and Oct. 1.'

"I then tendered my resignation to Mr. Richardson and left on the same day, which is in itself an act of insubordination, but in spite of this fact I received a telegram from the chief much different in tone from the first offering me the position of assistant at Bismarck if I would take it.

"I do not make these statements in any spirit of vindictiveness, but because I think it is wrong that any person can be treated in this fashion under the civil service rules. Fortunately I was able to step into another position as good as the one I left, but it might have caused severe hardship to me, and if I had been forced to move I would have lost everything I had invested in my home. I appealed to the civil service commission, but got a reply saying they did not interfere except in case where a man was discriminated against for politics or religion. A case where a man was being moved because he was building a house, which did not look well, beside the weather bureau did not appeal to them."

METHODISTS IN CONFERENCE

Minneapolis, Oct. 4.—The Northern Minnesota conference of the Methodist church will be held next year at Litchfield. That was decided by the conference now in session in Fowler church.

Four presiding elders reported the work of their district for the year.

Dr. E. C. Clemans, presiding elder of the Duluth district, reported that twelve churches had been completed and dedicated, and five parsonages provided within the year.

Rev. E. K. Copper of the Brainerd district, reported three churches completed and dedicated.

Rev. J. R. Davies of Crookston, and Rev. E. H. Nicholson of the Litchfield district, reported accessions of members and the work in general in active shape.

There was only one matter out of the ordinary that diverted the conference yesterday, and that was a memorial to the general conference presented by Rev. C. H. Flesher of Thief River Falls. This memorial was designed to put the laymen and ministers of the church on equality of the question of using tobacco. There has long been a rule in the discipline of the church requiring all applicants for admission to any conference to promise to abstain from the use of tobacco, the stand of the general conference being that the use of tobacco detracted from the influence and usefulness of a Methodist preacher, and, while an immoral habit, it is one not becoming a minister.

Mr. Flesher said that it is un-Christian to make a rule that is not applicable to lay as well as other members. He advised that the change be made in the discipline, also that no member be allowed to either buy or sell tobacco.

Edwin Deacon spoke in favor of the resolution, but after Rev. J. H. Dewart got through talking about it the motion was placed on the table. Mr. Dewart said: "It would be real nice if everybody would take a bath once a year, too, but I don't see that it is necessary to put it down as a rule in the Methodist book."

A group of babies about 3 months old was introduced at the conference, but Bishop Goodsell, who is presiding, begged that they should remain in the ante rooms. They were brought by Rev. E. P. Savage, who made a plea for the Savage home.

Dr. Jennings turned into the treasury of the conference the sum of $1,400, which will be used for the benefit of superannuated ministers of the district.

Rev. R. J. Taylor of Eveleth, was elected secretary, and Rev. C. R. Oaten of Litchfield, Rev. D. McKenzie of Excelsior, Rev. W. E. J. Gratz of Two Harbors, Rev. Thomas Price of Duluth and Rev. C. W. Ramshaw of Proctor, assistant secretaries.

On Saturday the cornerstone of the new Foss Memorial church at Fremont and Nineteenth streets will be laid.

Fortunately I was able to step into another position as good as the one I left, but it might have caused severe hardship to me, and if I had been forced to move I would have lost everything I had invested in my home. I appealed to the civil service commission, but got a reply saying they did not interfere except in case where a man was discriminated against for politics or religion. A case where a man was being moved because he was building a house, which did not look well, beside the weather bureau did not appeal to them."

METHODISTS IN CONFERENCE

Minneapolis, Oct. 4.—The Northern Minnesota conference of the Methodist church will be held next year at Litchfield. That was decided by the conference now in session in Fowler church.

Four presiding elders reported the work of their district for the year.

Dr. E. C. Clemans, presiding elder of the Duluth district, reported that twelve churches had been completed and dedicated, and five parsonages provided within the year.

Rev. E. K. Copper of the Brainerd district, reported three churches completed and dedicated.

Rev. J. R. Davies of Crookston, and Rev. E. H. Nicholson of the Litchfield district, reported accessions of members and the work in general in active shape.

There was only one matter out of the ordinary that diverted the conference yesterday, and that was a memorial to the general conference presented by Rev. C. H. Flesher of Thief River Falls. This memorial was designed to put the laymen and ministers of the church on equality of the question of using tobacco. There has long been a rule in the discipline of the church requiring all applicants for admission to any conference to promise to abstain from the use of tobacco, the stand of the general conference being that the use of tobacco detracted from the influence and usefulness of a Methodist preacher, and, while an immoral habit, it is one not becoming a minister.

Mr. Flesher said that it is un-Christian to make a rule that is not applicable to lay as well as other members. He advised that the change be made in the discipline, also that no member be allowed to either buy or sell tobacco.

Edwin Deacon spoke in favor of the resolution, but after Rev. J. H. Dewart got through talking about it the motion was placed on the table. Mr. Dewart said: "It would be real nice if everybody would take a bath once a year, too, but I don't see that it is necessary to put it down as a rule in the Methodist book."

A group of babies about 3 months old was introduced at the conference, but Bishop Goodsell, who is presiding, begged that they should remain in the ante rooms. They were brought by Rev. E. P. Savage, who made a plea for the Savage home.

Dr. Jennings turned into the treasury of the conference the sum of $1,400, which will be used for the benefit of superannuated ministers of the district.

Rev. R. J. Taylor of Eveleth, was elected secretary, and Rev. C. R. Oaten of Litchfield, Rev. D. McKenzie of Excelsior, Rev. W. E. J. Gratz of Two Harbors, Rev. Thomas Price of Duluth and Rev. C .W. Ramshaw of Proctor, assistant secretaries.

On Saturday the cornerstone of the new Foss Memorial church at Fremont and Nineteenth streets will be laid.

BUSINESS IS ACTIVE

Michigan Street Dealers Report a Very Busy Week.

Butter and Eggs Higher, Apples Are More Plentiful.

The produce market opened active the first of the week and prices have ruled firm on abundance of buyers. Butter took another raise of 1 cent and prices are likely to be higher another week. Eggs, seemingly in sympathy, have been firm and next Monday an advance of 1 cent will be quoted on the market. Just when dairy products and fresh eggs will reach the high mark seems to be a puzzling question dealers have to meet and from the tone of the Eastern markets prices have not reached the top as yet.

Pork prices are quoted a little higher and veal seems to be scarce. The offerings of fancy veal this week have been small and dealers are scouring the market to pick up everything in sight.

Beef remains unchanged with plenty of shipments from the big packing houses and considerable domestic stuff coming in. Prices are not expected to advance for the present at least.

There was a liberal offering of spring chickens on the market the fore part of the week, but today the market is cleaned up and in consequence prices on hens have taken a jump, being quoted higher than yesterday.

Some fine specimens of Montana apples have arrived and next week buyers will have an opportunity to select from a car of Alexandrias and McIntosh Reds, both good keepers and fine cooking apples. They are grown in the famous Bitter Root valley, Montana, and will sell at $2.50 per bushel.

York state apples are arriving, but they are scarce. The supply of winter apples usually offered by New York dealers and growers will not be large this year. They are quoted at $5.40 per barrel at present.

Iowa Greenings, a very fine looking apple and a good cooker are on the market, and the prices obtained rule firm at $4.75, and a little better.

The crabapple season is about over, the arrivals the last of the week being soft, and another week will clean up the offerings. The sale on crabapples this year has been large locally indicating that a number of people have been preserving them and taking advantage of the fine specimens sent in the first of week.

Michigan grapes have begun to arrive and will be plentiful from now on. They are exceptionally fine this year and are wholesaling at 35 cents per basket.

The first shipment of Michigan peaches arrived the middle of the week. They are small this year and will not be plentiful. They are bringing $3.25 per bushel at wholesale.

The market is well supplied with fall vegetables, squash, pumpkins, turnips and the like being quite plentiful. The fall digging of potatoes has not started and it is difficult to forecast what the crop will be. Dealers are of the opinion that prices will be reasonable this year and the crop good. Potatoes are not likely to be much over 50 cents this fall.

CONGREGATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Of Minnesota Elects Rev. W. M. Carroll as Its Moderator.

New Ulm, Minn., Oct. 4.—The annaul convention of the General Congregational association of Minnesota closed yesterday afternoon after the election of the following officers: Moderator, Rev. W. M. Carroll; assistant moderator, Rev. James A. Sawyer; scribe, Rev. A. R. Brown; recorder, Rev. Alex Milne, Duluth; secretary, Rev. Samuel J. Rogers.

Rev. R. P. Herrick of Minneapolis, on behalf of the Sunday school and Publicity society, reported that 390 Sunday schools have been visited during the year and that 1,000 sermons have been delivered and 46,000 miles traveled. He recommended that for the work in Montana and the Dakotas dollars be given instead of dimes in order to carry it on successfully.

S. V. S. Fischer, secretary of the Congregational Ministerial Relief society reported that during the year twenty-two churches contributed $210.44 and eleven conferences $98.93. The sum of $122.45 has been added to the benevolent fund and property was sold for $2,150. Eight grants amounted to $664. On account of the advancing age of many ministers, more money will be needed henceforth.

At the annual meeting of the Minnesota Congregational Missionary union, the following directors were elected: For three years, Rev. C. E. Burton, Rev. A. Milne, Prof. Horace Goodhue; two years, Rev. S. G. Smith, L. E. Jepson and W. H. Laird; one year, G. E. Perley, Rev. E. L. Heermance and L. W. Gilbert.

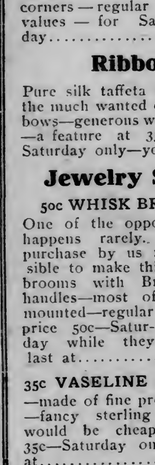

The Woman's Home Missionary union also held its annual meeting, which was presided over by Miss Catherine Nichols of St. Paul, its president for seventeen years. The treasurer reported that $5,534 was raised in this state the past year for the furtherance of the society's aims. The election of officers resulted: Mrs. W. A. Nugent of Minneapolis, president; Mrs. S. E. Seibel, Minneapolis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. H. Wingate, Minneapolis, recording secretary, and Mrs. William Briston, Minneapolis, treasurer.

SMALL BAND OF HINDUS DRIVEN INTO CANADA.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 4.—At Danville, Wash., last night an angry mob drove a small party of Hindus across the line into Canada, sending a shower of missiles after them. A few shots were discharged at the trespassers, but none was injured, it is believed. The Hindus had found shelter in a cabin at Danville following their escape from Canada.

THE KILTIES

Were Given Most Enthusiastic Reception in Duluth.

The Kilties quite took Duluth by storm yesterday, and seldom has a more enthusiastic audience been seen than that at the Lyceum last evening.

Both Scots and Irish turned out in force, and the chorus of eleven men received just as warm applause for "Kathleen Mavourneen" as it did for "Annie Laurie." The audience apparently could not get enough of the old Scotch and Irish airs, rendered with such delightful harmony, and the Kilties certainly could not complain of the coldness of a Duluth audience.

Angus McMillan Fraser, the world famous dancer of Scotch steps, was at his best last evening. The sword dance and "Sailor's Hornpipe" are his two most pronounced successes.

Fraser's Highlanders made a hit dancing the national dances to the music of the bagpipes, and were encored again and again.

Large crowds attended both the afternoon and evening concerts.

The following program was given last evening:

A Pretty Compliment.

Perhaps one of the prettiest compliments that could be paid a play and players was overheard after the first act of "The Heir to the Hoorah" while the Paul Armstrong play was being presented in a western city a short time ago. A gentleman leaned over to a friend seated directly in front of him and said:

"What! You here? Why I thought you saw it last year!"

"I did," was the calm rejoinder. "That's why I am here tonight."

Which is one of the explanations for the ever increasing popularity of this charming play.

"The Heir to the Hoorah" will be seen at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow with a matinee tomorrow.

Three More Performances.

The Empire Burlesquers will give three more performances at the Metropolitan, one tonight and two tomorrow. There will be a bargain matinee tomorrow afternoon. Sunday afternoon, the Miss New York, Jr., company will begin its annual engagement, with the well known wrestler, Frank A. Gotch as a special feature.

Don't think that piles can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment. 50 cents at any durg store.

SECRETARY ROOT HIGHLY HONORED

Special Meeting of Mexican Deputies Convened for Him.

Mexico City, Oct. 4.—Secretary of State Root was yesterday the recipient of all the honors which can be granted to a foreign visiter at the City of Mexico. He was invited to attend a special meeting of the chamber of deputies, convened especially to show the appreciation of the lawmakers of this republic for the distinguished guest of the nation, and in the evening a ball was given at the Jockey club.

Mr. Root visited the chamber of deputies, the legislative body, which corresponds to the American house of representatives. The membership of the house was all present, and greeted the speech of Secretary Root with satisfaction. After routine business was transacted, the president of the council delivered a speech welcoming Mr. Root in the name of the nation. Mr. Root, in reply, said in part:

"Mr. President and Members of the Chamber of Deputies of the Republic of Mexico: I am sensible of the high honor you have conferred upon me by this audience today. I am sensible also of the great mark of friendship to my country involved in this reception of one of her officers in this distinguished manner by the popular lawmaking body of this republic.

"I sincerely hope not merely that I personally may never do aught to show myself to have been unworthy of your consideration, but that my country may forever, in its attitude and conduct toward the people of Mexico justify your kindness. You will have gathered from my words, which your president has been good enough to quote in the admirable and grateful address which he has just made, that I am one of those who believe that the old days, when nations sought to enrich themselves by taking away the wealth of others by force, ought to pass, and are passing."

A FEUDIST SAYS HE HAS KILLED FOURTEEN MEN.

Chattanooga, Oct. 4.—D. D. Edwards, on trial for the murder of Sam Brooks, a negro, made a damaging statement under cross-examination yesterday.

He was asked by the attorney general if he had killed anyone previous to the killing of Brooks. Edwards admitted that he had killed a man in Kentucky.

"Is that all?" asked the attorney general.

"Well," said Edwards, "I have shot and probably killed fourteen men in my time." He said that a majority of the killings had occurred in the Kentucky mountains, and during labor strikes in Chicago. Edwards is a Kentucky feudist.

Charming Fall Styles for Critical Women!

SCHOOL TAX QUESTION

Will Likely be Decided by Board of Education.

Principal Matter to Come Up at Monthly Meeting.

The principal matter to come before the board of education when it convenes at the high school building this evening is the fixing of the school tax levy for the ensuing year.

A plan to increase the levy so that the sum of $50,000 can be secured for one new school building a year has been discussed by the members for some time past, and it is quite likely that they will decide in favor of this, tonight.

The need of morre school buildings is more forcibly impressed upon the board at every session, and the plan of selling bonds to care for the indebtedness caused by the construction of new buildings no longer appeals to the school directors as a wise move.

At nearly every meeting, the board authorizes the liquidation of bonds, issued in the past, which have matured, and this constant drain on the board's resources for improvements made by previous boards in years gone by, has turned nearly every method of the present body against the issuance of bonds as a method to get money for needed improvements.

"It seems to me like paying for dead horses, to liquidate the indebtedness incurred by our predecessors and I think it is unfair to future boards for us to go ahead with an indebtedness which they must pay for later," said one member of the board at a recent meeting, "and hereafter I shall oppose any move to issue bonds unless the need is very, very great."

These sentiments seemed to be concurred in by all the other directors. All of them seem to agree that the best plan to increase the tax levy a little, so that $50,000 may be secured annually from that source, to provide for one new building. And the directors feel that Duluth is growing so that at least one school must be built every year.

The purchase of supplies for the Irving high school in West Duluth, which this year was made a three-year institution, will probably be authorized tonight, and considerable routine business is to come up.

HAD SENSE OF HUMOR

Patterson Sent Friends Comic Post Card From Galt, Canada.

Fugitive Says He May be Back Some Time.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Magie returned from Buffalo, N. Y., this morning empty handed. He went after Robert Patterson, the young man who is wanted in this county on the charge of embezzlement of the funds he collected for the Labor day program advertising, and the fact that he did not bring Patterson back is no fault of Mr. Magie's.

Patterson was arrested at Buffalo about two weeks ago, at the instance of the local police, and was held awaiting extradition papers as he refused to come back to Duluth without them. Deputy Sheriff Magie, who was sent for the accused men, had to await the action of Governor Hughes of New York, who was then at the Jamestown exposition.

A hearing was to have been had in Patterson's case before the governor at Albany, N. Y., last Monday, but Governor Hughes told Patterson's attorneys that he would not go into the question of the guilt of the accused at all and would be willing to hear them on any other grounds, Tuesday. A hearing was arranged for Tuesday, but when Patterson's attorneys looked for their client he was not to be found. Patterson simply pumped his bail, and fled from the country without waiting to learn what would be done in the matter of extradition.

A bond in the sum of $1,000 was put up for his appearance by Buffalo parties and this was declared forfeited Tuesday, the money going to Buffalo county. The bondsmen are said to be getting busy in the effort to locate and get Patterson in custody again.

Deputy Sheriff Magie saw a comic postcard that Patterson sent to one of his friends dated Sept. 30, Galt, Can. The picture on the card represented two tramps hiking along the railroad track, with the printed expression, "This is bum weather."

Underneath the picture was the following:

"I may be back sometime. I have sent word to Ward and Pressie. "BOB P."

Ward and Pressie are said to be two friends of Patterson residing in Buffalo. It is probable that they are the parties who furnished his bond.

Although Patterson jumped to Canada he is not immune from arrest as he is liable to extradition under the treaty between the two countries.

TWO WIVES CLAIM HIM

Both Claim to be Widows of Capt. J. W. Nicholson.

They Appear at Funeral of Man Killed at Escanaba.

Two women claim to be widows of Capt. James W. Nicholson, who was killed by a fall in the steamer Caledonia at Escanaba Saturday. They both appeared at the captain's funeral held at Saxton's morgue in Cleveland, and neither knew of the other's existence until that time. One resides at Cleveland, the other at Buffalo.

The Cleveland widow claims that she is the only lawful wife of Capt. Nicholson and says that they were married at Cleveland in 1871. She says they celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary before they separated eight years ago. Up to a year ago wife No. 1 is positive the captain had obtained no divorce.

Wife No. 2 arrived in Cleveland from Buffalo Monday, and inquired anxiously at Saxton's morgue concerning the arrival of her husband's remains. She is about 30 years of age, while wife No. 1 is about 60. She claims the captain and herself were married four years ago, and that she knew that he had been married before. She claims to be certain that she is the legal widow.

The first intimation received at Cleveland that there were two wives was in a telegram from Engineer Maxwell of the steamer Caledonia, asking that the Buffalo wife be informed of the funeral arrangements. The owners of the steamer Caledonia of the Corrigan fleet, knew of the existence of wife No. 1 in Cleveland, but knew nothing about the Buffalo wife.

The Cleveland widow said that she had an insurance policy for $3,000 given her a number of years ago on the captain's life, but she was not sure the policy was paid up.

Mrs. Coffinberry, daughter of the Cleveland wife, made the arrangements with the undertaker for the funeral, and the services were in charge of the Erie lodge of Odd Fellows of Cleveland, of which Capt. Nicholson was a member.

The steamer Caledonia often comes to Duluth, and A. R. Sinclair & Co., are the local agents.

"Whereas, Said John W. Randall was a very careful, courteous and able seaman and officer, and was dearly beloved by all with whom he came in contact, therefore,

"Resolved, That we, the officers and crew of said steamer Merrimac, do each feel the loss as a personal one, and sincerely regret the sad bereavement that has come to his family in the death of so capable and courteous an officer.

"That our sympathy is hereby extended to his wife and family.

"That as a testimonial of the high regard in which Capt. John W. Randall was held both as a man and an officer, a copy of these resolutions be published and sent to his family.

ITCHING TORTURE OF LITTLE BABY

Head and Face Covered With Awful Itching Sores and Scabs—Would Scratch Until Blood Came—Mother in Despair for Treatment Did No Good—Dread Disease

YIELDED TO CUTICURA ALMOST IMMEDIATELY

"I was in despair about my baby. When he was about two months old his face and head were full of scabs and very itching sores with terrible running matter. I had to tie his little hands in bags for he used to make his face and head bleed. I had two or three doctors but they did not do any good. I was told to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and I can say that they stopped the running matter immediately and soon after I had washed him twice he looked almost well, but I used about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and four or five boxes of Cuticura Ointment, continuing the treatment for two or three months. I also used Cuticura Remedies for my other children and took Cuticura Resolvent myself to purify my milk for my baby whom I nursed while he suffered with that terrible itching and sores he had. Now I always have Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the house handy. I shall be glad if you want to publish this letter so that other sufferers will come to know what good the Cuticura Remedies can do. Mrs. Frances Rizzo, 1205 Dickinson St., Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 8 and 18, 1906."

SKINS ON FIRE

With Torturing, Disfiguring Eczemas, Rashes,

A single set consisting of Cuticura Soap (25c.), Cuticura Ointment (50c.), Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills 25c. per vial of 60) is often sufficient to cure. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

RULES FOR PILOTS.

Col. Davis and President Livingstone Decide on Course.

Detroit, Oct. 4.—Heavily laden downbound boats have been striking on the deposits thrown up by dredges at work on the new All-American channel below Bar Point. After an inspection by Col. Davis, President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers, and President Coulby of the Pittsburg Steamship company, it has been decided to have down-bound boats continue off the straight course past the Detroit river lighthouse instead of turning as usual. They will hold to the course until about two miles farther in the lake and then make the turn.

The Lake Carriers will buoy the new temporary channel and will place black and red buoys at the lower and where the turn is to be made. Up-bound boats will continue on the usual course.

GATHERING DATA.

Steamboat Inspectors Send Out Questions to Motor Boat Owners.

In compliance with an order from the supervising inspector general, the local steamboat inspectors are sending out a list of questions to owners of motor boats who have a license to carry passengers or to persons who have licenses to operate motor boats carrying passengers.

The department of commerce and labor is seeking data concerning the equipment of power boats and the order of the supervisor was issued at their request. The questions included in the list are those concerning the name and tonnage of the motor boats, the general equipment, whether or not it has the proper fog bell and whistle and lights, and the number of passengers that can be carried.

In the Duluth inspection district there have been eighty-two licenses issued to operate boats carrying passengers. The district includes Superior, Ashland, Bayfield, Stillwater, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Duluth and Superior have an equal number of motor passenger boats, the number being nineteen. The answers to the questions are expected to be in by the end of the week and the data will be forwarded to the supervising inspector general at Detroit.

Western Star May Be Ashore.

Amherstburg, Oct. 4.—A steamer supposed to be the Western Star was reported aground last night at Bar Point.

Freight Situation.

Buffalo, Oct. 4.—The Eastern demand for coal is strong at present and is having its effect on shipping from this port. Most of the big orders from the upper lakes have been filled. There still, however, will be a good demand for small carriers.

Steamer Mack Inspected.

For Use on Lakes.

Buffalo, Oct. 4.—The steamers Keewatin and Assiniboia of the Canadian Pacific fleet, are now at Quebec, where they will be cut in two sections and brought through the Welland canal to be used in lake trade. The Assiniboia will reach Buffalo Oct. 12.

Steward's Body Found.

Sault, Oct. 4.—The body of Thomas Parents, Port Huron, the steward on the steamer Alexander Nimick, who lost his life when that vessel was wrecked on Lake Superior, Sept. 22, has been found by Indians on the beach in Gauls Bay on the Canadian shore, thirty miles from where the wreck occurred and brought here. It was forwarded to Port Huron.

Hoover and Mason Clears.

The steamer Hoover & Mason, the boat which knocked down the north pier of the Northern Pacific bridge Wednesday morning was not so badly damaged that she could not take a cargo of ore down the lakes. She cleared from Duluth yesterday. When she struck the Hoover & Mason twisted her stem around badly and a number of the plates on her bow were damaged, but as the superior drydocks are now full it was thought best to send the boat down the lakes, where she will be repaired.

ADMIRALS IN TERROR.

are indignant. It is felt that what the assistant secretary is really proposing is a general hari-kari among the most eminent naval heroes of the age.

"What does Newberry mean?" demanded one indignant hero at the club. "Don't he know that by the time a man gets to my rank his abdomen outweighs his head? He might as well demand a swimming test for the police department."

Nevertheless, the rear admirals accept Mr. Newberry's announcement as a fact against which there is no use in kicking and are preparing for it. One of the saddest sights ever seen in Washington was the spectacle afforded by Rear Admiral Cowles, the president's brother-in-law. Admiral Cowles is the same size from his collarbone to his fourth rib, after which he juts out in a rectangular manner. Between his wishbone and his waistline, Admiral Cowles weighs more than many persons do between their shoes and their hats. The sight of Admiral Cowles down on the Potomac river front trying to qualify for Mr. Newberry's test drew tears from many eyes long unused to grief, particularly as the only way the admiral could swim was by standing on his head in the water and trying to swim with his stomach.

Reports from Rear Admiral Evans' headquarters received by intimate friends of his are that "Fighting Bob" is confident of being able to come up to Newberry's test. Evans, ever since the battle of Fort Fisher swims entirely with one foot, the other being used mainly as a sort of screw-propeller. The general effect is that of a flat wheel locomotive trying to climb a hill. Evans, however, is satisfied with his locomotion and nobody in the navy has ever dared to criticise it except one or two officers who served with the army in Flanders and can talk back the same way.

Evans fortunately is the same size all the way down. He has nothing to kick about. The walls that are now deafening the Washington horizon arise from globular admirals with convex protuberances abaft the midrift. It is reported that Admiral Converse is about to resign.

THE GAS EXPLODED.

Discoverer of New Illumination Has Exciting Time.

The experiments which Helmer M. Paulsrud, 110 West Second street, has been conducting in the manufacture of a certain kind of gas, to be used with a stereopticon, narrowly missed being the cause of serious trouble at the residence last evening at about 8 o'clock.

Mr. Paulsrud, who is an employe of the Clyde Iron works, was busy at work concocting the ingredients used to make the new gas he believes he has discovered, when a pot of the stuff which was simmering on the kitchen stove exploded, and for a time there was considerable confusion.

Plastering was torn from the walls and the stove badly wrecked. His wife and little one escaped injury, but there was no end of excitement when the smoke and falling plaster dust cleared away. The members of the family were given a good scare, and the furniture of the room thrown around promiscuously.

Mr. Paulsrud tried the experiment a few nights ago and it was successful. He is not discouraged, but will exercise more caution in the future.

FALSE ALARM.

Young Italian Had Rival Arrested for No Cause.

The bright eyes and rosy cheeks of a pretty Italian girl have caused no end of trouble and jealousy between two young men of her nationality, who are both infatuated with her, and last night affairs reached a crisis, when the two came together.

As a result one of them, Tomasino Diano was arrested and held at the central station pending an investigation.

Domanic Scandino, the young man who caused the arrest of Diano, told the police that Scandino came to his home at 1127 West Michigan street, last night, looking for trouble. He feared that he was armed, and made a hurried flight to police headquarters, where he told his story, and Diano was arrested.

Diano claims that his rival saw him in company with the young girl, and told her brother that he was planning an elopement. Hearing of this he went in search of his rival for an explanation. He was unarmed when the police searched him at the central station, and as there was no reason for holding him, he was released.

Wife Claims She Has Supported Family Three Years.

William Boyd of the West end, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of non-support, preferred by his wife. It is claimed that his wife has supported the family of five children for the past three years.

Boyd entered a plea of not guilty and the case was set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, the bail being fixed at $50.

INSURANCE BULLETIN

Issued by the Minnesota State Insurance Department.

St. Paul, Oct. 4.—The Minnesota insurance department has begun the publication of a monthly bulletin of insurance news. The first bulletin contains the following:

The New Jersey Fire Insurance company of Newark, N. J., has withdrawn from the state. Its capital is impaired but it seems probable that the assets are sufficient to take care of the outstanding policies.

The Union Mutual Life Insurance company of Portland, Me., will withdraw from the state after Dec. 31, 1907.

In an opinion rendered to the insurance department during September the attorne ygeneral holds: That the offering by life insurance companies to prospective policy holders of an option on the stock of the company is in violation of the law.

The state insurance department is preparing, and will soon issue, a pamphlet containing all laws applying to township mutual fire insurance companies.

The licenses of the Finnish Mutual Life Insurance association of Hancock, Mich., and of the Equitable Accident company of Boston, Mass., have been cancelled for non-compliance with the new deposit law.

The state fire marshal is sending out a circular letter calling the attention of fire insurance companies to the fact that the law, as amended at the last session of the legislature, relieves the fire companies from paying the expenses of investigations made by his office, and also a circular letter to municipal officers asking for reports of all fires.

H. O. Wood has been indicted by the grand jury of Freeborn county for soliciting insurance without a license. The insurance department will prosecute vigorously every case brought to its attention where either the agent or the company is not licensed to do business in the state.

The Norwich and London Accident Insurance association has been licensed to do business in Minnesota.

Fire losses in the United States and Canada for the first eight months of 1907, were $155,965,650. This is almost 50 per cent greater than the average for the last twelve years, excluding conflagration losses.

The state insurance department has just completed an examination of the Manufacturers and Traders Insurance company of Minneapolis. This is the company which reinsured the business of the State Town Dwelling Mutual Fire and Tornado Insurance company of Austin, Minn. The condition of the company, was, on Aug. 31, 1907, as follows: Total assets, $2,898.63; total liabilities, $2,233.17; surplus, $1,665.46.

Numerous inquiries are received concerning the Modern Protective association of Sayre, Pa.; the National Protective Legion of Waverlyl, N. Y., and the Pennsylvania Life & Accident association of Philadelphia. These concerns are not licensed to do business in Minnesota.

SALT GOES UP.

Price Has Been Advanced 50 Cents to $1.00 Per Ton.

New York, Oct. 4.—A tacit understanding has been reached between the International Salt company, known as the salt trust and certain independent manufacturers in regard to regulating the future course of the market for evaporated salt, according to statements made in well informed quarters, says the Journal of Commerce today. This action was taken, it is said, in consequence of the higher cost of labor and supplies, as well as because of the overproduction of salt.

As a result of the understanding prices have recently been advanced, 50 cents to $1 per ton from the low figures prevailing a month ago, when sharp price-cutting was in progress.

Incidentally a policy of retrenchment has been inaugurated and various firms have reduced their working forces.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BLIND PIG IS BLOODY

One Farmer Killed and Several Men Are Badly Cut Up.

Regular Rough House in Illegal Joint at Nekoma.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five men are in jail here awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charge of killing Erick Naveson in a blind pig at Nekoma, a town west of here on the Soo road, during a rough house when blood flowed freely. Several men were cut in the general fight some of them quite severely.

Naveson, the victim of the row, was a farmer and had gone into town to hire men for threshing. He had secured several, but when he entered into negotiations with a gang of foreigners, the men already hired protested. A fight was started and Naveson was so cut and beaten that he died.

From reports, it appears that all the men took a hand in the mixup, which turned the joint into a shambles, all being cut, bruised and covered with blood amid the wreckage. One lumberjack, after downing an Italian, deliberately jumped up and down on the prostrate man, his heavy calked boots cutting the fellow's face to ribbons. The keeper of the pig came to Thief River Falls and then left for the north on a Soo train, a badly scared man.

STOLE INFANT TO WIN HER HUSBAND

Minneapolis Kidnaper, Captured Here, Gives Odd Excuse for Act.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I wanted Stens to take me back, and I thought when he saw the baby he might do it."

Mrs. Anna Ostroski Jarmurzek, the young woman charged with kidnaping the 4-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Giauque of this city, and fleeing to Duluth, where she was captured, gave the jury in Judge John Day Smith's court, where she is being tried for kidnaping, the above as the reason she stole the little one. She said her husband beat and abused her, and she took the rather odd method advanced to win back his love.

She made no long defense of her action in taking the Giauque baby. "I don't know exactly what made me do it," she said. "I didn't think of the right or wrong of it. All I thought about was Stens. When I found Stens had gone to Canada, and couldn't see the baby, I borrowed money to bring the little girl back to its parents in Minneapolis. But the police got me before I got to the train."

Mrs. Jarmurzek's attorney, Alexander McCune brought out the fact that the woman, 23 years old, had attended school just forty-two days in her life.

For the first time since her arrest Anna Jarmurzek broke down. She wept bitterly under the cross-examination of John F. Dahl, assistant county attorney.

In view of the fact that Mrs. Jarmurzek admits that she stole the baby, and that there is no evidence of insanity, a conviction is expected by those who have been following the case.

Eight District Congressman Speaks About Good Citizenship.

Bigfork, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Adam Bede, congressman from this district, was in the city Tuesday, and at the request of many of his constituents, delivered an address in the evening at the opera house. He spoke on the general subject of "Good Citizenship," advocating higher ideals and the resulting better conditions for the American people. The present day problems, he declared, were the natural results of higher civilization, notably inventions, and must be solved slowly, with no backward effects. He paid his respects to the political boss, which was a necessity as long as 25 per cent of the voters had to be dragged to the polls. He said men are made by environment, and the duty of our people is to make better homes and communities, which at the same time will make better public officials, and eradicate by higher ideals the gambling of Wall street and the graft in big cities.

St. Paul Hospital Orderly Picks Pockets of Some Physicians.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vanity proved the undoing of Neil Williams, an orderly at Asbury hospital, Minneapolis. WILD AND WOOLLY GILE WILL QUIT

Once Booming Lumber Town Soon to be Only Memory.

Gile, Wis., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—This former lumber town, once wild and woolly and a bustling community, is rapidly going into the sere and yellow and soon will be but a memory. Well nigh deserted when the big sawmill of the Montreal Lumber company suspended operations several years ago, the handful of residents who remained are pulling stakes. There has been hope the town would eventually experience a revival, but now that the manufacturing plant and other buildings are being razed preliminary to shipment to the Ironwood, Mich., concern, which has purchased the property, the realization has come that the doom of the village is a fact. The establishment of Gile occurred in 1886, with the construction of the sawmill. The latter was the first plant of its kind erected in the Gogebic country, then practically a howling wilderness. A few months before there had been platted what is now the city of Hurley. There were no "lids" to clap on in those days, and both towns, conducted on the wide open plan, quickly took on the appearance of typical Western frontier settlements. The sporting element predominated, and they gained for the camps unsavory reputations national in scope. Possibly this has contributed to the decay of Gile. Hurley survives, but it is because iron mines have been opened in the vicinity.

The main artery of travel will soon be one of the best in the upper peninsula, and it will be carried southward from Marquette to Escanaba, a district in which many fine farms are being developed and which is to have an important place in the future of the region. There will be fifty miles of good road over which farmers may drive, this lying between Michigamme on the west, and Scandia on the east, and where the farmer used to pull only a half ton he can haul two tons with greater ease. SALT GOES UP.

Price Has Been Advanced 50 Cents to $1.00 Per Ton.

New York, Oct. 4.—A tacit understanding has been reached between the International Salt company, known as the salt trust and certain independent manufacturers in regard to regulating the future course of the market for evaporated salt, according to statements made in well informed quarters, says the Journal of Commerce today. This action was taken, it is said, in consequence of the higher cost of labor and supplies, as well as because of the overproduction of salt.

As a result of the understanding prices have recently been advanced, 50 cents to $1 per ton from the low figures prevailing a month ago, when sharp price-cutting was in progress.

Incidentally a policy of retrenchment has been inaugurated and various firms have reduced their working forces.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BLIND PIG IS BLOODY

One Farmer Killed and Several Men Are Badly Cut Up.

Regular Rough House in Illegal Joint at Nekoma.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five men are in jail here awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charge of killing Erick Naveson in a blind pig at Nekoma, a town west of here on the Soo road, during a rough house when blood flowed freely. Several men were cut in the general fight some of them quite severely.

Naveson, the victim of the row, was a farmer and had gone into town to hire men for threshing. He had secured several, but when he entered into negotiations with a gang of foreigners, the men already hired protested. A fight was started and Naveson was so cut and beaten that he died.

From reports, it appears that all the men took a hand in the mixup, which turned the joint into a shambles, all being cut, bruised and covered with blood amid the wreckage. One lumberjack, after downing an Italian, deliberately jumped up and down on the prostrate man, his heavy calked boots cutting the fellow's face to ribbons. The keeper of the pig came to Thief River Falls and then left for the north on a Soo train, a badly scared man.

STOLE INFANT TO WIN HER HUSBAND

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I wanted Stens to take me back, and I thought when he saw the baby he might do it."

Mrs. Anna Ostroski Jarmurzek, the young woman charged with kidnaping the 4-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Glauque of this city, and fleeing to Duluth, where she was captured, gave the jury in Judge John Day Smith's court, where she is being tried for kidnaping, the above as the reason she stole the little one. She said her husband beat and abused her, and she took the rather odd method advanced to win back his love.

She made no long defense of her action in taking the Glauque baby. "I don't know exactly what made me do it," she said. "I didn't think of the right or wrong of it. All I thought about was Stens. When I found Stens had gone to Canada, and couldn't see the baby, I borrowed money to bring the little girl back to its parents in Minneapolis. But the police got me before I got to the train."

Mrs. Jarmurzek's attorney, Alexander McCune brought out the fact that the woman, 23 years old, had attended school just forty-two days in her life.

GIRL MESSENGERS.

Western Union Manager in Grand Forks Wants Them.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Manager C. E. Rich of the Western Union has started an innovation in Grand Forks and is advertising for girls to take the places of boys on the messenger service. The boys cannot be depended upon, says Mr. Rich. They are too much interested in this, that and the other thing, neglecting the purpose for which they are hired. The advertisement calls for three strong girls for the day messenger service, and the company is willing to pay $18 per month for girl messengers. No girls have applied for the position thus far, but it is expected that girls will be delivering the messages in this city in a few days.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Do You Ever Feel As Though You Had Swallowed A Brick Instead of a Meal?

That heavy, bloated, stuffed-up, lead-like feeling, which you often experience after eating a meal is positive proof that something is wrong with your digestive organs. They are becoming weak and fagged out. There is a lack of gastric and other digestive juices. The food is no longer properly digested and it forms a heavy load on your stomach, so that nearly every meal causes you misery and distress.

If you are in this condition, it means that you have dyspepsia in some form and may have had it for some time, though you didn't realize it.

Now is the time to check it, for if you don't it will surely develope into worse forms of dyspepsia and other stomach troubles, which may have serious results.

But that is not all. The stomach is the hub of the body and an injury to it is the injury to all. A weak stomach causes the whole body to suffer. The action of the heart, liver and kidneys becomes sluggish. The brain becomes inactive. The nerves become unstrung. The blood loses its vitality.

The only safe, sure, scientific method of restoring your stomach to its healthy, normal state, is to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will act as a substitute in digesting your food, thus giving your stomach a much needed rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the tests for years. Thousands have used them and been cured. Physicians all over the United States recommend them. They are not a secret remedy. They contain fruit and vegetable essences, pure concentrated tincture of hydrastis, golden seal, lactose, and pure aseptic pepsin. These combined ingredients will digest the coarsest kind of food and do the work just as well as any good, strong, healthy stomach will.

Don't take our word for it. Ask your physician, your druggist or any of your friends, who may have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. But you don't even have to take their word for it. Find out for yourself. Send for a free sample package and try them. That's the surest way to learn the truth. Then, if you are satisfied, you can go to your nearest druggist and get a fifty-cent box. All druggists sell them.

JAPS STUDY ENGLISH.

But German Students in Japan Are Becoming Very Scarce.

Tokio, Oct. 4.—The newspapers here comment on the fact that the study of the German language in Japan has gone largely out of fashion in recent years. They base this conclusion on the returns of the language school in Tokio. It appears that at the first graduation ceremony of that institution, in July, 1900, the languages which had been most studied were English, Chinese, German, and Russian, in that order.

Three other languages had been taught, namely, French, Spanish and Korean, but there were only three graduates in each. At that time German stood third upon the list. Two years later, in 1902, the number of graduates in English had doubled, those in French had increased by 600 per cent (that is to say, from three to eighteen), and those in Chinese had undergone a diminution, while nothing was said about the graduates in German. In 1904 and 1905 the graduates in Chinese had more than doubled, those in English had markedly diminished, and all the rest had increased more or less in the order of the returns for 1900.

This year the figures were: English, 30; Chinese, 27; Russian, 23; French, 20; Spanish, 19; Korean, 16; German, 13, and Italian, 4. It will thus be seen that Germany has fallen from third place to seventh. The reason assigned by the Japanese newspapers is that German no longer attracts practical students, but commends itself only to those who contemplate the learned professions.

STARVE TO BE STYLISH.

Women in Pittsburg Seek Thinness Decreed by Fashion.

Pittsburg, Oct. 4.—Starving has become the new fad of the Pittsburg society woman who wants to be stylish.

"They are breaking their necks to get thin," said a fashionable Penn avenue modiste, "so they can be in style. They have quit eating corn, potatoes and other things which have a tendency to make them fat.

"Some women are almost frantic because they are so fat," continued the modiste, "and are consulting all sorts of books on subjects of 'how to reduce your weight.' Pads! My gracious, they are things of the past. The women are trying to look as straight up and down as it is possible. Paris has adopted the style, and that settles it.

"Large hips are out of date. Watch the change in women's appearance for a few days, and see how thin some of them get."

GOSSIP OF COURT LIFE

King Edward Has Completed Reorganization of His Household.

Cut Expenses and Disposed of Many Useless Functionaries.

London, Oct. 4.—King Edward has now "set his house in order." That is to say, he has completed the reorganization of his household, which was a very necessary process when he came to the throne. Since then he has had the expense reduced by a large sum, pruned the personnel of many useless functionaries, and set the whole thing on a business footing. The reforms have been carried out by Lord Farquhar, who has held the position of master of the household from the beginning of King Edward's reign, and is now retiring because the task he was appointed to carry out is finished.

With his unerring instinct for the "right man for the job," King Edward selected Lord Farquhar as the Hercules who was to cleanse the Augean stables, and the selection has proved the right one. Lord Farquhar has shown real genius in making the king's household an efficient and economical machine. Lord Farquhar came to the task with a business training, for he had been a banker. He is a lifelong friend of King Edward, and the two have been neighbors in Norfolk for many years, Lord Farquhar's place, Castle Rising, being a few miles from Sandringham.

There is no finer marksman among the grouse shooters in Great Britain today than the prince of Wales, who, even on a moderately stocked moor, does not consider it a feat to bring down with his own gun 100 brace of birds in a day. If the king has never reached such a pinnacle of excellence in that different department, it is not to be forgotten that his reputation as a deer stalker was made many years ago. This difference in attainments between father and son is in a measure a reflex of their differences in temperament. To be able to shoot grouse calls for something like instinctive precision. The birds are driven by beaters and frequently fly down the wind at more than the speed of an express train. The sportsman must have a quick eye, unerring judgment and the most unwavering decision. The genuine deer stalker, on the other hand, must have within him the qualities of the born statesman. There must be the most calculating judgment, the finest self control under quivering excitement, and, above all, the ability to take advantage of every opportunity as it arises. When the king goes grouse shooting there is no attempt at record-breaking, for his majesty has no hankering after a full bag. To pass an exhilarating afternoon on the open moor under conditions that send the party home pleased and slightly exhausted, with just sufficient of incident to create a little amusement for the rest of the evening, is his majesty's ideal day's sport.

Baronets, although the lowest rank of the British nobility, are notoriously the proudest and most snobbish. A delightful instance of this pride of title has been given by Sir Spencer Pocklington Maryon-Wilson, Bart., who strongly objects to being addressed in correspondence as "Dear Sir," and insists that he should be addressed as "Sir Baronet." He has carried his protest so far as to have printed a notice which he sends with their letters returned, to all who write to him as "Dear Sir." This precious document reads as follows:

"There is a strong feeling among baronets that the expression, 'Dear Sir,' which is constantly used in commencing a letter nowadays by and to upper servants, clerks in small offices and many other persons who are much below the social status of a baronet, is not only incorrect and incongruous, but it also very discourteous when used to members of this ancient and hereditary degree. I will therefore ask you in future to kindly commence your letters to 'Sir Baronet' instead of 'Dear Sir.'"

Beyond being the eleventh holder of the baronetcy, which was created in 1660, Sir Spencer Maryon-Wilson is quite undistinguished. But he has just sprung into fame through the publication of his exquisitely snobbish protest against "Dear Sir."

The atmosphere of shabby clothes and "labor hats" seems to have crept into the house of lords. For years and years past no member of the upper house has dreamed of appearing in the lobby in anything but a silk hat, and the majority of peers have always worn either a frock coat, however antiquated, or a black morning coat. To the horror of the cloakroom attendants, the Earl of Mayo marched in recently wearing a straw hat and a blue serge suit.

The attendants, who are even more conservative than the Tory peers themselves, received an even greater shock the next day, when Lord St. Aldwyn appeared in a light check tweed suit, which could only be described as "loud." Lord Cortney is another peer who defied tradition by wearing extremely light "fancy" sporting waistcoats. The Marquis of Clanricarde wears the seediest old frock coat and hat of any one in the house. The coat dates back to early Victorian days.

Queen Alexandra, who, merely for form's sake, and to gratify the Scottish people, has been paying a flying visit to Balmoral, shares King Edward's dislike of the late Queen Victoria's Highland home. The king shortens his Balmoral visit every year, and the next visit to the castle, which will be paid next month, that is in October, will only extend to ten days. Balmoral is always associated in the king's memory with the late John Brown, Queen Victoria's faithful attendant, whom not only the king, but all his brothers and sisters, even Princess Henry of Battenberg, so heartily disliked. One of the first things the king did when he began to make alterations, was to remove the memorial to John Brown which stood in the gardens, to a remote spot. Members of the Brown family still live in the neighborhood and draw a pension.

BIG DAM IN AUSTRALIA

Will Make an Inland Sea Covering Twenty Square Miles.

Built Between Granite Cliffs One Thousand Feet High.

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 4.—In order to provide land not only for the immigrant but also for the many Australians who are seeking and finding not, the government of New South Wales has entered upon a spirited policy of water conservation and irrigation. Acordingly, work has been started in conection with the construction of a huge dam on the Murrumbidgee river, at a place which bears the quaint name of Barren Jack, and from this source irrigation canals will serve, approximately, a million and a half acres of country.

The work, with canals, land resumptions, and other extras—incidentally, two small copper mines will have to be purchased from their owners and drowned under 206,000,000,000 gallons of water—will involve, it is estimated, an expenditure of $7,500,000 or at the rate of about $5 for every acre rescued and turned to account. So, on the face of it, it will be money well spent.

Meanwhile, although the practical work was entered upon only in January last, there is already in existence near the site a "city" of almost a thousand inhabitants, with shops, a sanitary system, streets well laid out, boarding houses, a police station, an official medical man and hospital tents. But no public houses are allowed, and anyone suspected of grog selling is liable to be unceremoniously turned out.

For the moment the men are, for the most part, living under canvas, or in premises of saplings and jute bagging. This, however, is only a temporary expedient, for the government is building comfortable barracks for the accommodation of those engaged on the work.

That part of Southern New South Wales known as the Riverina, includes much of the best country in Australia, and, given a reliable water supply, it would be admirably adapted for closer settlement. It is only eighteen hours by rail from Sydney, and, therefore, within quick reach of a ready market. At present the land consists largely of sheep walks, but with water available there would be every opportunity for a prosperous yeomanry.

By the agency of the dam an inland sea of some twenty square miles, an area wide enough for the anchorage of all the fleets in the world, is to be brought into being around a spot which at the present time is merely a deep gorge with a feeble and intermittent stream wandering listlessly in its depths.

The gorge is 300 yards across, with cliffs, 1,000 feet high on each side. It is granite facing granite, and the appearance is majestic and impressive. The two promontories are styled respectively Barren Jack and Black Andrew, and from the former of these the undertaking has taken its name.

These hills are to be linked by the dam, which, when completed, will be 200 feet high by 900 feet long. The structure will be of cyclopean rubble, material for the concrete, as well as the huge blocks of stone—technically "plums"—being obtained from the granite in the sides of the chasm. The water impounded will amount to 766,324 acre feet—an acre foot, as the name implies, being the quantity of water required to cover an acre to the depth of twelve inches.

Into this inland sea, which is situated about three miles below the confluence of the Murrumbidgee and Goodradigbee rivers, three streams will empty. Up the Murrumbidgee river the water will be backed up for forty miles, up the Goodradigbee river for thirteen miles, and up the Yass river for nineteen miles, as far as the Devil's pass. Flats in the river levels within these distances will become broad lakes, and the imprisoned water will convert hilltops into islands. Relatively, it is as big a things as the building of the Assouan dam, if not bigger.

FIVE MEN WITNESS MURDER.

Paris, Oct. 4.—The Rue Popincourt, in the Roquette quarter, has been the scene of a most atrocious and cold-blooded murder, committed in the presence of five men, who coolly looked on while one man was being butchered and a second severely wounded. The six men had been spending the evening in a cafe, where they sat around a table apart from the other guests. One of them had a big knife, with which he was practicing in the presence of the others, to show them how a man was to be stabbed.

Late in the night they all left the cafe, after having come, apparently, to a secret agreement, and walked down to a small hotel where they remained standing in front of the door, evidently waiting for some one to return. It was not long before a young woman appeared, accompanied by two workmen, who were well known in the neighborhood. She had scarcely rung the bell at the hotel door when the man who had been practicing with his knife at the cafe walked up and attacked one of the workmen. The latter, being a powerfully built man, seized him, and a severe struggle followed, in the course of which both rolled on the ground, while the woman was screaming for help.

The assassin finally succeeded in plunging his knife into the heart of the workman, and then attacked the other, who had come to the assistance of his comrade, and also wounded him by a fierce thrust in the side. Meanwhile the other five men had been looking quietly on, and when the murderer had finished his work, one of the men lying dead on the pavement and the other apparently dying, he deliberately wiped the blade of his knife with his pocket handkerchief and then walked off with his friends, after remarking that he thought he had done his work well.

STOP RUSSIAN MASSACRES.

Gen. Novitzky, New Prefect of Police, Declares His Policy.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 4.—There is a prospect of a cessation of the outrages of which the citizens of Odessa have so long been the victims at the hands of the Union of the Russian People, which, under the guise of anti-Semitic patriotism, has enjoyed the disgraceful support of the local authorities.

The lull in these outrages under the ex-prefect, Gen. Grigorieff, was immediately interrupted when this official had to leave his post, owing to his unfriendly attitude towards the Union of the Russian People, and the city for three days was surrendered to the hands of the anti-Semitic hooligans, with the result that the hospitals were filled with maimed and wounded. The government at last has been compelled to take action by appointing Gen. Novitzky, prefect, with the mission of putting down lawlessness and restoring order in the distracted city. Gen. Novitzky is a gendarmerie officer, but bears an excellent reputation. He declined to serve under M. Plehve on account of that minister's plan for suborning the trade unions, which he correctly foretold would lead to disastrous results.

Gen. Novitzky in an interview declares that he will set an example by observing the law alike in the case of Jew and Christian, and he is sure that he will win the confidence of all classes, thereby rendering it unnecessary to perpetrate the vexations resort to exceptional measures.

The Union of the Russian People shows sign of disruption. It is rumored that owing to lack of funds the party organ will shortly be discontinued.

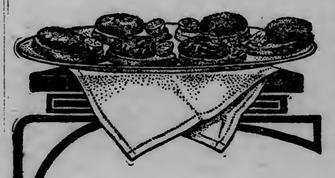

SULPHURIC ACID IN SOUP.

Young Italian Girl Attempted to Commit Double Murder.

Rome, Oct. 4.—The population of Rome has been shocked by the attempt of a beautiful young girl, Maddalena Stocchi, aged 15, to murder her father and a woman friend, by putting sulphuric acid in their soup. The attempt was frustrated by a neighbor who was paying a visit to the family, and noticing a strong smell, discovered its origin.

The girl, when arrested, confessed to the crime and expressed regret at its failure.

SUSPENDING SENTENCES.

The National Prison Congress, in its recent session, broached the interesting proposal of establishing a system of suspended sentences for persons that have been convicted for the first time of minor penitentiary offenses.

There is much to commend it. It rests much responsibility upon the trial judge, but it gives him leeway to exercise his discretion where at present, in many cases, the law prohibits him from using any discretion whatever.

The object of the criminal law is not so much to punish the offender as it is to reform him and to protect society. In the case of an offender against the law who is before the court for the first time, society is not so much interested in seeing him punished as it is in seeing that he does not offend again. A penitentiary sentence, in too many cases, means to confirm the offender in criminal habits.

He is thrown among criminal associates during his term, and this influence is positively and necessarily bad. When he gets out he is a convict, and without inquiring further into his character or history, he is an object of suspicion. It is hard for him to find honest work, even though there are societies whose object is to provide him with it. In many cases, in despair because of his failure to get a permanent foothold on paths of honesty, the offender slips back into crime and becomes a professional criminal.

In short, the penitentiary has failed in many cases to accomplish anything either for the criminal or society, and it seems reasonable to hope that more may be accomplished by giving the trial judge the right to suspend sentence if he has hope that by doing so he can save the offender and make him a useful member of society. In a large proportion of cases this is possible, and if it is possible it would be a shame to brand the man as a convict and subject him to the evil influences and effects of a prison sentence.

The minor courts, before whom minor offenders come, have practiced this with enormous success. There are several police judges, for instance, that have sent but few men to jail for drunkenness in recent years. They permit those who are arrested to go under suspended sentence, and keep track of them for a time. The sentence hangs over them to compel them to walk straight, and if they fail they are brought before the court again. But they seldom have to be brought up again. Usually once is enough, and many a drunkard has been redeemed to sobriety and industry by this practice.

It seems altogether probable that similarly good effects may be realized in the cases of those guilty of more serious offenses. At any rate, it is perfectly safe to bestow upon the trial judge the right to use his own judgment. He is not likely to abuse it. If the exercise of the right to suspend sentence proves useless, he will not continue to use it. He may make mistakes, but if he can save a man from a career of crime for every mistake he makes, society will be still a gainer.

THOSE BRIDGE ACCIDENTS.

The other evening it was suggested in a local article in The Herald that it would be a good thing if some of the railroads entering Duluth, if not all of them, could cross from Wisconsin to Minnesota under the bay instead of over it; in other words, if the trains came through tunnels instead of over bridges.

The frequency of accidents to bridges by the disastrous assaults of vessels makes the desirability of this change evident enough, and it is to be hoped that the report that the Soo road may come into Duluth through a tunnel will prove correct. However, it is something that Duluth cannot affect by her wishes, since it is the province of the railroads themselves to choose their method of entering the city. Duluth is glad to have them come, and can hardly go so far as to demand that they come by tunnel instead of by bridge.

At the same time, there is another side of the matter. It would serve the same purpose if the vessels would quit running into the bridges. All of the bridges between Superior and Duluth are equipped with openings through which the vessels can run. There is no real necessity of any of them trying to get through by pushing the bridge out of the way. If the openings provided are not wide enough, they could be made wider, but nobody has asserted, thus far, that they are not wide enough.

It is a good deal of a nuisance to have a bridge put out of commission every few days in this manner, and it could be avoided either by abolishing the bridges or by the exercise of more care by the vessel men. As it is extremely improbable that the bridges will be abolished right away, it would seem that the most obvious remedy is for the vessel men to look where they are going, and try to keep their ships in the channels provided for them instead of running out of their course to butt into the bridges.

SHUT OFF THE WATER.

Recently The Herald published the news of the rules governing the issuance of stock by corporations adopted by the public utilities commission of New York, and commented upon them briefly. It was shown that these rules absolutely forbid the watering of stock in any form whatever. They will not permit the issuance of new stock except for legitimate purposes which are fully explained and shown to be justified by conditions.

They absolutely forbid the issuance of stock for the purpose of concealing the exorbitance of profits, which is stock-watering in its most flagrant form. By its use the public has been drained of its money by shrewd and unprincipled capitalists, and now that the stock has passed into the hands of "innocent purchasers" the problem of what to do about it is a really serious one.

Whatever may be the difficulties attending the curbing of excessive profits where they are spread out over watered stock that has come into the hands of purchasers in good faith who are wholly innocent of the original crime of stock-watering, the prevention of further crimes of that nature is simplicity itself. The New York public utilities commission has pointed the way; let the other states follow suit.

It is true that so long as there is one state that will permit the corporations it creates to water their stock the other states are more or less helpless. But here is where state rights, a sentiment that has shown more capacity to obstruct reform than to bring it about, must subside before the indisputable power of the federal government to prohibit interstate shipments of goods produced by such corporations. That would drive the watered corporation back into the state of its creation to prey upon the people of that state alone, who can stop it or not as they see fit.

The last Minnesota legislature was regarded as progressive and alive to its duties to the people, yet it killed a bill that proposed such regulation of stock issues as the New York public utilities commission has brought about. The Rockne bill, prohibiting the issuance of railroad securities without the consent of the railroad and warehouse commission, which had to be shown the need of them before giving its permission, was made the object of bitter corporation hostility, and the attempt to defeat it was successful.

Yet the main trouble with it was that it applied only to railroads, there being no commission to pass upon the securities of other public utility corporations, and that it discriminated against home railroads, few in number, because other states have not taken similar action. The latter argument was a poor one, because it is impossible to have all the states act at once, and Minnesota would have done well if she had made a start and furnished the example to other states.

She would do well, too, to copy New York's example and provide a public utilities commission to look into the public service corporations of the state and to see that they do not try to make the people pay interest and dividends on too much capital.

THE ULTIMATE GOOD.

The president has thus far disappointed those who feared that in his speech-making on his way down the Mississippi he would urge some new and strange doctrines of a character so revolutionary that business would take fright and gallop into the woods.

It is true that he announced that the course of the administration as to big law-breakers would not be changed, but he has said that before, and nobody expected him to say anything different. But beyond that, whatever he may still have to say before he plunges into the cane-brakes, he has even tried, in his way, to reassure honest business interests.

Yesterday at Cairo he said that he did not believe the fight against dishonest busines swould have anything but a beneficial effect upon the permanent prosperity of the country, and that even as regards any temporary effect, he believed that such trouble "is due fundamentally not to the fact that the national authorities have discovered and corrected certain abuses, but to the fact that these abuses were there to be discovered." To say that abuses have been corrected is perhaps going too far. The attempt has been made to correct them, but it is yet too early to declare that they have been permanently and completely corrected.

The president is right when he says that the correction of the evil methods of big business will result in a stronger, deeper, more solid and more widespread prosperity. The abuses that the American people are seeking to correct have all had the aim and effect of draining the many for the benefit of the few. They have not created new wealth; they have brought about a new alignment of existing wealth, building up excessively large fortunes at the expense of the people. If these methods can be abolished, the wealth will still remain, but it will be scattered over a larger field, so that more people will share in the great wealth of the richest nation on earth.

THE DANGERS OF MILK.

A form of private benefaction for public purposes that is new and most praiseworthy is that adopted by Nathan Straus of New York, who has spent and is spending large sums of money to provide pure milk for the children of that city. Not only that, but he has interested others in this valuable work, and has induced them to contribute largely.

It is now well known that milk, excellent food as it is and innocent as it looks even when it is most deadly, is responsible for a large proportion of the diseases that afflict humanity. From it tuberculosis can be acquired; it spreads typhoid fever with more facility than any other medium; it kills more babies than all other causes put together. It does these things when it is impure, but when it is pure it is wholesome and live-giving. Therefore efforts to make it pure and to prevent its sale when it is not pure are productive of vast good to humanity, and the example of Nathan Straus in New York might well be followed elsewhere by rich men who wish to make their wealth of positive benefit to the people. Such men regard their riches as a trust, which they have been given to handle not alone for their own benefit, but for the benefit of humanity. Men who thus look unselfishly upon their possessions are never likely to incur public hatred because of their wealth.

Milk attracts germs and fosters them until they multiply to incomprehensible numbers. Therefore milk must be pure when it is consumed, or a pleasant and nourishing food is turned into a deadly poison. The discovery of the evil possibilities of milk has been rather recent, and it has given rise to numerous efforts, like those of Nathan Straus, to so regulate its handling that its evils will be thoroughly eliminated. In Washington, for instance, typhoid fever has existed to a greater or less degree for years. It was blamed to the water, to the climate, to this and to that, but lately it has been established beyond question that it is due to slovenly milk dealers and to the laxity of regulations in the District of Columbia governing the sale of milk. This determined, it is a comparatively simple matter to stamp out the disease by a proper regulation of the sale of milk.

What has been done in New York is shown by the fact that in 1892, when the work was begun, the death rate among children was 96 in each one thousand; while in 1905, after the distribution of specially purified milk for children had reached a total of more than a million quarts, the death rate had been reduced to 55 per thousand.

In every progressive state and city in the country the sale of milk and its products is under rigid regulations. This is true of Minnesota and Duluth, and so close a watch is kept upon the milk dealers, both by the state and the city, that it is a practical impossibility for methods to prevail that invite the deadly results of careless handling of milk.

Nathan Straus left regulation to the public authorities; his charity consisted in buying pasteurized milk that could not possibly contain germs, and providing it for the children of the poor who were unable to buy it themselves. It is a noble charity, and it would be hard to imagine a better use for the money of the charitable.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

An old lake captain who drops into the St. Louis of an evening, occasionally, was reminded, possibly by the timber and plank and other indications of repairs in the office, of the days when he was hauling timber and lumber out of various lake ports. He also was reminded of the fact that in those days the workmen were stronger than they are now, or at least worked harder. His talk in fact reminded one of his hearers of the story of the old Irishmen who were talking about strong men. The one who finally won the palm had it this way:

"Talk about ye're strong min. Why there was Tim Dooling he was that strong that he could pick up a cobble stone and squeeze it and it would run through his fingers like sand."

The old captain was acquainted with a lot of strong men in his day, but he suddenly veered and wanted to know how many men his hearers thought it would require to handle and carry a marble slab 16 feet long, eight inches thick and four feet wide. Some one suggested a number and he responded that you could not get men enough around it to lift it. He, of course, just shoved the bit of a truck under each end, with a piece of dunnage to protect the marble from the bit., etc. "Dunnage," it should be understood, is any stuff that is used to protect anything from wear, such as cull boards laid down to protect a deck from the wear of its deckload. The captain told many experiences last night, many incidents of a long lake career, but his most interesting conversation was when he would constantly recur to the statement that workingmen of today are less able than in his day and that the art of handling men is lost, since the days of the knock down and drag out lumber captains.

Duluth is shortly to see again a young actor who has come into his own. "The Hypocrites" will be at the Lyceum next week with Richard Bennett as the young curate. Mr. Bennett, if memory serves, played the light comedy in "Charley's Aunt" not more than ten years ago. Since then he has been forging to the front of the profession. J. D. Loftingwell, who has been in Duluth at the head of a number of strong attractions, is the avatar of "The Hypocrites." At the Spalding yesterday he waxed enthusiastic over the work of Mr. Bennett.

The World of Autumn.

A crimson weed and cobalt seed, a burr
And a thistle pod,
A poppy bloom and the yellow dust in the plume of the golden rod;
A beautiful world to live in,
Forget in and forgive in,
To walk in and to work in, to rest in and to nod!

A chestnut burr and a chinquapin, a haw with its berries black;
A paw-paw sweet, a bin of wheat, the straw in the barnyard stack;
A bountiful world to grow in,
To reap in and to sow in,
With joy in the blood a-bubble from the lip of youth blown back!

The windfalls under the winesap, a barrel by the cider mill,
A red-corn ear in the husk somewhere,
and a maid with her heart athrill;
A fine old world to spark in,
To sing in and to lark in,
To find the old-time sweethearts the same old sweethearts still!

A tournament, and a queen to crown, and the rosy maids of honor.
A heart's delight for the lucky wight who lays the crown upon her;
A valorous world to fight in,
To set the old wrongs right in,
To dream of bliss when she gave a kiss to the daring lance that won her!

Appeal For the Farm.

Governor Hughes in Leslie's Weekly: When you get out where a man has a little elbow room and a chance to develop, he has thoughts of his own. His thinking is not supplied to him every night and every morning, and he is less of a machine and more of a man, so that I do not think that the farmers need to be looked upon, or want to be looked upon, as dependents of the state. They do not come to the state government asking alms. They are self-reliant, they are intelligent. What we want in connection with agriculture is what we want in connection with every other field of noble effort. We want training, we want intelligence, we want scientific method, we want direction, we want the way shown, and then the man can walk in it. There is no reason why the same care and intention and skill and scientific consideration should not be devoted to agriculture as to industry and the technical trades. The men who are running away from the farms too frequently make a mistake, and some day in New York—and the day is rapidly approaching—our young men, in larger numbers, will wake up to the fact that they have a pretty good chance on the farm, and that they may be to a greater degree independent and happy in life if they stay where their happy lots were cast in connection with their fathers' farm or another which they may be able to procure.

Cowardly Converts.

Providence Journal, (Rep.): A tariff that increases the cost of living as the present tariff is doing is not protection but robbery. There must be many Republican congressmen who in their hearts agree with Mr. McCall. It is a pity that they have not his courage. For courage pays, even in politics. This truth has been demonstrated again and again, though politicians are slow to realize it.

Not Extravagant.

New Bedford Standard: Because the peace conference at The Hague will cost $1,200,000, and is not likely to accomplish anything immediate, great concern is expressed at the waste. Still, there have been days of war when as much money was spent, and no more of profitable result to show for it.

THE WEATHER.

It looked a little dubious this morning, as it was cloudy and rather threatening, but the sun broke through frequently, and the clouds grew too light to be dangerous. The weather man expects it to be partly cloudy tonight and tomorrow, with but slight changes in temperature was 40 degs. and yesterday's highest was 53 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, brilliant, charming.

The sun rose at 6:11 this morning and sets at 5:42 tonight, making 11 hours and 31 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light to heavy rains fell during Thursday or last night in North Atlantic states, the Lake region, Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the southwest, due to low pressures over Arizona and the northwest. The depression in the latter district has moved its center to the Red river valley. The Rocky Mountain high pressure remained about stationary, but it has caused somewhat cooler weather in the western lake region and central valleys. Partly cloudy weather is indicated for this locality during tonight and Saturday."

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Yonkers Statesman: "Pop?"

"Yes, my son."

"It was natural that there should be two worms in the Ark."

"Why, my boy?"

"Because worms nearly always come in pears."

Washington Star: "Some of the speeches delivered in congress are only a waste of words."

"Yes," answered the thrifty statesman; "a great many speeches are delivered gratis which would command liberal compensation from a lecture manager."

Baltimore American: "Has that city boarder of yours got any consumption, Hiram?"

"Has he got any consumption? You just outer see the bare places in our vegetable garden and meat house."

Chicago Tribune: "The graspingest and most penurious landlord I ever knew," Uncle Allen Sparks was saying, "was a chap who, when he was a tenant, always put up the loudest howl about stingy landlords."

Milwaukee Sentinel: "This is a sad case," said the asylum attendant, pausing before a padded cell. "There is no hope for the patient whatever."

"What's the trouble with him?" asked the visitor.

"He thinks he understands a railroad timetable."

Isn't that a mistake?

In this instance, did not Jonah swallow the whale?

Master of High Finance.

Oh, I am a master of high finance,
The principal teacher in games of chance;
Prodigious acumen I showed at birth,
And great inclination to own the earth.
For I was a twin, and began, they say,
To form a food trust the very first day,
And "Ashes to ashes, and dust to dust,"
They said o'er my brother, who fought the trust.

Oh, I was a gentle and pious boy,
The pride of my parents, the teacher's joy;
When I was an urchin at Sunday school
I lustily cried for the Golden Rule,
But when I received it I got a shock,
Until I perceived I could water the stock;
I juggled the words, dropped a phrase or two,
And now the others, I simply "DO."

There is not a thing that I can't combine,
All sorts of products are in my line,
Invisible oil and untouchable ore,
And unassessable mines galore.
I've stocks and I've bonds, and steel and ships,
Each in my pockets a million slips,
And my poor sheared lambs that are in corral,
I'm planning to wash in the great canal.

—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX in "The Beauty Trust."

Live in the Present.

From Emerson's "Self-Reliance": Man is timid and apologetic. He is no longer upright. He dares not say "I think," "I am," but quotes some saint or sage. He is ashamed before the blade of grass or the blowing rose. These roses under my window make no reference to former roses or to better ones; they are for what they are; they exist with God today. There is no time to them. There is simply the rose; it is perfect in every moment of its existence. Before a leaf-bud has burst, its whole life acts; in the full-blown flower, there is no more; in the leafless root, there is no less. Its nature is satisfied, and it satisfies nature, in all moments alike. There is no time to it. But man postpones and remembers; he does not live in the present, but with reverted eye laments the past, or, heedless of the riches that surround him, stands on tiptoe to forsee the future. He cannot be happy and strong until he too lives with nature in the present, above time."

Economical.

And now we sip
With trembling lip
Economy's cup to the dregs;
And in our need
Ask how we'll feed—
They're putting up the price of eggs.

JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA.

Indianapolis News, (Ind.): Our Washington dispatches have predicted that a "boom" for Governor Johnson of Minnesota would be launched within a month, provided he would consent to the use of his name. Like Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Johnson is not bothering himself about the future. It is even doubted whether he will permit his name to be used in connection with the Democratic nomination. It is said that he will certainly refuse to become a candidate against Mr. Bryan, and that he will not allow himself to be made the candidate of any faction of the party. He no doubt feels, as many others feel, that if the Democrats do not get together very soon they never will get together. But without reference to what the future may have in store for this man, and judging him solely on the record that he has thus far made, it must be said of him that he is in every way worthy of the respect and confidence of his party and of all the people.

Governor Johnson is a reformer and yet he is at the same time a man of good sense and sound judgment, leaning perhaps a little to the conservative side. He has been confronted with the same situation as that faced by Governors Glenn and Comer, but he has not indulged in any violent talk, or threatened to resist the process of the courts of the nation. Minnesota's interests will be as well protected as those of the two Southern states in which such an outcry has been raised. There is nothing spectacular about Johnson. He is a plain man, whose only aim is to do his duty. His honesty is above reproach, and his ability is good. It is not surprising that many Democrats should be looking to him as the man to lead their party out of the wilderness. He has "made good" as an executive officer. He is a genuine Democrat, both in creed and life. He is popular in his own state and throughout the Northwest, as is shown by his carrying Minnesota in the very year in which Mr. Roosevelt was elected. Minnesota cast her vote for Roosevelt and Johnson. Finally, he represents no faction, and is involved in none of the quarrels which have so long distracted the party. We should say that, with Bryan out of it, Johnson's chances would be bright.

His popularity is proof of the ability of the people to recognize a good man when they see him. Already he is in a sense a national figure, and is admired by many men who have never even laid eyes on him. They know him to be a true man, an honest and efficient public officer, and a popular leader, who is not a demagogue. We shall undoubtedly hear much of Governor Johnson in the next few months. He has earned the goodwill and admiration which are now his. Whether he is or is not called on to go higher, he can at least feel that he has done his duty, and that he has won by fair and honest methods the favorable opinion in which he is held by the whole country.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Optimism is lack of experience.

When a boy won't lie it's a sign his mother thinks so.

A girl will never tell on a man for kissing her unless he didn't.

The best way to make money speculating is to bet against your own judgment.

It must be mighty comforting to a castaway on a desert island to know he doesn't have to call on his relatives.

Neutralizing Monopoly.

Lincoln State Journal: For all our railing against the trusts, have we not actually accepted as a fact the doom of competition? Yesterday it was announced that milk was to go up in Lincoln. The milkmen had agreed that they must have more money, and up goes the price. This is not competition. It is combination announced with no effort at disguise. The flour dealers are equally frank in acknowledging that they do not compete. The public accepts the situation with no particular protest.

Today it is announced that the price of pies will go up in New York. The new schedule is published in detail as if there were but one pie maker in the city. For price making purposes there is but one, the New York Bakers' association. The association met openly and decreed the price of pies regardless of conspiracy laws. Could it have done that if public opinion were insisting that business be competitive?

Melville E. Ingalls told the American Bankers' association on Friday that the Sherman anti-trust law would have to be amended. Under its present terms, he said, no honest man can engage in business without danger to violating it. "Why," he exclaimed, "in my own state legislation is so strict that if two butchers on opposite corners of the street should agree upon the price of beefsteak it should be a penitentiary offense." That is to say a prominent American is ready to say openly that the law should be changed because it does, when enforced, just what it was intended to do.

It is a wise saying that where monoploy is possible competition is impossible. Our business men and some of our laboring men have learned the combination trick and laws to check them seem as vain as the wiles that wrapped Sampson's limbs. But it is as impossible for a people to live half under monopoly, half under competition as for a nation to exist half slave and half free. We have failed to destroy monopoly. Possibly the present tolerance of monopoly rises from the fact that the people have given up the hope of destroying it, and are now seeking to protect themselves by each one getting into a monopoly of his own, thus restoring the balance that was destroyed with the advent of the first monopolies.

Obeying Orders.

Philadelphia Ledger: President Hadley of Yale, coming back to New Haven late one night, got into one of the cabs at the station and taking it for granted that the cabby knew who he was, said: "Drive fast, cabby."

"All right, sir," replied cabby. The horse started off with a plunge and kept up his rapid rate for half an hour, going up one street and down another.

Finally Dr. Hadley, seeing that he was being taken in the wrong direction, stuck his head out of the window and asked: "Are you not going in the wrong direction, cabby?"

"Hanged if I know, mister," was the astonishing reply; "where do you want to go?"

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Willmar Journal: The idea that the Republican party of Minnesota is composed of too many men needing vindication, or in other words, too many with knives ready to stick into some one else, because they suffered defeat at the hands of the party, is about true. The party needs none of such narrow-minded men, and will never win as long as that class continues its "trying to get back" policy.

Virginia Virginian: It's time for those contemplating entering the political race to go into training.

Hendrum Review: The Ulen Union rises to remark that a man who returns a ladder and a borrowed book can be safely trusted by any bank.

Crookston Times: Every few days some dignified editorial in the current press gravely informs its readers that "the Constitution is safe." It is always such a relief to get this assurance.

Cass Lake Times: Frank Kellogg is a Minnesotan, born and reared in the great state and every citizen is proud of him and his work.

Warren Sheaf: There is cause for state pride in knowing that Frank B. Kellogg, who is giving the Standard Oil company such a hard rub in his capacity as special counsel of the government, is a Minnesota man. From a poor boy and unknown country lawyer, he has worked himself to a very high place in the legal profession, and Minnesota is proud of him. He has been suggested as a good Republican gubernatorial timber for next year.

Walker Pilot: The state editors ought to be ashamed of themselves. Impossible to get up an excursion! Can't get out of town because their railroad passes have been taken away from them! Poor fellows; one would think they had lost their pants instead of their passes by the way they are keeping under cover.

Deer River News: A notice in the Big Fork Compass that the splendid paper is for sale will be sad news to the fourth estate family. Brother Greeley's witty shots and wise sayings are of the bread of life to the press and public and no successor can fully fill his place.

St. Cloud Times: The party is looking for a candidate upon whom all can unite. Mr. Bryan is first in the thoughts of all, but the conviction is general that he cannot bring together the discordant elements of the party. His time will come again, but party success does not seem to point to him for 1908. He would make an able secretary of state in President Johnson's cabinet.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Wise men cultivate the art of taking things easy.

Few men bewail the loss of another man's money.

Every time a girl falls in love she wonders if it will take.

Most commonly a woman argues the same way she gets off a car.

It sometimes happens that a fresh guy is mistaken for a man of nerve.

When a woman doesn't know her own mind it is time she sought an introduction.

When a man gets religion he has to go to work and build up a new reputation.

A girl will never believe a man who tells her he loves her and lets it go at that.

Many a silent man gets credit for being wise because he can't think of anything to say.

Sometimes a woman has a good time crying because she isn't having a good time.

It is folly for a man to marry a woman who is a good cook unless he is willing to supply the raw material.

About the time a dressmaker's bill has set a man back $100 or more, it is easy to convince him that beauty unadorned is adorned the most.

THE SUPPLY OF MONEY

In World Not Great Enough to Meet Business Demands.

Charges Against Treasury on Currency Circulation Are Baseless.

New York, Oct. 4.—James J. Hill tersely and accurately stated months ago that all that was troubling financial circles was too much prosperity in the country. Other prominent business man of this republic have stated the same truth in other forms of speech, and to any person who has made a study of the situation it is plainly to be seen that it is its ramifications which has placed a tension upon the actual cash resources of the country.

It was the great increase of the volume of currency which started up this activity; it is the constant and steady increase of currency that maintains prosperity, and that increase must be kept up either from the national reservoirs, the mines or the artificial supplies such as are furnished by national issues or bank issues of currency, else business ceases to progress and hesitation and doubt caused by insufficient currency, produces depression until such time as additional supplies are available. From 1897 to 1907 the world has had daily, monthly and annual object lessons demonstrating the correctness of the quantitative theory of money.

Men who refuse to accept that view find themselves constantly proving its accuracy in the working of their own affairs and find their fortunes and their interests governed by this ever present and constantly operating power of available or unavailable currency.

It is fundamental in its relations to the entire industrial, commercial and financial affairs of the world. Sir Hugh Bell, the eminent authority on metals, comes out this week with the direct assertion that the demands of actual business in the world are in excess of the cash capital of the world available for such a purpose.

In plain English, the money supply of the world is not great enough to perform efficiently the duty demanded by those who need to use it.

This is the concensus of opinion of the leading active business men of the world.

If not openly acknowledged by the American Bankers' association it is clearly shown that the members of the association know it to be true by their adoption of Mr. Hepburn's report declaring in favor of a credit currency.

Surely the world does move when we find a body of gentlemen, especially gifted in finance, who ten years ago assured the country there was ample money in circulation to do all business, that all that was needed was confidence, now after a decade of increases in the circulation exceeding all records in human history, demanding legislation that may add other hundreds of millions to the circulation of the country.

The consent of the government to its issue by the banks is all that is needed to make this money good for circulation.

The government will, no doubt, give that consent.

The banks, however, or the bankers' association, would hardly give consent to the government to issue the currency. That would not be the proper thing for the government to do. It would be inflation, unsound finance, flat money, a step beyond the proper powers of the general government, but it is an exceedingly useful, sound, safe, aye, a necessary safeguard for the business interests of the country to allow the bankers to furnish the currency.

"What fools we mortals be." Every now and then complaints are heard as to the action of the treasury department adding to the circulation or withdrawing currency from circulation, and charges are bandied around the city offices as to these actions being timed to affect stock values and stock quotations.

Baseless these charges have been in the past in the great majority of instances, and the amounts of currency involved in deposits or withdrawals have been insignificant compared with the inflation or contraction that might be practiced under this credit currency issue. The power of increase or contraction of the currency of any country is the power which regulates values, and those who exercise it have in many cases the power to make or destroy the prosperity of the people. In the discussion of the finances of the country we find many advocates of a great central bank for the United States, and efforts are constantly being made to excite admiration for the Bank of England, the Bank of France and the German bank. Powerful they are, both for good or for evil. Who does not know what a rise of 1 per cent or 2 per cent in the discount rate of these banks does to the stock markets of the world, and to the general business of the country affected by the operations of the bank?

What a cinch it would be for some of our conservative financiers of the insurance companies, the trust companies and the railway companies if they could found such a bank in the United States and raise or lower discount rates as their interest in the stock markets required.

The campaign subscriptions of 1896, 1900, and 1904 would be bagatelles, mere tips, compared with what could be gathered in if a great central bank was made a quiet campaign issue. Even the tariff would be a subordinate to the directors of a great central bank. Failing a great central bank, credit currency to be issued and withdrawn at the option or by the advice of a chosen few or a close syndicate of bank officials co-operating with some pliant comptroller of the currency, could be made to yield a good profit to the banks and at the same time produce splendid profits to those who act for the banks and think and work for themselves. How the Asiatic countries are absorbing cash is shown by the recent advices from India and Japan. During May, 1907, India imported gold to the value of $10,046,178 and silver to the value of $9,345,762. The exports of these metals in the same month were: Gold, $871,477, silver, $357,743. Thus India is adding largely to her money circulation, and her people in consequence are becoming more prosperous.

Japan reports a money circulation in May, 1907, of $211,200,000 in cash and in Bank of Japan notes of $147,000,000. At the end of June the circulation in cash had risen to $231,500,000 and in bank notes to $166,400,000. An increase in the amount of circulating medium of nearly $40,000,000 within two months is doing splendidly for even as progressive a country as Japan. If the hoards of precious metals in India could be gathered into the vaults of discount banks the entire world would be benefited by this addition to the circulating medium and India itself advanced centuries in modern civilization. These financial and commercial statistics of the Asiatic countries confirm universal prosperity and emphasize the necessity of large increases to the money of the world.

A Woman's Health

Is a heritage too sacred to be experimented with. For her peculiar and delicate ailments only medicines of known composition and which contain no alcohol, narcotics, or other harmful or habit-forming drugs should be employed. The one medicine which fulfills all these requirements is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy with a record of over forty years of cures to recommend it; a remedy, the makers of which print its formula on every bottle-wrapper and attest its completeness and correctness under oath; a remedy devised and adapted to woman's delicate constitution by an educated physician—an experienced specialist in woman's diseases; a remedy, every ingredient of which has received the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar diseases; a remedy which has more bona-fide cures to its credit than any other sold by druggists for woman's special requirements. It is not given away in the form of "trial bottles" to be experimented with, but is sold at a fair price by all dealers in medicines.

Delicate, weak, nervous women should especially shun the use of alcoholic medicines which, from their stimulating and exhilerating effects may seem, for a time, to do good, but which from the inevitable effects of the alcohol in shrinking up the red corpuscles of the blood are sure to do great and lasting harm in the long run. Besides they beget a craving for stimulants which is most deplorable.

Only invigorating and nerve strengthening effects can follow the use of this famous medicine for women. It can not possibly do harm in any state or condition of the system. It has been carefully adapted to woman's needs by an experienced physician—a specialist in their diseases. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

If a woman has bearing down, or dragging pains, low down in the abdomen, or pelvis, backache, frequent headaches, dizzy or fainting spells, is nervous and easily startled, has gnawing feeling in stomach, sees imaginary floating specks, or spots before her eyes, has melancholia, or "blues," or a weakening disagreeable drain from pelvic organs, she can make no mistake by resorting to the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will invigorate and tone up the whole system and especially the pelvic organs.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Perscription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic, "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

No woman suffering from any of the above symptoms can afford to accept any secret nostrum or medicine of unknown composition, as a substitute for a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and has a record of over forty years of cures and sells more largely to-day than ever before. Its makers withhold no secrets from their patients, believing open publicity to be the very best guaranty of merit.

Dr. Pierce invites all suffering women to consult him by letter free of charge. All letters of consultation are held as strictly private and sacredly confidential and all answers are returned in plain, sealed envelopes. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Appeal Case of Wisconsin Central Company is Dismissed.

A satisfactory settlement was reached out of court in the appeal case of the Wisconsin Central Railway company relative to the condemnation proceedings to secure a right-of-way across Elliott & Co.'s Oneota yards, and the case was dismissed after a jury had been drawn. While the attorneys were getting ready to make the pleadings, one side made an offer that seemed acceptable to the other, and a recess was taken while the principals went into one of the jury rooms and arranged for a settlement.

HUSBANDS AT $1,000 EACH,

But Irish Girls Come to America for the Price.

Dublin, Oct. 4.—The average price of a husband in County Mayo is $1,000. This was the sum fixed by a witness who was examined before the royal commission on congestion in Ireland, which held a sitting at Claremont. The witness explained that on an average 100 Irish people returned from America every year. Some of these were girls, who went to America at about 16 years of age, and after stopping in America for six or seven years, returned home with about $1,000. They had no difficulty in getting a husband and settling down.

"Then," said Sir Francis Mowatt, amid laughter, "the price of a husband in Mayo is $1,000."

STATUE OF HANNA ALL READY TO CAST.

New York, Oct. 4.—The colossal seated statue of the late Mark Hanna, modelled by the late Augustus Saint Gaudens, will be cast in bronze at the Mount Vernon foundry this afternoon. It was one of the last works of the lamented sculptor. The statue represents Senator Hanna in an arm chair, the right arm of which he grasps in an energetic fashion. The head, shoulders and feet are absolutely at rest, the only suggestion of movement being in the right hand.

This impressive piece of statuary will be erected in Cleveland, Ohio.

FORGING TO THE FRONT

State Labor Bureau is Doing Big Stroke of Business.

Total of 845 Men Sent Out During September.

According to the business done at the local state free labor bureau Duluth is fast forging to the front as a center of the labor market in Minnesota. The local bureau has already outstripped the one at St. Paul and is gaining on Minneapolis.

Last June the Duluth state bureau was established. During the first two or three weeks the business was rather dull, but after a good reputation had been worked up by Manager James Walsh, the new bureau was one of the busiest in the city. Orders for men came in by the dozens and thousands of men have been sent out since that time.

Manager Walsh's report for the month of September, which he has just sent to Labor Commissioner Williams at St. Paul, states that 845 men were sent out by the office while in the women's department orders were filled for 141 positions.

The majority of the men were sent out on railroad work in various directions. Along the South Shore line hundreds of men were put to work and in Northern Minnesota large numbers were given jobs. There has been all kinds of work right here in town and many of the men have remained here.

Agents of the railroads and contractors have been having a struggle in getting the men. For every man sent out last month there were probably at least two or three applicants after him. The men have had it their own way and have been able to choose which job they prefer to go on.

In the women's department of the state bureau, most of those sent out were for general housework, but only part of the demand for domestics could be supplied. Over fifty applications were left unfilled at the end of the month. Numerous women cooks for hotels and resaurants were sent out, but not as many as there were orders and applications sent in.

In three months Manager Walsh has built up a big labor center and bigger things still are expected in the future. Labor Commissioner Williams seemed perfectly well satisfied with the work done by the local bureau when here a couple of weeks ago and was authority for the statement that it had outstripped St. Paul.

Damages in the sum of $337 were awarded L. Mainella, yesterday afternoon, against the street railway company by a jury in Judge Cant's room.

Socialism and Affinities.

To the Editor of The Herald:

An article in The Herald recently, written by M. Kaplan, on "Socialism and Affinities," certainly was excellent and touched on a subject in which every progressive American should be interested. People of this day are rushing forth on the train of progress, eagerly grasping the almighty dollar, enjoying the achievements of the scientific world, only now and then stopping a moment to look at the outcome of the social world. When they do, it is only to step back in horror at what their eyes are forced to behold. The courts are full of tragedy, tales of misery and divorce, the home is full of infidelity, and the crimes of society are too awful to tell. For a moment we must ask ourselves, Why? What is the vital cause of so much misery in the world? Hark! while you hear the vibration, the re-echoing of the almighty dollar as it falls upon the coffin lid of the millionaire, who at last can claim but six feet of dear mother earth. Listen to the tales that dollar tells you, and you have solved the secret of social degeneration. Go into the factories of our large cities, look at the hundreds of girls and women, employed there; look at their bent backs and pale thin faces. Fit subjects for wives and mothers (which should be the highest ideal of every girl), are they not? Do you wish your sons to marry these puny, half sick girls? If not, then lend your hand to right this existing wrong. Weary of this life in a damp, dismal factory, they crave rest and, hoping to get it, marry. Who? Any one whom they think can give them bread and butter and a roof to cover their heads. The thought of love and companionship does not concern them, but time passes on and children are born to these homes, puny, sickly, unwelcome children. Is it any wonder we must maintain poorhouses, insane asylums, feeble minded institutions, reform schools and prisons?

Again, how many a woman is forced to leave the duties of home, in order to earn a living. Instead of making the home a place of comfort and rest for the family, disorder and infidelity creep into these homes and from thence to the courts of divorce. So long as marriages are sanctioned for means of a living, instead of that of the mating of "affinities," marriage of love, so long as such things are approved, so long will humanity degenerate, and the coming generation must drink the dregs of depravity. Just so long as the laboring class is enslaved, just so long as woman must sell herself for bread and butter, either by a loveless marriage, or a greater evil, so long there is little hope for emancipation.

Some have said that Socialism, or the new thought idea is too idealistic to be realized. What? Why the loftier the ideal the surer of its triumph, the more danger to resist it. Do you wish to help in the emancipation of humanity or do you wish your descendants to look back in shame upon you? What is this new thought, this socialistic problem put before us? It is simply liberty, union, brotherly love in industry. Economic independence is to be declared as well as political independence. All men must be free and equal before the dollar in order to be free and equal before the law. The love of money is to give place to the love of man. Such is the great ideal that is moulding the present age. Will you make this ideal your own or will you bar your mind against it? Will you turn your face to the coming age or will you turn your back upon and do your best to pull the world back to the Paleozoic age?

If Socialism is aiming to bring to prominence the necessity of "affinities" then certainly you want it. Never, without the impetus of human love, can the coming generation be perfected. Never until the love of man for man is universal, can we hope for any better social condition. Oh! if we could only have more individualism, men who were brave enough to act on the dictates of pure reason. They act too much from impulse, instinct and sentiment. Oh! for the day when love shall be stronger than greed, stronger than hate, stronger than any passion or motive of human nature. Let it come by Socialism or any other ism, so long as it will dominate, so long as it will free this enslaved world and dethrone the gilded smiles of Satan, and give us love and justice.

WEST END

TEAMSTERS JUBILANT

Over Movement to Have Railroad Street Extended to Garfield.

Other News of the Western Part of the City.

Teamsters whose homes are located on Garfield avenue and those employed by the coal, lumber and manufacturing companies on Rice's Point, are hailing with delight the movement to have Railroad street extended from the tracks and Fifteenth avenue west to Garfield avenue.

They have long dreaded the roundabout and tedious haul over the Garfield avenue viaduct on to Superior street and around up town that way. The extension of Railroad street would mean a level route from Garfield avenue to Sixth avenue west.

Going up the Garfield avenue viaduct from the Rice's Point side means quite a steep haul and there are several other grades along Superior street which are hard on the horses.

The improvements to Railroad street would not only give the teamsters a more level road up town, but would mean a considerable saving of time as well. The route is shorter and the grade easier.

It is possible that the coal and lumber companies and their employes may get up a petition and present it to the city council, to further the cause for which the Duluth jobbers are working, the construction of the Railroad street extension.

CANNOT FIND HOUSE.

West End Couple Must Take Quarters in East End.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Emma Johnson and Nels Dynesius, which will take place Saturday evening, Oct. 26, at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

After December 1, the young couple will be at home at 628 Eleventh avenue east. They would liked to have secured a residence in the West end, where they have many friends, but were unable to do so. The experinces of Mr. Dynesius in house-hunting is just another indication in the shortage of dwellings in the western part of the city, despite the building that has been going on all summer.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. STOP TRIAL TO TELL SCORE.

Everything Else Is Sidetracked in Baseball-Mad Detroit.

Detroit, Oct. 4.—The Schulte murder case was dragging. The courtroom, save for those directly concerned, was deserted. The case was dragging painfully. Presently Clerk Barlow entered with a sporting extra. Instantly everyone was on the alert. The man with thes porting extra was the center of attraction, and every juror's face wore an inquisitive expression. One of the prosecutor's staff, unable to bear the suspense longer, tipped over to the clerk's desk and peeped over the latter's shoulders. He tripped back to his seat beaming with satisfaction.

As soon as an opening presented itself he whispered the result of the game in the ear of Prosecutor Robinson, who was examining a witness. Mr. Robinson smiled and hastened through with the examination. Then, turning to the court, he said:

"Would it be proper, your honor, to announce that Detroit won the game?"

"I have already been apprised of that fact," responded the court with a grin.

The jury looked greatly relieved.

'WATER-LOGGED' POTATOES

Failed to Impress the Judge as Ground for Granting a Divorce.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4.—The fact that a wife is a poor cook does not constitute a cause for divorce, according to the views of Judge Vinson Carter of the superior court. This fact was established yesterday in the case of William Butler, who wanted a divorce on the ground of cruel treatment. It developed that the cruel treatment complained of was poor cooking.

Butler declared that his wife used too much water in cooking cabbage, and that the sweet potatoes were "water-logged," but Judge Carter held that the manner in which cabbage and potatoes are cooked does not constitute grounds for divorce, and he dismissed the case.

SUITOR OF DAUGHTER KILLS FATHER AND SON.

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 4.—Walter McClintock, an aged farmer, living five miles northeast of here, and his son, Enoch, were killed by James Hensley, 30 years of age, of Indianapolis, yesterday afternoon.

Hensley had been paying attention to Mary McClintock, daughter of Walter McClintock, and had called at the farm house, when, it is said, he and Enoch quarreled, Hensley drawing a revolver and shooting the young man.

The father then emerged from the farm house and, according to Hensley's story, attacked him with a knife, whereupon Hensley killed McClintock. Hensley was arrested.

TIGERS ARE BOUND WEST

Victorious Detroit Team Leaves Scene of Triumphs.

Philadelphia Has But Slim Chance to Win Pennant.

American League.

STANDING.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Detroit	147	91	56	.619
Philadelphia	141	85	56	.603
Chicago	149	86	63	.577

New York	147	69	78	.469
St. Louis	149	67	82	.459
Boston	149	59	90	.396
Washington	147	48	99	.327

Only two games are to be played in the American league today, Philadelphia opening the concluding series at Washington and Boston opening at New York. The Athletics are down for two games today and two tomorrow at Washington and one victory for the Nationals will mean disaster for Connie Macks' forces.

As it appears now, no developments can take the pennant from the Tigers. The winning of four games by Philadelphia at Washington and two out of three victries for St. Louis in the series down there with Detroit, beginning to-morrow, is the only possible way the pennant could go to the Athletics and it isn't at al likely that St. Louis will win the two—not with the pace Detroit has been travelling in the Eastern series. St. Louis has always been one of Detroit's strongest opponents. In the last series of four games between the two teams, St. Louis took three, but Jennings' men aren't likely to slip in such a critical series as that which opens tomorrow.

The victory of Detroit brings joy to the West, off-setting somewhat the humiliation of the White Sox supporters over the disastrous finish of their champions. The loss of three games to New York was entirely unlooked for and effectually placed Chicago out of it. But the West is happy in the triumph of a Western club, even though the world's champions were humbled.

The Washington Game.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Although the winning of yesterday's game by Detroit did not, as events proved, make it impossible for Philadelphia to close the gap in the championship series, Manager Jennings' Washington friends waived the question of doubt and presented him with a floral horseshoe in token of his victory just before the game started at the American League park.

Manager Jennings had no speech of thanks for the donors—even his whistle failed him at this crisis, but his men responded for him by running away with the game in brilliant style. Last night they left for St. Louis for the final series of the season, which ends there with a double-header Sunday.

The score by which the Detroits tightened their hold in the pennant race, stood 9 to 3, the Washingtons scoring only after "Bill" Donovan having the game safe, eased up a bit and lobbed the ball over the plate. Cobb kept up his terrific clip at the bat, getting three hits in four times up, but he turned his ankle in sliding to second and was forced to retire in the eighth. The extent of his injury is not known.

O'Leary was also there with the stick for two singles and a double. Kay did the best work with the stick for the Nationals, looming up in the score with three singles off Donovan. Four double plays testify to the snappy work of the visitors in the field.

DULUTH WILL BE REPRESENTED

At Meeting of Wisconsin State League on Sunday.

Duluth will be represented at a meeting of the Wisconsin State league which will be held at Milwaukee on Sunday.

A deal is now pending for the sale of the Duluth grounds and franchise to some local fans, and it is not improbable that the White Sox will be playing in the Wisconsin circuit next year. The meeting Sunday will probably tell the tale.

"UNCLE TOM" MADDEN DIES

Well-Known Character Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia.

The death of Thomas Madden, one of the old timers at the Head of the Lakes, occurred at St. Francis' hospital, Superior, yesterday. Deceased had been ill but a short time with pneumonia and was seen on the streets last Monday. He was familiarly known as "Uncle Tom" and had spent many years in this vicinity as a woodsman. He was 65 years of age and very active for a man of his advanced years. He is survived by a brother living at Pine City, three nephews living in Duluth, Thomas, Ed and Barney Madden, by name, and a sister in Canada.

The body was brought to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan and the funeral arrangements will be made as soon as the relatives living out of town can be communicated with.

WRESTLING GAME QUIET

Gotch's Visit May Awaken Interest in the Sport.

Frank Gotch's stay of a week in Duluth will probably result in a stir in wrestling circles in this city. The champion of the world is a big personage among the adherents of the head-spinning game. His matches of recent years, some of the hardest ever put on the mat, have attracted nation-wide attention, and his unquestioned superiority over everybody he has met has given him an undisputed claim to the championship.

Besides McCauley, the St. Paul heavyweight, who will meet Gotch at the Metropolitan, it is possible some of the local heavyweights will go on with him. The champion offers $100 to any man who can stay with him for fifteen minutes without being thrown. Duluth has some pretty shifty heavies, and they will all be out for the coin. Martin Johnson, the fireman wrestler, who knows more about the game than most of the followers of it who place themselves forward as wrestlers, may be put on with Gotch, and his friends think he can give the champion a few minutes' work.

Then there is Emil Peterson, the nominal champion of the city. Peterson is a strong, clever man, with enough knowledge of the game behind him to make him dangerous. Johnson and Peterson are about the best Duluth can offer, but they should make Gotch work to retain the money.

A pall-like quiet has settled over the wrestling game in Duluth since the Peterson-Danielson match, a few weeks ago. There doesn't seem to be anybody ready to get into the game, although there is no doubt that some are working on the quiet and preparing to throw themselves into the limelight soon. Peterson isn't averse to defending his title. Maurice Harris might be tempted to take on some of the local boys, and Dick Johnson might be induced to grapple with men of his weight. But there's nothing doing for them, and unless Gotch's visit brings out some of the heavyweights, the prospect is gloomy indeed.

READY FOR ASHLAND

Colton Will Send His Best Against Wisconsin Boys.

Hard Work Has Been The Rule During the Week.

Tomorrow at Athletic park, the second game of the Central high school's schedule will be played, the strong Ashland team being the opponents. All week, Coach Colton has been busy trying to bolster up the weak spots, and many of them were evident in the game with Two Harbors last Saturday. The line was woefully weak in places. There wasn't a man on the team who could punt, with any degree of efficiency, and hard work had to be served out in big portions every evening.

Colton will send a pretty fair team against Asnland tomorrow. Cook is doing some punting and Phil Poirier, who played left guard in good style last year, was out in his togs for the first time yesterday. Poirier has been back in his studies, but he has made up, and will be in the game tomorrow. With no practice, however, he will not be of much help as he would be had he been out since the team first took to the field.

Ashland is said to be strong. In fact, the Wisconsin team has never proved weak against Duluth teams, and the game is always a source of worry to Duluth supporters. Coming so early in the season, it will be a hard test for the high school boys, and a victory tomorrow will mean a good deal for them.

The game with Blaine, which comes the latter part of the season, is the occasion for some worry on the part of Colton and his squad. Blaine is keeping very quiet, but there is undoubtedly work going on on the other side of the bay. Weight and strength are the principal qualifications of the Blaine boys as football players, usually, and with speed and science added, they make a formidable array. The Rice Lake highs will play at Superior tomorrow and the game will give Duluth enthusiasts something on which to base estimates of Blaine's strength.

LEAGUE IS IN TROUBLE

Houghton May Pull Out of International Circuit.

Dissension in Hockey Circles With Pittsburg Out.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are shoals and looming rocks ahead for the International Hockey league and unless its crew can steer into smooth water, its craft will be cast against the obstacles and go down with all hands.

Announcement was officially made today that Pittsburg has withdrawn from the league, and unless the attitude of Calumet and the two Soos change very quickly, the league will be minus another member in Houghton, its mainstay since its organization.

It all comes out of the meeting held in Chicago last week. President Fisher of Calumet called the meeting, Secretary John McNamara of Houghton was requested by the president to issue the call, but he rebelled, saying that business would prevent his attendance. Nothing more was heard from President Fisher, but the meeting was held without representation from Houghton or Pittsburg. And, although the constitution of the league says the annual meeting shall be held on the second Saturday in October in Chicago, the meeting last week was given the scope of an annual meeting, officers elected and all other business transacted.

The officers chosen are: Michael Kemp, Calumet, president; W. L. Murdock, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., vice president; M. Laughton of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., secretary and treasurer, thus freezing Houghton out of office holding. After the meeting, Secretary McNamara was censured for non-attendance, but he claims he was not notified it was to be an annual session. He claims the action of the Calumet and Soo representatives in electing officers was illegal and void.

Pittsburg's withdrawal has nothing to do with the Chicago meeting. It was believed that the Eastern member of the league would pull out as the jump from there to the Copper country is too great. It is very probable a new league will be formed in the East, embracing Cleveland, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Boston and other cities.

As for Houghton, the local magnates will not submit to the high-handed policy adopted by the other three members and may refuse to go in with them this year. Houghton has kept hockey alive in the Copper country, and, without it, the International league would have a poor foothold here.

KNOWS HOW IT IS.

North Dakota Man Experiences Sensation of Being Shot.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—To have a gun go off almost under his nose, to have the shot pierce the lapel of his coat and furrow through the skin of his face and then disperse in mid air over his head, was the experience of Elva Moore, who works on the farm of Fred Heinvold, one and one-half miles east of the Scofield farm.

He had been riding about the country looking for a threshing crew and had the gun with him. When he returned he placed the gun on the ground against the buggy wheel while he removed some other articles. It exploded accidentally while he was reaching over into the rig. The shot went through the lapel of his coat and scraping several furrows in the side of his cheek, went over his head into the air. His cheek was badly scratched up, but his escape is regarded as miraculous. A small fractional difference in the angle of the gun would have resulted in blowing the side of his face off.

GALVESTON PLAN.

Mandan Votes to Adopt Southern City System of Running Town.

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city voted Wednesday by a majority of thirty-nine to adopt the commission of Galveston plan of city government as modified by the last legislature. This is the first city in the state to adopt the plan.

The campaign was exceedingly bitter and many personalities entered into the fight, which finally centered practically on whether the Prohibition law should be observed or whether the town should be wide open as heretofore.

The fact that the election was carried by the "drys" will be a revelation to the state as it was supposd the saloon element dominated the town and county.

The city administration fought the proposition hard, first ignoring the petition for an election, then setting a date in February for election and finally were brought to terms by a court action.

There is great rejoicing over the victory.

LONG AUTO TRIP.

A. M. Rand and Wife End Long Journey in Duluth.

A. M. Rand and wife of Boston, Mass., completed a tour of the East, Northwestern states and Canada in an automobile yesterday, leaving Duluth on the steamer Juniata for Buffalo, from whence they will motor to their home.

The Rands left Boston last July and have been traveling through Massachusetts, New York, Eastern Canada and Western states since them. From Chicago they came direct to the Twin Cities and from there to Duluth.

Return From the East.

Henry Turrish, who with his wife has returned from an Eastern trip, takes a most optimistic view of the business outlook in the Eastern states and believes that conditions have materially improved since the heavy stock depressions of Wall street.

Mr. Turrish states that there will be no business panic, and that business is resuming a normal procedure after the uncertainty of the stock situation. He believes that the high price on wheat has aided materially in returning confidence in the business situation, and says that the cotton crop is good and that general business conditions will soon readjust themselves to a renewed activity.

Mr. and Mrs. Turrish placed their daughter, Marie, in school at Norwalk, Conn., while East.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind. When from any cause this vital fluid becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Boils, Pimples, etc., while they show on the skin, have an underlying cause which is far deeper—an impure, humor-infected blood supply, and until this is corrected, and the blood purified, the distressing itching and burning symptoms will remain. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders, are the result of a vitiated, polluted circulation, and will continue to grow worse unless the poison is removed from the blood. In all blood and skin diseases S. S. S. has proved itself a perfect remedy. It goes down into the circulation and removes all waste matter, humors or poisons, and makes the blood pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited taints and old chronic troubles like S. S. S.; it cures because it purifies the blood and restores lost properties to the impoverished circulation. Not only is S. S. S. a blood purifier of the highest order, but a tonic and appetizer without an equal. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

CLAIMS WORDS WERE LIBELOUS

Bemi Vermander Sues Paul Heytens for $5,000.

Claiming that he has been falsely and maliciously maligned and his reputation seriously inujred in the eyes of his acquaintances and friends, Bemi Vermander, a West end merchant, has started a libel suit in the district court against Paul Heytens, another business man of the West end, for $5,000.

In his complaint, which has been filed by L. H. Corcoran, his attorney, Vermander alleges that Heytens on Sept. 23, in the presence of divers persons, made the statement that Vermander had robbed his sister, Margarrette Vermander, of all her money.

Both parties in the action are Belgians and reside in the West end, near the Missabe ore dock.

Vermander claims that the alleged statement has injured his business among his former customers in that locality.

MARABOUT IS A FAKER

Impostor, Who Lives at the Expense of Abdul Aziz.

The Sultan Believes He is Powerful in Southern Morocco.

Tangier, Oct. 4.—Henry Griffin, an Englishman of Mogador, says a good deal of fantastic nonsense has been written about Ma-el-Ainin, the Saharan marabout. His name means "Eyes of the Spring," and is due to the fact that he claims to have discovered a spring of water in the desert. His people, who regard him as a wizard, believe that he caused the water to appear by magic. He is a thorough impostor, who lives at the expense of Abdul Aziz. He lives at Suss for four months of the year, and spends the remaining eight months in traveling to and from Fez, living at the sultan's palaces enroute, and receiving enormous sums for the expenses of the journey.

Ma-el-Ainin is hated by the Kabyles, who, when he returns from Fez loaded with presents, rob him. Accordingly he made the journey by sea, although he had sworn that, as he would not allow himself to be seen by Europeans, he would never set foot on shipboard. On this occasion, however, he gave out he had been commanded by God to return by sea.

Ma-el-Ainin is a most violent person, and while on board the ship he wanted to cut off the hands of a slave who had stolen an onion. Abdul Aziz believes that he is all-powerful in the South, from Mogador to the desert, but this is certainly not the fact. When he lately passed Mogador and Saffi the governors, who knew that he had no ammunition with him, would not even allow him to enter the towns. They sent him, however, some presents of sugar, tea and sheep. If the sultan did not send him provisions every year his people would certainly die of hunger, as during the windy season the desert is impassible.

During his last sea voyage Ma-el-Ainin wrote some verses to the captain, saying that his ship was the finest and the best in the world. He then did some conjuring tricks, burnt some aromatic powders, and assured the captain that his ship was now quite safe, as the sea would be unable to harm it. The steamer was the Miguel Riu, on which Mr. Griffin traveled to Mogador, and the captain told him that there must have been something wrong with the incantation, as just after he had landed Ma-el-Ainin and was returning to Tangier he was within an ace of being wrecked.

A foreign correspondent recently paid a visit to Governor Abderahman Vargas at Mogador. The governor is a Moor, of Rabat, the descendants of the Moors of Spain, and his name is Spanish. In Mogador the Europeans call Abderahman "the bridegroom," because he is of a somewhat timid disposition, is always highly perfumed, and keeps his hands and feet, which are as white as those of a European lady, scrupulously clean. He received the correspondent in the alcozaba, where a guard was drawn up, and offered him the traditional Moorish hospitality of three cups of mint tea and cake. He does not speak any language but Arabic.

The governor opened the conversation by asking for news from the coast towns and inquiring as to what were the intentions of the European governments. He said he wanted to know this, because he had orders from the sultan to assist the European troops. He added that his own troops were not very good, and that he had had to increase their pay to keep them quiet and prevent any mutiny. A further precaution which he had taken was to issue only four rounds of ammunition to each man. Abderrahman assured his visitor that he would remain faithful to Abdul-Aziz, and that he placed the blame for what had happened on the fact that the sultan did not take the advice of the Moors of Rabat and Tetuan, who are the most civilized in the empire. The Moors of the interior, he said, only desired loot, and killed Europeans and rich Moors indiscriminately with this object.

One day the Moors at Taddert found in their camp an unexploded shell, and wishing to find out how it "worked," they summoned their most proficient armorer, who, although he knows everything about hand guns, is most ignorant in regard to projectiles. This man thought that the best means of opening the shell was to use a hammer. At the second blow the shell exploded, killing and wounding many of the curious Moors, who were crowded around.

WOMAN THINKS ART IS WASTE

Penniless Girl Slashes Valuable Painting in the Louvre.

Paris, Oct. 4.—Another crazy outrage has been committed on a picture in the Louvre, the third within a few months. Poussin's "Le Deluge" was slashed with a pocket knife by a maniac who "wished to draw attention" to his misfortunes. A landscape by the Dutch painter Berghem was the other day found to have been damaged, though much less seriously, by some unknown hand. Now a young woman of 27 has cut a picture by Ingres, "The Sixtine Chapel," beyond hope of repair.

The remarkable thing is that the outrage was not discovered until she herself revealed it at the police station. A decently dressed, respectable looking young woman arrived there, saying quietly, "I have just spoilt a picture at the Louvre, in order to be arrested. My name is Valetine Contrel, and I was born at Rouen, in 1880. My parents died three years ago, leaving me penniless. I served as a governess in England, but English life did not suit me, and I came back to France. I did dressmaking in Paris, I had to get up at 4 in the morning, and work till midnight to earn 15 cents a day, and I could not pay my rent. I returned three times to my native town, but could earn my living no better there than in Paris, I came back to Paris, and determined to get run in.

"The papers lately mentioned that a man had slashed a Louvre picture. That is what I must do to avenge myself. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon I went to the Louvre. As there was a crowd in all the galleries, I waited till 4:30, when visitors began to leave, and went to the unfrequented Ingres room, where I chose the 'Sixtine Chapelle' picture because it was not under glass. I had no intention of making a demonstration against religion. With a small pair of scissors I first of all tried to cut the pope's eyes away, but the canvas was too thick, and I had to content myself with slashing the figure and several others. I had to stop several times, for fear of attracting the notice of the visitors. A young woman was copying near me, but she was too intent upon her work to notice me.

"When I thought I had done enough damage to be arrested I went away and came here to give myself in charge. As a matter of fact this is not the first outrage of the kind I have committed. Some months ago, in a room of the Jardin du Plantes museum, I smashed a glass case containing a fine butterfly, which I destroyed. I was arrested, but the police let me go out of pity for the wretched penury I was in. It is a shame to see so much money invested in dead things like these Louvre collections when so many poor devils like myself starve because they can't find work."

The coolness and the lucidity of the woman were amazing. Misfortune may have turned her head, but there was method enough in her speech and her behavior. She took a policeman to the Louvre to show him the picture she had damaged. It is not one of Ingres' best known works, but is one of his most interesting. The picture represents the historic Sixtine chapel at the Vatican, with the facous ceilings and frescoes. The pope is seated in the Sedia Gestatoria, and a number of personages surround him.

The face of the pope has been partly destroyed, the right eye being gone. The head of a cardinal near has been slashed and the faces of two other personages have been cut out. Mr. Dujardin-Beaumetz, under secretary of state for fine arts, will take immediate measures for preventing further acts of vandalism, as an epidemic of such outrages seems to have broken out. Detectives in plain clothes will be placed in the galleries. Some of the smaller rooms will be closed until funds are forthcoming to pay for a larger number of attendants.

Glass will be placed over the most valuable pictures, such as the Leonardo da Vincis. That has not been hitherto done because it is considered, with a good deal of reason, that pictures under glass lose some of their effect. Poussin's "Le Deluge" has been restored with infinite care, but of couse can never be the same again. Sculpture has also at time been attacked, and the Milo Crotonjensis, by Falconet, recently had a leg knocked off, which fortunately could be stuck on again without the work suffering much.

GETS PAY FOR LOSS OF ARM

Walter Campbell Makes $850 Settlement and Keeps Job.

A settlement was reached yesterday in the damage suit of Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, guardian ad litem of Walter Campbell, against Alger, Smith & Co., and the case was dismissed from the district court. Campbell, who is 19 years old, was employed by the lumber company on the sasher in its West Duluth mill. Several months ago, while reaching under the slasher table to take out a stick of wood, the boy put his left hand in the cogs of the machinery and that member was cut off between the wrist and the elbow. Negotiations for an amicable settlement were made, the guardian was appointed and the matter was settled in court late yesterday by the company paying the guardian $850, while the boy continues in the employment of the concern at work to which his changed physical conditions adapt him.

DOG RESENTS METER READING

Notes Size of Master's Gas Bill and Attacks Inspector.

Montclair, N. J., Oct. 4.—Walter Freeman, a gas meter reader for the Public Service corporation, is no longer a skeptic when it comes to believing stories which he has hitherto regarded as the product of the "nature fakers." Freeman, who lives in Newark, went to the house of Charles W. Tracy, on Upper Mountain avenue, and read large figures on the gas meter.

This duty done and the appalling figures set down in a big, red-covered book, Freeman left the Tracy dwelling and started across the lawn, whistling gleefully. As he proceeded, he was startled by a growl from a fierce looking bulldog, which, despite its savage appearance, is a great pet of Mr. Tracy's.

Freeman hurled his meter book at the dog. The book opened as it hurled through the air and fell at the feet of the dog. On the open page was recorded the amazing figures which Freeman had set down as the basis for Mr. Tracy's current gas bill. With a fierce growl, the dog made a jump for the frightened corporation servant. Freeman fled, the dog at his heels. In a moment the dog sank his teeth in Freeman's leg.

Then he let out a howl even louder than that which goes up from many an angry victim of meter readers all over the world. There was a wild swirl of dog and man for several minutes, and when Freeman finally emerged from the conflict he had been severely mauled and chewed.

The bulldog is in possession of the red-covered book, and it is said that he has torn therefrom the page which contained the objectionable reckoning made by Freeman.

HE VISITED SOME PATIENTS

(Chattanooga, Tenn., Daily News.)

A representative of the News has just returned from a very successful visit to California.

Concerning the reports that the long sought cure for Bright's Disease has been discovered, he took special pains to find out the truth of the matter, and came back fully convinced.

One lady, the wife of a San Francisco editor, not only told of her husband's remarkable recovery after physicians had given him up, but she reeled off as of no moment the names of several they told of it who had recovered. One case was particularly interesting. It was a case of Bright's Disease in which the young man was so impressed that nothing could be done that he had to be tricked into taking the new specific. Each time a dose was administered a tablespoonful of his old medicine was secretly disposed of, thus allaying suspicions. To complicate matters as the young man recovered, the physician became elated, thinking he had discovered a cure for Bright's Disease. It was not until the patient was so well along toward recovery that there was no uncertainty about it that the whole plot was disclosed. One of San Francisco's pioneer druggists also confirmed his own recovery and made the astonishing statement that he had given it to between forty and fifty, and only knew of a few failures.—Chattanooga Daily News.

We sent for this treatment for patients here and will give full information. Lyceum Drug store, Duluth, and Reliance Drug store, West Duluth.

ON THE IRON RANGES

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME SATURDAY

Virginia and Hibbing Elevens to Struggle for Honors.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, the first football game of the season will be played at the Roosevelt Athletic park, in this city, between the Virginia and Hibbing high school elevens.

The members of the Roosevelt team have been practicing assiduously of late, and while the team is somewhat lighter than that of last year, it expects to do things to the Hibbing boys in the game tomorrow.

At a recent meeting of the members of the local team, Eddie Berg was chosen as manager, and Edward Deering as captain. Richard McCarthy, formerly quarter back of the Carleton college team, has been engaged as coach, and is giving good satisfaction.

The local grounds are now in excellent condition, having been improved by the Baseball association, and a fast and interesting contest is looked for.

UNION STORE IS HARD PRESSED

Help From Strike Fund About Only Way to Save It.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Adams mine, sixty men have arrived to work on the stripping. They are quartered at the open pit, a mile and a half out. The majority of the men are Austrians and Hungarians. The company is paying the men $2 per day, with board and lodging. The men have lately been working in Montana, on the irrigation canal.

It seems that the union's store days are numbered. Those who have bought shares have been trying to induce their friends to help them in their effort to raise more money, but the appeal has fallen on stony ears. Though the store has been incorporated, wholesale houses have refused the store credit. Manager Bonine has promised to stay on for two weeks, in case the amount needed can be raised.

The latest plan proposed is that the store incorporators demand $1,000 from the federation's strike fund, and thereby save the store from failure. At the meeting Sunday, the store's fate will be sealed.

ALD. KIMBALL IS TO ENTER RACE

Virginia Alderman Has Decided to Appeal to Voters.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. L. Kimball, one of the two present aldermen-at-large, has announced that he will seek a re-election. In a letter to the local papers he states that "according to the write-up in the Duluth papers, all of the present administration are condemned by the citizens of Virginia, and feeling that these attacks are malicious and uncalled for, I will say for one that I have done nothing I would not do again under like conditions, and although I had not intended to come out for re-election I now feel that in justice to myself, I should."

Mr. Kimball is president of the city council, and of all the members of that body he has been most pronounced in opposition to some of Mayor Eaton's policies. He fought vigorously for a pound ordinance, which the mayor opposed; he opposed the paving of Chestnut street last year on the ground that the street was not in proper condition to pave, and he also worked hard to bring about the building of certain sewers that the mayor opposed. Where he found in the local political news in the Duluth papers that all of the present administration are condemned by the citizens of Virginia or any part of it is a problem, as others have been unable to find it.

The ticket recently selected to run in opposition to the present administration, headed by Andrew Hawkinson for mayor, will be nominated by petition under the head of the People's ticket. There was some talk of holding a convention to place the ticket in nomination, but it was finally decided to go on the ballot by petition instead.

The first report regarding the candidates for aldermen-at-large was incorrect. A. C. Ashorne and P. Coffey will be the candidates for aldermen-at-large and Joseph Cassady for alderman in the Third ward.

There is much political scouting going on, and lieutenants of Mayor Eaton are endeavoring to call off some of the candidates on the People's ticket, who are considered to be exceptionally strong politically.

OWNER OF BUILDING

Will be Established by Law Suit---Other Brief Eveleth Events.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crottier estate's case pending in the courts against Dominick Jerome, will establish whether the plaintiff or defendant own the building which is occupied by Jerome's saloon. It is supposed that Jerome is acting for the Fitger Brewing company. The death of Gabriel Crottier has hampered the closing up of the title, so that the court has been called upon for the final decision.

Owing to the council's failure to act on the proposed reduction of the number of volunteers from fifteen to ten, City Clerk Skeel has held up the payment of the firemen for the past month.

Matt Tomac is to re-enter the saloon business at his old stand, which has been leased for the past year by Frank Rubanovitch. Tomac's predecessor is to occupy the new Shapiro building.

To date only two completed petitions have been filed with the city clerk. They are in behalf of Judge Prince and Alderman Thibaut. The final date for filing petitions is Oct. 26.

Moses Greenberg of Aurora, has been in town visiting friends and his brother, Max Greenberg.

The Robinovitz building is in the hands of the finishers and cabinetmakers. It will be ready for occupancy by Nov. 1. The building was to have been finished before, but it was delayed because of labor troubles.

Miss Celia Milavitz has departed for an extended visit to friends in Virginia, Chisholm and Hibbing. She is expected back by the 10th.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN IS KILLED

May Have Been Party Rescued Earlier in Day From Drowning.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The north bound train arriving here at 8:20 struck an unknown man one mile west of here last night hurling him over fifty feet in front of the engine, and then horribly mutilating his body. His head was crushed to a pulp, his legs severed and completely disemboweled. All efforts to identfy him have failed. He appears to have been about 40 years old and weighing about 140 pounds and about 5 feet 7 inches in heighth.

The engineer Lew Blake was taking the time as the train neared the yard limits and did not see the man at all. The fireman, A. J. Helmer noticed a dark mass on the track when about 100 feet away, but thought it was an ash or cinder heap, until the pilot was close upon him, then she shouted to the engineer, "We've run over a man!" The train came to a stop in two hundred yards and the crew went back and lifted the mutilated body to one side of the track. Coroner Gleason was taken to the scene one one of the yard engines and brought the remains to the morgue. Mr. Gleason thinks the man may be one he rescued from the lake yesterday afternoon, when out in his launch. The man was drunk and when taken from the lake wandered west along the lake shore and parralel to the Duluth & Iron Range tracks. There were no letters on the man to identify him by.

DRAGGING FOR CHILD.

Searching for Missing Youth of Winton Continues Unabated.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—No trace has yet been found of the lost Winton boy. Parties are still searching the woods and dragging the river and lake. The grammar school was dismissed at that place Thursday, and Principal Denning and his boys aided in the search. Today the river and lake are being dynamited with the hope that the concussion will throw the body to the surface at least momentarily as it is thought that if the child is in the water the reedy nature of the water bodies will aid in keeping the body down longer than if the bottom were gravelled or pebbled.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—It cost George Harder $25 and costs for keeping his saloon open after 11 p. m., when the law says all saloons must close their doors. Harder did not deny the accusation, when he was called in the municipal court, but as an excuse claimed for tilting the lid that the crowd that was drinking inside would not leave.

ORE BUSINESS HEAVY.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore business continues at a maximum, all train crews are kept busy and boats are coming fast enough to keep the docks clear. The drop off expected before Oct. 1, has not materialized yet, but will be had soon as the ore in stock at the mines is about cleaned up. Shipments for September were 1,291,666 tons, and 6,043,000 for the season, being 300,000 tons under last season's shipments for the same period.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the month of September there were thirty-one births in Hibbing, according to vital statistic figures. During the same period there were nineteen deaths in the Hibbing district, which includes the mining locations lying between Chisholm on the east and Nashwauk on the west. There was one fatal accident in that period.

ORE TRAIN DERAILED BUT NO ONE INJURED.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a lucky accident at the La Rue mine yesterday afternoon, when fourteen empty ore cars going into the mine were derailed, yet no one was hurt. All of the trainmen managed to escape injury by jumping. A wrecking crew was soon on the scene and lost little time in getting the cars back on the track.

chase of the Manhattan Oil Company of Ohio?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"I do not know," answered the witness.

Mr. Tarbell followed Mr. Tilford. He said the United States Pipe line had great difficulty in reaching Marcus Hook, Pa., its terminal.

When the pipe line reached Hancock, Pa., in 1892, the Erie railroad objected to its passing over their right-of-way, and at Wilkesbarre the Pennsylvania & Lackawanna roads tried to prevent the pipe line passing under their tracks. Mr. Tarbell said the National Transit and the Tidewater Pipe Line companies had secured the privilege of passing under railroad tracks. Mr. Tarbell said that while the Independent Pipe line was being constructed, the Standard cut prices, and the independent refineries were forced, in some instances, to sell refined oil under the cost of crude oil. When the independent pipe line reached Marcus Hook, Pa., the witness testified, further cuts were made in prices by the Standard, and three independent companies—the International company, Union Refining company, and the S. Y. Ramage company—gave up the fight, and sold out. The Standard, he said, bought the refineries, and through the purchase obtained control of 30 per cent of the stock of the United States Pipe line. He said the Standard had no interest in the Pure Oil company.

Mr. Tarbell said that in 1900 the Pure Oil company purchased nearly all the stock of the Producers' Oil company, Limited, the Producers' Refining Oil company, Limited, and 52 per cent of the stock of the United States Pipe Line company. In the early nineties, Mr. Tarbell testified, a trust agreement was entered into by stockholders in the Pure Oil company to prevent interests inimical to the company from obtaining control. Mr. Tarbell said the Standard cut prices in Philadelphia so that the Pure Oil company was forced to withdraw from that market. The Standard cut prices in this city and for three years the Pure Oil company lost money, after which the price rose so that the company is doing a profitable business.

Mr. Tarbell testified that the Pure Oil company laid out districts in which to do business so as to "keep away from certain railroads which were more to be feared because of the discriminations than the Standard Oil company."

These discriminations were in favor of the Standard Oil company, Mr. Tarbell said.

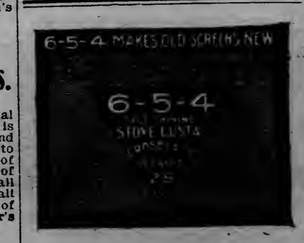

TIMBER LAW IS A PIECE OF INFAMY

Senator Borah Makes Comments on United States Statute.

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 4.—Boise is still celebrating the day over the acquittal of United States Senator William E. Borah, who will go to Washington soon to take his seat for the first time at the coming session of congress.

Senator Borah has received many telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the country. In a statement yesterday he said:

"I have but little to say. I was tried before a minutely able and fair judge and by a jury of leading citizens of the district, men of unquestionable standing. We cross-examined but two of their forty witnesses. We made no objection to their evidence, although much of it was irrelevant. I said in the commencement of this affair to my friends that the prosecution was actuated by a personal and corrupt motive on that point. The evidence not only disclosed innocence of any wrong doing but that unusual and exceptional care was taken at all times of my company. The Barber company was clean in all of its dealings with me. The timber law is a piece of infamy as witnessed by the government. The government makes a man swear that he does not take it on speculation and the department construes that to mean that he does not take it for the timber. There is not a man in the department of the interior but that knows full well that ninety-nine men or women out of a hundred take up the claims for no other reason but to sell them as soon as they get titles. Notwithstanding this knowledge, the government continues to issue final receipts and thus connives at doing that which they seek to visit upon some one as a fraud."

USED WIFE'S TIPS FOR LOOT

Couple Had Day and Night Shift, Police Say.

Nutley, N. J., Oct. 4.—While Mrs. John Scofield worked by the day washing and ironing in the homes of the wealthy to earn an honest dollar her husband took care of the children. But at night, when he knew the little ones were in the fond mother's embrace, Scofield worked, too.

He "worked" the dwellings or stores where his wife had been employed that day. Thoughtfully, she always unlocked a window before she returned home; carefully she described to Scofield the lay of the rooms and where the valuables were kept. Husband and wife are now in the Newark jail, held to await the grand jury's action, and Chief of Police Knabb believes the mystery surrounding many robberies at Nutley during a year has been cleared.

HE VISITED SOME PATIENTS

(Chattanooga, Tenn., Daily News.)

A representative of the News has just returned from a very successful visit to California.

Concerning the reports that the long sought cure for Bright's Disease has been discovered, he took special pains to find out the truth of the matter, and came back fully convinced.

One lady, the wife of a San Francisco editor, not only told of her husband's remarkable recovery after physicians had given him up, but she reeled off as of no moment the names of several they told of it who had recovered. One case was particularly interesting. It was a case of Bright's Disease in which the young man was so impressed that nothing could be done that he had to be tricked into taking the new specific. Each time a dose was administered a tablespoonful of his old medicine was secretly disposed of, thus allaying suspicions. To complicate matters as the young man recovered, the physician became elated, thinking he had discovered a cure for Bright's Disease. It was not until the patient was so well along toward recovery that there was no uncertainty about it that the whole plot was disclosed. One of San Francisco's pioneer druggists also confirmed his own recovery and made the astonishing statement that he had given it to between forty and fifty, and only knew of a few failures.—Chattanooga Daily News.

We sent for this treatment for patients here and will give full information. Lyceum Drug store, Duluth, and Reliance Drug store, West Duluth.

Virginia Alderman Has Decided to Appeal to Voters.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. L. Kimball, one of the two present aldermen-at-large, has announced that he will seek a re-election. The buck did not jump from the track as the locomotive came tearing along, but on the contrary, kept in the middle of the track, and apparently tried to outrun the machine, with the result it was struck and hurled to its death.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN IS KILLED

May Have Been Party Rescued Earlier in Day From Drowning.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The north bound train arriving here at 8:20 struck an unknown man one mile west of here last night hurling him over fifty feet in front of the engine, and then horribly mutilating his body. His head was crushed to a pulp, his legs severed and completely disemboweled. All efforts to identify him have failed. He appears to have been about 40 years old and weighing about 140 pounds and about 5 feet 7 inches in heighth.

The engineer Lew Blake was taking the time as the train neared the yard limits and did not see the man at all. The fireman, A. J. Helmer noticed a dark mass on the track when about 100 feet away, but thought it was an ash or cinder heap, until the pilot was close upon him, then she shouted to the engineer, "We've run over a man!" The train came to a stop in two hundred yards and the crew went back and lifted the mutilated body to one side of the track. Coroner Gleason was taken to the scene one one of the yard engines and brought the remains to the morgue. Mr. Gleason thinks the man may be one he rescued from the lake yesterday afternoon, when out in his launch. The man was drunk and when taken from the lake wandered west along the lake shore and parraliel to the Duluth & Iron Range tracks. There were no letters on the man to identify him by.

DRAGGING FOR CHILD.

Searching for Missing Youth of Winton Continues Unabated.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—No trace has yet been found of the lost Winton boy. Parties are still searching the woods and dragging the river and lake. The grammar school was dismissed at that place Thursday, and Principal Denning and his boys aided in the search. Today the river and lake are being dynamited with the hope that the concussion will throw the body to the surface at least momentarily as it is thought that if the child is in the water the reedy nature of the water bodies will aid in keeping the body down longer than if the bottom were gravelled or pebbled.

ORE BUSINESS HEAVY.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore business continues at a maximum, all train crews are kept busy and boats are coming fast enough to keep the docks clear. The drop off expected before Oct. 1, has not materialized yet, but will be had soon as the ore in stock at the mines is about cleaned up. Shipments for September were 1,291,000 tons, and 6,043,000 for the season, being 300,000 tons under last season's shipments for the same period.

THIRTY-ONE BIRTHS.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the month of September there were thirty-one births in Hibbing, according to vital statistic figures. During the same period there were nineteen deaths in the Hibbing district, which includes the mining locations lying between Chisholm on the east and Nashwauk on the west. There was one fatal accident in that period.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a lucky accident at the La Rue mine yesterday afternoon, when fourteen empty ore cars going into the mine were derailed, yet no one was hurt. All of the trainmen managed to escape injury by jumping. A wrecking crew was soon on the scene and lost little time in getting the cars back on the track.

chase of the Manhattan Oil Company of Ohio?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"I do not know," answered the witness.

Mr. Tarbell followed Mr. Tilford. He said the United States Pipe line had great difficulty in reaching Marcus Hook, Pa., its terminal.

When the pipe line reached Hancock, Pa., in 1892, the Erie railroad objected to its passing over their right-of-way, and at Wilkesbarre the Pennsylvania & Lackawanna roads tried to prevent the pipe line passing under their tracks. Mr. Tarbell said the National Transit and the Tidewater Pipe Line companies had secured the privilege of passing under railroad tracks. Mr. Tarbell said that while the Independent Pipe line was being constructed, the Standard cut prices, and the independent refineries were forced, in some instances, to sell refined oil under the cost of crude oil. When the independent pipe line reached Marcus Hook, Pa., the witness testified, further cuts were made in prices by the Standard, and three independent companies—the International Oil company, Union Refining company, and the S. Y. Ramage company—gave up the fight, and sold out. The Standard, he said, bought the refineries, and through the purchase obtained control of 30 per cent of the stock of the United States Pipe line. He said the Standard had no interest in the Pure Oil company.

Mr. Tarbell said that in 1900 the Pure Oil company purchased nearly all the stock of the Producers' Oil company, Limited, the Producers' Refining Oil company, Limited, and 52 per cent of the stock of the United States Pipe Line company. In the early nineties, Mr. Tarbell testified, a trust agreement was entered into by stockholders in the Pure Oil company to prevent interests inimical to the company from obtaining control. Mr. Tarbell said the Standard cut prices in Philadelphia so that the Pure Oil company was forced to withdraw from that market. The Standard cut prices in this city and for three years the Pure Oil company lost money, after which the price rose so that the company is doing a profitable business.

Mr. Tarbell testified that the Pure Oil company laid out districts in which to do business so as to "keep away from certain railroads which were more to be feared because of the discriminations than the Standard Oil company."

These discriminations were in favor of the Standard Oil company, Mr. Tarbell said.

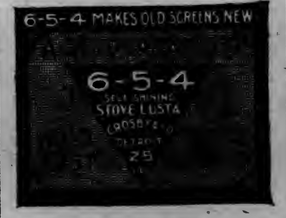

TIMBER LAW IS A PIECE OF INFAMY

Senator Borah Makes Comments on United States Statute.

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 4.—Boise is still celebrating the day over the acquittal of United States Senator William E. Borah, who will go to Washington soon to take his seat for the first time at the coming session of congress.

Senator Borah has received many telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the country. In a statement yesterday he said:

"I have but little to say. I was tried before a minutely able and fair judge and by a jury of leading citizens of the district, men of unquestionable standing. We cross-examined but two of their forty witnesses. We made no objection to their evidence, although much of it was irrelevant. I said in the commencement of this affair to my friends that the prosecution was actuated by a personal and corrupt motive on that point. The evidence not only disclosed innocence of any wrong doing but that unusual and exceptional care was taken at all times of my company. The Barber company was clean in all of its dealings with me. The timber law is a piece of infamy as witnessed by the government. The government makes a man swear that he does not take it on speculation and the department construes that to mean that he does not take it for the timber. There is not a man in the department of the interior but that knows full well that ninety-nine men or women out of a hundred take up the claims for no other reason but to sell them as soon as they get titles. Notwithstanding this knowledge, the government continues to issue final receipts and thus connives at doing that which they seek to visit upon some one as a fraud."

USED WIFE'S TIPS FOR LOOT

Couple Had Day and Night Shift, Police Say.

Nutley, N. J., Oct. 4.—While Mrs. John Scofield worked by the day washing and ironing in the homes of the wealthy to earn an honest dollar her husband took care of the children. But at night, when he knew the little ones were in the fond mother's embrace, Scofield worked, too.

He "worked" the dwellings or stores where his wife had been employed that day. Thoughtfully, she always unlocked a window before she returned home; carefully she described to Scofield the lay of the rooms and where the valuables were kept. Husband and wife are now in the Newark jail, held to await the grand jury's action, and Chief of Police Knabb believes the mystery surrounding many robberies at Nutley during a year has been cleared.

RAILROADS

SHIPPERS COMPLAIN

Already Beginning to Feel Effects of Car Shortage.

Heavy Wheat Movement is Partly Cause of Trouble.

The same complaint that was heard among shippers and manufacturers last fall in regard to the congested car service, is beginning to be manifested among this class of people in the Twin Cities and along the heavy shipping routes of the roads running into St. Paul and Minneapolis, according to the statement of L. F. Huff, a Chicago shipper, who was in Duluth today.

Heavy wheat shipments have tended to secure a monopoly on the carriers, as was the case last fall, when shippers all over the West were vainly crying for shipping facilities, and other lines of industry have already begun to feel the lack of cars.

While the roads have endeavored to get a large portion of the coal supply shipped into the country at an early date, thus avoiding the fuel famine of a year ago, many of the small dealers, according to Mr. Huff, have not heeded the injunctions of the railroads, and are already beginning to feel the shortage. Other merchants, through no fault of their own, but because of the unusual heavy wheat traffic at this time, due to the high price of that commodity, are feeling a situation similar to that of last fall. Twin City shippers are being hit particularly hard at this time, Mr. Huff says, more so, in fact, than the Chicago shippers, who are already beginning to wail over the lack of shipping facilities.

What effect rate legislation has had in the early appearance of the car shortage bogey man, Mr. Huff was unprepared to say. Many men, he says, however, are looking forward to another year of commercial business retarded by lack of cars; in fact, have foreseen the fall and winter congestion through the summer months, and are gloomily yielding to the inevitable and preparing to meet the situation in the best possible manner.

WILL BEGIN MONDAY.

Surface Mains Will be Laid by Wisconsin Central.

D. A. Reed, resident engineer of the Wisconsin Central railway, announces that work on the laying of the surface mains that are to relieve the water pressure in the tunnel, extending from Eighth to Twelfth avenues west, will be begun Monday.

The mains will be twelve and sixteen inch pipes, and are intended to act as a safety guard should the water pipes in the tunnel burst or become defective in any manner. The surface pipes will permit the water in the tunnel to be shut off, thus avoiding the necessity of suspending work in the subway until the pipes can be repaired.

Balasting and grading the line from Superior is progressing satisfactoryily, according to Mr. Reed, although the officials of the road have experienced some difficulty in securing prompt delivery of material at Duluth. Work is being rushed with all possible speed, as it is planned to accomplish as much as possible of the extension work this fall.

Heated Boxcars.

P. B. Beidleman, general agent of the refrigerator service of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, was in Duluth yesterday preparing the schedule for the winter heated car service. Mr. Beidleman spent the greater part of the day in Superior in company with Mr. Powers of the local office, inspecting the cars and arranging for the new schedule that will go into effect shortly.

Wyand in Duluth.

Harry L. Wyand, district passenger agent of the Chicago, Great Western railway, is in Duluth today inspecting the passenger affairs of the road.

Clemans, Long and Montgomery received the highest votes, but no one was elected. A third ballot was taken, and the vote will be counted on Saturday.

ACCUSE MRS. O'GRADY.

Coroner's Jury Says That Woman Killed Her Husband.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John O'Grady stands accused by the coroner's jury of killing her husband, John O'Grady, the aged pioneer, who was mysteriously murdered last Sunday. The jury found from the evidence submitted that the fatal shot was fired by Mrs. O'Grady, feloniously. A formal charge of murder will be presented against the woman.

When information of the action of the coroner's jury was conveyed to Mrs. O'Grady at her quarters in the county jail she broke down and loudly protested her innocence. To a man who informed her of the action of the jury she said: "You know I did not kill John." When she became more quiet she sent her attorney, who had a long conference with her in the county jail.

FIND GOLD NEAR SKIBO

Iron Ore Explorers Strike a Gold Bearing Ledge.

Claimed to Assay $103 Worth of Gold to Ton.

Skibo has an attack of the gold fever. Gold has again been discovered within a few miles of the little town on the Duluth & Iron Range road, between Two Harbors and Allen Junction.

The report of the find was brought to Duluth yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace McRae of the town of Missabe, who stopped at Skibo on his way down and had an interview with the man who is claimed to have discovered the yellow metal.

According to Justice of the Peace McRae, he was shown the samples and he claims they look very promising. The owner of the samples is engaged with a crew of men exploring for iron ore in the vicinity of Skibo, and a few days ago they are claimed to have struck a ledge with strong indications of gold. The material taken out was assayed, it is claimed, and the assay showed gold running $103 to the ton.

The people of Skibo are very much excited over the find and the parties who struck the ledge are said to be interested to the extent that they intend to push their investigations further and find out the extent of the ledge.

Similar finds were made by homesteaders last winter.

SUPERIOR NEWS

FARMERS ARE LOSERS.

Testimony to Effect That Elevators Blow Grain Before Weighing.

The fight of the Duluth-Superior Milling company against the Wisconsin grain commission law waxes warm. This morning W. B. Bolds, a millwright employed in one of the Superior mills, testified that the mills and elevators made a practice of blowing the grain before weighing, resulting in a loss of about a half pound to the bushel to the farmers. The law requires that grain shall be weighed and afterwards blown.

W. H. Crumpton, formerly in the grain business in Superior, testified to the refusal of millers, elevators and other dealers to purchase from Superior grain dealers after the Wisconsin grain inspection law had gone into effect.

The plaintiff seeks to prove that the law is unconstitutional, being directed against only one mill, that located in Superior. The defense seeks to prove a conspiracy on the part of the dealers and millers of the Head of the Lakes.

EFFECT RECONCILIATION.

Peace Reigns in Craft and Anderson Families.

A reconciliation was effected yesterday between Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Craft and the bride's parents, and peace reigns supreme within the family circle. Wednesday evening Herman Anderson, father of the bride, had her taken into custody and threatened to prosecute Craft for abduction, claiming that Mrs. Craft lied about her age when she was married in Duluth.

Yesterday Mrs. Craft was released from custody and went home to her parents, where she was followed by her husband. After a little parleying all differences were settled and the son-in-law was taken in.

It is claimed that Mrs. Craft is a little over 14 years of age and that her husband is 36 years old.

PRESIDENT WILL CALL CONVENTION

To Advocate Presentation of Country's Natural Resources.

Memphis, Oct. 4.—The announcement was made today on the steamer Alton, carrying the governors of the various states on their way to the waterways convention at Memphis, that President Roosevelt will probably issue a call soon for a convention to be held in Washington, Jan. 3, next, to advocate the preservation and conservation of the natural resources of the country, including coal, oil, water power, etc.

The steamer Mississippi, with President Roosevelt on board, drew up alongside the steamer Alton, carrying the governors of a number of states, this morning, while the president's fleet was still several miles above Memphis, to give the president an opportunity to invite Governor Frantz of Oklahoma and Governor Curry of New Mexico on board the Mississippi.

"I want the governor of the territory that has become a state and the governor of the territory that is about to become a state to ride with me," the president said. It was announced that the night had been pleasantly passed.

NEW INTERURBAN WILL BE SUCCESS

Proposed Fargo-Moorhead-Detroit Electric Line Looks Good.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials of the Northwestern Interurban Railway company, which is projecting the electric interurban line from Fargo-Moorhead to Detroit via Dilworth, Glyndon, thence southeast through the Lake Cormorant district, make a statement that leaves no doubt as to the attitude of that company toward this community, or that of the territory through which the line will traverse. It asks for no franchise, bonuses, or donations, nor does it rely upon sentiment or public spirit to accomplish a business undertaking, but rather falls back upon the science of railroading itself, and the absolute need of that which it will have to sell—transportation. The transportation of grain and farm produce to this market from sections now far away from any railway; this transportation of traffic originating with the Soo railway at Detroit and the Great Northern railway at Glyndon; the hauling of pure ice and water from Lake Cormorant; the accommodation of heavy summer traffic to the lakes, these are some of the functions that the new railway cannot help performing, and it can leave no doubt in the mind of any business man, but that this will be the best paying fifty miles of railway in the entire northwest.

South Dakota Railroads Fight Enforcement of Reduced Rates.

Sioux Falls, S. The commission was temporarily restrained from putting the new rate into effect pending a hearing on Oct. 29, on the application for a permanent injunction.

As Prospect of American Shippers Accepting Grain Certificate Was Not Good.

Hamburg, Oct. 4.—The International European committee organized for the purpose of drawing up a grain certificate for American acceptance decided today to adjourn the meeting of the committee, called for the beginning of October, at Hamburg, owing to the unfavorable prospects of the committee's proposition being accepted by the American shippers in the present position of the market. A conference will be held later, either here or in London.

Sealshipt

WHY?

BECAUSE all our Oysters are shipped direct from the best beds on the Atlantic coast, direct to us in Sealshipt Oyster Carriers. Under this method no ice water comes in contact with the oysters and no chemical preservative is ever used. The inner receptacle holding the oysters is kept surrounded by ice and sealed — hence "Sealshipt."

Four Reasons. Why Not?

FIRST—The oyster goes direct from the shell to the Carrier, and is kept air and germ-proof.
SECOND—The Carriers come direct to us with no mixture of ice water, or preservatives.
THIRD—They are delivered direct to you by our drivers with all their natural flavor retained.
FOURTH—You're always safe in buying oysters from us, because we handle Sealshipt Oysters only. Tub shipped oysters are never brought into our store.
When you buy oysters come to headquarters, to a store that makes a specialty of them.

IS ADJUDGED IN CONTEMPT

Judge Sentences Man for Refusing to Answer Questions.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Judge Chetlain today declared Horace Argo, who refused to answer questions before the grand jury, regarding the existence of gambling in the city, guilty of contempt, and sentenced him to a fine of $500 and six months in the county jail unless he purges himself of contempt. Argo was summoned before the grand jury to tell what he knew of the assertions that certain city officials were protecting gambling resorts for a consideration. He refused to answer, on the ground that his replies might tend to incriminate him. The action taken today by Judge Chetlain was the result of his persistent refusal to give information to the grand jury.

SAILORS COMPLAIN

Because Capt. Cowles Has Forbidden Band to Play Favorite Tune.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 4.—Enlisted men of the United States receiving ship Franklin, declare Capt. W. C. Cowles, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, has refused to permit the band on that ship to continue to play a song entitled, "Don't Scorn the Sailor," and which is intended to defnd the uniform of the bluejackets. They declare that Capt. Cowles stated the song is "making a fool of the sailors," and if continued to be played might result in infraction of the rules. Admiral Evans, it is stated, has adopted the song for the use of the bands on the ships composing his fleet.

THE NEW BABY.

Chicago News: "Well, how d'ye feel about it, anyway?" asked the man with the hoe, grinning.

The man with the hod pulled off his lime-whitened hat for the greater convenience of scratching his head. "Blame me if I know," he answered.

"Feel kinder swelled up?"

"Not by a gallon jug full," replied the man with the hod. "There's times when I have had the bighead an' got the notion I amounted to a considerable, but this ain't one of 'em. Swelled up! Say, are you goin' to feel swelled up when they get this here buildin' finished an' folks stop on the street to look at it an' say what a stylish, elegant buildin' it is? You may have had suthin' to do with it, but that wouldn't cut no figger. You ain't got no say how it's to be decorated inside nor nothin' o' that kind, have you?"

"Sure I haven't," replied the man with the hoe. "Nor I don't want to."

"Well, it's different with a kid," said the man with the hod. "You kind o' feel 's if you would like to have suthin' to say. But you dassn't. I handed him a bit o' pork rind day afore yest'd'y an' I like to had my head took off. I ain't let to handle him even. Me feel swelled up! Why, I ain't nobody around the house no more. There's them three women, they're the execkative committee an' the business agent an' the walkin' delegate. An' the kid, he's the whole thing. I jest pay my dues an' look pleasant."

"What did you expect?"

"I kinder expected a girl," answered the man with the hod.

"I mean did you expect to run the whole show?"

"I don't know as I riggered on anythin'. That's what makes it feel sech a s'prise. When I was at work and away I never did try to boss anythin' around the house, but when I come home I most gin'rally had things about the way I wanted 'em. Now, by gorry, as like as not somebody meets me at the front gate an' tells me to take off my shoes afore I tiptoe up the gravel path to the door. An' as like as not I do it. 'Where's me dinner?' I ask in a whisper.

"'You'll hafter do with a cold bite tonight,' they say. 'We've had suthin' else to think of 'sides cookin' dinners. No you can't go in there now. What's the matter with the man? Don't you understand they're asleep?'

"'Well, where's me paper?' I ask.

"'I took it to start a fire in the stove to heat up some milk. An' that reminds me. Don't you take your coat off now. You skip over to the creamery an' git a bottle o' fresh milk. Hurry now, an' take your shoes with you an' put 'em on outside.'"

"I don't s'pose you rest much, either."

"Not when he's a-bawlin'," said the man with the hod. "He don't gin'rally bawl much, though, 'ceptin' nights."

"Git up an' spank him."

"Git up an' go over to the station an' clean it out!" said the man with the hod, sarcastically. "Besides," he added, "I don't want to spank the little tike."

"Like to hear him holler, eh?"

"Well, you won't b'lieve me, maybe, but doggoned if it don't sound sorter good. There's so much of the holler fer the size of him. An' when I go in an' see him with his red face all wrinkled up an' fightin' the air with his fists an' kickin' out them bandy legs o' his—well, I d' know. You've had 'em, ain't you?"

"'Bout s'teen of them."

"Well, you want to come up an' see this un," said the man with the hod. "He's a little suthin' out o' the common."

"That's what they all are," said the man with the hoe, stirring his mortar afresh. "Don't step too high with the hodful."

UNENVIABLE FAME.

Lincoln Steffens, in an address on municipal politics, said in Chicago of a certain city:

"That city is as notorious for its rottenness as the town of Peebles is notorious for another characteristic.

"Here is an incident that will give you an idea of the reputation of Peebles.

"On a train one day a man rushed into a car, held up his hand for attention, and shouted, excitedly:

"'Anybody here who belongs to Peebles?'

"'Aye, I do,' said a small, dry old fellow, calmly.

"'Then,' said the other, 'lend us yer corkscrew.'"

TRADING IS VERY ACTIVE

Heavy Demand for Flax in the American Markets.

Wheat Also Active in Duluth, But Tone is Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 4.—Flax received the most attention in the Duluth market today and the volume of trading in the seed probably exceeded any previous day this year. Flax had a big bulge yesterday and with a big demand, prices kept soaring again today, the close showing a gain of two points over yesterday's. The demand is caused by the short crop and the anxiety of the crushing interests and other big buyers of flax to insure sufficient supplies for their needs.

Wheat was also active during the day here, but the tone was easier. All the American markets save Duluth and Minneapolis showed a decline at the close. Here and in Minneapolis, the December option was higher, but the May option was lower. There was hardly any export business done in the local market today. Liverpool closed ⅛d lower to ½d higher, Berlin ½c higher and Budapest ⅜c higher. The strength on the continent was due to continued small offerings.

The Modern Miller says:

"Dry weather has delayed seeding of winter wheat in Texas and Oklahoma and the acreage will be reduced in the former state and probably in Oklahoma. One correspondent estimates the reduction in the acreage in Texas at 50 per cent."

The December option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ½c lower in Chicago, ¼-⅜c higher in Minneapolis and ⅛-¼c lower in New York. The May option closed ⅛c lower in Duluth, ⅜c in Chicago and New York and ¼c in Minneapolis.

Car receipts at Duluth were 416 against 297 last year ,and at Minneapolis 151 against 481 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 567 against 778 last year. Chicago received 96 against 42 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 953,000 bus., last year, 1,312,000 bus. Shipments 964,000 bus., last year 561,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 364,282 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 525,000 bus., last year 558,000 bus. Shipments 968,000 bus., last year, 664,000 bus. Clearances of corn were, 78,000 bus.

December corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago, and was ¼d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅛c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a stronge tone to the wheat market at the opening and values showed an advance of ¾d. Offerings were extremely light and support general, prompted largely by the firmness in America yesterday, and the aggressiveness on the part of the leading bull interests. During the early morning there was some speculative selling which caused a slight reaction, but again at midday the market became firm recovering part of this decline. There was an active demand for cargoes and spot market was strong with Australian 2d higher and No. 1 Manitoba, 1½d higher. Influenced shorts to cover freely. The fact of better weather reports from Austra and the continued favorable outlook in Argentine with larger shipments from there than were expected were ignored.

'Corn was firm and ¼d higher at the opening, being influenced the strength in America yesterday. The undertone became easy and prices declined slightly due to the heavy Argentine shipments, and the poor demand for spot and also distant positions.'

Argentine shipments of wheat were 1,276,000 bus.,—larger than estimated—against 568,000 bus., last week and 880,000 bus., a year ago.

Argentine shipments of corn were 2,377,000 bus., against 1,471,000 bus., last week and 1,382,000 bus., a year ago.

Wheat was active during most of the session in the Duluth market today and prices fluctuated back and forth between a slight level above yesterday's close and a level slightly lower. December wheat opened ⅜c higher at $1.09¾, declined to $1.08⅝, rallied to $1.09, went off to $1.08⅝, rallied to $1.09, declined to $1.08⅝, reacted to $1.09½ and closed at $1.09, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. May wheat opened unchanged at $1.13⅝, advanced to $1.14⅛ and declined by the close to $1.13½, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling in a basis of 2⅛c over December for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active during all the session, the volume being great. October flax opened 1¼c higher at $1.32, advanced to $1.32¼, went off to $1.31 and ranged between that and $1.33½ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.32⅝, a gain of 2c over yesterday. November flax opened 1c higher at $1.30½, advanced to $1.31, declined to $1.30¾ and finally to $1.30¼, ranging between that and $1.32 during the rest of the session and closing at $1.32¼, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday. December flax opened 2c higher at $1.26, went off to $1.24½ and ranged between that and $1.26 during the rest of the day, closing at $1.25⅝, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. May flax opened 1c higher at $1.30½, advanced to $1.31½ and ranged between that and $1.30¾, closing at $1.30½, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

The coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak on Disposition of Traders to Realize on Thursday's Bulge.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The wheat market today opened weak on the disposition of traders to realize on the bulge of yesterday. Caples were firm, but they failed to reflect as much of the advance of yesterday as local traders had expected. December wheat opened ½@⅝c lower at $1.00¾ to $1.01⅜ and sold off to 1.00⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 663 cars against 687 cars last week and 520 cars a year ago.

Sentiment was bearish all day. The market closed weak with December ½c lower at $1.01¼@1.01⅜.

The corn market was easy in sympathy with wheat. December corn opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 58@58⅛c to 58¼c and sold at 57⅞c. Local receipts were 429 cars with 146 of contract grade.

Covering by shorts caused a slight rally in the middle of the day, but later prices eased off along with wheat. The close was easy with December off a shade at 58⅛c.

Trading in oats was very light and the market was easy along with wheat and corn. December oats were ⅛c higher at 52⅜c and sold at 52c. Local receipts were 208 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of a 10c advance in the price of live hogs. January pork was unchanged to 2½c higher at $15.10 to $15.12½. Lard was up 2½c at $8.75. Ribs were a shade higher at $7.85.

Chicago wheat letter: This was another day of excellent trading conditions in wheat. The market did not have any distinct tendency, but it covered a range of 1 cent for leading months. Conditions are much the same as yesterday. The most important news of the day, if it proves true, is the selling of cargoes of No. 2 red wheat here amounting to about 300,000 bushels. There was enough bull news to create a stronger market than was seen here late in the session. The only safe conclusion to draw is that it will not do to buy wheat on the strong swells. On good breaks it appears to be all right.

Corn: In the end the market was not materially changed. The receipts fell below the estimate. For tomorrow the run is still smaller. Sample market was ⅛c higher. Think there is considerable merit in the market if boyers will take hold on the dips.

Oats—Bull leaders were giving oats futures some support late in the session keeping the market in line with wheat and corn on the upturn. Prices settled back a little before the close. See nothing in the short selling side of May oats, but would prefer to pick the soft spots to buy.

Provisions—Made no important change for the day. The market is in a rut and the public letting it alone for the present.

New York, Oct. 4.—Close: Money on call steady; 3@6½ per cent; ruling rate, 6 per cent; closing bid, 4 per cent; offered at 4 per cent. Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 4.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market fairly active, with draft horses for lumbering purposes receiving the most attention. NO TRUTH IN CHARGES.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The federal grand jury, which investigated the charges made by President Moffat of the Indiana Standard Oil company that other concerns were reciving rebates, reported today that the charges were without foundation.

Someone owns—but has no use for—a piece of machinery that would be a money-maker for you. And a Herald want ad. will find this "someone."

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Upward Movement Continued at Start, But Decline Set In.

Trading Became Extremely Dull and Close Was Semi-Stagnant.

New York, Oct. 4.—The first prices of Canadian Pacific showed a gain of 1¾ over last night. Great Northern preferred 1 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical ⅝. Otherwise there were small fractional gains as a rule, except a few losses. The dealings were scanty.

Moderate advances were scored in the favorite stocks before pressure against the United States Steel stocks, American Smelting and Amalgamated Copper caused prices to fall back to yesterday's final figures. The metal stocks all ruled below last night's closing and business became almost stagnant before the hour had expired.

The Southern Railway stocks were weak, the common falling 1⅛ to 13¼ and the preferred 2⅜ to 47⅞. Louisville & Nashville also fell 2 and the general list sagged in sympathy. Bonds were heavy.

Some improvement in the tone of the market resulted from a small buying movement in the Pacifics and copper stocks, but the movement was not very vigorous and the market sank into a rut again. Wisconsin Central preferred declined 1. Chicago Greatwestern preferred "A" hardened 4.

The market closed semi-stagnant. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred rose 3, Third Avenue 2 and American Locomotive, 1. Wheeling & Lake Erie and Pullman declined ¾. U. S. Rubber first preferred, 4, Manhattan, 1⅛ and Union Bag preferred 1.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Operations in the New York stock market were most ly by the professional element, and did not extend over a very wide range. The indications are that the bank statement will be rather unfavorable. For this reason the professional element have sold the market on bulges in anticipation of stiff call rates. The monetary situation is to be considered the barometer, and although pessimistic reports are still afloat regarding a further recession in general trade conditionss, it is generally thought that the situation will improve materially when money can be obtained on a larger scale, so as to permit improvements and extensions. We are disposed to look for an irregular market, with the standard issues a purchase on breaks.

New York to Vern R. Culbertson: The upward movement, which was in progress during the final hour of yesterday's session, was continued for a brief period after the opening on the stock exchange today. Trading then became extremely dull and there was little significance to the changes which followed. It was very evident that the interests which have recently been active have decided to await developments on talk of further dividend reductions, before extending their operations. The monetary situation is again becoming a factor of serious consideration, and fears of a material hardening of rates are becoming more pronounced, but we have confidence that the treasury officials will exhaust every resource to prevent any material disturbance in this direction. While we believe that prices will ultimately reach a much higher level, we would only advise purchases on breaks from the present figures.

Copper Gossip.

Butte, Mont., to Gay & Sturgis: Less than 2,500 men are now employed in the mines at Butte, Mont. The working forces in the Amalgamated Copper company's Butte mines have now been reduced to 26 per cent of the normal total. The belief prevails here that further reductions are probable, and that a complete suspension may shortly be ordered.

No attempt has as yet been made to cut the wages at the mines, and for the present no such action is contemplated, though under their contract with the company the miners have for some time been liable to a reduction in the wage scale from $4 to $3.50 per day, as copper prices have been below the 15 cent figure for more than thirty days.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: There has been more copper sold during the past ten days than many people are aware of. The foreign buyers have been the best customers, and the aggregate quantity taken for export recently runs into the millions of pounds. The domestic consumers, however, are still ultra-conservative and are waiting for lower prices.

There have been further large inquiries in the market for foreign shipment, but sellers and buyers have not been able to come together on the price. Those who do an international business in copper have been bearish on the situation for some time, and there are no indications that they have changed their attitude. These operators have made a lot of money by selling futures at the equivalent of all the way from 5 to 17 pounds per ton above current London quotations. There has been considerable selling short since March. All the leading buyers seem to be eliminated from the market so far as manifesting any pronounced interest in the situation as purchasers in volume is concerned.

Sellers realize the futility of fishing for big orders from American consumers, and hence the greatest exertions are put forth in Europe. Abroad the competition is keen, and offers are reported on the basis of 14¼ cents for electrolytic F. O. B. New York. The foreign buyer finds that he can easily do better soon after he makes his purchase. The conviction is growing that he had acted prematurely every time of late, and now he is inclined to wait for the price to reach a level where he can see within at least 4 pounds per ton of the bottom. That is what the American consumer wants to see, too, viz.: the market within a reasonable distance of the bottom.

Salt Lake, Utah, to Gay & Sturgis: The closing of the Yampa is the first important step in a general retrenchment which will affect the Bingham camp and the smelting industry of the Salt Lake valley. The American Smelting & Refining company and the U. S. Smelting company, are terminating all open agreements with producers of copper ore and giving notice that existing contracts for the treatment of copper ore will not be renewed.

Samuel Newhouse, the largest mining operator in Utah, insists that his properties will be worked to their full capacity, but the geenral feeling in the copper circles here is extremely pessimistic.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The selling of Greene-Cananea and Balkn was noticeable. The balance of market was very dull. In fact brokers say it was the dullest day of record. Copper is selling fairly freely at 15c and it does not look as if it would go much lower. Different lines of the business are reporting dull business and we see nothing ahead to cause any bull market.

PRISONERS A SORRY BUNCH

Three Drunks Showed Badly Disfigured Faces in Court.

The number of prisoners arraigned in municipal court today was small, but they made up in general appearance for lack of numbers, for more sadly disfigured unfortunates never faced a court of justice than those that appeared today.

Adam Boyd, his face bearing indications of coming in contact with the sidewalk or a stone fence declared he had never been in court in his life before.

"Do you want to plead guilty or not," asked the court.

Adam philosophized.

"Well, I don't know. I don't understand how to do these things you see. I think a fellow ought to be careful what he pleads in court, Judge."

"Were you drunk?" asked the court with much patience.

"Yes, that is, I guess I was Judge," replied Boyd.

"One dollar and costs," declared the court.

James Kane, another victim to booze and sidewalk tumbles stood up when his name was called. One eye seemed at war with its neighbor and a large bump on the cheek stood out prominently.

"Been fighting?" asked the judge.

"No, I fell on the sidewalk," replied James.

He drew one dollar and costs.

Henry Swanson answered the roll call and he presented a face that put the others out of the running in the "beauty contest." He had at least a dozen cuts and scratches over his countenance and explained it by telling the court that some one hit him in a saloon on the Bowery.

"I should say they did," remarked Judge Windom and he gave him the minimum fine.

Thomas Taylor, a colored man, who works at the Spalding, smiled graciously upon the court when asked what he had to say to the charge of being drunk.

"Yes, guess I must have been drunk or I wouldn't be here Judge. It's my first offense though and I hope you'll be easy," and Taylor smiled hopefully. "One dollar and costs," remarked his honor.

Jeanette Palmer, arrested last evening, put up bail for her appearance. The case against her was dismissed for want of sufficient evidence upon her appearing today.

WEST DULUTH

SEARCHING FOR GHOST

Rialto Hotel Was Thought to be Haunted by Spook.

Beams of Light Flashing Through Window Cause of Scare.

Not with fear, but with something akin to awe, naturally induced by close acquaintance with appearances of the supernatural, a staid West Duluth business man, a policeman, and several others searched through the Rialto, the Ramsey street hotel, recently vacated, for a "ghost" about 9 o'clock last night. While the search was going on, a crowd of young and old congregated outside and awaited developments. There were none. Nothing of the supposed intruder could be found and there were some in the crowd who began to believe in the appearance of spooks and other creatures of the other world, until explanations were forthcoming.

"Dere's a man all dressed in white in de Rialto, running around in de front rooms an' lookin' out de windows," was the startling statement made to pedestrians on Central avenue by a crowd of boys. Most of those accosted gave the youngsters the laugh, but a few took the trouble to investigate. Surely enough, as they watched a shadow flitted back and forth behind the winows in the front rooms on the record floor. Silky hair began to assume the properties of wire, and, though the night was not warm, beads of prespiration appeared on many a forehead. J. J. Frey, custodian of the hotel, was hunted up and he secured the aid of a policeman to make a search. They scouted the ghost theory, but admitted there might be a prowling burglar or an irresponsible drunk meandering around the premises. They went from room to room, but not a thing was disclosed. Some said they heard noises in the building, but imagination was working overtime with everybody in the crowd.

After the search had revealed nothing, the superstitious ones became more thoroughly convinced that the unseen powers were at work. They had almost talked the crowd into believing that there was something to the ghost theory and the white cloud had put in an appearance a few times more to make it strong, when a man, who lives across from the hotel, appeared on the scene and spoiled the effect of their talk and excited demonstrations.

"What's the matter with you people? Letting that old ghost story get the better of you, eh? Nothing to it. That electric light on the corner vibrating in the breeze, sends beams of light across the walls in those front rooms. I was scared several times, myself, until I took the trouble to observe closely, and then I found there was nothing to it. No ghosts in that house."

TO ENTERTAIN LADIES.

Social Meeting of West Duluth Commercial Club.

The first of a series of social events to be substituted for the regular business meetings on certain nights throughout the winter, will be held by the West Duluth Commercial club this evening, in their rooms in the Western State Bank building. The members of the club and their families will take part, and a big crowd is expected.

The committee in charge has arranged an abundance of entertainment for everybody. Progressive pedro will be played, with two first and two consolation prizes. There will be other features for those not wishing to play cards.

A program of musical and vocal numbers has also been arranged. Miss Alma Brotherton will play the accompaniments, C. O. Applehagen will sing, Miss Eva Sawyer and Miss Effie Brotherton will recite, and there will be other numbers by West Duluth talent.

JOHN WAS PUNISHED.

Woman Has Husband Arrested and Pays His Fine.

The domestic infelicities of Mr. and Mrs. John Dougherty occupied the attention of Justice J. B. Flack this morning. When he had finished applying the gentle balm of the law, Mrs. Dougherty dug up $10 and costs to pay John's fine, and they walked out of the courtroom together.

Mrs. Dougherty appeared at the police station last night and entered complaint against her husband. She said he had come home intoxicated, knocked her down and attempted to choke her. A generally disheveled appearance was evidence of the truth of her assertions.

When John was brought up this morning he was duly penitent. The woman was obdurate. She wouldn't drop the case. Not much. She wanted him punished. So the judge assessed a fine of $10 and costs with the alternative of thirty days in the county jail. Mrs. Dougherty dug up the money and she and John started homeward, she firmly convinced that he had been punished.

Trains Block Roadway.

The bump given the Northern Pacific bridge by the Hoover & Mason, a few days ago, has caused no end of inconvenience to West Duluth people. West Duluth has many times complained against the small number of trains run for its people, but they think the thing is being overdone just at present. It seems all day long trains are running across Central avenue. And sometimes they don't run clear across. In the morning, especially, the congestion is great, and Central avenue is blocked for five, ten and fifteen minutes at a time. West Duluth wants more trains, but not as many as it has had for the past few days.

LA MOURE'S SON NAMED FOR FEDERAL POSITION.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jud LaMoure, Jr., son of the prominent Republican politician of North Dakota, has been appointed by President Roosevelt general customs officer of North Dakota.

The new customs officer is a son of Jud LaMoure and the new appointee is appointed to fill the place made vacant by the death of N. E. Nelson, his maternal grandfather, who held the place for nine years.

The appointment is considered a victory for the opponents of Senator Hansbrough who has aspirations for the senatorship from this state. It was brought about through the efforts of Senator P. J. McCumber, both of whom have a fight on their hands at the forthcoming election of representatives of that state for the upper house of congress.

MASS. DEMOCRATS SPLIT IN STATE CONVENTION AND NOMINATE TWO TICKETS

Gen. Bartlett Chosen as the Head of One Faction.

Henry C. Whitney Receives Endorsement of the Other.

Gov. Curtis Renominated by Republicans at Their Convention.

GEN. C. W. BARTLETT, Nominated by One Faction of Democrats of Massachusetts as Candidate for Governor. The Other Faction Chose Henry M. Whitney as Their Standard Bearer.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 5.—Immediately after the call to order today the Democratic state convention resolved itself into two bodies, Daniel J. Kiley of the followers of Bartlett for governor, presiding over one section, and ex-Congressman Conry, a supporter of Henry M. Whitney for governor, over the other. The Bartlett men held the stage while the Whitney men were assembled at the rear of the hall.

At a session which lasted until 3 o'clock this morning, the state committee, by a close vote, named D. J. Kiley, a Bartlett man, for temporary chairman of the convention, and George Fred Williams for chairman of the committee on resolutions. There were few Whitney delegates in the Court theater when Chairman Doty of the state committee, called the convention to order. A special detail of twenty policemen had been stationed in front of the platform, with orders to permit no one from the auditorium to go upon the platform without the permission of the chairman.

After Chairman Feeney of the state committee called the convention to order, Daniel J. Kiley was nominated for temporary chairman. At the same moment a motion was heard to substitute the name of Joseph A. Conry. The Kiley motion was declared carried.

While the convelton was in a turmoil, ex-Congressman Conry, who occupied a box beside the stage, arose and attempted to act as presiding officer. The confusion was so great, however, that Mr. Conry left the box to go to the rear of the hall, toward which the Whitney delegates were moving. On the way he came in contact with Congressman O'Connell, brother of Daniel O'Connell, one of the Bartlett managers. There was a clash, but the police prevented blows.

The Bartlett delegates appointed committees and a motion that a committee to draw up the state ticket be named, was carried by acclamation.

At this point Temporary Chairman Kiley shouted to the police officers to keep order in the rear of the hall, where the Whitney men were assembled. This was greeted with cheers for Whitney from the rear, which were immediately answered by three cheers for Bartlett from the front.

The Bartlett convention declared a recess to expedite committee work.

The Whitney gathering worked expeditiously. They placed Henry M. Whitney in nomination for governor by acclamation, and the rest of their ticket was named in the same way. The nominees are:

Lieutenant governor, George S. Schofield, Ipswich; secretary of state, O. C. E. Charest, Holyoke; auditor, Joseph A. Conry, Boston; treasurer, Arthur Lyman, Waltham; attorney general, Judge David F. O'Connell, Worcester.

A platform condemning the Dingley tariff and advocating unrestricted trade with Canada and reciprocity was adopted.

When the Bartlett convention came together again, Mr. Kiley appealed to the police to silence the Whitney men, and finally demanded that they be placed under arrest, but this was not done.

George Fred Williams read a plat-

PROBLEM OF NAVIGATION

Of the Air Seems to be Rapidly Approaching Solution.

British Dirigible War Balloon Makes a Remarkable Trip.

London, Oct. 5.—That the British army has made practical progress in the solution of the problem of aerial navigation was shown to the satisfaction of Londoners when the dirigible war balloon which has been given several trials at Aldershot camp, sailed from Farnborough, thirty-five miles southwest of here, to London and, after maneuvering over the city, started back to Aldershot.

The balloon crossed the Thames at Blackfriers' bridge, and, making a sharp turn, proceeded over Fleet street and the strand, making a complete circle over the latter thoroughfare, watched by thousands of people.

The balloon then went around Trafalgar square, over the war office and past Westminster abbey and the houses of parliament, traveling about fifteen miles an hour and being under complete control.

The appearance of the balloon was a great surprise, as it had been announced that cnanges in its construction had been found necessary after the last trial and that they would occupy some days.

The balloon is sausage-shaped, about 100 feet long by 30 feet in diameter, and has a lifting capacity of about one ton, which, after deducting the weight of the car, engines and other apparatus, permits carrying a crew of three men. The car of the balloon, which is shaped like a boat, is constructed of aluminum and canvass. The engines are so built that the exhaust vapor is turned into gas and is carried up into the balloon above by means of a tube. The capacity of the balloon is 75,000 cubic feet. The petroleum for the motors is carried in two torpedo-like cylinders above the car.

The envelope of the balloon is a parchment-like material, similar to gold beaters' skin and is built up of thousands upon thousands of pieces a few inches square, which is used as a rudder. From the center of the car on either side project a pair of wings at right angles to the balloon which make it appear like an aeroplane, and other wing arrangements are attached to the rigging between the car and the balloon.

SEARCHING FOR YOUNG ELOPERS

Parents of Helen Maloney, Rich Heiress, Are Anxious.

New York, Oct. 5.—Every mile of the North Atlantic as far as the wireless waves will reach is being searched today for trace of Samuel Clarkson, a young Englishman, and his bride, who was Miss Helen Maloney, the daughter of Martin Maloney, the millionaire oil man. The young couple have not been seen since they came to New York on a shopping tour from the summer home of the bride's parents at Spring Lake, N. J., two days ago. Instead of returning to her home that night, the young woman sent a message in which she informed her parents that she had secretly married the man she loved and that when the message reached Spring Lake they "would be on the water." Instantly the search for the young woman, who is said to be one of the richest heiresses in the world, was begun.

Wireless messages have been sent to all the outgoing steamers, cable messages have gone to London, and telegrams have been dispatched to all points in America where it is thought the young couple may have gone. The father and mother, however, are of the opinion that the elopers have sailed for Europe, and they are in great suspense pending the arrival of definte tidings from them, when they will be asked to return at once and spend their honeymoon at the Spring Lake mansion.

SHIP'S BOW LAUNCHED

Will be Joined to the Portion Saved From Wreck.

Belfast, Ireland, Oct. 5.—A remarkable launch occurred here today when the new bow built for the White Star line steamer Suevic, to replace the one left on Stag rock, near the Lizard, March 17 last, slid into the water. The Suevic, during a fog, ran on the rocks, and after long and ineffectual attempts to refloat her, the salvers cut away her fore part, refloated the rest of the ship and towed it to Southampton, where it is now in dock and ready to receive the new bow. The bow, which is 200 feet long, considerably longer than the old bow, is fitted with deck-houses, captain's bridge, mast and so on, will be towed to Southampton, where it will be placed in the same dock as the other portion, and the two sections will be connected, not as two clean-cut portions, but almost in the same shape as when they were separated, the jagged edges of the iron work, the bent pipes and splintered woodwork having been prepared for accurately joining the two portions of the steamer.

At the time of the accident, the Suevic was plying between London and Australia, by way of Cape Town. The inquiry into the accident, made by the board of trade, resulted in finding that it was due to an error on the part of the captain in maintaining full speed while heading towards the land in thick weather, and suspended his certificate for three months.

BIG FUND FOR BERTHA CLAICHE

To be Given Her When She Leaves Her Prison Home.

New York, Oct. 5.—A fund of several thousand dollars has been raised for Bertha Claiche, who is serving a two-year term in the Bedford reformatory for killing Emil Gordon, her former sweetheart, who, she declared, had enslaved her in this city. The money will be used in fitting up a little dress-making establishment for the young woman. She will be free in a few weeks.

The killing of Gordon and the trial of the girl furnished a sensation to New Yorkers. It was after the girl got through testifying in her own behalf that she won hundreds of friends and sympathizers. Just before the case was about to be given to the jury she pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

End of Case of Anna Jarmurzek the Baby Kidnaper.

Minneapolis, Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anna Ovestrusky Jarmurzek, convicted of kidnaping the Glaque baby of Minneapolis, has been sentenced to the state reformatory by Judge John Day Smith. The maximum penalty for the crime is twenty years in the penitentiary at hard labor.

The jury recommended clemency and the mother of the stolen baby pleaded for leniency as the baby had been recovered unharmed.

MAGNOLIA HOTEL BURNS.

Magnolia, Mass., Oct. 5.—The new Magnolia hotel, one of the finest summer hotels at his resort, was destroyed by re today, causing a loss estimated at about $100,000. The hotel was closed for the season two weeks ago. Incendiarism is suspected.

WOMEN TO FIGHT N. Y. HOTEL MEN

Object to the Rules Excluding Them After 6 P. M.

New York, Oct. 5.—The New York Equal Suffrage league, at its regular meeting here, put itself on record as opposing the rules in hotels and restaurants to refuse to receive women guests after 6 o'clock. The case of Mrs. Stanton Blatch, a daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, was the occasion for the action. The resolution adopted "heartily endorses the action of Mrs. Blatch in bringing suit against the Hoffman house in consequence of her being denied admission to the restaurant of the hotel because she was not accompanied by a gentleman, it being after 6 o'clock p. m."

The case of Mrs. Blatch against the Hoffman house will be tried on Wednesday next, and there was an informal agreement among the women to attend and give Mrs. Blatch the support of their presence.

Every preparation has been made to add to the comfort of the party, and all day yesterday and early this morning men were at work building drains and arranging tents.

Eleven tents have been pitched within a stone's throw of the Tensas river and the location is a good one. Five of the tents will be occupied by the white members of the party, while two will be turned over to the negro guides and servants, the remaining tents being a kitchen, a dining tent and a canvas spread for the horses.

Squirrels are numerous about the camp and plenty of trout can be caught in the Tensas. The servants left at the camp will hunt for small game during the day and will aid in providing for the larder of the president's party.

The party will not be disturbed by visitors, as the camp is situated ten miles from a railroad and in a section of the country that has never heard a woodman's axe before men began work on the camp.

PRESIDENT AND KING

Make Presents to the Episcopal Triennial Convention.

Former Sends a Lecturn and the Latter a Bible.

Williamsburg, Pa., Oct. 5.—With the Bishop of London preaching a sermon in Burton parish church, the oldest church in point of continuous use of the Anglican communion in the United States, the services here today attending the presentation and acceptance of a lecturn from President Roosevelt and a bible from King Edward were of peculiar historical interest.

The convention sent to the services a deputation consisting of one clergyman and one layman from each of the thirteen original states, together with the representatives of the diocese of Southern Virginia. A special train brought practically the entire membership of the convention. The Bishop of London and other distinguished visitors were given an ovation upon their arrival.

After prayers the lecturn was presented by Bishop Satterlee of the diocese of Washington, speaking for the president of the United States, and was received by Bishop Randolph of the diocese of Southern Virginia. The bible was then presented by the Bishop of London, who conveyed a message to the American church from King Edward. It was received by Presiding Bishop Tuttle. At the same time the services were being held within the church an overflow meeting was in progress in the parish church yard, which the Bishop of London addressed upon the conclusion of his speech within the church.

An offering was taken at the morning service, which will be divided equally between some special missionary work in the diocese of the Bishop of London and the permanent endowment fund of Burton parish church.

The bronze bas relief memorial given by the American Episcopal church in memory of the life and service of Rev. Robert Hunt, minister of the colony which landed at Jamestown on May 13, 1607, was installed in the tower of the church, and was on exhibition for the first time today.

EXERCISE TOO MUCH

New York Policemen Collapse Under Rigorous Discipline.

Startling Result of New Order by Commissioner Bingham.

New York, Oct. 5.—Three New York policemen are on sick leave because of Police Commissioner Theodore A. Bingham's rigorous discipline. His new order that patrolmen sentenced to extra hours of duty for failure to walk their beats shall go through a special course at the school of instruction, instead of undergoing extra work, had a rather startling result. The luckless three collapsed one after another on the floor of the old Sixty-ninth regiment armory while they and four other delinquents were being put through a series of exercises which are described as leaving the army setting up drill completely in the shade. Not much information can be gained as to what the exercises were, but it is said that they included the lock-step and a protracted double-quick.

Lieut. Jacob Brown, formerly in the army, was the drill master. The seven delinquents were from a squad of fifty-four policemen, all of whom will have to take the course. They had been on patrol duty and station duty for twelve hours, and it is said were tired out when the instruction began. Shortly after double-quick was ordered they began to stop. Cold water was copiously used, but they tumbled down, notwithstanding. Then, in alarm, a Bellevue hospital surgeon was summoned. He had to work over the three most exhausted men some time and finally they were sent home. Commissioner Bingham is said to have decided to exercise delinquent policemen instead of penalizing them with extra patrol duty or fines, whereby their families would suffer.

RAILROAD MAN

Says Alabama Governor's Fortune Has Symptoms of "Swelling."

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 5.—In an open letter, President Miller H. Smith of the Louisville & Nashville road, bitterly attacks Governor Comer for the latter's policy towards railroads and also refers to the governor's fortune as "swollen." Mr. Smith accuses Governor Comer of intimidating the members of the legislature to make them take part against the railroads, and charges that laws were "railroaded" through the legislture so rapidly that the railroads, whose interests were vitally affected, had no chance to be heard.

"It does not seem to have occurred to you," writes Mr. Smith, "in teaching the people to take from the owners of railways their property without regard to their property rights, that someone else may teach the mto bring about a distribution of the property of other than railway corporations."

Referring to the 25,000-acre farm of Governor Comer, Smith says: "It is true that the extent of a fortune before it is swollen has not been clearly defined, but there are many who may be taught to believe that a man who owns and cultivates a farm of 25,000 acres and owns cotton mills and valuable real estate, has more than his share—his fortune my be swollen."

The wife thus still stands as acuser of her husband for theft.

It is stated in local Democratic circles that Mr. Bryan was consulted before Editor Rhinehart secured his option on the Tribune plant and that Bryan gave his cordial endorsement to the plan, even intimating that he might put $10,000 into it himself.

MASS. DEMOCRATS SPLIT IN STATE CONVENTION AND NOMINATE TWO TICKETS

Gen. Bartlett Chosen as the Head of One Faction.

Henry C. Whitney Receives Endorsement of the Other.

Gov. Curtis Renominated by Republicans at Their Convention.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 5.—Immediately after the call to order today the Democratic state convention resolved itself into two bodies, Daniel J. Kiley of the followers of Bartlett for governor, presiding over one section, and ex-Congressman Conry, a supporter of Henry M. Whitney for governor, over the other. The Bartlett men held the stage while the Whitney men were assembled at the rear of the hall.

At a session which lasted until 3 o'clock this morning, the state committee, by a close vote, named D. J. Kiley, a Bartlett man, for temporary chairman of the convention, and George Fred Williams for chairman of the committee on resolutions. There were few Whitney delegates in the Court theater when Chairman Doty of the state committee, called the convention to order. A special detail of twenty policemen had been stationed in front of the platform, with orders to permit no one from the auditorium to go upon the platform without the permission of the chairman.

After Chairman Feeney of the state committee called the convention to order, Daniel J. Kiley was nominated for temporary chairman. At the same moment a motion was heard to substitute the name of Joseph A. Conry. The Kiley motion was declared carried.

While the convelton was in a turmoil, ex-Congressman Conry, who occupied a box beside the stage, arose and attempted to act as presiding officer. The confusion was so great, however, that Mr. Conry left the box to go to the rear of the hall, toward which the Whitney delegates were moving. On the way he came in contact with Congressman O'Connell, brother of Daniel O'Connell, one of the Bartlett managers. There was a clash, but the police prevented blows.

The Bartlett delegates appointed committees and a motion that a committee to draw up the state ticket be named, was carried by acclamation.

At this point Temporary Chairman Kiley shouted to the police officers to keep order in the rear of the hall, where the Whitney men were assembled. This was greeted with cheers for Whitney from the rear, which were immediately answered by three cheers for Bartlett from the front.

The Bartlett convention declared a recess to expedite committee work.

The Whitney gathering worked expeditiously. They placed Henry M. Whitney in nomination for governor by acclamation, and the rest of their ticket was named in the same way. The nominees are:

Lieutenant governor, George S. Schofield, Ipswich; secretary of state, O. C. E. Charest, Holyoke; auditor, Joseph A. Conry, Boston; treasurer, Arthur Lyman, Waltham; attorney general, Judge David F. O'Connell, Worcester.

A platform condemning the Dingley tariff and advocating unrestricted trade with Canada and reciprocity was adopted.

When the Bartlett convention came together again, Mr. Kiley appealed to the police to silence the Whitney men, and finally demanded that they be placed under arrest, but this was not done.

George Fred Williams read a plat-

PROBLEM OF NAVIGATION

Of the Air Seems to be Rapidly Approaching Solution.

British Dirigible War Balloon Makes a Remarkable Trip.

London, Oct. 5.—That the British army has made practical progress in the solution of the problem of aerial navigation was shown to the satisfaction of Londoners when the dirigible war balloon which has been given several trials at Aldershot camp, sailed from Farnborough, thirty-five miles southwest of here, to London and, after maneuvering over the city, started back to Aldershot.

The balloon crossed the Thames at Blackfriers' bridge, and, making a sharp turn, proceeded over Fleet street and the strand, making a complete circle over the latter thoroughfare, watched by thousands of people.

The balloon then went around Trafalgar square, over the war office and past Westminster abbey and the houses of parliament, traveling about fifteen miles an hour and being under complete control.

The appearance of the balloon was a great surprise, as it had been announced that changes in its construction had been found necessary after the last trial and that they would occupy some days.

The balloon is sausage-shaped, about 100 feet long by 30 feet in diameter, and has a lifting capacity of about one ton, which, after deducting the weight of the car, engines and other apparatus, permits carrying a crew of three men. The car of the balloon, which is shaped like a boat, is constructed of aluminum and canvass. The engines are so built that the exhaust vapor is turned into gas and is carried up into the balloon above by means of a tube. The capacity of the balloon is 75,000 cubic feet. The petroleum for the motors is carried in two torpedo-like cylinders above the car.

The envelope of the balloon is a parchment-like material, similar to gold beaters' skin and is built up of thousands upon thousands of pieces a few inches square, which is used as a rudder. From the center of the car on either side project a pair of wings at right angles to the balloon which make it appear like an aeroplane, and other wing arrangements are attached to the rigging between the car and the balloon.

SEARCHING FOR YOUNG ELOPERS

New York, Oct. 5.—Every mile of the North Atlantic as far as the wireless waves will reach is being searched today for trace of Samuel Clarkson, a young Englishman, and his bride, who was Miss Helen Maloney, the daughter of Martin Maloney, the millionaire oil man. The young couple have not been seen since they came to New York on a shopping tour from the summer home of the bride's parents at Spring Lake, N. J., two days ago. Instead of returning to her home that night, the young woman sent a message in which she informed her parents that she had secretly married the man she loved and that when the message reached Spring Lake they would be on the water." Instantly the search for the young woman, who is said to be one of the richest heiresses in the world, was begun.

Wireless messages have been sent to all the outgoing steamers, cable messages have gone to London, and telegrams have been dispatched to all points in America where it is thought the young couple may have gone. The father and mother, however, are of the opinion that the elopers have sailed for Europe, and they are in great suspense pending the arrival of definite tidings from them, when they will be asked to return at once and spend their honeymoon at the Spring Lake mansion.

SHIP'S BOW LAUNCHED

Will be Joined to the Portion Saved From Wreck.

Belfast, Ireland, Oct. 5.—A remarkable launch occurred here today when the new bow built for the White Star line steamer Suevic, to replace the one left on Stag rock, near the Lizard, March 17 last, slid into the water. The Suevic, during a fog, ran on the rocks, and after long and ineffectual attempts to refloat her, the salvers cut away her fore part, refloated the rest of the ship and towed it to Southampton, where it is now in dock and ready to receive the new bow. The bow, which is 200 feet long, considerably longer than the old bow, is fitted with deck-houses, captain's bridge, mast and so on, will be towed to Southampton, where it will be placed in the same dock as the other portion, and the two sections will be connected, not as two clean-cut portions, but almost in the same shape as when they were separated, the jagged edges of the iron work, the bent pipes and splintered woodwork having been prepared for accurately joining the two portions of the steamer.

At the time of the accident, the Suevic was plying between London and Australia, by way of Cape Town. The inquiry into the accident, made by the board of trade, resulted in finding that it was due to an error on the part of the captain in maintaining full speed while heading towards the land in thick weather, and suspended his certificate for three months.

BIG FUND FOR BERTHA CLAICHE

To be Given Her When She Leaves Her Prison Home.

New York, Oct. 5.—A fund of several thousand dollars has been raised for Bertha Claiche, who is serving a two-year term in the Bedford reformatory for killing Emil Gordon, her former sweetheart, who, she declared, had enslaved her in this city. The money will be used in fitting up a little dress-making establishment for the young woman. She will be free in a few weeks.

The killing of Gordon and the trial of the girl furnished a sensation to New Yorkers. It was after the girl got through testifying in her own behalf that she won hundreds of friends and sympathizers. Just before the case was about to be given to the jury she pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

WOMEN TO FIGHT N. Y. HOTEL MEN

Object to the Rules Excluding Them After 6 P. M.

New York, Oct. 5.—The New York Equal Suffrage league, at its regular meeting here, put itself on record as opposing the rules in hotels and restaurants to refuse to receive women guests after 6 o'clock. The case of Mrs. Stanton Blatch, a daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, was the occasion for the action. The resolution adopted "heartily endorses the action of Mrs. Blatch in bringing suit against the Hoffman house in consequence of her being denied admission to the restaurant of the hotel because she was not accompanied by a gentleman, it being after 6 o'clock p. m."

The case of Mrs. Blatch against the Hoffman house will be tried on Wednesday next, and there was an informal agreement among the women to attend and give Mrs. Blatch the support of their presence.

Walker's Copper Letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"The copper market is improving slightly. Prices are being maintained at 15¼ cents per pound for lake, and 15 cents for electrolytic. Although practically all of the recent buying has been for immediate delivery, consumers thinking it better to pursue the "hand to mouth" policy for the present, the mining companies have actually sold more copper during the past three weeks than they have produced. One of the largest producing interests says that his companies will clean up every pound of their surplus accumulation in sixty days, provided the market continues as good as it has been for a few weeks past. He thinks there is likely to be still further improvement.

"One of the largest consumers in the trade says he is satisfied that the price of copper is on the bottom. He is impressed by the very large curtailment of production and feels sure that this cannot fail to sustain the market. Sentiment in the trade is very much improved. He thinks consumers are quite well satisfied that the present price will be maintained. While business has not increased materially as yet, he thinks an easier money market will bring in a lot of new orders.

The production of the Butte district, which nominally is 28,000,000 pounds monthly, only slightly exceeded 11,000,000 pounds in September. The output of the Bisbee district has been reduced considerably already, and this month will be only about one-half what it was in June and July. Several furnaces have been closed down and more than 1,000 men laid off by the Greene company at Cananea. The custom smelters everywhere are reducing their treatment of copper ores. The Osceola and other Bigelow mines at Lake Superior are curtailing their output. Two or three mines are closed down in Utah. The voluntary reduction, together with that forced by fuel shortage and labor troubles, is believed to aggregate fully 20 per cent of the world's normal production.

RECEPTION AT MRS. KELLEY'S

One of the most important club events of October will be the first reception of the year at which the members of the Twentieth Century club will be hostesses in honor of the president, Mrs. F. L. Barrows, and the founder of the club, Miss Statham. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Michael Kelley of 606 East Second street, Wednesday afternoon. No invitations have been issued, but a cordial invitation is extended to the members of the club, the former members and any women interested in the club work, and the friends of the guests of honor to be present. Mrs. J. L. Washburn will also be in the receiving line.

An informal musical program will be given and Mrs. Washburn will give an informal talk on some phase of club work. The afternoon has been most carefully planned and will be the formal opening of the club year.

REMARKABLE CURE.

Eleven-Year-Old Girl Recovers Her Eyesight.

Elizabeth, the 11 year old daughter of Mrs. Evensen, 23 East Superior street, has had her eysight restored after being temporarily blind for the past three weeks. The blindness was caused by the use of too much antitoxin in the treatment of the girl for diphtheria, it is claimed, and it was feared that she would never regain her sight. Dr. Olney, who has been in Duluth several weeks, and who has performed some remarkable cures during that time, heard of the case, and restored the patient's sight after a single treatment.

It was by an accident that Dr. Olney discovered the girl's condition. He was attending a patient in the same block in which the Evanson child lived, when his attention was attracted to her pathetic condition. He became interested in the peculiar case, and asked the child's mother to bring the girl to his office in the old Masonic Temple block for treament.

After the first treatment and before leaving the doctor's office the child's sight was completely restored. She could read a newspaper without the least difficulty, and so complete has the cure been that the girl's mother has decided to permit her to attend school Monday.

The remarkable cure has attracted wide attention to Dr. Olney's methods, which are considered not only original, but effective.

POSTOFFICE IS SWAMPED

With two men off duty today on account of sickness and two more off on their vacations the city department at the local postoffice is shy four men, and this morning had all it could do to dispose of the big mass of mail matter which passes through the office.

"The fact is, we came very near being snowed under this morning," said Postmaster Eaton when seen this afternoon. "The loss of four men, two of them unexpectedly, makes a big hole in the force and it was all the boys could do to dispose of the work.

"We could not put any substitutes on because there are none available. We can't get them, although we have held several examinations during the last few weeks to secure eligibles. This morning we couldn't get anybody at all, whether they had passed civil service examinations or not.

"At a time when the present force of clerks in the city department has practically all the work that can be handled every day, the loss of four men, even for one day, puts the department badly behind. For some time we have been trying to secure some additional clerks for this department, but the Washington officials have not yet seen fit to authorize their appointment.

"The situation, as far as substitutes is concerned, is serious, however. Several substitutes are already at work, but in a case like the shortage of clerks today it is imperative that there be more men to draw from with no loss of time."

Unusual Profits for You

Read My Special Cut Price Combination Offer—the Safest, Surest, Most Liberal Mining Proposition Ever Made to Investors—You Get Four Good Copper, Gold and Silver Stocks at Bargain Prices on Easy Terms—Pay a Little Down Each Month for Four Months, and Your Dividends Must Pay the Balance, or You Owe Me Nothing—Grasp This Unusual Opportunity Today and You Will Thank Me Later for My Advice.

THIS is a genuine opportunity I offer you, a rare opening both for the speculator, whose ambition is to make big profits easily and quickly, and the more conservative investor who seeks ABOVE ALL else for an ABSOLUTELY SAFE place for his savings. I care not who you are, whether you have ever invested in mining stocks or not, right here is where a little cash and a little courage to act promptly will lay the foundation of future wealth. On this result I stake my reputation, gained by years of successful experience in the investment field.

HERE IS MY OFFER.

For a limited time only, in order to prove that I can make money for you and thus add you to my list of permanent clients, and through you get others, I will offer a combination of shares in each of the following properties on a cut rate bargain basis that gives you an immediate saving of about 20 per cent on the actual present selling price and about 60 per cent on the par value:

KOPPER KROWN MINING COMPANY,
Par Value 5c. Selling at 50c.
RAILROAD KING GOLD MINING CO.
Par Value $1.00. Selling at 55c.
COBALT PORTAGE MINES, L'D.
Par Value $1.00. Selling at 60c.
COPPER-GOLD MINES LEASING CO.
Par Value $1.00. Selling at 50c.

Making a total par value of $3.50. And a total selling price of $2.00.

MY CUT RATE BARGAIN PRICE $1.50

And that is not all. I not only make you a big immediate saving in the price of these shares, giving you an actual present profit of 60 cents on the combination of one share in each company, but I also offer you such as I believe were never before made by any representative of a mining company. If you prefer to pay all cash, I will allow you 5 per cent discount, but if for any reason it is more convenient for you to pay in installments you may divide my cut rate bargain price of the stock into six equal parts, paying one-sixth cash and one-sixth each month for four months.

IF WITHIN ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE OF YOUR PURCHASE YOUR DIVIDENDS DO NOT MORE THAN PAY YOUR FIFTH AND SIXTH MONTHLY INSTALLMENTS, I WILL CANCEL THEM BOTH, AND YOU NEED NOT PAY ME ANOTHER PENNY.

In other words, my confidence in the earning power of these properties is so great that I am willing to lose one-third of my special low selling price if you fail to receive substantial dividends. You never had an offer like THAT before, did you?

INCREASE IN VALUE.

And remember this: You not only have a practical guarantee of dividends, but you also get the benefit of the increase in value of the shares you buy.

Each of these properties was selected by me after the most careful investigation by well known engineers and practical mining men.

I know personally that the management of the companies is honest and capable, and I believe that a very conservative estimate for the combined values of the stock within twelve to eighteen months would be from $7.00 to $10.00, as against a total par value of $3.50.

WHY I MAKE THIS SPECIAL CUT PRICE OFFER.

Because from my standpoint it is good business to do so. I am not a philanthropist. I do not claim to benefit you at the expense of my own best interests. But I figure this way: If I can prove to you that I can make you money on your investments, I will probably make you a permanent client, as I have done with thousands of others who follow my advice.

And while I may make practically little or no immediate profit on this particular offer, it pays me to do it when I know that I can "make good" on the future development of the properties. I must make money for you, in other words, before I make money for myself.

I feel positive that I can do it for you in this case. Hence my liberal offer to give you what is a practical assurance of dividends or suffer a loss of one-third myself.

HOW TO BUY STOCK.

If you want to pay cash down for your shares, send me two-thirds of the full amount, less 5 per cent discount. The other one-third I take out of your dividends, which would be 50 cents of the $1.50 selling price. If you prefer to buy on installments, one-sixth cash, balance in five equal monthly payments, your dividends within one year to cover the last two installments or I cancel them and issue you certificate in full on four payments.

No subscriptions accepted for less than 25 shares of the combination of four stocks (100 shares—25 of each company).

For example: 25 shares at $1.50 will cost you $37.50, payable two-thirds down (less 5 per cent), $23.75 (the balance, one-third, covered by dividends), or in six payments of $3.25 each. A larger block of shares in proportion.

Just fill out the coupon for the number of shares you want and mail to me with the amount of payment necessary and I will do the rest. But you must do it promptly, as this offer cannot be held open longer than a reasonable time to allow you to consider the matter carefully and make your remittance.

You Can Not Lose on This Offer. You Put Your "Eggs" in Four Baskets Instead of All in One. And Your Dividends Protect You.

You Must Act Promptly.
This Offer is Good for Only a Short Time.

Cuts the Fuel Bill in Half

For Soft Coal, Lignite or Hard Coal

As you know fully one-half the carbon available for heat in soft coal is gas, the entire gas supply used for fuel and illumination in many cities and towns being made from common soft coal. The ordinary stove in burning soft coal allows this gas half of the fuel to pass up the chimney unburned, thus wasting it as a heat producer.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Stove, by means of the patented Hot Blast draft and other patented features, distills this gas from the upper surface of the coal, utilizing it as a heat producer along with the fixed carbon or coke in the coal, thus burning all the coal. This is why

Cole's Original Hot Blast

Shows Stove Burning SOFT COAL

Saves the Dollars and makes a ton of common $3.00 soft coal or lignite do the work of $9.00 worth of hard coal.

Your old stove and imitation Hot Blast are not air tight, do not save the escaping gases and do not give you a warm house at night. You cannot afford to say to yourself "My old stove will have to do this winter." The old stove is eating up the price of a new stove every year. Not only that, but on top of the cost is the unsatisfactory result it gives. It is always out the coldest morning.

Even Heat Day and Night—Fire Never Out

Cole's Hot Blast is so perfect in construction that fire keeps all night, and when the draft is opened in the morning will burn two or three hours with the fuel put in the night before. No other stove does this. Fire, therefore, never goes out, and the rooms are kept at an even temperature all the time.

——OUR GUARANTEE——

1—We guarantee a saving of one-third in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size, with soft coal or slack.
2—We guarantee Cole's Hot Blast to use less hard coal for heating a given space than any base burner made with same heating surface.
3—We guarantee that the rooms can be heated from one to two hours each morning, with the soft coal or hard coal put in the stove the evening before.
4—We guarantee that the stove will hold fire with soft coal 36 hours without attention.
5—We guarantee a uniform heat day and night, with soft coal, hard coal or lignite.
6—We guarantee every stove to remain absolutely air tight as long as used.
7—We guarantee the feed door to be smoke and dust proof.

The above guarantee is made with the understanding that the stove be operated according to directions, and set up with a good flue.

For Hard Coal—Saves Half

The perfect control over the drafts, the slow economical combustion and the large positive radiating surface make Cole's Original Hot Blast the most economical and the best Hard Coal stove made.

Cole's Hot Blast is the modern heater and will save its cost in fuel every winter. Buy one for your home now.

Would You Lose $50.00 in Fuel to Save $1.00 on the Cost of Your Stove?

That is what you do when you buy a cheaply constructed, putty jointed, showy made imitation stove. Like all successful inventions, Cole's Original Hot Blast has many inferior imitations, avoid them.

They all lack the patented features and careful construction, which make the Original Hot Blast a great success. They do not stay tight and soon open seams and cracks which render them worthless as fire keepers. See the name "Cole's Hot Blast from Chicago" on the feed door. None genuine without it.

WILL HAVE BIG PICNIC

Farmers Urged to Attend Institute on Jean Du Luth Farm.

Invited to Bring Families and Lunch and Spend Day.

Two weeks from today, Saturday, Oct. 19, will occur the first of the week's series of farmers' institutes which will be given at various points in St. Louis county under the auspices of the state agricultural department.

The first meeting will be held at the Jean Du Luth stock farm, a few miles out of the city on the East Duluth and Lester river road and the proprietors, C. P. Craig and John G. Williams of this city, are extending a cordial invitation to every farmer in that district to attend the morning and afternoon sessions, come prepared to make it a regular picnic day, with lunches for themselves and families and feed for their horses.

Not only will there be a very interesting program under the direction of Prof. A. J. McGuire of the state experiment farm at Grand Rapids, but there will be judging of horses and cattle by experts, with a view of giving the farmers who attend, a good idea of the methods that are employed in stock judging, also the experience of men who have been trained along special lines for many years.

There is a possibility that Prof. Haecker, who is at the head of the dairy department in the state university, will be present. Prof. Haecker has been invited and, as he has expressed an intention of coming to Duluth again in the near future, after his recent visit, it is believed he will come to the institute if he can possibly get away from his work below. In event he comes to Duluth he may go with the institute party in the swing around the county.

Those in charge of the institutes are bending every effort to have the meetings well advertised and they are urging the farmers to make a picnic event in every district wherever the institutes will be held, and take their families to the meetings. While the state department is providing the institutes, it is the taxpayers who are paying for them and the meetings are arranged for the especial benefit of the farmers.

Within a few days circular invitations stating the date of the meetings will be sent out broadcast over the county.

Much enthusiasm is being displayed in many of the localities where the meetings will be held and there are other districts that are anxious to secure a date if the people at any of the places selected should show a lack of interest.

In one or two instances mass meetings of the farmers have been called to make the preliminary arrangements for the institute.

FLOWER SHOW PRIZE WINNERS

Webster School Pupils Receive Awards for Flower Exhibits.

The prizes for the best flower exhibits which were shown last week at the Webster school were delivered yesterday to the eager little prize winners, just before the close of the school session at the school which is located on lower St. Croix avenue. The flower show held at this school each year has established itself and each year a progress and interest has been shown that is most gratifying to those interested in the enterprise. The prizes were provided for the children by the Twentieth Century club of the city and consisted of handkerchiefs, hair ribbons, knives, books, writing pads, pencils and balls, to the number of twenty-seven, each daintily and attractively wrapped. Miss Murphy, principal of the school, is deeply interested in the work and is most gratified at the sustained interest shown in it by the children. The prize winners were:

Rose Markus, Casper Sponnick, James Starke, Sarah Winer, Edith Hempstead, Henrietta McKay, Colin McKay, Jenny Newman, Lena Snider, Agnes Roske, Katie Niskanen, Emma Hill, Abie Edelson, Mable Solberg, Robert McArthur, Elsie Markus, Lolao Lindholm, Hilda Gustafson, Selma Kylmala, Lillie Abramson, Louis Biais, Lillie Leste, Eppie Johnson, Millie Hermanson, Jenny King, Willie Pietela, Charles Bell, Margaret Neville, Lucy Makl.

Those who received honorable mention for their exhibits were:

Minnie Winer, Etta Pietela, James King, Jacob Forsman, Alice Nelson, Etta Hermanson, James Neville, Alice Normandie, Nellie Pierce, Hulda Hermansen, Violet Lane, Myrtle Sponnich, Mary Newman, Camilla Elsted, Vilda Larsen, Sennie Hill, Olive King, Waino Pietela, Fred Pietela, Christie Sponnick, Hannah Niskanen.

TO IMPROVE THE SERVICE

Two Big Cars Are Placed on the Hill Line.

Company Will Make Other Important Improvements Soon.

As a result of a conference between Mayor Cullum and officials of the Duluth Street Railway company, last evening, two double truck cars were placed on the East Fourth street run this morning, much to the relief of the residents along the line.

It was announced at the office of the street railway company today that the company desires to do everything within its power to give the residents of East Fourth street good service, but it has been handicapped by conditions not within its power to remedy. However, it is stated, one or two of the double truck cars will be retained on the run from Twelfth avenue west to East Fourth street continually, and it is expected they will make a marked improvement in the service.

The big cars will be placed on a schedule, which will put them on the run in the busiest hours of the day, so that they may take care of the largest crowds. There are certain hours when traffic on the line is very light, and during those hours it is probable that only one big car will be run.

The "dinky" cars, which are to be used on the hill lines the coming winter, are now being improved in a way which promises to make them more comfortable. Instead of the stoves, used in former years, new stoves of the type used in the big cars are being installed. The old stoves failed to give satisfaction. They didn't heat the cars and were thus practically useless. The new stoves are smaller than those used on the big cars, but the principle of the heating system is the same, and they are proportionate to the size of the cars. The space under the seats will be piped and the stove will be placed in the motorman's end of the car. The heating system of the large cars has always given satisfaction, and the new arrangement is expected to be effective in the small cars.

A $29,000,000 Fine.

One of the largest fines ever imposed in any court in the world was that of $29,000,000 against the famous Oil Trust, but there appears to be a great deal of skepticism as to whether they will ever be compelled to pay it. Perhaps not, but then the lesson of obeying the law has been strongly impressed on them as well as on other large corporations. If you are still skeptical of the ability of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to cure you of any ailment of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, just try one bottle and let it prove for itself and to your own satisfaction that it is the only medicine you need. We leave the decision to you without any hesitancy because we know that it can positively cure poor appetite, belching, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, female ills or malaria. REV. W. M. BACKUS IN THE CITY

Prominent Unitarian Pastor Guest of Church Members Here.

Rev. W. M. Backus of Chicago, representative of the Western Unitarian conference, was the luncheon guest today at the Commercial club of a number of Duluth business men. Mr. Backus will deliver an address at the First Unitarian church this evening, and during his stay in the city will be the guest of the members of the church.

Mr. Backus, as the representative of the Western conference, travels in fourteen states, covering a distance of over 30,000 miles each year. While not inclined to be over-conservative in his statement, he believes that religious work is making steady progress in most of the states in which his labors lie. In some parts of his district, he says, "they are sort of down in the mouth," the people not responding to the efforts of conference workers. Yet, for the most part, Mr. Backus takes a rosy view of the work the Unitarian conference is accomplishing, believing that steady progress is being made each year.

Mr. Backus will attend the conference at Minneapolis as a delegate.

RAILROADS

BRIDGE IS REPAIRED

Traffic Over Northern Pacific Structure is Again Resumed.

Yards Become Badly Congested During the Two Days.

Traffic was resumed over the Northern Pacific bridge this morning. The bridge was rendered unfit for traffic by the displacement of an abutment, which was struck by a steamer. Cars have been held up since the displacement of the support last Wednesday, as the facilities for sending the cars around by the way of West Duluth proved unequal to the heavy traffic.

The bridge was opened for traffic shortly before noon and the yard officials immediately began the work of clearing the yards of the loaded cars that have been accumulating since Wednesday. Both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern have been unable to deliver cars, except the few that were sent around by West Duluth, and Duluth grain firms have been considerably hampered because of the lack of wheat.

The Consolidated Elevator company reports the holding up of about 500 cars during the two days' closing of the bridge. The Peavey company also felt the car shortage. Other grain firms report the shortage to a less degree than the Consolidated Elevator company.

The work of clearnig the congested yards was begun with activity as soon as the bridge was opened and yard officials say that the yards will be cleared in a short while.

SHORTAGE MANIFESTED

Duluth Roads Falling Behind 200 Cars Per Day.

Duluth roads are falling short in coal orders at the rate of 200 cars a day, according to the statement of a railroad official today. The Superior agent of the Northern Pacific says that he has orders every day for fifty more cars than he can possibly furnish, while both the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific are finding it impossible to furnish sufficient cars to meet the fuel orders that are daily piling up.

Country dealers are particularly zealous at this time to get in their fall and winter orders. They failed to obey the request of the roads to secure an early supply and avoid the congestion that would be sure to occur during the heavy fall rush of traffic.

The first frost through the Dakotas was the signal for the dealers to send orders to the roads for hurry up delivery of fuel. Now the dealers are finding that the roads are unable to furnish cars to haul the heavy demand for coal, and as a consequence they will be obliged to wait until the railroad officials can secure more cars for the fuel trade.

The same official is authority for the statement that few, if any, of the dealers have stocked up during the summer months, even in the districts where the fuel famine of last winter was felt so severely, and that the railroads are again facing the problem, which they hoped to avoid this fall, of supplying a great many dealers with cars at a short notice.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

Rev. Dr. Clemans and Mr. Martin of Duluth Honored.

Are Elected Delegates to the Next General Conference.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Northern Minnesota Methodist conference today, Bishop Goodsell announced that three deaconesses would be consecrated on Sunday afternoon; Rev. A. C. Routzahn of Breckenridge and Rev. J. L. Smith died this year. Hollis R. Scott, William Chodgson and Andrus L. Richardson, with others, will be ordained elders on Sunday. G. S. Silloway, Norman Bartdorf, Charles M. Kennaugh and W. A. McKenzie were elected to deacons' orders to be ordained Sunday. B. A. Barker, J. G. Hutchinson and H. H. Osterhout were elected to be ordained as local deacons. Clyde L. Benson, Hayes Parchid, Thomas Stafford, Thomas Hawker, Justus Parrish, Norman Bartdorf, Howard Robinson, Charles M. Kennaugh and Lawrence Radcliffe were received on trial.

Dr. Gillies spoke in behalf of the board of education. Dr. Hingeley will again represent the annuity fund next year. Dr. S. P. Long said that laymen had contributed the money for the field secretary's salary next year.

At the lay delegate conference, the most interesting part was the election of delegates to the general conference at Baltimore. The vote was Ulland, 101; Dean, 101; Martin, 84; and Maas, 60. J. S. Ulland, Dean and Martin were declared elected. Mr. Ulland is from Fergus Falls, Dean from Minneapolis and Martin from Duluth.

Watson S. Moore of Duluth gave a very able and interesting address on "Conference Claimants," to an audience filling the entire church. Mr. Moore said he was not sufficiently educated for a pastor, though a pastor's son. His education was limited for an alderman. Once he was a claimant on the conference funds, and his sympathy and practical help would be given to the old preachers' fund. He eulogized the old pastors and their self-sacrificing work. He spoke of Duluth as "a place where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

Dr. J. B. Hingeley said the plan was to secure $100,000 for an endowment fund, and that H. M. Bradley of Duluth had promised $25,000 conditionally on the whole amount being raised. A large sum was in the hands of the treasurers.

Dr. Dewart spoke of the good done by the clergymen. Dr. S. P. Long of Minneapolis then made a plea for funds to support Dr. Hingeley's work next year, and $1,250 were subscribed.

Dr. Long gave the report of the Minneapolis district in glowing terms, and shower the new churches in course of erection on a screen with a stereopticon. The increase of membership of the Minneapolis district was about 700, a gratifying report.

A joint meeting of lay and ministerial delegates was held, and Bishop Goodsell presided. Henry James of Breckenridge spoke for the laymen, and Bishop Daniel A. Gooodsell replied for the clergymen. He stated that 140 years ago Methodism in America held no property, and now it owned property worth $175,000,000 in churches and parsonages; and property for educational purposes valued at $55,000,000, a total value of $230,000,000. The membership was over 3,500,000, with fully 3,000,000 scholars and students, making over 6,000,000 in the Methodist Episcopal church alone. Their members had been honored with the presidency of the United States, they were senators, congressmen and governors, and no church supplied the United States with more of its executive and other officers than the Methodist Episcopal church.

Bishop Goodsell announced the vote for general conference in ministerial session, and E. C. Clemans was elected. There was loud and prolonged applause at the election of Dr. Clemans, presiding elder of the Duluth district, as delegate to the general conference.

Dr. Hingeley of Minneapolis, showed the Hingeley portrait of John Wesley. This is the history of the portrait as given by Dr. Hingeley to the conference: Presented by John Wesley to his great-great-grandmother; descended by inheritance to his great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Williams; given by her to her daughter, the first wife of William Warwick, father of Mrs. Anne Hingeley. In 1897, Mrs. Mears willed it to Mrs. Anne Hingeley, mother of Dr. Hingeley, who gave it to his oldest son, John Wesley Hingeley of Pittsburg, Pa., the present owner. The portrait is painted on a metal block, five and five-eighths inches square, with a painted frame seven-eighths of an inch wide, leaving a center four and three-fourths inches square. The portrait is made a profile, facing to the left. Mr. Wesley has long curls and has heavy wrinkles across the forehead and eyes. He wears a stock tie and stands in a high, circular pulpit with his left hand resting on a red plush rail. A book lies before him, and his right hand, very long and thin, palm down, is raised in jesture above it. Methodists think this one of the most valuable of Wesley portraits, and it is held in high honor.

Prof. Innis of Hamline university, gave the report in regard to Hamline by its treasurer. During the financial year of the university from the end of April, 1906, to the end of April, 1907, the total income was $35,699.89, and the total disbursements were $31,932.34. It will be noticed that the cost of conducting the university for the year was in round numbers, $32,000. The expenses of future years will probably be greater. The income must if possible be increased. So long as the attendance of students is as large as last year, the income from them will continue about the same as last year, while the items of rents and interest cannot be materially increased unless the endowment of the university receives material additions. The small amount of the total of the contributions from individuals and churches last year is in part accounted for by the fact that in a number of cases the friends of the university contributed toward the library endowment fund instead of to the income fund. The major part of the library endowment subscriptions have been paid into the treasury, and are invested bearing interest and it is fully expected that the remainder of the subscriptions will be paid in the near future.

MUST DRINK MORE WATER

Nature's Great Remedy for All Diseases, Says Authority.

Try This at Home for Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well known authority. "The numerous cases of stomach trouble, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

Stop loading your system with patent medicines and cure alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines—plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

When requested for such a prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney trouble the answer was: "You must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription, which is composed of only vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy. Any one can mix them by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. To be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often." This valuable information and simple prescription should be pasted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

CROSS OF HONOR AWARDED TO PABST

MEDALS FROM BELGIUM

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 5.—Valued above the other hundreds of awards voted to the Pabst Brewing company by national and international expositions held at various times in the last few decades, a collection of awards which was received by Col. Gustave Pabst from Antwerp will occupy a higher place in the esteem of the company than all the other medals in the Pabst collection.

The awards were brought to Milwaukee by special emissary from the International Hygienic and Pure Food exposition at Antwerp, Belgium, and include the cross of honor of Belgium, known as the grand prize of the exposition, a gold medal and a diploma elaborately studded with seals of noted Europeans, and setting forth that Pabst "Blue Ribbon," the beer of quality, received the highest award for purity and excellence at the great exposition held in Antwerp. The awards were made only after the severest tests known to enlightened science, and demonstrate, under the signatures and seals of the jury and commissioners, that the product of the Pabst Brewing company stood alone among hundreds of other beers submittted at Antwerp for the exhaustive tests of experts.

The arrival of the special messenger from Belgium was an event at the offices of the Pabst Brewing company, and already the medals have been exhibited to many Milwaukeeans interested in the excellence of this city's product as compared with that of the best known breweries in two hemispheres.

GET HIGHEST POSSIBLE HONORS.

The gold medal, which is about two and a half inches in diameter, bears on one side the head in relief of King Leopold of Belgium, who was the patron of the exposition at Antwerp. On the other side is a likeness, also in relief, of the huge building at Antwerp in which the pure food and hygienic exhibit was held.

The cross of honor, or grand prize, is of beautiful design, somewhat similar to other high European orders. It bears decorations of oak leaves set in gold and red enamel. In the middle of the medal proper is the coat of arms of the city of Antwerp. The medal is attached to the crown of Belgium, which in turn is suspended from a ribbon of the tri-color of Belgium.

DIPLOMA OF BEAUTIFUL DESIGN.

The diploma setting forth the fact that "Blue Ribbon" beer was awarded the grand prix at the Antwerp exposition is a beautifully designed document bearing four idealistic figures. The entire wording is in the French language, the court language of Belgium. The body of the diploma sets forth that the "diplome de grand prix" has been awarded to the Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee. The array of official signatures is the chief feature of the document. The diploma is signed by the president of the jury which awarded the honors, by the lord mayor of the city of Antwerp, honorary member; the administrator general, and president of the committee of commercial patronage.

The signatures of the exposition officials are verified and attested to by the minister of foreign affairs of the Royal Belgian government. All these signatures are in turn attested to by the vice and deputy consul general representing the United States government at Antwerp, the two certifications being written in the lower margin of the diploma and accompanied by the respective seals of office.

Cross of Honor.

The background of the middle portion of the diploma sets forth in dim outline a view from the harbor of the port of Antwerp, showing the great shipping interests and in the extreme background the famous cathedral of Antwerp with its high steeple.

With the rising interest, much greater in European countries than in the United States, in pure foods and the general subject of hygiene, the International Hygienic and Pure Food exposition has assumed an important place. To-day its exhibits are the Mecca for thousands of manufacturers, scientists, legislators and workers for the public good from every corner of the world. The awards of the juries are made with such unmistakable impartiality and are so decidedly announced for or against certain food products that the knowledge gained from a visit to the exposition serves as absolute protection against fraud.

The exposition is held annually at different cities decided upon by the board of commissioners. In 1906 it was held in Paris, this year in Antwerp and next year it will be held in another city of the continent or in Great Britain. Crowned heads of Europe unite in aiding its welfare, and every civilized country each year sends its most noted scientists to participate in the gathering together of experts from all parts of the world. In Europe the exposition is annually given the greatest publicity throughout the different centers of population, it being the understood object to apprise the people of what is good and what is not good for their general welfare. The expositions of 1906 and 1907 were attended by thousands of tourists from America, the recent rise of public interest in the subject of pure foods encouraging investigation in the products of the world brought together in one vast exhibit.

The department of brewing at the Antwerp exposition was one of the chief features. The fact that the first beer was brewed in what is now the kingdom of Belgium added to the interest in the exhibit and inspired wonderful showings from the different interests of the world. All the great breweries of Germany, America, England and other countries made efforts to excel in their exhibits, and when the time came for the highest awards interest was at fever heat.

The tests of the hundreds of samples of bottled beers were most severe. The jury which made the exhaustive tests of the brewery products was made up of scientists, university professors and chemists of note appointed by the Belgium minister of education.

SUBJECTED TO HEAT AND COLD.

The jury's task was a severe one, the tests of each beer extending over a considerable time. Pabst "Blue Ribbon" beer, along with all the others, was for weeks alternately subjected to extreme degrees of heat and cold. Of all the beers so tested Pabst "Blue Ribbon" beer was the only one found upon examination to retain all the properties originally contained in the brew. It was finally determined that the "Blue Ribbon" beer took first place among all the other varieties submitted by American and European breweries. Consequently the highest possible honors of the exposition were awarded.

The fact that the American beer took first place was all the more remarkable from the fact that it was necessarily transported a great distance, a factor that might ordinarily have been a decided handicap as against the other beers sent to Antwerp. The time that the beer was in transit from the brewery in Milwaukee was something like four weeks, and it is a generally accepted theory that beer loses through transportation. The Pabst beer apparently was unaffected. Its durability and pureness were found upon examination to be without fault.

The exposition at Antwerp this year was held during the months of June, July and August, the months in which the tourist travel is largest. It was opened by King Leopold, under whose protectorate it was held, the various monarchies and the French republic appointing delegates to represent them in the international show. The exhibits were placed in the great building erected several years ago at Antwerp and designed especially for large expositions of the nature of the pure food show. The juries appointed to make tests in the several departments of the exposition were appointed by the Belgian minister of education with the approval of the different nations participating in the gathering, the members being selected with special view to their peculiar fitness to judge of the merits of the products coming under their examination. One of the noted members of the jury which undertook the stupendous task of testing the bottled beers and awarding prizes was Prof. Alfred Jorgensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, than whom there is no better known authority on the subject of scientific and hygienic brewing. Others on the jury were men of undoubted ability in their line. The fact that the host of exhibitors in the department of brewing unanimously approved of the membership of the jury bespeaks their ability.

It is probable that the awards now in the care of the Pabst Brewing company will be placed on exhibition at an early date, it being the desire of the officials to permit the public at large to examine the medals and diploma signifying the par excellence of Pabst Blue Ribbon beer.

ARE TALKING SECESSION

Vancouver Man Says British Columbia is Much in Earnest.

People Refuse to Express Regrets for Recent Race Riots.

H. A. Fallis of Vancouver, B. C., registered at the Lenox hotel, takes a most serious view of the recent troubles that have stirred British Columbia, and suggests that the doughty young province may adopt drastic extremes before the final solution of the Japanese labor difficulty is found.

"Secession is hinted at by the more rabid agitators," says the British Columbia man, "and while the more responsible men in government and business affairs realize that no such course could be carried out, the talk of such a grave procedure indicates the tense state of feeling held by the citizens of Vancouver on this most vital race question.

"While the attention of the American people was drawn to the seriousness of the race feeling in British Columbia, and particularly in Vancouver, by the riot in that city a few weeks ago, the race feeling against the importation of Japanese laborers has been fomenting for months, the recent outbreak being only the logical culmination of race hatred and fear of the intrusion of the little brown men that has resulted in violence on both the Canadian and American sections of the Pacific coast.

"The burning of the governor of the colony in effigy; the storming of Japtown and the Chinese quarter; the refusal of the colonial officials to feel the least sentiment of regret in the action adopted by inflamed citizens, and, more serious yet, the hints of secession may convey an idea of the feeling that prevails in the little Western province, and may suggest why the officials at both Ottawa and London are seriously considering the first wayward step of the infant colony, with the deliberation that this racial question problem necessitates.

"You may go hang, says the colony to the officials at Ottawa. We refuse to be sorry for the race riots. In this smouldering spirit of rebellion, even more serious phases of the anti-Oriental feeling may occur in Canada's youngest colony."

OLD SOLDIER MISSING.

Frederick Seiferth Disappears Mysteriously From His Home Near Park Rapids.

Park Rapids, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frederick Seiferth, about 80 years old, who had been living on a claim in the northeast part of Lake George township, is missing from his home. It is about two weeks since he was seen and from appearances at his shanty he has not been there for about that length of time. The supposition is that he has wandered off into the woods, and in that case has without doubt perished before this. He has been lost before this summer and at one time wandered to Mr. Erickson's place, a distance of about four miles, being taken from there home. He was an old soldier and had spent some time at the Soldiers' home, but returned this spring to finish up his residence and make final proof on his claim. His son has arrived here from Minneapolis for the purpose of instigating a search of the woods near the claim.

Girls Get Wild Ideas and Run Away From Home.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Influenced by reading trashy novels, Clara Saunders and Celia Morgan, girls of 16 and 15 years respectively, decided that life in Lisbon was too tame, and that they would seek larger fields for their romantic adventures. As a result they are languishing in the city lockup, awaiting the arrival of their parents.

The girls are connected with prominent families in Lisbon. They have shown a steady inclination to be wayward. They packed their suit cases, purchased tickets for Minneapolis and left on the afternoon Northern Pacific train.

Their parents got wind of the affair and telegraphed to Chief Wade to head off the runaways. Officer Costello was sent down to the train and arrested the girls. The young girls were greatly chagrined at the humiliating climax of their adventure, but they did not show the slightest trace of repentance and spent the night in the lockup in jesting and singing.

IS STRUCK BY AN ENGINE

But George Derassu, Section Hand, Will Probably Recover.

George Derassu, a Greek section hand in the employ of the Great Northern railroad, is at St. Mary's hospital in Superior, suffering with a fractured thigh and numerous cuts and bruises, as the result of being struck by the westbound Great Northern train, between Carlton and Boylston, early Friday evening.

That Derassu escaped death seems a miracle. The train was running at a high rate of speed when it struck Derassu, knocking him a great distance from the track, and rendering him unconscious and bleeding. The train was stopped, and Derassu picked up and brought to Superior. He revived when taken to the hospital, and this morning it is stated he is somewhat improved, and will recover.

Derassu was standing in the middle of the track when the train rounded a curve. Despite the whistle, he stood as if bewildered by the oncoming engine.

CHARMED BY MUSIC.

Farmers and Families Did Not Notice Chicken Thieves at Work.

Independence, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—This town and vicinity is very much stirred up over the recent disappearance of many chickens. According to the best information at hand, a music band in a band wagon drawn by a four-horse team would draw up at the farmer's front door in the dead of night and some patriotic and popular airs were then played with such energy and spirit not heard of in Independence and scarcely anywhere else. The farmer and his family, including the trusty watch dog, would come to the front open-mouthed, admiring the music. While this was going on at the front the chicken coop in the back yard was taxed to its utmost. Nearly all the spring chickens that were expected to lay 40 cents a dozen eggs next winter became very scarce. The farmer heard some cackling in the coop, but thought it was all inspired by the band. A search has been made and in a secluded spot in section 34 feathers were found in heaps and a very loud suspicion was attached to a certain party.

HOTEL MEN HAVE BOOSTED PRICES

Costs More to Step in Wisconsin Hotels Than Before.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Travelers throughout Wisconsin will pay more for their accommodations in American plan houses than ever before.

Members of the Wisconsin Hotel Men's association have just met here and fixed the rates to which they were forced by the increased cost of living. The $2 a day houses advance their rates to $2.25 and $2.50. Other houses advance their rates proportionately.

The new rates go into effect at once.

Hotel men anticipate no pronounced objection by their patrons to the new rates. Traveling men's salaries have greatly advanced—as much as 50 per cent in many instances—within five years, and the bonifaces think these patrons will readily realize that an increase was necessary.

The cost of conducting a hotel today is much in excess to what it was a few years ago, but until now the American plan houses have clung to their old rates. Foodstuffs, furnishings, fuel and salaries have gone up, increasing expenditures from 10 to 100 per cent. Hotels in Wisconsin have given more for the money than hotels of most states, but some of them have been run recently at an actual loss.

FACE SUSPENSION.

Four University of Wisconsin Students Arrested by the Police.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four students, Ernest Jung of Milwaukee, Walter Hamilton of Eau Claire, Raymond Downing of Sheboygan, and Walter Bruno of Milwaukee, the first three members of the Delta Psilon fraternity, were arrested Wednesday night as leaders of a mob of 200 university boys who defied the police while the latter were protecting a boarding house where a number of freshmen were hiding to escape hazing. They pleaded not guilty to disorderly conduct in municipal court. They were held to $50 bail each. The bonds were signed by Ralph W. Jackman, their attorney, and the trial is set for Tuesday, Oct. 8.

The fracas was the worst in the history of the university, and the authorities are prepared to take strong measures to put down the belligerent spirit, and also to make an example in the present case. If convicted, the men must quit the university under the rules.

MINNESOTA VS. WISCONSIN.

PLENTY OF GAME REPORTED THERE

Northern Michigan Ought to be Paradise for Hunters.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Big game hunting in the upper Michigan will be good this fall, according to landlookers and others familiar with conditions in the woods. Deer are reported plentiful, notwithstanding the havoc wrought by wolves, gruesome evidences of which are plainly apparent each spring, and the prospects for the same big kill as in former years are promising.

Black bears, too, are numerous—exceptionally so, if reports from the forest regions are to be credited—and according to all accounts the animals are in fine conditions and not at all shy. The vicinity of Cusino, in Alger county, has for years been a particularly favorite haunt for bears, and this year is no exception to the rule. The animals are frequently seen and numerous traces of their presence are manifest. Only yesterday an exceptionally fine specimen of the bruin family was bagged in the very outskirts of the town by James Drake of that place.

While wolves are present in almost every district of the peninsula, they appear suprisingly large in number in Menominee county, considering that that region is more extensively settled than any other, and besides they are becoming bolder and frequently are seen close to farm houses.

MISTAKEN FOR DEER

Generally Accepted Theory as to Death of Peter Rasmussen.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despite the offer of $500 reward by Dickinson county, which has stimulated the police to more energetic efforts, no clue has yet been found to the identity of the person responsible for the tragic death of Peter Rasmussen, an Iron Mountain man, whose lifeless body was found alongside the Chicago & North Western railway track close to the Menominee river bridge, two miles west of the city. Rasmussen was shot to death. It was suspected for a time that he had been murdered, but the theory now accepted is that he was mistaken for a deer.

Marquette Sawmill Employe Meets Death in Unusual Manner.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I have not long to live," wrote Harry Bowers, an employe, directly after receiving what was supposed to be a trival injury at a sawmill here yesterday afternoon. "Send for a docter," he added to the message. Bowers was rushed to a hospital, and just as he arrived there he expired. Investigation disclosed that a splinter which had struck him in the neck had been driven through his wind pipe. The man could not talk, but was able to get into the ambulance without assistance.

INDIAN PORTRAITS.

Miss Heisser Has Recently Executed Some Excellent Pictures.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss M. E. Heisser, an artist of skill, who has done portraits of a number of prominent individuals in the state, including Governor Burke, Judge N. C. Young of Fargo and Col. C. B. Little of this city, has returned from a trip to the Indian agency at Fort Berthold with some splendid bits of Indian character on her canvasses. Miss Heisser has three pictures, one of them is one of the oldest Indian of the Gros Ventre tribe, Bear's Necklace, a tall, stately and typically Indian character, now more than 86 years of age, but still vigorous and active. His head dress is three feathers, representing three Sioux Indians whom he killed with a sword and escaped from the others. She has done splendid work, not only in the depicting of the Indian expression and character, but in the detail of dress and adornment. Another picture is of a younger Indian brave, "Bad Brave," in war bonnet and costume.

AFTER BIG TRUST.

B. D. Townsend of Fargo Gathers Evidence Against Harvester Combine.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no little interest here in the announcement from Washington that the department of justice has decided to proceed against the International Harvester trust upon the evidence gathered by Assistant United States Attorney Generai B. D. Townsend of this state.

A few months ago Mr. Townsend was detailed by Attorney General Bonaparte to proceed to Oregon and conduct the prosecution of certain railroad interests for alleged infractions of the land laws. Since attending to that work Mr. Townsend has been traveling over the country securing evidence against the Harvester trust, and it is said he has made out such a strong case against the combine that the attorney general has decided to proceed forthwith. Mr. Townsend is one of the prominent young attorneys of the state and his friends are pleased that his work is in such high favor in Washington.

DAMP FUSE DIDN'T GO

Otherwise There Might Have Been Terrible Explosion in La Rue Mine.

President McNair of Miners' Union Held on Serious Charge.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—President John McNair of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, who was arrested yesterday, as told in The Herald, on the very serious charge of being implicated in a dastardly attempt to blow up the La Rue mine near Nashwauk, is still in custody.

McNair was arrested in Mattson's jewelry store yesterday by Chief of Police Kent on a telegraphic order from Sheriff Bates. He is being held in the local jail awaiting the coming of Deputy Horrigan, who will take him to Sheriff O'Houlihan, at Grand Rapids. The local union officials have been trying to bail him out, but have been unsuccessful.

According to Superintendent Webb of the La Rue, the dynamiters wrapped twenty-six sticks in an old coat and a newspaper. The fuse was to have been lit by a cigar, but being damp, it refused to work. Some of the men arrested in Nashwauk are known to have been smoking the same brand of cigars. The saloonkeeper who furnished the newspaper was able to remember the men, thereby giving the officers an important clue. The officers are convinced that the entire scheme was concocted in Eveleth.

TO BEGIN DRILL WORK ON "SLIVER"

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is strong probability that another large mine will be added to the Virginia group through the drilling of the famous Virginia "Sliver" about to be inaugurated by M. A. Hanna & Co., of Cleveland, who have secured an option on the property from the owners.

It will require several months of drill work to determine whether or not ore in any quantity exists on the property, but the fact that it is almost surrounded by proved ore deposits would indicate that the explorers are almost certain to find ore. Three drills will be put to work as soon as they can be installed and three others will be added in about a month. C. E. Hendrick, superintendent of the Hanna interests, was in the city early in the week and verified the report circulated last week to the effect that his company had taken an option on the property and also said that a contract for drilling had been let to the Nelson Exploration company and the E. J. Longyear company. The work will be rushed with all possible energy as the lessees are anxious to learn how much of a deposit the property contains.

The Republic Iron & Steel company operators of several properties on the range including the Franklin group in Virginia, will at once begin the sinking of a new shaft at their Pettit mine with the avowed object of shipping at least 1,000,000 tons of ore from the property during 1908. As the mine is an underground proposition this will be quite an undertaking. The mine contains a large deposit of high grade ore.

SMITH-ALGER CO. BUYS BIG PLANT

Tower, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the biggest deals in real estates circles in this section was consummated this week when the Tower Lumber company disposed of its holding here to the Smith-Alger company of Duluth. The deal has been pending for some time, and was finally closed yesterday. The Tower Lumber company's yard here contains millions of feet of lumber, which had previously been sold, and the same is being shipped to the owners. The horses and logging outfit had been disposed of some time ago so that the present sale consists of the sawmill and planing mill, the boarding house, barns, warehouses and several residences at Lakeside, besides a large quantity of logs.

The Smith-Alger company owns several tracts of timber in the vicinity, and are having camps erected near Vermilion dam, where they expect to do a great deal of logging this winter.

It is with a feeling of gratitude that the local citizens heard of the transfer of the mill, for it means a great deal to the welfare of the city, as it furnishes employment to several hundred men, who would otherwise find no work here.

Not So Many Arrests.

The records of the police department show that here were 335 arrests during the month of September, which is ninety less than during the same month a year ago. There were eight complaints for grand larceny and thirty-two for petty larceny during the month.

JOHNSON NOT A CANDIDATE

Governor Makes Formal Statement Regarding the Presidency.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson is out with a formal statement to the press of the Twin Cities that he is not and has not been a candidate for the nomination for president. He also states that he knows that W. J. Bryan is and has been a candidate for that honor for the past three months.

This statement of the governor was the result of the publication today of a political story to the effect that W. J. Bryan was openly a candidate for the nomination and that Henry Watterson would have to amend his entry conditions so far as Governor Johnson was concerned.

To this was added a statement credited to Frank A. Day, Governor Johnson's private secretary, that "the Minnesota Democracy will elect a delegation to the national convention that is friendly to Governor Johnson in case it should eventuate that there is any chance for his nomination.

STRIKE OFF, SAYS RUMOR

Persistent rumors of a settlement of the telegraphers' strike were heard on the streets today, but up to a late hour nothing authentic about the matter had been received.

At the local strike headquarters, several telegrams were received, over private wires, from the East, saying that a conference looking to a settlement of the differences between the operators and the companies was in progress in New York.

One message from the chief operator of a big New York brokerage house was to the effect that rumors were afloat saying that the Western Union had granted the eight-hours, but that President Small was holding out for a 15 per cent increase.

Another message stated that Supt. Tubbs of the Western Union in Chicago had told Managing Editor Keeley of the Chicago Tribune that the strike would be settled before next week.

Although most of the stories of the alleged settlement are the vaguest rumors, it would seem as if there was something doing. Secretary Richard Jones of the local telegraphers' union received a letter the other day from General Secretary Russell, saying that the strike would probably be settled in a very short time.

SUPERIOR NEWS

PLAN IS CONSIDERED.

Railroad Officials Look Favorably on Proposed Trestle.

The committee of Connors Point property holders, which went to St. Paul to confer with railroad officials, has notified Superior people interested that the general plan of a trestle over Conner's Point to the interstate bridge is looked upon quite favorably by most of the officials. They will not commit themselves, however, until they have placed the matter before their engineers for a more thorough investigation.

The plan proposed is the erection of a trestle from Lanborn avenue east on Main street and over Conner's Point to the bridge. It is proposed to have four tracks on the trestle, to be used by all roads for through trains to Duluth. The object is to avoid the condemnation of certain lands on Conner's Point, including some land owned by the Superior Shipbuilding company and almost necessary to the carrying on of operations by that firm.

Sloan & Leveroos purchased from Mrs. Cook of Chicago, through the Loney & Peckham agency, two lots on the southeast corner of Broadway and Ogden avenue. The consideration was $7,000.

City Seeks to Recover.

The city of Superior today started suit to recover on timber, which the city officials allege was taken from city park lands on the bay shore. Some of the timber, alleged to have been stolen, was found in the booms of A. McIntosh, but he appeared in court and disclaimed all responsibility. An effort will be made to locate the guilty parties.

Want $50,000 for Streets.

The board of public works wants $50,000 for the repair and maintenance of streets and other public improvements during the coming year. The estimate prepared by Secretary Heuble calls for that amount, which is $10,000 more than was asked last year. However, there is an overdraft of about $10,000, which must be met, and there is considerable new sewer work to be given attention.

Sues for $35,000.

Alderman H. J. Erbelding, on behalf of his 15-year-old son, John E. Erbelding, has filed suit against the Superior Shipbuilding company for $35,000 for injuries sustained by the boy, while working on the steamer Mataafa in the employ of the company. The boy was struck by a bundle of steel plates, a glancing blow injuring him severely. W. P. Crawford represents the plaintiff.

DANGER OF COAL FAMINE HAS NOT YET BEEN AVERTED

Situation in Northwest Not Much Different From a Year Ago—Car Shortage May Again Cause Severe Shortage in Inland Towns.

Is the coal situation in the Northwest in better or worse shape than it was a year ago? Some of the big dealers think the situation is just the same, but at any rate less has been heard on the subject so far this fall than was the case last year.

It seems to be the general opinion among the dealers that there is more coal on the docks at the Head of the Lakes than there was last fall and the shipments to the interior are probably heavier than they were a year ago. But the business generally has increased and therefore the outlook is in reality no better or worse than a year ago.

Last fall the car shortage was the all absorbing factor in the coal trade. The railroads were blamed for the shortage in the West, as there was plenty of coal at the Head of the Lakes at all times. This year less has been heard about the car shortage, but just the same there is a car shortage in the Northwest and a serious one.

In the smokeless coal and choice grades there is much less of a supply on hand than last autumn and there is less anthracite than last autumn. But there is probably more of the steam coal and other grades of soft fuel than was the case at this time last year.

The coal has been coming forward to the Head of the Lakes very steadily ever since the opening of navigation last spring. The dock companies have taken great precautions to get every ton of fuel on the docks here that can be accommodated. The shortage of fuel last winter has made them do this.

A year ago at this time the dealers did not look for any shortage, and as far as Duluth was concerned there was none, although the docks were scraped pretty clean by the time navigation opened up. Anthracite was pretty scarce toward the last few weeks of the season, but there was enough to go around and plenty of soft coal.

Some of the dealers say that the amount of coal which has been brought up from the Lake Erie ports is less than had been expected for the season so far. The Northwest is not the only section of the country with a car shortage. The shortage in the East also affect the coal business. The mine owners can't get enough cars to take the coal from the mines to the docks and therefore some of the vessel owners are necessarily behind in their contracts.

One dealer says that the supply of coal is practically all here on the docks already. He doesn't look for very much more this season. Another local agent states that no definite line on the situation can be secured until after the close of navigation, evidently believing that there is a great deal of coal to be brought up during the next two months.

"In some grades of steam coal there is a bigger supply on hand than there was a year ago," said H. W. Andridge, city agent of the Hanna Coal company. "But I do not think that there is as much anthracite coal on the docks as there was then. The country dealers are doing better so far this season than they did last fall, but not nearly well enough. The prospects, however, are probably better than they were last year."

"The supply of hard coal is practically all here already," said H. W. Nichols of the Northland Coal company. "Even if we had plenty of room on the docks here I doubt if we would get much more. The car shortage from the mines to the docks in the East is interfering a great deal. Locally there is plenty of coal for Duluth and near vicinity, but the shipments to the interior points are not much better than they were at this time last year. The car shortage here is interfering, and will cause much delay in the shipments from this time on. All the coal companies have made a great effort to get a big supply of fuel on the docks here this season, and have been pretty successful. There is more soft coal, but the anthracite supply is about the same."

"If there were only plenty of cars the Northwestern district wouldn't need to worry about a coal shortage," said another dealer. "If the railroads can do their part, we will ship plenty of coal out in the country by the time it is needed. The trouble is they haven't the cars and, therefore, can't supply them."

If the shipments to the interior continue as they have been during the past month, the situation will probably be better than it was last year, and the country districts will have enough coal so that there will be no danger of a repetition of the coal famine of last winter.

All summer the agents of the railroads have been preaching the philosophy to the interior retail coal dealers of ordering their supplies early, and avoid the rush during the fall and winter, and to some extent this had the desired effect.

In Duluth the only coal shortage will be during the first two or three days after the first real cold snap of the fall. Many Duluthians have failed to take advantage of the lower rates during the summer months, and are waiting until the last minute to get in a supply of fuel. When the first cold weather comes on the dealers will be swamped, and extra teams will have to be engaged to make the deliveries in small lots around to the customers. This is always the case. Every fall thousands wait until the last month, and then complain over the delay in getting their order filled.

The cry of the coal man to order early should be heeded before real winter sets in.

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

From the ORIGINAL PAINTING by Henry P. Smith.

An old-fashioned, time-worn cottage, at East Hampton, L. I., half covered with vines and half hidden in shrubbery, resting in the comfortable shade of big old trees—unpretentious and almost commonplace, but famous, because it once inspired the immortal song, "Home, Sweet Home." Here, in boyhood, lived John Howard Payne, and when, years afterward, as an exile in London, with the broad ocean between him and his country, he composed the song for which he will be always remembered, it was this honest old cottage in the quiet of the green fields that he had in memory and of which he wrote:

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!"

Henry P. Smith, who painted "Home, Sweet Home," was born in Waterford, Conn., in 1852. He is a self-taught artist, and has devoted himself chiefly to painting the familiar American country scenes such as those among which he was brought up. He is well known also for his pictures of Venice, where he has spent much time during visits to Europe. But his fame will rest chiefly upon his delineations of the old homestead, with its characteristic setting, which no other artist has painted with so much sympathy and such power of touching the popular heart. He is a member of the American Water Color Society, and his pictures are to be found in a great number of private collections.

William H. Dean, United States immigration inspector, returned today from New York where he accompanied Attendant S. A. Paddock and an insane alien on board the steamer bound for Germany and Austria. He says that Mr. Paddock and his prisoner were safely on board the boat when it cleared from New York harbor Thursday afternoon.

"The lunatic behaved himself very nicely on the trip from Duluth to New York," said Mr. Dean, "and Mr. Paddock and myself had no trouble with him whatever. On board ship everything will be lovely, as the steamboat inspectors will take charge of the man and see that he behaves himself.

"At New York Mr. Paddock was given various papers and credentials for his trip across Germany and Austria and it is doubtful if he has any trouble at all. The captain of the steamboat seemed to think there would be no trouble in getting the prisoner to his old home."

Mr. Dean says that the steamer Frederick der Grosse, upon which Mr. Paddock and the prisoner embarked, will reach Bremen a week from tomorrow, Oct. 13, after which the trip will be made by rail across Germany and Austria.

FALL LIKELY TO PROVE FATAL

Clarence Carlson, a lather, employed in making improvements on the Adams school, slipped from a staging this morning and fell some distance through a skylight to the ground, and was seriously, if not fatally, injured.

He was taken to St. Mary's hospital and Dr. Robert Graham called in. Several bones were found to be broken, and the man was injured internally. Dr. Graham says that there is a good chance for Carlson's recovery.

Carlson is 40 years old and single. He came to Duluth about a week ago and secured work on the Adams building.

BECOMING TOO COMMON

Stanley Marshall, a young man formerly in the employ of the Yale laundry as collector, was arrested last evening on a warrant charging him with the appropriation of $2.85 of the firm's money.

He pleaded guilty to the charge of petty larceny and was given a sentence of a fine of $75 and costs or a sixty-day term in the county jail. Judge Windom, in reviewing the case, stated that it was high time an example was being made of young men who betrayed the confidence of their employers.

BOARD PREVENTED FROM RAISING TEACHERS' PAY

School Tax Already Up to Limit Fixed by Law.

Death Blow Dealt to High School "Frats" in Duluth.

Last evening, the board of education decided:

To fix the tax levy for the general school fund at 8 mills, the building fund levy at 3 mills and the sinking fund levy at 2.46 mills.

That the general public which felt that the school board was acting niggardly in the matter of teachers' salaries, was mistaken and that all that could be done in the way of an increase had been done, under the present state law.

That high school "frats" would have to go.

That the Franklin school should not be divested of its tower.

Members of the board of education have felt for some time past that the general public misunderstands the attitude of the board on the teachers' salary question and that the board is considered in many circles as a group of niggardly tyrants, so at the meeting last evening at the high school, they set about to explain things, and they did most satisfactorily.

Last spring, nearly every teacher in the city was given the full increase in salary allowed under the present schedule, $5 a month, and when last evening, the board decided upon the school tax levy for the coming year, the limit allowed under the law was applied.

The board decided to levy 8 mills, for the general fund, out of which the expenses of maintainence must be paid; 3 mills for the building fund, which includes funds for a new building and site, and 2.46 mills for the sinking fund.

Eight mills is all that the board is allowed to assess under the state law, and J. L. Washburn explained to the visitors present at the meeting that the board had done all it could to raise the teachers' salaries, under the present law.

"You folks go down to St. Paul at the next session of the legislature and get that law changed and we will boost the teachers' salaries as high as we can," said Director Washburn. "As it is, we must fix the levy at the very limit in order to pay for the increase that has already been granted the teachers. Last spring, nearly every teacher received a wage increase of $5, which is the most we can give under our rules. I am just as much in favor of paying higher wages to the teachers as the other members of the board, but we simply have not got the money, and we cannot get enough until the state legislature permits us to levy 9 mills or 10 mills."

The discussion on the problem of teachers' salaries would not have come up last night had it not been for a petition, signed by many school teachers, asking the board to increase their wages, and the presence of Alderman W. S. Moore and Ward Ames, who addressed the board on the propostition.

When the board disposed of the salary increases last spring, it realized that the city would have to be taxed to the very limit under the present law, to pay for it. The board has done the very best it could under the circumstances and its members feel that their efforts have been unappreciated and they are misrepresented, as being opposed to higher wages for the instructors.

"I had hoped that when we increased the salaries all along the line, raising the wages of every teacher who did any kind of good work at all last year, that we would hear a few words of praise and commendation, but instead, we have heard nothing but criticisms," said J. L. Washburn.

As the board had done everything that could be done, the petition from the teachers were received and filed and the visiting gentleman made familiar with the facts in the case. They understood that a large number of citizens were going to attend the meeting, to argue for higher wages for the teachers. Before leaving they warmly commended the board for what it had done.

They say that the teachers' wages cannot be raised any more this year. Speaking of the teachers' petition, President Codding said: "They don't tell us how it can be done."

Funds That Are Needed.

The committee on administration and finance, which prepared, with the aid of the clerk, the estimates for the taxes, reported that $276,000 was needed for the general fund; $103,500 for the building fund; and $85,090 for the sinking fund. This makes the 8 mills for the general, 3 for the building and 2.46 for the sinking funds, aforementioned.

Of the $276,000, which is estimated will be received from the local taxes, for the general fund, fully $230,000 will be paid out in teachers' salaries. When it is considered that there must also be paid out of this fund, the coal bills, the janitors and engineers' salaries, the office expenses and the cost of the free text books, it will be seen that the board has figured very closely.

The sinking fund includes the interest on the bonded indebtedness and that one mill which the board has decided should be levied each year to take care of bonds maturing in the future. This amount is practically the same as last year.

The building fund includes funds for a new building and site; the amount necessary to rebuild the Franklin and Madison schools over and above the amount of fire insurance received; and the balance necessary to complete the Ely and Nettleton schools.

Need New Buildings.

The members of the board appreciate that the city is growing and that new buildings must be erected all the time. They are loath to issue bonds, so the cost of a building is provided in the building fund.

Director Washburn said last evening that he thought a new building would be needed at least every two years, if the city kept on growing the way it has lately.

The county auditor, to whom the school tax levy must be certified before Oct. 10, have been in the habit in the past of shaving down the board's figures, so it was decided last evening to request him to leave this year's figures as they stand.

While the figures for the sinking fund are practically the same as last year, the building and general funds show an increase. As has been said, the principal cause for the increase in the general fund is the item of teachers' salaries.

Blow to "Frats."

The board dealt a death blow to high school and grammar school "frats," at last night's session. A resolution was unanimously adopted prohibiting the fraternal secret societies which have been springing up during the last few years. The societies already organized are ordered to cease their existence, are prohibited from seeking new members and the organization of new fraternities is forbidden. The co-operation of the members of these societies is asked in the disbanding of them, and a failure to comply with the wishes of the board will result in the explusion of pupils and they will be excluded from participations in graduations and all other school work.

A law was passed by the last legislature, prohibiting public school fraternities not permitted by the board, and as the local board does not allow any, the high school "frat" is down and out in Duluth. This ruling does not in any way affect the school debating, literary and musical societies, which are encouraged by the board and the teachers.

The tower on the Franklin school is to be saved for the residents of that district. Some builders felt that it was dangerous and should be removed, having been damaged by the fire which gutted the school shortly before the term began, and such a proposition was entertained by the board last evening. But Directors Campbell and Cobb, of the buildings and grounds committee, argued so strongly in favor of restoring the tower, that it was decided to have this done if the contractor would do so as a part of his regularly conracted work of restoration.

To impress the other members of the board with the desire of the people in the Franklin school district to have the tower retained, Mr. Cobb told of a visit to the school the other day, in company with Director Campbell. As they neared the school, a citizen rushed frantically up to them, and after ascertaining that they were school directors, said: "For God's sake don't take down the tower." He said those were the last words they heard and as he and Mr. Campbell left the neighborhood. So the tower is not to be taken down.

The buildings and grounds committee reported that the general contractor at the Franklin was doing good work, but that the sub-contractors were not getting on as fast. The heating contractor was especially tardy, the committee members said. It was decided to install new maple flooring on the first floor of the Franklin, as well as on the second. The committee was authorized to award contracts for putting in the electric wiring.

Chairman Campbell of the buildings and grounds committee, said that work on the Madison school was progressing slowly, despite the heroic efforts of the members to hustle things along. He said the delays were caused by a number of things, but that the committee members would keep after the contractors.

Another complaint about the ventilation at the Lester Park school was heard, but the board decided that it could do nothing in the matter just now.

No Truant Officer.

Although the superintendent of schools recommended in his report that a truant officer be apointed at once, to look after the youngsters who are playing hookey, no one was appointed to the position last evening.

It was decided upon the superintendent's recommendation to have manual training classes after hours at the high school, for the upper grade pupils at the Washington, Jefferson and Franklin schools.

Supt. Denfeld's report showed that the total enrollment at the close of the first three weeks of school was 11,003 against 10,698 last year, an increase of 305.

Some improvements at the Irving high school and some of the other schools were recommended and the purchase of supplies asked for by the committee on teachers and schools were authorized. The report of the treasurer and the committee on teachers and schools were accepted as read and the recommendations concurred in.

UNABLE TO FIND HIS RELATIVES

Mystery Surrounds Death of Aged Farmer at Winton.

There is considerable mystery surrounding the death of A. C. Aaron, the aged farmer who dropped dead at Winton, Minn., recently.

The addresses in a book in his pocket were of several Duluth people, but thus far the police have been unable to locate any one here who knows anything about him.

It is stated that he was at one time a prosperous farmer living near Two Harbors and that his relatives reside there. An investigation is being made of the case.

DAMP FUSE DIDN'T GO

Otherwise There Might Have Been Terrible Explosion in La Rue Mine.

President McNair of Miners' Union Held on Serious Charge.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—President John McNair of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, who was arrested yesterday, as told in The Herald, on the very serious charge of being implicated in a dastardly attempt to blow up the La Rue mine near Nashwauk, is still in custody.

McNair was arrested in Mattson's jewelry store yesterday by Chief of Police Kent on a telegraphic order from Sheriff Bates. He is being held in the local jail awaiting the coming of Deputy Horrigan, who will take him to Sheriff O'Houlihan, at Grand Rapids. The local union officials have been trying to bail him out, but have been unsuccessful.

According to Superintendent Webb of the La Rue, the dynamiters wrapped twenty-six sticks in an old coat and a newspaper. The fuse was to have been lit by a cigar, but being damp, it refused to work. Some of the men arrested in Nashwauk are known to have been smoking the same brand of cigars. The saloonkeeper who furnished the newspaper was able to remember the men, thereby giving the officers an important clue. The officers are convinced that the entire scheme was concocted in Eveleth.

TO BEGIN DRILL WORK ON "SLIVER"

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is strong probability that another large mine will be added to the Virginia group through the drilling of the famous Virginia "Sliver" about to be inaugurated by M. A. Hanna & Co., of Cleveland, who have secured an option on the property from the owners.

It will require several months of drill work to determine whether or not ore in any quantity exists on the property, but the fact that it is almost surrounded by proved ore deposits would indicate that the explorers are almost certain to find ore. Three drills will be put to work as soon as they can be installed and three others will be added in about a month. C. E. Hendrick, superintendent of the Hanna interests, was in the city early in the week and verified the report circulated last week to the effect that his company had taken an option on the property and also said that a contract for drilling had been let to the Nelson Exploration company and the E. J. Longyear company. The work will be rushed with all possible energy as the lessees are anxious to learn how much of a deposit the property contains.

The Republic Iron & Steel company operators of several properties on the range including the Franklin group in Virginia, will at once begin the sinking of a new shaft at their Pettit mine with the avowed object of shipping at least 1,000,000 tons of ore from the property during 1908. As the mine is an underground proposition this will be quite an undertaking. The mine contains a large deposit of high grade ore.

SMITH-ALGER CO. BUYS BIG PLANT

Tower, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the biggest deals in real estates circles in this section was consummated this week when the Tower Lumber company disposed of its holding here to the Smith-Alger company of Duluth. The deal has been pending for some time, and was finally closed yesterday. The Tower Lumber company's yard here contains millions of feet of lumber, which had previously been sold, and the same is being shipped to the owners. The horses and logging outfit had been disposed of some time ago so that the present sale consists of the sawmill and planing mill, the boarding house, barns, warehouses and several residences at Lakeside, besides a large quantity of logs.

The Smith-Alger company owns several tracts of timber in the vicinity, and are having camps erected near Vermilion dam, where they expect to do a great deal of logging this winter.

It is with a feeling of gratitude that the local citizens heard of the transfer of the mill, for it means a great deal to the welfare of the city, as it furnishes employment to several hundred men, who would otherwise find no work here.

Not So Many Arrests.

The records of the police department show that here were 335 arrests during the month of September, which is ninety less than during the same month a year ago. The amount of the goods reported stolen and lost during the month was $1,584.75, of which $1,043 worth was recovered. The recoveries amounted to 65.8 per cent of the entire amount missing. There were eight complaints for grand larceny and thirty-two for petty larceny during the month.

JOHNSON NOT A CANDIDATE

Governor Makes Formal Statement Regarding the Presidency.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson is out with a formal statement to the press of the Twin Cities that he is not and has not been a candidate for the nomination for president. He also states that he knows that W. J. Bryan is and has been a candidate for that honor for the past three months.

This statement of the governor was the result of the publication today of a political story to the effect that W. J. Bryan was openly a candidate for the nomination and that Henry Watterson would have to amend his entry conditions so far as Governor Johnson was concerned.

To this was added a statement credited to Frank A. Day, Governor Johnson's private secretary, that "the Minnesota Democracy will elect a delegation to the national convention that is friendly to Governor Johnson in case it should eventuate that there is any chance for his nomination.

STRIKE OFF, SAYS RUMOR

Persistent rumors of a settlement of the telegraphers' strike were heard on the streets today, but up to a late hour nothing authentic about the matter had been received.

At the local strike headquarters, several telegrams were received, over private wires, from the East, saying that a conference looking to a settlement of the differences between the operators and the companies was in progress in New York.

One message from the chief operator of a big New York brokerage house was to the effect that rumors were afloat saying that the Western Union had granted the eight-hours, but that President Small was holding out for a 10 per cent increase.

Another message stated that Supt. Tubbs of the Western Union in Chicago had told Managing Editor Keeley of the Chicago Tribune that the strike would be settled before next week.

Although most of the stories of the alleged settlement are the vaguest rumors, it would seem as if there was something doing. Secretary Richard Jones of the local telegraphers' union received a letter the other day from General Secretary Russell, saying that the strike would probably be settled in a very short time.

SUPERIOR NEWS

PLAN IS CONSIDERED.

Railroad Officials Look Favorably on Proposed Trestle.

The committee of Connors Point property holders, which went to St. Paul to confer with railroad officials, has notified Superior people interested that the general plan of a trestle over Conner's Point to the interstate bridge is looked upon quite favorably by most of the officials. They will not commit themselves, however, until they have placed the matter before their engineers for a more thorough investigation.

The plan proposed is the erection of a trestle from Lanborn avenue east on Main street and over Conner's Point to the bridge. It is proposed to have four tracks on the trestle, to be used by all roads for through trains to Duluth. The object is to avoid the condemnation of certain lands on Conner's Point, including some land owned by the Superior Shipbuilding company and almost necessary to the carrying on of operations by that firm.

Egan & Leveroos purchased from Mrs. Cusick of Chicago, through the Loney & Peckham agency, two lots on the southeast corner of Broadway and Ogden avenue. The consideration was $7,000.

City Seeks to Recover.

The city of Superior today started suit to recover on timber, which the city officials allege was taken from city park lands on the bay shore. Some of the timber, alleged to have been stolen, was found in the booms of A. McIntosh, but he appeared in court and disclaimed all responsibility. An effort will be made to locate the guilty parties.

Want $50,000 for Streets.

The board of public works wants $50,000 for the repair and maintenance of streets and other public improvements during the coming year. The estimate prepared by Secretary Heuble calls for that amount, which is $10,000 more than was asked last year. However, there is an overdraft of about $10,000, which must be met, and there is considerable new sewer work to be given attention.

Sues for $35,000.

Alderman H. J. Erbelding, on behalf of his 15-year-old son, John E. Erbelding, has filed suit against the Superior Shipbuilding company for $35,000 for injuries sustained by the boy, while working on the steamer Mataafa in the employ of the company. The boy was struck by a bundle of steel plates, a glancing blow injuring him severely. W. P. Crawford represents the plaintiff.

DANGER OF COAL FAMINE HAS NOT YET BEEN AVERTED

Situation in Northwest Not Much Different From a Year Ago—Car Shortage May Again Cause Severe Shortage in Inland Towns.

Is the coal situation in the Northwest in better or worse shape than it was a year ago? Some of the big dealers think the situation is just the same, but at any rate less has been heard on the subject so far this fall than was the case last year.

It seems to be the general opinion among the dealers that there is more coal on the docks at the Head of the Lakes than there was last fall and the shipments to the interior are probably heavier than they were a year ago. But the business generally has increased and therefore the outlook is in reality no better or worse than a year ago.

Last fall the car shortage was the all absorbing factor in the coal trade. The railroads were blamed for the shortage in the West, as there was plenty of coal at the Head of the Lakes at all times. This year less has been heard about the car shortage, but just the same there is a car shortage in the Northwest and a serious one.

In the smokeless coal and choice grades there is much less of a supply on hand than last autumn and there is less anthracite than last autumn. But there is probably more of the steam coal and other grades of soft fuel than was the case at this time last year.

The coal has been coming forward to the Head of the Lakes very steadily ever since the opening of navigation last spring. The dock companies have taken great precautions to get every ton of fuel on the docks here that can be accommodated. The shortage of fuel last winter has made them do this.

A year ago at this time the dealers did not look for any shortage, and as far as Duluth was concerned there was none, although the docks were scraped pretty clean by the time navigation opened up. Anthracite was pretty scarce toward the last few weeks of the season, but there was enough to go around and plenty of soft coal.

Some of the dealers say that the amount of coal which has been brought up from the Lake Erie ports is less than had been expected for the season so far. The Northwest is not the only section of the country with a car shortage. The shortage in the East also affect the coal business. The mine owners can't get enough cars to take the coal from the mines to the docks and therefore some of the vessel owners are necessarily behind in their contracts.

One dealer says that the supply of coal is practically all here on the docks already. He doesn't look for very much more this season. Another local agent states that no definite line on the situation can be secured until after the close of navigation, evidently believing that there is a great deal of coal to be brought up during the next two months.

"In some grades of steam coal there is a bigger supply on hand than there was a year ago," said H. W. Andridge, city agent of the Hanna Coal company. "But I do not think that there is as much anthracite coal on the docks as there was then. The country dealers are doing better so far this season than they did last fall, but not nearly well enough. The prospects, however, are probably better than they were last year."

"The supply of hard coal is practically all here already," said H. W. Nichols of the Northland Coal company. "Even if we had plenty of room on the docks here I doubt if we would get much more. The car shortage from the mines to the docks in the East is interfering a great deal. Locally there is plenty of coal for Duluth and near vicinity, but the shipments to the interior points are not much better than they were at this time last year. The car shortage here is interfering, and will cause much delay in the shipments from this time on. All the coal companies have made a great effort to get a big supply of fuel on the docks here this season, and have been pretty successful. There is more soft coal, but the anthracite supply is about the same."

"If there were only plenty of cars the Northwestern district wouldn't need to worry about a coal shortage," said another dealer. "If the railroads can do their part, we will ship plenty of coal out in the country by the time it is needed. The trouble is they haven't the cars and, therefore, can't supply them."

If the shipments to the interior continue as they have been during the past month, the situation will probably be better than it was last year, and the country districts will have enough coal so that there will be no danger of a repetition of the coal famine of last winter.

All summer the agents of the railroads have been preaching the philosophy to the interior retail coal dealers of ordering their supplies early, and avoid the rush during the fall and winter, and to some extent this had the desired effect.

In Duluth the only coal shortage will be during the first two or three days after the first real cold snap of the fall. Many Duluthians have failed to take advantage of the lower rates during the summer months, and are waiting until the last minute to get in a supply of fuel. When the first cold weather comes on the dealers will be swamped, and extra teams will have to be engaged to make the deliveries in small lots around to the customers. This is always the case. Every fall thousands wait until the last month, and then complain over the delay in getting their order filled.

SAFELY ON BOARD STEAMER

William H. Dean, United States immigration inspector, returned today from New York where he accompanied Attendant S. A. Paddock and an insane alien on board the steamer bound for Germany and Austria. He says that Mr. Paddock and his prisoner were safely on board the boat when it cleared from New York harbor Thursday afternoon.

"The lunatic behaved himself very nicely on the trip from Duluth to New York," said Mr. Dean, "and Mr. Paddock and myself had no trouble with him whatever. On board ship everything will be lovely, as the steamboat inspectors will take charge of the man and see that he behaves himself.

"At New York Mr. Paddock was given various papers and credentials for his trip across Germany and Austria and it is doubtful if he has any trouble at all. The captain of the steamboat seemed to think there would be no trouble in getting the prisoner to his old home."

Mr. Dean says that the steamer Frederick der Grosse, upon which Mr. Paddock and the prisoner embarked, will reach Bremen a week from tomorrow, Oct. 13, after which the trip will be made by rail across Germany and Austria.

BOARD PREVENTED FROM RAISING TEACHERS' PAY

School Tax Already Up to Limit Fixed by Law.

Death Blow Dealt to High School "Frats" in Duluth.

Last evening, the board of education decided:

To fix the tax levy for the general school fund at 8 mills, the building fund levy at 3 mills and the sinking fund levy at 2.46 mills.

That the general public which felt that the school board was acting niggardly in the matter of teachers' salaries, was mistaken and that all that could be done in the way of an increase had been done, under the present state law.

That high school "frats" would have to go.

That the Franklin school should not be divested of its tower.

Members of the board of education have felt for some time past that the general public misunderstands the attitude of the board on the teachers' salary question and that the board is considered in many circles as a group of niggardly tyrants, so at the meeting last evening at the high school, they set about to explain things, and they did most satisfactorily.

Last spring, nearly every teacher in the city was given the full increase in salary allowed under the present schedule, $5 a month, and when last evening, the board decided upon the school tax levy for the coming year the limit allowed under the law was applied.

The board decided to levy 8 mills, for the general fund, out of which the expenses of maintainence must be paid; 3 mills for the building fund, which includes funds for a new building and site, and 2.46 mills for the sinking fund.

Eight mills is all that the board is allowed to assess under the state law, and J. L. Washburn explained to the visitors present at the meeting that the board had done all it could to raise the teachers' salaries, under the present law.

"You folks go down to St. Paul at the next session of the legislature and get that law changed and we will boost the teachers' salaries as high as we can," said Director Washburn. "As it is, we must fix the levy at the very limit in order to pay for the increase that has already been granted the teachers. Last spring, nearly every teacher received a wage increase of $5, which is the most we can give under our rules. I am just as much in favor of paying higher wages to the teachers as the other members of the board, but we simply have not got the money, and we cannot get enough until the state legislature permits us to levy 9 mills or 10 mills."

The discussion on the problem of teachers' salaries would not have come up last night had it not been for a petition, signed by many school teachers, asking the board to increase their wages, and the presence of Alderman W. S. Moore and Ward Ames, who addressed the board on the proposition.

When the board disposed of the salary increases last spring, it realized that the city would have to be taxed to the very limit under the present law, to pay for it. The board has done the very best it could under the circumstances and its members feel that their efforts have been unappreciated and they are misrepresented, as being opposed to higher wages for the instructors.

"I had hoped that when we increased the salaries all along the line, raising the wages of every teacher who did any kind of good work at all last year, that we would hear a few words of praise and commendation, but instead, we have heard nothing but criticisms," said J. L. Washburn.

As the board had done everything that could be done, the petition from the teachers were received and filed and the visiting gentleman made familiar with the facts in the case. They understood that a large number of citizens were going to attend the meeting, to argue for higher wages for the teachers. Before leaving they warmly commended the board for what it had done.

They say that the teachers' wages cannot be raised any more this year. Speaking of the teachers' petition, President Codding said: "They don't tell us how it can be done."

Funds That Are Needed.

The committee on administration and finance, which prepared, with the aid of the clerk, the estimates for the taxes, reported that $276,000 was needed for the general fund; $103,500 for the building fund; and $85,000 for the sinking fund. This makes the 8 mills for the general, 3 for the building and 2.46 for the sinking funds, aforementioned.

Of the $276,000, which is estimated will be received from the local taxes, for the general fund, fully $220,000 will be paid out in teachers' salaries. When it is considered that there must also be paid out of this fund, the coal bills, the janitors and engineers' salaries, the office expenses and the cost of the free text books, it will be seen that the board has figured very closely.

The sinking fund includes the interest on the bonded indebtedness and that one mill which the board has decided should be levied each year to take care of bonds maturing in the future. This amount is practically the same as last year.

The building fund includes funds for a new building and site; the amount necessary to rebuild the Franklin and Madison schools over and above the amount of fire insurance received; and the balance necessary to complete the Ely and Nettleton schools.

Need New Buildings.

The members of the board appreciate that the city is growing and that new buildings must be erected all the time. They are loath to issue bonds, so the cost of a building is provided in the building fund.

Director Washburn said last evening that he thought a new building would be needed at least every two years, if the city kept on growing the way it has lately.

The county auditor, to whom the school tax levy must be certified before Oct. 10, have been in the habit in the past of shaving down the board's figures, so it was decided last evening to request him to leave this year's figures as they stand.

While the figures for the sinking fund are practically the same as last year, the building and general funds show an increase. As has been said, the principal cause for the increase in the general fund is the item of teachers' salaries.

Blow to "Frats."

The board dealt a death blow to high school and grammar school "frats," at last night's session. A resolution was unanimously adopted prohibiting the fraternal secret societies which have been springing up during the last few years. The societies already organized are ordered to cease their existence, are prohibited from seeking new members and the organization of new fraternities is forbidden. The co-operation of the members of these societies is asked in the disbanding of them, and a failure to comply with the wishes of the board will result in the explusion of pupils and they will be excluded from participations in graduations and all other school work.

A law was passed by the last legislature, prohibiting public school fraternities not permitted by the board, and as the local board does not allow any, the high school "frat" is down and out in Duluth. This ruling does not in any way affect the school debating, literary and musical societies, which are encouraged by the board and the teachers.

The tower on the Franklin school is to be saved for the residents of that district. Some builders felt that it was dangerous and should be removed, having been damaged by the fire which gutted the school shortly before the term began, and such a proposition was entertained by the board last evening. But Directors Campbell and Cobb, of the buildings and grounds committee, argued so strongly in favor of restoring the tower, that it was decided to have this done if the contractor would do so as a part of his regularly conracted work of restoration.

To impress the other members of the board with the desire of the people in the Franklin school district to have the tower retained, Mr. Cobb told of a visit to the school the other day, in company with Director Campbell. As they neared the school, a citizen rushed frantically up to them, and after ascertaining that they were school directors, said: "For God's sake don't take down the tower." He said those were the last words they heard and as he and Mr. Campbell left the neighborhood. So the tower is not to be taken down.

The buildings and grounds committee reported that the general contractor at the Franklin was doing good work, but that the sub-contractors were not getting on as fast. The heating contractor was especially tardy, the committee members said. It was decided to install new maple flooring on the first floor of the Franklin, as well as on the second. The committee was authorized to award contracts for putting in the electric wiring.

Chairman Campbell of the buildings and grounds committee, said that work on the Madison school was progressing slowly, despite the heroic efforts of the members to hustle things along. He said the delays were caused by a number of things, but that the committee members would keep after the contractors.

Another complaint about the ventilation at the Lester Park school was heard, but the board decided that it could do nothing in the matter just now.

No Truant Officer.

Although the superintendent of schools recommended in his report that a truant officer be apointed at once, to look after the youngsters who are playing hookey, no one was appointed to the position last evening.

It was decided upon the superintendent's recommendation to have manual training classes after hours at the high school, for the upper grade pupils at the Washington, Jefferson and Franklin schools.

Supt. Denfeld's report showed that the total enrollment at the close of the first three weeks of school was 11,093 against 10,698 last year, an increase of 395.

Some improvements at the Irving high school and some of the other schools were recommended and the purchase of supplies asked for by the committee on teachers and schools were authorized. The report of the treasurer and the committee on teachers and schools were accepted as read and the recommendations concurred in.

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

From the ORIGINAL PAINTING by Henry P. Smith.

An old-fashioned, time-worn cottage, at East Hampton, L. I., half covered with vines and half hidden in shrubbery, resting in the comfortable shade of big old trees—unpretentious and almost commonplace, but famous, because it once inspired the immortal song, "Home, Sweet Home." Here, in boyhood, lived John Howard Payne, and when, years afterward, as an exile in London, with the broad ocean between him and his country, he composed the song for which he will be always remembered, it was this honest old cottage in the quiet of the green fields that he had in memory and of which he wrote:

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!"

Henry P. Smith, who painted "Home, Sweet Home," was born in Waterford, Conn., in 1852. He is a self-taught artist, and has devoted himself chiefly to painting the familiar American country scenes such as those among which he was brought up. He is well known also for his pictures of Venice, where he has spent much time during visits to Europe. But his fame will rest chiefly upon his delineations of the old homestead, with its characteristic setting, which no other artist has painted with so much sympathy and such power of touching the popular heart. He is a member of the American Water Color Society, and his pictures are to be found in a great number of private collections.

UNABLE TO FIND HIS RELATIVES

Mystery Surrounds Death of Aged Farmer at Winton.

There is considerable mystery surrounding the death of A. C. Aaron, the aged farmer who dropped dead at Winton, Minn., recently.

The addresses in a book in his pocket were of several Duluth people, but thus far the police have been unable to locate any one here who knows anything about him.

It is stated that he was at one time a prosperous farmer living near Two Harbors and that his relatives reside there. An investigation is being made of the case.

NEW BOAT IS IN PORT

Will Take Out Cargo of Grain on Return Trip.

After having come up the lakes light on her maiden trip, the new steamer John J. Boland, owned by J. J. Boland and others of Buffalo, arrived in the Duluth harbor at noon today with pennants flying and her sides and decks shining with new paint.

The Boland was built at Detroit, by the Great Lakes Engineering works, and took the initial plunge into the waters of the Detroit river two or three weeks ago. Since that time she has been fitted out and this is her first trip up the lakes.

The local agents for the steamer are G. A. Tomlinson & Co., and when the vessel was passing the tug office orders came to send her to the Globe elevator, where she will take on a cargo of coal for the return trip to Lake Erie.

Four boats cleared from the Duluth harbor with cargoes of grain today, which demonstrates that the grain trade is slowly assuming the activity expected of it at this time of the year. The rate still fluctuates between 2 cents and 2½ cents for wheat to Buffalo from Duluth. This morning it was 2¼ cents.

There is a good demand for grain tonnage, but the vessel owners seem to prefer to carry ore until the grain rate is forced up a little higher.

BRIDGE MUST GO.

Swing Bridge at Ashtabula is an Unreasonable Obstruction.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Oct. 5.—Following the notice issued last week that the old case against the commissioners of Ashtabula county, regarding the swing bridge at Ashtabula harbor, had been cancelled, Mayor R. H. Pfaff and the commissioners on Wednesday received formal notification from Maj. C. McD. Townsend, government engineer for this district, that the secretary of war had decided that the bridge in question was an "unreasonable obstruction to navigation," and must be removed before October 22, 1908. Anent the proposition, the mayor and commissioners were notified that a hearing in the case will be held at the Harbor city hall in Ashtabula on October 22, 1907, at which anything they may have to offer on the subject may be submitted.

The notice specifies that "insufficient width of span, a faulty position of the navigable opening and the existence of the center pier and its fender in the river," make navigation difficult and that it is proposed to require the following changes to be made in said bridge:

"So alter said bridge as to afford a clear, navigable opening not less than 140 feet between the fenders, and remove the present center pier and its fender to a depth of twenty-one feet below the mean lake level."

CAPTAIN WRIGHT HERE.

Visits Old Friends in Duluth---Was Master of Lafayette.

Capt. E. P. Wright, formerly master of the steamer Lafayette, when she was wrecked in the great storm two years ago, is in Duluth for a few days' visit with his numerous friends here. He came up on the steamer Elwood of the Pittsburg fleet. Capt. Wright is now living at Geneva, Ohio, and is not sailing any more owing to his poor health. His health has never been good since the time of the wreck when he and the members of the crew of the Lafayette suffered much from exposure before they gained the shore and shelter at Lakeside.

GIVES UP COMMAND.

Captain John Lowe Retires From Widener for the Season.

Capt. John Lowe of Cleveland, who is one of the best known and most competent and successful master on the lakes, has given up the command of the steamer Peter A. B. Widener of the Pittsburg fleet, owing to poor health.

Capt. Lowe has been sailing on the lakes for over fifty years and has during the last few years brought out several of the new steamers of the Pittsburg fleet. His last boat the Widener is a 600-foot steamer.

The command of the Widener has been given to Capt. Fred Hoffman of the steamer James J. Hill. Capt. A. J. Talbot, formerly on the Murphy will sail the Hill.

LIGHT ON NORTH PIER.

Captain Lowe Voices Sentiment of Masters Coming Here.

Capt. Lowe, master of the steamer E. A. E. Clarke, has come forward with a new plan to aid vessels in entering the Duluth ship canal at night, the establishment of a light on the north pier head. He says that a light of this kind is badly needed and if all the masters unite in asking for it one would probably be established.

Capt. Lowe says that on dark nights it is pretty hard to determine exactly how one is entering the harbor. The range lights are all right, but a light on the other pier is needed to assist the masters in guiding their boats successfully through the canal. A simple post light would be sufficient.

Several other marine men have endorsed Capt. Lowe's plan including Capt. Swenson, the local hydographer, and Capt. Vroman of the Great Lakes Towing company. The plan is to let every master coming to Duluth attach to his clearance a demand for a light at the same time signifying his preference as to the color and character of the light.

Kidney Disease Sapping the American Nation?

A Word of Warning—and a Remedy.

Modern conditions of living in America are said to be increasing Kidney, Bladder and Rheumatic Ailments at such a rapid rate that the public health is threatened.

To meet the situation it has been proposed that the newspapers of the country give wide publicity to Dr. Flood's prescription not only as being the finest remedy for these ailments known, but one in which the people can place perfect confidence, coming as it does from such eminent medical authority.

This is a practical suggestion that should result in the relief of a vast amount of suffering and we take pleasure in being able to help the idea by giving the doctor's famous prescription in full:

Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic..½ ounce
Aromatic Elixir.....4 ounces

THREE DAYS' CULINARY CARNIVAL

MOORE'S RANGES

OCTOBER 7-8-9—MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY

WE HAVE ARRANGED for what is the most unique, as well as the most interesting, exhibit of these celebrated ranges ever known in this country. Positively it is a display that will interest every woman in this city and surrounding territory. One of these handsome ranges will be placed in our show window and operated without a chimney. Pies, cakes, biscuit, light bread, rolls and a score of other edibles will be baked right before your eyes, and what is more wonderful, you can watch each and every article in the oven during the baking. This is the most novel sight you ever saw and is possible only with Moore's Range.

Mrs. L. Smith, one of the best cooks, will be with us for the three days above mentioned and will gladly prepare any sort of food you may name and bake it while you are watching. But she will tell you that such feats as she performs would not be possible if she did not have a Moore's Range at her command. After you have watched the operation of this, the most wonderful range, you will be convinced that Mrs. Smith is at the mercy of the many features of the range which positively prevent her from making mistakes. And you will see for yourself that you can do just as she does if you have one of Moore's Ranges placed in your kitchen.

MOORE'S RANGE.

Words fail to describe the attractiveness of this exhibit. Breakfast foods, milk and all sorts of food will be boiled in ordinary vessels right on top of the range without scorching and neither is it necessary to stir. Meats will be broiled and bread toasted without burning the face or removing stove lids. In fact you will be treated to the sight of a modern kitchen in full operation under the unique condition of burning fuel without causing any smoke and without a chimney.

Don't Miss This, the Most Wonderful Display in the City.

You will regret it the rest of your life if you do not attend. Arrangements have been made for the reception of a large crowd. A most comprehensive display of Moore's Ranges will be seen and a force of salesmen will explain every feature which has given these ranges a national reputation of perfection.

Lighthouse Tender Here.

The lighthouse supply steamer Marigold in command of Capt. Cummings arrived in port yesterday afternoon and took on a cargo of coal. This morning she cleared for points along the north shore with various supplies for the lighthouses. On her return trip she will probably establish the winter marks about the harbor, which will serve to guide sailors until navigation is closed in December.

CHICAGO PROFESSOR

Says Spirit of the Bully Causes Business Evils.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—"Every crime in the decalogue is committed and every kind of chicanery and deception is practiced in the name of business today," said Prof. Charles Zueblin of the University of Chicago, in his lecture on "Business" to the Woodlawn People's institute at Woodlawn Masonic Temple.

In the extension of governmental control to business activities, Prof. Zueblin sees the solution of these economic problems.

"The trouble with our captains of industry," asserted the professor, "is that they have ingrained in them the spirit of the bully. President Baer, for instance, arrogates to himself the divine office of 'steward of the Reading railway and general instructor in everything to everyone.'

"Marshall Field was a genius, but he also had the bullying spirit. He showed it by the acts which keep his dead hands still in control of his fortune; by damning his helpless grandsons to a flood of millions of dollars more than they can possibly spend, and an education in the fine old English schools.'

"In San Francisco, after the fire, a man was shot for charging a double price for bread, but have you ever heard of one of our great capitalists being punished for boosting prices? No. We haven't got that far yet. They have got us bluffed."

ANOTHER IDOL SMASHED.

Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise.

Thus said wise Poor Richard, and we have been believing it ever since, most of us, though we haven't followed it as assiduously as we might. The delicious languor of the few extra minutes of sleep stolen after the time when we knew we ought to have bounced out of bed in an earnest renewal of our pursuit of health, wealth and wisdom have proved too tempting for us on many occasions, and perhaps that is the reason we are not as healthy, wealthy and wise as we should like to be.

And the sentiment is even more ancient than the day of Ben Franklin. A book printed in 1598, entitled "A Health to the Gentle Profession of Serving-men," quoted these Latin words as though they then enjoyed the respect and veneration due to antiquity: "Sanat, sanctificat, et ditat, surgere mane;" that he may be healthy, happy and wise, let him rise early.

We have joined this sentiment in our minds with "plough deep while sluggards sleep;" "the early bird catches the worm;" and other sage proverbs that bade us purchase worldly wealth at the cost of the intense discomfort of getting up early in the morning. When our pursuit of pleasure kept us up late at night, this was often more than embarrassing.

And now comes Dr. Woods Hutchinson, who seems to have become a sort of physician-in-chief for the American people because he has been contributing some very interesting and instructive articles to the magazines on medical subjects, and says there is nothing in it. In an article in the American magazine he says: "There is no adequate support for the impression that the early morning hours are in any way more wholesome or healthy than later periods of the day. Except in summer time they are apt to be among the least desirable hours of daylight. It is quite true that during the summer there is a sense of exhiliration about being abroad in these early morning hours, but this evaporates with the dew and is apt to be succeeded by a corresponding depression and loss of working power later in the day."

As a matter of fact, there is no real virtue in early rising, except that when your competitors rise early you must rise early, too, in order to keep abreast of them. You must have ample rest, but you can't afford to devote too much of your time to slumber. Too much slumber means laziness; too little means exhaustion of vitality without renewal. It is more important that you should have regular hours of sleep than it is to have them begin and end at certain times. If eight hours is your proper quota, it doesn't make much difference whether you put them in between 10 o'clock in the evening and 6 o'clock in the morning or between midnight and 8 o'clock in the morning. If you are sure you do your best work in the early morning, rise early; if you can do better work later, sleep later and prepare yourself for your day's labor by ample rest.

A current anecdote illustrates an immortal truth which men that have won success have taken to their hearts, and which men that have achieved failure have overlooked.

A well known public man was taking a driving tour in the White Mountains, and his companion stopped the wagon at a village inn and got out, leaving the statesman alone in the wagon.

Pretty soon one of the loafers who always hang about a country hotel ambled down to the wagon, looked the horse and the wagon all over, and then proceeded to occupy himself with the harness. He loosened a buckle here, tightened a strap there, pulled the network along, and generally reconstructed the "tackle," until the nerves of the public man were irritated, and he snapped out: "Don't bother about that harness; I guess it's about right."

Nothing daunted, the villager completed his self-imposed task, merely remarking:

"Guess right's better than about right."

The public man fell under a dead silence, awed in the presence of one of those eternal truths that pave the pathway of progress. To himself he admitted that he had learned a valuable lesson from a humble villager.

It is the people that are satisfied if things are "about right" that bring about the disasters and the failures.

It is the people that insist upon having things just right, and that look upon "about right" as the password of the Ancient and Dishonorable Society of the Shiftless, that make the great successes and keep the world a-moving ahead.

Every day the world is shocked by the news of some disaster. A defective rail or a misplaced switch or a misunderstood order brings wreck to a railroad train, and many are killed and injured. Or a vessel is burned and hundreds are lost because the lifeboats are worthless and the life preservers will not float. Or a business enterprise goes up in smoke, carrying with it the source of employment to thousands. Or a bank collapses, and the savings of the multitude vanish.

Somewhere back of each one of these "accidents" and "mishaps" there is a fellow whose aim is to get things "about right."

"I guess that's about right," he says, and the train goes plunging into disaster, crushing out human lives and causing human agony, because there was something that while it might have been "about right," was not "just right." A careless track inspector, a shiftless switchman, a negligent inspector, a business man who got his figures "about right" when "just right" would have turned disaster into profit, or a board of directors that believed the president's accounts to be "about right;" one of these, or one of their kind, can be found somewhere back of every horror that wrings the hearts of men.

If you would win success, get things "just right;" if you would achieve failure, and through your negligence set afoot a train of mischance that floods the world with horror, be content to have things "about right."

CIGARETTE POISON.

A lesson that is worth much to every cigarette-smoker that will take it to heart is furnished by the talk a western doctor recently gave to a patient. It is especially valuable to boys who are learning to smoke by the cigarette route, thinking it milder and of less harm than other forms of tobacco.

This youth came to his physician in a very much run-down condition, and as a result of the doctor's questioning the fact was developed that the patient was in the habit of smoking something like thirty cigarettes a day, but that he hadn't thought of blaming cigarettes for his condition. He blamed his "hard work."

The doctor shook his head, smiled doubtingly, and reached for a glass jar, out of which he took a leech.

"Let me show you something," he said. "Bare your arm." The young man wonderingly complied, and the doctor laid upon it the lean, black leech. The leech fell to its work of blood-sucking. Its body began to swell. Then suddenly it gave a shudder, released its hold, and dropped to the floor, dead.

"That's what your blood did to that leech," said the physician. "You poisoned it."

The cigarette fiend doubted. He said that the leech was probably not in good health in the first place.

"We'll try again," the doctor said; so he put two more leeches on the young man's thin arm.

"If they both die," said the sick man, "I'll swear off—at least I'll cut down my daily allowance from thirty cigarettes to ten."

Even as he spoke the smaller leech fell dead to the floor, and a moment later the larger one fell beside it.

"This is ghastly," said the young man; "I'm worse than a pestilence to those leeches."

Then the doctor explained it all scientifically to the young man, telling him that what killed the leeches was the poison from the cigarettes in his blood. He said all cigarette fiends have it. He said that if he quit smoking, or smoked reasonably, and smoked something besides cigarettes if he had to smoke, by and by his blood would get so it wouldn't kill leeches. Besides, his appetite would return, his sleep would be better, and his muddy color would clear up.

"It is not hard work," said the doctor, "but hard smoking that brought these troubles upon you."

This story explains why cigarettes are counted more deadly than any other form of smoking. The cigarette-smoker inhales his smoke, and finds no relish in smoking if he does not. When his lungs draw in air to be used in purifying his blood, they draw in with it a noxious cloud of smoke, and it is small wonder that the blood, under these circumstances, should become poisonous to leeches, and that young men in that condition should have muddy complexions, poor appetite, and generally bad health.

SCHOOLS FOR CRIME.

The commission which has been engaged for some time in investigating the penal systems in vogue in this country recently made its report, and in it there are matters worthy of deep consideration.

Chief among these is summed up in its largest generalization upon the prison practices that it finds followed throughout the country, which "force a man into idleness and give him thieves and degenerates for companions."

This is true more largely of the county jails than of the state penitentiaries. In the latter the prisoners are generally kept busy, and are denied the freedom of conversation with each other that is permitted in the county jails. In Minnesota, for instance, all of the prisoners are kept at work, and the state prison is a source of profit to the state, its earnings being greatly in excess of its expense, not counting the vast saving to the farmers through the sale of binding twine at prices much lower than those charged by the twine trust.

But in the county jails, in Minnesota no less than elsewhere, the condition is deplorable. The report characterizes the average condition as a "satanic recipe for manufacturing crime."

"The very structure of the typical county jail is wrong," says the report. "From ocean to ocean one uniform plan has been slavishly copied from bad models—a cell or cave of cells surrounded by a corridor." In most cases this corridor is the only place where the prisoners are permitted to walk or take exercise, and this must necessarily be in an atmosphere full of taint both moral and physical.

This is distinctly true of the St. Louis county jail, which is an excellent example of the model that is followed so universally in this country. On each of two floors is a nest of cells, with corridors on all sides and a corridor in the center. All of the prisoners except those under special guard are given the freedom of these corridors at times; many of them most of the time except at night. The susceptible character of the young first offender is recklessly exposed to the influence of the hardened professional criminal, with his low ideals and gross morals. The companionship of the jail is all that is given them, and that is full of moral poison that can hardly be expected, in most cases, to do anything less than confirm the youthful offender in his life of crime.

Even in the cells of such a jail there is ample opportunity for communication. They are separated, as a rule, only by open bars such as those that separate them from the corridors, and between cells so constructed there is perfect freedom for the conduct of a school of crime under the authority and practically under the connivance of the society which crime threatens.

The place for exercise should be outside the jail, for which purpose an open court should be constructed; and in the jail the cells should forbid and prevent free communication between the prisoners.

LAKES-TO-GULF.

The Superior Telegram agrees with The Herald that the Chicago lakes-to-gulf waterway will never come about unless it is shown that it can be built without draining a dangerous amount of water out of the Great Lakes.

It says, however, that a canal connecting Lake Superior with the Mississippi by way of the St. Croix river would be free from all the serious objections raised against the Chicago canal; that it would be shorter, less expensive, and would take no water out of the Great Lakes.

The basis of all discussions of waterways should be that wherever one can be built that will provide a real service, without its costing so much as to make the service extravagant, and where it does not interfere with a greater waterway, it should be constructed.

As to the Telegram's proposed waterway, it must be remembered that little is known about its feasibility, except that whatever route is chosen must cut its way through a height of land to reach the Mississippi. While Maj. C. B. Sears of the army engineer corps surveyed a couple of routes when he was in charge at Duluth, he never passed upon the practicability of any route. He was asked to say which of two routes was preferable, but he was not asked to pass upon the feasibility of the plan, and he never did pass upon it. If this proposed waterway can be shown to be practicable and desirable, it ought to be constructed.

LUXURY, THE PARASITE.

One marked effect of the present temporary recession in business activity will be a curtailment of luxuries on all hands. It was significant that the first large failure to occur was that of an automobile factory. When a people begins to retrench, it is quite natural that the luxuries should be attacked first. In times of abundant industrial activity, when everybody is making money, the tendency to acquire luxurious habits is natural, and it is equally natural that when the activity shows signs of lessening, the immediate result should be a falling off in the demand for the luxuries.

This tendency cannot help being beneficial. There is no question that this country was beginning to devote entirely too much of its money to luxuries. Its capacity to produce the necessaries of life was being encroached upon by the demand for it to produce luxuries. The result of the growth of such tendencies could be nothing but disaster. When a nation gets so prosperous that a large part of its capital and labor is called into the production of commodities designed to gratify the demand for luxuries, its prosperity is a real danger.

The cutting off of luxuries means that there will be more capital to be devoted to industry of a permanent value. Luxuries have no permanent value to society. They are fruits of the industry of others, picked and eaten by a favored few. They do not add to the nation's wealth; they subtract from it. If a nation became too luxurious, its industry would be kept so busy producing luxuries that it could not produce enough to eat and wear.

President Roosevelt the other day, in a letter, declared that this country has an "over-luxurious" civilization. M. E. Ingalls, banker and railroad president, told the American Bankers' association the other day that the people of this nation are "extravagant" in their daily lives. He told his hearers that hundreds of millions of dollars were spent in automobiles in the past year or two, and that the rate of expenditure is still increasing, or was until the financial sky grew a little darker. Many of these machines of luxury, a much larger proportion than most people imagine, are bought on credit, their purchasers discounting the future of the prevailing prosperity to that extent. And the automobile habit is but one symptom of the prevailing passion for luxury.

Great prosperity and broad credit are the foundations of luxury, yet luxury tends to eat into the foundations of both prosperity and credit.

Mr. Ingalls advised the bankers to whom he spoke to be very careful in extending credits so long as the people continue to squander their substance in mere extravagances and until they begin to turn a larger share of their money, actual or borrowed, back into producing instead of parasitical industry.

A HAPPY AGREEMENT.

Reports from St. Paul are to the effect that the railroad attorneys have agreed to a course of action that will carry the commodity rate case directly up to the supreme court of the United States.

By the arrest of the attorney general for contempt of court in disobeying Judge Lochren's injunction restraining him from enforcing the rate law, the right of the federal courts to practically enjoin a state from enforcing its own law, by the indirect method of enjoining the only officers that can act for it, will be tested.

By the appeal of one of the railroad cases, the question of whether the regulation of intrastate rates by the state does not directly affect interstate rates will also go up to the ultimate court.

This means that these two vitally important questions will be settled, and that they will be disposed of with a promptness that could hardly have been expected. This is very much better than threatening to call out the state troops to enforce state rights. It is obedience to law and a resort to law instead of to lawlessness, and will aid to work out the pending questions quietly, sanely and with perfect safety to all interests.

While the action of the railroads in appealing to the federal courts instead of first trying the state courts has created bitter feeling and much harsh criticism, it was thoughtless, because the course taken meant a speedy settlement of the law questions involved, which is all that anybody asks. Had the railroads taken the commodity rate law into the state district courts, they would have appealed to the state supreme court if they had lost in the lower court, and if they were disappointed there they would have then gone into the federal courts. Thus the litigation would have been prolonged indefinitely. While the railroads were perhaps innocent of any intent to hasten the enforcement of the law, they can hardly be accused of intentionally delaying it when they took a course that will bring about a final determination fully a year quicker than it would have come had they appealed first to the state courts.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Clerk Howard Melaney of the Lenox was called upon to listen to a tale of woe, and to also do the sympathetic act, when Charles Feagler told of the ill usage he received while attempting to act as peacemaker between a belligerent husband and an Amazonian wife last Friday night in the range country.

"My wife not only refuses to sympathize with me," declared Feagler, "but she doubts my motives of disinterestedness. Some one must offer that salve of human ills, sympathy, and so I am going to tell the story to you."

Hotel clerks are the most sympathetic persons in the world, so Feagler was assured of kind words upon the recital of his mistreatment at the hands of the warring couple.

Feagler was driving by a lonely farm house, about five miles from Hibbing, when he was attracted by yells that rent the atmosphere. Like the heroes of mythology, he pictured feminine distress and jumped from his buggy to lend assistance.

The brawny husband had a hammerlock hold on his wife and was administering muscle torture when the gallant Feagler entered the scene.

But, alas, no sooner had he pried the brawny arms from their vice-like grasp than he was set upon by the husband and wife, who hurled their mutual grievances to combat the entry of the alien force. The struggle was brief and decisive. Surprised and hurt by the action of the woman whom he had come to lend assistance, Feagler proved but a poor opponent and he retired from the unequal struggle with facial blemishes that were exhibited to the sorrowing clerk as proof of the vagaries of human nature.

"Never again," signed the ill-used traveling man, "never again will I thrust my personality between warring couples, to be laughed at by my wife and to grieve over the ungratefulness of human nature."

"Back to cribbage and pinochle and the quiet fireside," says E. W. McCurry, a form eresident of Hibbing, who has been spending the past two months on the range, and who is returning to his home in St. Paul.

"I have seen sufficient excitement to tide me over the winter months," declares the former rangelte, who intends to play the German game, drink sweet apple cider, attend pink teas, when his spouse will permit, and forget in a lethargy of drowsy comfort, the strenuousness of the hours that he spent during the range strike.

"I am not going back to the range again this year," McCurry said: "and I hope when I return next spring I won't be conjuring up mental pictures of dynamite and peace-destroying weapons."

LAUGHING GAS.

Cleveland Leader: Dr. Slicer—Shocking! This paper says that eight thousand people died lacking medical services this year.

Mrs. Slicer—Well, well! You wouldn't think that possible, would you?

Harper's Weekly: First-Nighter—Did they seem to like your sketch, Bill?

Timid Actor—I think they did. They called for me, and finally they dared me to come out!

Baltimore American: "Pop, what kind of vessels do they have dog watches on!"

"The barks, I suppose."

Philadelphia Press: "Say, Doc," said the good fellow, "the shape of a man's stomach is round, isn't it?"

"Nearly so," replied the doctor. "Why?"

"Ain't it funny that nothin' fits it so well as a square meal?"

Baltimore American: "An umbrella manufacturer ought to make the best kind of sporting man."

"Why so?"

"Because his products make him used to putting up or shutting up."

"Ah, signor," said the innkeeper, "zey come because we 'ave ze gr-ran' label to stick on ze luggage."

Prof. S. W. Johnson, Yale College: "I regard their (alum and soluble alumina salts) introduction into baking powders as most dangerous to health."

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday afternoon and this morning the weather was of a charm that spelled perfection. Skies a clear and untarnished blue, a smiling sun, and an air that was as invigorating and exhilarating as that which you must not look upon when it is red, were the conditions that made it so glorious as to beggar description. Yesterday's highest temperature was 60 degs. and last night's lowest was 36 degs. The weather man expects it to be fair and warmer tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today a northwest wind made it cool, but the sun shone freely from a clear sky, and the weather was fine. At night the temperature neared the freezing point for the first time.

The sun rose this morning at 6:12 and set tonight at 5:40, making 11 hours and 28 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light rains fell during Friday or last night over Southern and North Atlantic states largely due to the influence of a barometric disturbance central this morning over the latter district. The Rocky mountain high pressure has advanced its center to the Eastern slopes and is the cause of cooler weather in the Red River and Ohio valleys and North Atlantic states. A slight barometric depression has appeared over Saskatchewan, but its easterly movement tonight and Sunday favors generally fair weather and higher temperature as regards this locality during that period."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

It is the contrariness of her sex that causes a woman to love a man after she imagines she has broken his heart by not loving him.

As to Wu Ting Fang.

Springfield Republican: It would be interesting to know at once whether Wu Ting Fang is to come to America prepared to maintain the rather uncompromising attitude (as to immigration) which distinguished him when he was here before. Are China and Japan going to pool their issues and work together, or are they to work at cross purposes? The two empires are now in a somewhat different treaty basis, inasmuch as, while our Japanese treaty of 1894 stipulates that the United States may have virtually any immigration laws it pleases, the treaty of 1880 with China definitely provides that the American government "may regulate, limit or suspend" Chinese immigration, "but may not absolutely prohibit."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Heroic in Contemporaneous Life.

The other week a single day's reading of the papers furnished three conspicuous instances of heroism. A surgeon crawled under a wrecked railway car and amputated the leg of a poor fellow who had been so pinioned that otherwise it was impossible to release him. The operation, in the face of obstacles probably never before had been encountered in precisely that form, in any part of the world, was successful. No wonder the crowde cheered when the surgeon emerged. In another city a boiler exploded and the man responsible for its running stuck to his post, despite the scalding steam, thereby saving a number of lives even though greatly risking his own. A canoe upset and one of the young woman occupants was drowned, attempting to save the life of a younger comrade.

None of these cases of high courage were sensationally featured. They appeared rather as a part of the normal news of the day. The circumstance set me to wondering how many readers of daily papers are in the habit of looking for that class of news. It might be a good plan to make the experiment, beginning today, of reckoning up for a week the cases that fall under your eyes, as you read, which may fairly be said to illustrate the heroic element in every day life. Skim over more lightly the columns reeking with scandal and crime and search for the golden deeds of kindness and sacrifice.

It is even better to keep the eyes wide open for tokens of heroism in human life about you. For not one-tenth of the heroic actions of the modern world gets into the average paper. Some are unreportable. But it is your business and mine not to let these various deeds right under our eyes escape our recognition and our praise. They are happening right along, and we may not have to budge from our own doorway or neighborhood in order to find them. Moreover, let us widen our idea of heroism.

Here, for example, are the undersalaried men and women who are engaged in teaching and preaching. They do not voice their complaints as loudly as do many manual laborers. They have foresworn money making and given themselves to the service of their fellowmen in two of the noblest callings. And they have their reward. It is not usually a glittering one, from the financial point of view. But the way in which the great majority stick to their ideals, give their constituents good measure pressed down and running over, and plod along with but little complaining stirs one's admiration. It is little short of heroic. It gives the lie to the frequent and flippant assertion that all modern workers are commercially minded.

Is there any finer brand of heroism than that displayed by those responsible for the welfare of others in the close relationship of the home? The constant outpouring of herself on the part of a mother, the vigilant watch and unselfish labor of a father, the patient care of an older sister, the devoted attention of a daughter to a mother, the affectionate interest of a sister in a brother or a brother in a sister—all these represent the heroic strain in our common humanity. For one cannot fulfill faithfully the numerous and often humdrum duties that go with these close relationships, unless prompted by the same high impulses of self-forgetting that lie behind all gallant feats in battle. They, as well as soldiers, find out the truth of Browning's lines:

Not once or twice in our fair island's story
The path of duty was the path of glory.

And then there is that great host of persons who carry cheerfully and silently great burdens arising from disappointment, ill treatment, the feeling of loneliness and isolation, or of great anxiety for others. Let's give these courageous, high-spirited souls a place on our roll of honor. There is no Carnegie fund to benefit them. Nevertheless they are as true heroes as those whose deeds are heralded the world over.

Joyous and inspiring, it is to form the habit of seeing the heroic element in the life of the world with which we have to do. It is there. In proportion as we see it we are ourselves ennobled.

THE PARSON.

Autumn.

In yonder field the stubble gleams, the sumac's flaming red—
A rose, belated, idly sways mid weeds and droops its head;
The orchard trees are low with spoil, the moon rides ghostly white,
And louder chirps the cricket in the early autumn night.

The cattails in the marsh are dry—at night there comes a hint
Of frost; the leaves are taking on a red and golden tint,
The river mirrors purple flags, now wilted, and the thrush
Makes sweeter music—slowly curls the smoke from burning brush.

The summer sun has browned the hills; the garden's rank with weeds;
Within the stagnant pool, stand dry and lifeless, broken reeds,
The nights are c ll; the hearth fire leaps and sheds a cheery glow—
The country roads are dull where once bright blossoms used to grow.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE

By Savoyard.

(Copyright, 1907, by E. A. Newman.)

For more than 200 years it has been no idle boast that Great Britain is the mistress of the seas. From the destruction of the "Invincible Armada," that existed because of the destruction by Spain of the Turkish armada, at Lepanto, earlier, to the wresting of the seas from Holland, a century after, British naval power constantly grew and waxed in strength, until, at the close of the Napoleonic wars, no flag was on the waters except by sufferance of the British admiralty.

This ship that made the voyage against time—the Lusitania—is an atom of the inexorable evolution of nautical England:

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
No towers along the steep;
Her march is o'er the mountain waves,
Her home is on the deep.

One of the most wonderful men I e— met was George O. Barnes of Kentucky, "the mountain evangelist." His imagination was absolutely riotous in its exuberance, and yet his mind had been trained in the schools and illumined by a wide range of all literature, ancient and modern, in several tongues, native and alien. Had he been blessed with that gift of common sense bestowed on Abraham Lincoln, I do believe he would have been the greatest American of his generation.

He was an enthusiast, a sincere Christian, and in his ministry brought more sinners to the cross of Calvary than any other American of his opportunities. His voice was harsh, his attitudes ungrateful, his mannerisms almost grotesque, but he was an orator of orators, nevertheless. His faith was that of the guileless child and simply invincible. His purity was more than womanhood. To him I am indebted for some of the peace that passeth understanding, for I am persuaded—aye, I am convinced—that it was through him I was born again. That is why my subsequent wanderings from paths of peace, and the resulting unhappiness that has come to me, will find solace and safety in the truths of that greatest of hymns, "The Ninety-and-Nine."

There were ninety-and-nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold;
But one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold;
Away on the mountain wild and bare,
Away from the gentle Shepherd's care.

But the sequel told how the shepherd went out in the winter and the storm, and after labors we cannot imagine, and suffering we never endured, and could not bear, rescued this wanderer and brought him back to life and to love.

Some twenty years ago I heard George O. Barnes deliver a lecture, the title of which, as I now recall it, was "The Vanished Scepter," and the text was the promise made Abraham that his seed should inherit and possess the earth. I have heard many of the great platform orators of our time, including Beecher and Ingersoll; I have heard many of the great forensic orators of our day, including the foremost men of every congress since and including the giants of the Forty-sixth congress, but I was never so carried away with a speech as I was that night. I felt it was inspiration, and yet I was conscious that it was the speculation of a giant intellect, captive in the throes of a giant imagination.

The gist of it was that Queen Victoria was then the direct and legitimate successor of King David, who had come down direct from Abraham. He cited the Book of Jeremiah and made things luminous that to my mind had heretofore been opaque, and then he undertook to show by Biblical story, supported by geographical nomenclature, that the English race, of which Cedric the Saxon was the distinguishing type, was come from Orient to Occident by such names as Danube, Denmark, and a thousand other cunning and shrewd citations, molding them into arguments that overpowered any receptive mind.

The orator had at instantaneous command all the speculations of profane philosophers and all the multitudinous facts of both scriptural and profane history. He gave a theory that the Ark of the Convenant and its precious treasure were carried by Jeremiah into Ireland and there hidden in the bowels of the earth, not to be resurrected until the gospel of Christ had penetrated all climes and possessed all peoples. His picture of the grandeur and power of the British empire was mangificent, and he suggested that America, in everything but temporal nationality, was a part of it.

If the man had been gifted with the voice of William J. Bryan or William C. P. Breckenridge, and had been as graceful in attitude as Edwin Booth or Edwin Adams, he might have done whatever he willed with an audience.

But to get back to mutton. This new merchant ship England has sent over here is to commerce on sea what the Pennsylvania railroad is to transportation on land. That she will get the ribbon for speed nobody doubts. How long she will hold it nobody knows. Soon, too, she will be antiquated and a very common affair. Some day this country will again be a sailor, as we were the decade of 1850-60; but you can't have your cake and eat it. No country that makes international trade a crime to be fined at the custom house will ever own the seas. In 1860 when we had free trade there was more tonnage on the ocean under the American flag than under any other flag, not excepting the English. Today there is practically no tonnage on neutral seas under our flag.

Some of our quacks say we can buy back such tonnage with subsidy. Not if we had Aladdin's lamp, or Fortunatus' purse. Trade is like water and follows lines of least resistance. As soon as we repeal our absurd and medieval navigation laws we will get the ships, and when we get the ships we will get the trade. Not before.

All this stuff about paying our $200,000,000 to have our goods carried abroad in foreign bottoms is not in the argument sought to be conveyed. The same thing applies to every human transaction where there is a buyer and a seller. If it had any sense in it, nobody ought to sell anything or buy anything.

But that is the foundation stone of every protective tariff argument, and if you buy, you lose.

No change was needed to make Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts meet the requirements of the pure food law. They have always been pure and reliable.

BIDS FOR PERIODICALS.

Library Board Will Consider Them Monday Evening.

The annual subscriptions to the different periodicals and newspapers at the public library expire Dec. 31, and the library board will take up the matter of letting the contract for supplying the same at the meeting to be held Monday evening.

There are 189 weekly, monthly and quarterly periodicals in the Duluth and West end libraries, the estimated cost of which is about $650 a year. Fifty newspapers, at an annual subscription amounting in all to $110 are on file at the reading room.

The Zenith Subscription agency is supplying the library this year. Bids are called for from all of the dealers in this class of goods, and the board makes a selection from among them.

UNION LABOR NEWS

IS NOT ALL GONE YET

Solicitor Patterson Did Not Get All Labor Day Money.

Committee Says There is Still Tidy Sum for Distribution.

Everybody connected with organized labor is talking about the loss of the receipts from the Labor day program which Robert Patterson, the solicitor, is claimed to have walked off with a couple of weeks ago. Patterson was captured at Buffalo, but has now jumped bail and gone to Canada.

Members of the Labor day committee still have some hope that Patterson will be brought back. If he is captured in Canada an attempt will be made to bring him back.

But the Labor day committee isn't entirely out of funds notwithstanding the fact that Patterson walked off with between $300 and $400. That sum only represented the receipts from the Labor day program. There are other profits, and although the loss will make a big hole in the showing made by the committee this year, it will not be as bad as it might be.

At the celebration at Fairmount park a good sum of money was taken in. The committee is not yet ready to tell just how much there will be for distribution among the trades' assembly, structural alliance and pavilion association, but these organizations will get something.

INCREASE IS CARRIED

Majority of Unions Favor Bigger Per Capita Tax.

The Returns All in and Counted by Secretary McEwen.

Out of a total of seventy-five unions which voted on the proposition, all but nine were in favor of increasing the per capita tax of the Minnesota Federation of Labor 1 cent a month, making the total per capita tax 2 cents. Some of the big unions were against the increase, however, and there were not any too many votes to spare in favor of the proposition.

The total number of votes cast was 2,077 and of these 1,434 were in favor of the increase. In order to make the proposition a law of the federation it was necessary to have two-thirds of all the votes cast in its favor. Therefore, at least 1,386 votes were needed and for awhile it looked pretty close.

Secretary W. E. McEwen of the state federation counted the votes this morning and found that there were forty-nine to spare. Practically all the smaller unions were in favor of the proposition, but several of the biggest unions were against it, as it would affect them more than the smaller ones. It was the smaller unions which saved the day for the federation.

As the vote was taken at a time of the year when the attendance at union meetings is liable to be small the vote was very light in a number of cases. For instance, the Minneapolis Carpenters' union voted ninety-nine, while they pay per capita tax on 1,200 members.

The last annual convention of the state federation last June resolved to again submit the proposition of increasing the tax to a referendum vote of the affiliated unions and this was done the latter part of August. Blanks were sent out with instructions that the votes must all be in by Sept. 15. Secretary McEwen has now received all the returns.

It is proposed to use the increase exclusively for organization purposes.

FREE INFORMATION OFFICE.

One for Italian Immigrants is Conducted in New York.

An Italian immigrant landing from the steamer at New York is not entirely friendless, and if he knows where to go, he can very easily find work in almost any part of the United States he wishes to go to. He only needs go to the labor information office for Itallans and some of his own countrymen will tell him where he can get work.

This institution is a free labor bureau, founded by an association at the head of which is A. A. Healey, and the members of which are mostly Italians. Its purpose is to aid Italian immigrants in getting employment, and to assist employers in getting efficient workers.

A letter describing the institution has been received by The Herald after one of its managers had read an article published in the issue of Sept. 22, entitled "Laborers Are Scarce."

Detailed information is given to the Italian immigrants in regard to the labor market in the different parts of the United States, this being done through employes of the information bureau, and by means of frequent publications in the Italian papers of the United States.

Since the office was founded in April, 1906, there have been supplied more than 8,000 laborers and mechanics to employers in different parts of the United States.

VERY QUIET WEEK.

Peaceful in All Unions, Says Business Agent Harney.

It has been a quiet week in labor circles. Aside from the prolonged strike of the commercial telegraphers there has been no trouble of any consequence among the organizations.

"Everything is peaceful all along the line," says Mike Harney, business agent of the structural building alliance. "Everybody is working and seems satisfied. The wages are good, and the only trouble is that there are not enough men to supply the demand."

Vice President Neuman Here.

Duluth was visited by Vice President Neuman of the International Electrical Workers' union this week. Mr. Neuman's purpose in coming to Duluth was to attend the funeral of Edward Larson, the member of the local union who died Monday. He accompanied District President Fisher back to Minneapolis yesterday, where they will both do organizing work.

A TRAGEDY OF FAR-OFF NOME

Son of Former Duluthian Devoured by Hungry Dogs.

The story of a terrible tragedy was conveyed in a letter received by H. J. Shelton, colored, of 609 East Sixth street, yesterday. The letter was from George A. Gooden of Nome, Alaska, formerly of this city.

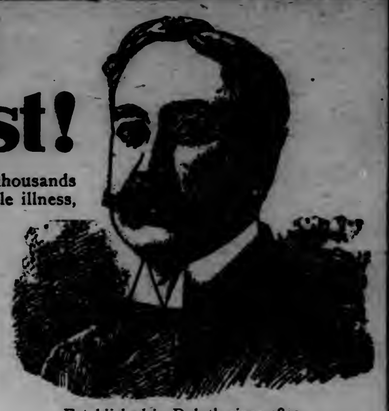

The 14-year-old son of Mr. Gooden, while carrying a message by dog team from Nome, was set upon by the hungry animals and so horribly torn that he died in his father's arms as the latter, who came to his rescue, was carrying him to his home some eight miles away.

The father had gone out to meet the lad on the road, and came upon his unconscious form in the snow, the dogs fighting over his body, which was fearfully torn and stripped of nearly every vestige of clothing.

The almost frenzied parent fought the dogs off with much difficulty, and then wrapping a blanket about the bleeding form of the lad hurried to their home some eight miles distant. The unhappy parent collapsed just as he reached home with the body of the boy, who had died while the journey home was being made. The letter of the tragedy is dated Sept. 17.

Gooden has been located in Nome about five years, and went there attracted by the hope of making a stake in the gold fields.

FATAL GASOLINE.

Second Victim Within a Week in City of Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Jacob Backlund died this morning from injuries received in a gasoline explosion last night. Her children had spilled gasoline on the floor of the back shed, and their mother not knowing it, struck a match and an explosion followed. It is the second death to result here in a week from a gasoline fire.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath.

Bad Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Drinking or Eating Can Be Instantly Stopped.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking, give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning, —that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who talk with you. "You've had onions," or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you belch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion.

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the order. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath pure, fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines, all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless.

Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

REPORTS OF CHAIRMEN

Committeemen of Boys' Dept. Have Planned Busy Season.

Opening Conference is Followed by Most Enjoyable Banquet.

Sixty of the committeemen of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. attended the opening conference of the committees at the club rooms at Sixth avenue east and Third street last evening, and the meeting including the banquet which followed, was one of the most successful ever held. Besides the members of the boys' department there was a large representation from the Y. M. C. A.

The banquet was a most enjoyable affair. President Duncan acted as toastmaster, and after explaining the object of the meeting called on chairmen of various committees for reports. Each chairman gave a short outline of the work which had been planned for te coming year.

According to Fred Cole, vice president of the association and chairman of the social committee, a busy year has been outlined for the social side of the association, including monthly socials, banquets, tournaments, home socials and special programs every Sunday, and on the holidays.

On behalf of the membership committee Palmer Bevis reported that the committee would this year try to bring the membership up to 500, which has been the aim of the association for several years. The present membership is 425, but a systematic canvas is expected to bring it up to the 500 mark. The music committee reported through Erling Mostune that an orchestra would be organized, and also a mandolin club, glee club, and these organizations will supply the music at the various social entertainments.

Lawrence Jacques reported for the athletic committee that sports will play important part in the association life this year. Several teams will be organized, including basketball and indoor baseball. Harvard Rockwell reported that the outing committee is planning many Saturday outings to be given during the year. The list of outdoor sports will include observations parties, all night trips, snowshoe and skiing parties, hare and hound and numerous other like amusements.

William Eklund, secretary of the boys' department and chairman of the Sunday club, asked for the co-operation of every member in making this department a success. He reported that the club was well organized and is planning to do big things during the coming year. The Bible committee reported through Lyman A. Taylor that its members intended to secure the international cup in the Bible study examinations this year.

Officers of the Y. M. C. A., who spoke, were General Secretary Phil Bevis, Norman MacLeod and C. A. Smith.

RAID ON GAMBLERS.

Police Arrest Five Men During Early Morning Hours.

Five men, giving their names as Rudolph Miller, Steve Gerlish, Mike Davis, Andrew and John Davich, were arrested shortly after 1 o'clock this morning by Officers Walsh, Gleason and Iverson in a rooming house at No. 8 North Sixth avenue west, charged with gambling.

The officers had received the tip that gambling was going on in the rear room of the place, and their raid was a complete surprise. They were released on $10 bail, and Davich and Miller were the only ones to appear this morning. They claim to have been only watching the game, and entered a plea of not guilty, their cases being set for this afternoon.

STRAY BULLET

Crashes Through Window of the Alger-Smith Mill.

Early workmen at the Alger-Smith mill at the foot of Garfield avenue were started shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning by a rifle ball crashing through a pane of glass in one of the lower windows and embedding itself deep in the woodwork of the interior of the mill.

No one heard the report of a shot, but it is thought that the bullet came from the rifle of some hunter on the hills near the mill. The case was reported to the police, but investigation developed nothing.

Some of the workmen were inclined at first to think that some one with a grievance was taking an early morning shot at them, but this idea was scouted by the police as not at all probable.

CASURY ACTS QUEERLY.

Does Several Sensational Stunts in Proctor and is Arrested.

Proctor, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The unseemly actions of James Casury, who is employed in the store of the Missabe road here, brought about his arrest yesterday and he is being detained pending an examination. He created something of a panic in the White City by falling in a fit and when an effort was made to relieve him he turned upon those giving aid and tried to tear things generally to pieces in the White City. Not being satisfied as to whether he is insane the authorities will detain him a few days to make a further examination.

TO RAISE PRICE OF BOARD.

Boarding Mistresses of West Springfield, Mass. to Form Union.

West Springfield, Mass., Oct. 5.—The boarding mistresses of this town have decided to call a meeting for Monday night to form a Boarding Mistresses' union, the occasion being the greater cost of living and the higher rents demanded. Some have already raised the price of board and room, and in order that the price may be made general, the union will be formed.

In this town the boarding house business is a thriving one on account of the number of men who work in the Boston & Albany shops.

SPORTS of the WEEK

A General Review of Sporting Events of the Week

by "Mac"

Baseball Is "It."

If anybody had a doubt as to what branch of sports holds the highest place in the hearts of the American people, he couldn't live through the past week and not have those doubts dispelled.

President Roosevelt's trip down the Mississippi, the condition of the stock market, international complications, nor anything else didn't have a grain of interest for the vast majority of the American public. Baseball was the one word most used and the one subject most discussed. The fate of the Philadelphia team was of far more importance to the entire country than that of Walter Wellman's balloon. Whether Detroit had won or lost contained more of immediate interest than whether Canadian Pacific had gone up or down.

The papers may pass by a murder without an extra edition, but not a game in the American league during the past week. The country was baseball mad. Men, women and children, the toiler in the streets and the banker in his guilded office were all on one level.

It was a great race. The West is happy. The West cut the big figure in the race. Philadelphia fought a good fight and deserves all honors. Hughie Jennings took a mediocre team and made it something to be wondered at. Fielder Jones and his crowd were shoved far into the rear by their stronger opponents, but Chicago is complacent in the sure possession of at least one pennant.

Baseball is not losing its popularity. Every city, village and hamlet in the

It Was a Great Race.

United States had an interest in the American league race. Thousands of dollars were won and lost on every game, but the winners looked for more and the losers hoped for a chance to retrieve.

Now comes the world's championship games. The country cannot settle down yet. Not until it is decided who will flaunt the banner of baseball supremacy in the entire country, will every man be able to give his full attention to the business in hand. Not until the question of supremacy between the National and American leagues has been decided, will politics, war or the stock market cut any great figure in the public press and the public mind. Once those battles are over, we may turn back to the every day cares of life for a few more months, until the baseball bug comes out of his winter quarters for another session.

Fargo and Baseball.

Fargo is real affable on this baseball league proposition. The baseball power or what would like to be the power, the spokesman of the Fargo

No Has-beens or Soaks.

Forum murmurs thuswise in a recent issue:

"The Forum has contended for years that the best proposition for Fargo would be a league to include towns in this state and the other side of the river in Minnesota—an eight-club league, where the circuit would be compact, the salary limit low, the players young and ambitious, not has-beens and soaks."

Which means that the Fargo man believes the Northern league was always one of the "has-beens and soaks" and that with amateur baseball, or the next best thing, the cravings of the Fargo fans for the national game would be satisfied in full and plenty.

Well if "has-beens and soaks" can play ball like some of the teams, which furnished good baseball to the fans of this Northern league for a number of years, one may well wonder what a crowd of sober men, of a class willing to accept a monthly team salary of $1,200 would do. The Fargo enthusiast is unduly pessimistic. Why condemn all for the failings of the one or the few? It's safe to say that if the new league is a go next year, Fargo will be right in line. There are too many good fans in Fargo to stand for a season of inactivity such as the North Dakota town experienced during the past year.

Mud Slinging Rivalry.

With the season of the Northern-Copper Country league gone and forgotten, all eyes on the fight in the big league, and every genuine baseball fan, forgetting little scraps in his own organization to watch the big struggle occupying the center of the stage, the Virginia and Hibbing papers are having a merry war on the baseball question. Hibbing claims the championship of the Northwest in independent baseball. Virginia says nay, and charges and counter-charges, contentions and refutations are flying back and forth as fast as the media of communication can carry them.

If they'd stick to baseball, it would be all right. But not so. Because Hibbing had a better team, the Hibbing fans, speaking through the Mesaba Ore, are pleased to say that Hibbing is a better town. And likewise Virginia, contending that it had the better team, is a better town than Hibbing. Baseball has been almost lost sight of in the discussion of the more momentous question of the relative merits of Hibbing and Virginia as municipalities.

Baseball is all very well. But when rivalry merges into acrimonius warfare, productive of mud-slinging and a descent to groveling in mire for something to hurl, somebody ought to call a halt. People who live in Hibbing are satisfied that Hibbing is the best town on the face of the earth. Virginia fans are satisfied of the same fact in regard to their own town. Outsiders are willing to admit that they are both pretty lively little burgs. But it looks very much as if the manner in which baseball was overdone in the two towns this year will bring no good to either, if it attempted again.

Glass Has Retired.

Dr. Glass has retired from baseball in this section of the country.

So he announces in a letter to The Herald. He is open to no offer of position connected with baseball, will have nothing more to do with the game on the Northern circuit and has retired, once and for all.

After Glass's failings are sifted out, Duluth fans can still find something which commends the Lake Linden man. He did the best he could. The players howled at times because he didn't make suspensions, or he did make suspensions, and the fans howled at times because of sundry actions which didn't suit them or improve the chances of their team.

But Doc had a hard job on his hands. The league didn't have altogether smooth sailing. There were times when to be president of the Northern-Copper Country league was a little worse than being executive officer of any association one could form in imagination. Umpires quit with shocking frequency and irregularity. There were more jobs for umpires in the league during the year than there were umpires. The president was compelled to use the big stick at times to subdue unruly players and therefore incurred the displeasure of the manager holding the offending player. But Glass got away very creditably with the job. He pulled the league through a season, which many thought woud have a hole somewhere about the middle, through which the organization would drop. Glass staid by it in its worst days, and any credit or honor that may come to him through a faithful performance of his duties, is cheerfully given by the fans, who are willing to give a man credit for doing the best he can.

Gans' Retirement.

Following the precedent established by Jim Jeffries, Joe Gans has retired. That is, he has announced his retirement. About every two weeks or so, some dub fighter, who thinks he has some class about him, will come forward and proclaim to the skies that Gans must come out of his shell and fight. If Joseph sticks to his decision as well as Jeffries has, well and good. But if he comes out and fights, the retiring business will be made a joke.

But Gans is a wise old owl. He's been at the business too long not to take a good look around before he takes an important step. Since 1891, he's been meeting fighters, good, bad and indifferent. He has fought many a battle for the championship. It was a long time before he finally landed the coveted honors. And now that he has them, won by beating every lightweight fighter of note in the entire country, he shows becoming wisdom in stepping down and out before he loses the championship. Not that there is anybody of prominence in the ring now, who could turn the trick. But Gans isn't as young as he was once. Younger blood is bound to tell and some youngster might come along and place the negro champ in the Down and Out club. As it is, he can live and enjoy his laurels with none to question his right to hold them.

Gans, turning the honors over to George Memsic is rather a tough one on Battling Nelson, Jimmie Britt, et al. The supporters of California's native son, and the Hegewisch Battler are certain to come forward and yell that Memsic has no right to the title. He hasn't, if Gans should stay in the ring. But with Gans out of consideration, Memsic has just as much right to defend the title as Nelson or Britt. More, in fact. Nelson was beaten by Britt. Britt was decisively beaten by Gans. And Memsic put up a game fight with Gans and showed some good class against the superiority of the colored man.

The same sort of a howl went up when Jeffries turned his title over to Tommy Burns. But Tommy showed himself equal to it. And Memsic will very likely do the same. He is young, comparatively, has fought many fights and has won nearly all of them. He lost a few, but they were to heavier men, and in tough battles. Nobody would be surprised if he would successfully defend the title against all comers, and by that superiority win the right to claim the title on his own achievements.

And with Gans' retirement, the pugilistic world sees the passing of one of its greatest fighters. He is a confessed faker, but he was nevertheless one of the cleverest men who ever stepped into th ring. Under the handicap of color, he forced the pugilistic world to recognize him as the lightweight champion of the world by rigit of might. He was practically forced into faking in his younger days in order that he might earn his bread and butter, but in later years, when he had established himself in a position, where a few dollars did not score so heavily with him, he confessed his former faking, announced himself on the square, and there are none who would accuse him of shady work in his recent fights. Authorities agree that Gans was a great fighter and his retirement removes one of the powers of the ring.

A Needed Change.

When the rulemakers get together this winter let them legislate against the habit all pitchers have of grooming a new ball on the grass, says the Washington Star. Much time is consumed in the process, and few, if any slab artists, know why they go through that elaborate delay. Dozens of pitchers have been asked why they do it, and no two give the same answer. If the new ball must be manicured, why not subject the job to the boy who holds the bag and tosses out ammunition at the call of the umpire? The boy could attend to that important function and save the tired pitcher a lot of work. In advance of each game the ground keeper could cut a small bale of grass from the playing field. If there be virtue in the grass treatment the pitcher could have no kick coming. Hour after hour the boy sits beside the bag, occasionally rolling out a new ball. What could be easier for him than to break open the boxes and wipe the new spheres on his little bale of hay in full view of the pitcher? If need be the boy could expectorate on the ball before rubbing and thereby insure complete and proper treatment. The more we think of this idea the more we are convinced it would fill a long felt want. Should the pitcher find on examination that the ball had not been artistically rubbed he could toss it back and call for another. The attention of the rules committee is called to this grass business, which has been neglected too long. Now is the time to act.

Hard on the Golphers.

Safford's loss is no light one to the University of Minnesota foothall team. The choice for the All-Western last year was a nice strong link in the chain of defense offered opponents by Dr. William's squad. But against faculty regulations, there is no hope of successful conquest, and Williams must accept the inevitable and develop another center.

The man who continuously cries that athletics and studies conflict in the great universities of the country may well take notice of some of the developments in athletic circles. Every season, for every line of sport brings out cases of stars being suspended from the athletic teams for the inability to keep up with their studies. The great universities believe in athletics for the development of the students and the generation of class and college spirt. But they are primarily educational institutions, not training schools for athletes. And there is no place in them for men with whom athletics is not a side issue.

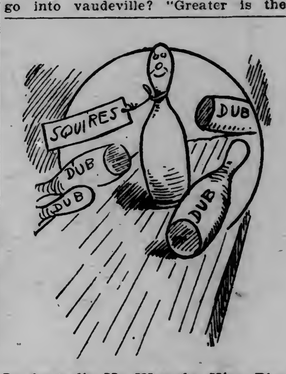

Prof.: "Do You Wish to Study or Play Football?"

But Sanford's loss will not dishearten Minnesota supporters. The Gopher university has a hard schedule. But the Gopher university has a good squad and a fine coach, and its supporters look for the championship of the West to come Minnesotaward, despite reverses and disappointments.

In Again, Out Again.

Bill Squires attempted to come back. But William failed to arrive. He started very well, but one Hibernian gentleman, Jack Sullivan by name, whom nobody will class as anything but a second rate fighter, put a few wallops too many across on the Australian and tooy down a decision.

Australia is the burg for William What's this Ezra Kendall spouted whet turning down a munificent offer to go into vaudeville? "Greater is the sportsman who bags a mess of frogs with a piece of red flannel than he who spends a life time trying to stab an elephant to death with a tooth pick, or he who waits with a repeating rifle on Broadway for a herd of buffalo."

That applies very well to Bosher Bill. In Australia, he was the king pin. He raised the big smoke wherever he went. Australians swore by him and staked their money on his prowess. William tackled the big dubs of the kangaroo country and put them away like a big cop wading through a crowd of fighting newsboys. Easy picking for William.

But that primary cause of many a man's downfall, the exaggerated ego, put William to the bad. It's the weak rung in many a ladder of fame. Had William staid on the other side of the Pacific he woud still be wearing his crown of laurels and drawing "ahs" and "ohs" from the multitude. But now he's a dead one. He got beyond his depth, when he crossed the Pacific and he might better have dropped out of sight when he took the licking from Burns. In the first place, his attempt at Squires was about as sensible as a mongrel cur to tackle a blue ribbon English bull terrier. But when he was licked he ought to have known it. Going to Australia and claiming an accident might have squared Bill and he could have walked into his own again. But as for getting walloped by Jack Twin, no more of William for the pug followers of the United States.

DELEGATE TO MEETING

Duluth Man at Wisconsin State League Gathering.

Very Probable That the Zenith City Will be Taken In.

Today, a representative of the Duluth Baseball club leaves for Milwaukee where, tomorrow, he will present the case of Duluth before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State league and make application for admittance to the circuit.

Everything looks favorable for Duluth to get into the circuit. All through the season there has been talk of one or more teams dropping out, and it is entirely probable that the league will undergo some changes at the meeting tomorrow. If there are any changes at all, it is very likely Duluth will be taken in as the Wisconsin people are just about as anxious to have Duluth in as Duluth people are to gain admittance.

The meeting was to have been held last Sunday, but at the last moment, the baseball men here were notified not to send a representative, as the gathering had been postponed. It later developed that Freeport caused the postponement, claiming that under the constitution, the annual meeting should be held in the city winning the pennant. It was pointed out to the Freeport officials that Milwaukee was more central and easier of access to the delegates, so they relented and agreed to allow the meeting to be held in Milwaukee.

By next week, as a result of tomorrow's meeting, Duluth baseball fans will have something on which to base the outlook for next year. If Duluth gains a place in the Wisconsin circuit, there will be no revival of the defunct Northern league of a couple of years ago. Should the Wisconsin league remain intact, the old Northern league will undoubtedly be resurrected, with the possibility of the Twin Cities being included.

Taken on a whole, the baseball outlook for Duluth is not at all gloomy. Either the Wisconsin league or a rejuvenated Northern circuit would furnish good sport to the fans and if good baseball is furnished, the lovers of the game have little choice as to what league furnishes it.

MIKE BROWN MATCHED WITH CURLEY ULLRICH

Chicago Boy Gets Match at Thief River Falls.

Mike Brown, the Chicago newsboy fighter, who has been in Duluth for about a month past, in an effort to get a match with Curley Ullrich of Superior, is in a fair way to accomplish his purpose. He received a letter yesterday from Thief River Falls to the effect that the sports of that burg were counting on putting on a match soon, and that Curley had consented to go on with Brown.

The Chicago boy is elated. He thinks he's about as good as anything in the welterweight class at the Head of the Lakes, and he believes that in his match with Ullrich he will show his class. The match will come off in about a week, and Brown expects to leave soon for Thief River Falls to complete the details of the arrangements and finish his training. Brown has been in training for some time past, and says he is in good shape for a hard match immediately. The two men will go ten rounds.

Cincinnati, Oct. 5.—Priceless Jewel was the only winning favorite at Latonia yesterday. The seventh race was declared off. The track was muddy.

While the Tigers were on the road en route to St. Louis yesterday, Joe Cantillon's Washington team further aided them in securing a firm grasp on the pennant by defeating the Athletics in the first game of the series of four to be played by Mack's men at Washington. Only a most improbable series of developments can take the pennant from Detroit now. Should St. Louis win three straight games from the Tigers and the Athletics succeed in getting away with both of today's games at Washington, Philadelphia would still have a slim chance for the flag.

Today's game at St. Louis may decide the race. Should Detroit win, it will be all over. No possible combination of circumstances can give Philadelphia the flag and, even if Detroit should lose today, it is not at all likely that the Browns will win both games of the double-header tomorrow.

The Detroit management and fans are already preparing for the world's series and they may well do so. Detroit practically has the pennant, and the entire baseball world will soon turn its eyes towards the Tigers and Cubs, who will fight it out for the world's championship flag.

Supporters of the American league are picking the Tigers to win. But the Cubs have many adherents. Detroit supporters claim that the fact that Chicago walked away with the pennant in the National league is no indication of strength as the National league, as a whole, is admittedly much weaker than the younger organization. Both Detroit and the Cubs have great pitchers and great hitters and the world's series will truly be a battle of the best the immense circle of baseball players contains.

Philadelphia Loses One.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Philadelphia went down in the first game with Washington yesterday, thus losing one of the four games they had counted on winning in order to overcome Detroit's lead should the latter lose the St. Louis series. Philadelphia came back in the second game however, and won so easily that it heartened Manager "Connie Mack," and he claims that the race for the pennant is still on.

"We've got a fighting chance," he said. "It lies in winning both games today and the Detroits losing their three games with St. Louis."

The game, the loss of which meant so much for the Philadelphias, went ten innings and "Idaho Wonder" Johnson was chiefly instrumental in settling the contest. He was effective with men on bases and kept the hits well scattered. Plank was touched up for ten hits, several of which came in bunches. Washington broke the ice in the sixth inning, three singles sending Delehanty across the plate. The Philadelphias tied it up in the eighth. Collins, who batted for Powers, hit to the clubhouse for three bases, but was put out at the plate on Hartsel's grounder to Shipke. Lord hit to left, scoring Hartsel. After Shipke singled in the tenth Cross fumbled Johnson's grounder and Milan's slow hit filled the bases. Ganley hit to Davis, who did not get the ball home in time to catch Shipke. In the second game the visitors had no trouble finding "Long Tom" Hughes, while Dygert and his support put up a great defense.

FORECAST OF THE COMING FOOTBALL SEASON

Probable Formation of the Various Elevens in the Colleges of the East and the West and An Analysis of Their Strength by a Noted Expert.

By John B. Foster.

As each year brings new football material to a college it has not always been an easy task in the past to make a forecast of any great value, owing to the fact that it was out of the question to obtain much advance information in regard to the playing abilities of the freshmen candidates.

Now that the students are not allowed to participate in 'varsity games during their freshmen year, it is possible to approximate more closely the possibilities of the various elevens, although football is such an uncertain quantity that one who undertakes to make positive predictions on a season is essaying a very dangerous task.

It will not be denied that the teams of 1907 which are likely to have as members some of the players who were engaged in the scheduled games of 1906 will be better off than those which will have to look largely to the junior and sophomore classes to recruit their elevens from men who "scrubbed" last year.

The experience which was gained by Harvard, Yale and Princeton men who went through the season last fall as regulars will be worth much to them this year, not only as necessary to their individual success, but in teaching and coaching those who play with them. The many points of information which were gleaned about the proper way to handle the attack and the safest way to play the defense will be of the utmost value to every team which lines up this year for the first fall practice.

Better Football Ahead.

The very reason that some of these men will be on every eleven of importance in the United States seems to make it safe to assert that football will be better in consequence. Add to the experience of the coaches that of the players, and if good football does not result with that combination in the field then it seems out of the question to expect any good football from the elevens which are thus constituted.

It is a great advantage to have a good coach. There has been a great deal written in the past about too much coaching. The professional coach has been denounced by those who are self-appointed purists in athletics. It is difficult to comprehend wherein the professional coach is such an awful drawback when he teaches how to play properly, and if a team cannot play properly it is time wasted in playing incorrectly, even if merely for amusement without any hope of final superiority.

Some of the hypercritical individuals with strong tendencies toward anglomania point to the English system of amateur coaching as being superior to anything for proper athletic development, but they forget, or intentionally overlook the fact that there is any quantity of private tutoring by professionals in England, something of which American athletes know little, from the fact that not many of our men are possessed of the financial means to engage it.

Yale Well Equipped.

Among the Eastern varsity elevens there is not a doubt that none appears more dangerous than Yale. Not only is there any quantity of good material to be had from the eleven of 1906, in spite of the fact that the Elis lose some very excellent men, but Yale will have a chance this season to draw upon the wonderfully good freshmen material that made up the first year eleven of last season.

Hockenberger, the center of 1906, who did so well last season, will very likely be supplanted by Cooney, a Brooklyn lad, who was the freshman center last fall. Brides and Erwin, who played guard for the team in 1906, are eligible this year, but there will be plenty of competition ahead of them, as Paige, a veteran guard and tackle, will be out for the position, as well as Goebel, Andrus, and Brown, of the freshmen team of 1906. Andrus, who weighs 206 pounds and is onpe of the most active men imaginable for his avoirdupois, bids fair to beat everybody out for line place, and it wouldn't be out of sorts to predict that Goebel will make the eleven. Yale is splendidly fitted for the line this year.

Forbes, who was one of the grandest players of last season, has graduated and will be a coach this year, but Biglow is left and will captain the team, and Biglow was one of the men who became a star under the new rules. Coy, of last year's freshmen eleven, who is heralded as one of the most promising players in the United States and who, it is predicted, will some day be a Yale captain, may last the tackle position across from Biglow.

Good End Material.

Alcott, last year's end, will try for the team again this year and has every chance to make it if he is in good condition. Burch, Overall, Pigott and Howard Jones will try for the other end and they will have company in Seth Logan, who was a good freshman last year. Logan, by the way, is one of the cleanest an dmost accurate handlers of the forward pass of any man who has played under the new rules.

"Tad" Jones and Dines are almost sure to be the quarter backs and the other backs are likely to be Bomar, Berger, Wylie, Wheaton and Philbin. For that matter Coy can be used as a back if it is necessary to place him there.

The personnel of the Yale team has been gone into at some length for the reason that it is composed of excellent material and that it is likely to make a sensational record this year if one can predict anything on the form which has been shown by the players who are with the university.

At Harvard there is a good outlook for a team. Three of the regulars of 1906 will be out of the university by graduation, one of them being Kersburg, selected by many as a guard for the All-American eleven of 1906. He played a brilliant game for Harvard and more than once fairly carried the contest along by his individual effort.

Some excellent second string material is available. Perhaps it is not so showy as that of Yale, but the Cambridge enthusiasts contend that their chances to get a team on the field with more strength than that of 1906 is unquestioned. In fact Harvard learned a lot by experience last year. It took the Yale game to convince the crimson that to much attention had been given to the old style of play, and it is the general belief that the coaches will surely open the game this year and give Harvard more running formations than was the case under Reid's tuition. Still the work that was done by Reid last season was of the highest type, for he instilled into the eleven some idea of system, which had been omitted by previous coaches.

Good Man in Center.

Parker, the captain of the team, is a man of experience and will play at center, his usual position. Barney will be the substitute center, and Barney has had experience, but not much with the new game. Nourse, Dore, Plumb and Hadden are all candidates at Harvard and are promising players. Coach Crane is satisfied that all four of them will make some position on the team. Pierce, if he were eligible, would help the line greatly.

No left tackle has been mentioned, and among the new material the coach will have to find a player to fill that position. Warren and Phillipbarr are candidates for guard, and either of them with suitable tuition may make a fair season tackle. Orr, Starr, MacDonald and Kennard of last year's eleven will return, and from this material the eleven will get its ends—not so fast, perhaps, as those of some of the other universities, but very sure and keen in following the ball, which is greatly needed.

The chances are that Newhall will make the position at quarter again, although there are many who believe that he is inclined to get flustered in a hard game and not keep his team up to the mark. The only man in the 'varsity who seems to have a chance to beat him out of the position is Starr, and the prospect is good that Starr will be continued at end. Taylor, who was injured last year, will try for quarter, but unless he shows surprising improvement is not likely to make the position before another season.

For the back field there is an abundance of material. The star of the field will probably be Wendell, who was by far the most successful back who played for Harvard in 1906, and who at times really held the team together by his fine tackling. More than that, he seems altogether the best line plunger at Harvard, unless something good is shown in the new men who make their appearance for the season's work.

Tigers Lose Good Line Men.

No eleven will lose so many experienced men in the line at Princeton. Cooney and Herring, the tackles, have graduated, Hoagland is gone from the end and Stannard and H. Dillon, the guards, have played their last game with the Tigers. It is by far the cleanest sweep that any eleven has received for the coming season. Yet the orange and black is happy, and the students say they will have an eleven which will be fully up to the standard of that of preceding seasons. Wister, who was one of the greatest ends of last fall, will play with the team this year, and Phillips will be back for center.

Behind the line Princeton will have much the same players as were members of the team in 1906. "Eddie" Dillon will direct the team from the quarterback, and he is one of the very best quarterbacks under the new rules, while, while Harlan, McCormick and Rulon-Miller will be backs. McCormick is one of the most popular football players who was on the gridiron in 1906. He is a beautiful line plunger, and when he had opportunity to show what he could do made good gains for his team. Unfortunately there is less necessity for line plunging now than there was in the past, and McCormick shows at his best when his team has its distance to make by a gain of two or three yards.

W. Roper, who coached the team in 1906, will be at the head of affairs this year. He was one of the few coaches who realized quickly the opportunities under the new rules and instructed his men t otake all the advantage of them possible.

Who the new men will be is a question. There is a lot of good football material going to Princeton, but most of it will not be available until another season. The freshman class will have some excellent men from the preparatory schools and after they have been with the Tigers for a year they will be eligible for the team of 1908.

Cooney, who is one of the most popular players in the history of Princeton football, and who represented the university in the line as well as any man who has played for the orange and black in recent years, will go to Princeton this year to assist in coaching the team, and his aid should do much to tur nout a good eleven to meet Yale in the final test of the year between these universities. The game between them this year will take place in New Haven.

Excellent Men at "Pennsy."

Pennsylvania is likely to have a smashing good eleven this season. The Quakers lose but two men from their team of 1906. They are Leyine, a good end—in fact, Pennsylvania's best end for some time—and Lawrence, the quarter back. The red and blue made slow progress in football last year. It played a freaky sort of game. One afternoon the supporters of the eleven would consider that they had as good as any team in the United States, and another afternoon they were ready to condemn every man playing.

At the close of the season in the game against Cornell the Quakers showed more skill and better work than they had in any contest during the year, and fairly outplayed the Cornell eleven, which had been a fine organization from the beginning of autumn. And by the way the Quakers were saved toward the close of the season because they found a man who could play quarterback. All the fall they had been embarrassed because they had nobody who could direct the team properly. When Lawrence was finally tried on the eleven, although he was light and was of not much assistance to the players other than to pass the ball and direct the plays, he made such a difference in the team that it jumped from a mediocre organization to one of the best in the United States. Which merely goes to show that elevens must have good quarterbacks under the new rules if they expect to be successful.

Draper and Gaston will be tackles for this year's team, Gallagher and Ziegler guards, with Dwyer center, and Folwell, Green and Hollenback behind the line. The latter, by the way, developed in the last three games in which he took part into one of the best fullbacks in the United States. It is a question whether there was anybody at the close of the year who was superior to him.

Quarterback of Promise.

There is little doubt that Rogan, the former Exeter quarterback, will make the team this year and he will take the place left vacant by the graduation of Lawrence. He is one of the best quarterbacks coming from the preparatory schools, and there is much reason to believe that the COY, FULLBACK, TACKLE and PUNTER.

This player was a freshman last season and the wonder of the year in a first year eleven. He is expected to make a great man for the Yale 'varsity eleven this fall.

Quakers will jump to the front at the very beginning of the season and play their way quite to the top of the ladder.

None Appears More Dangerous Than Yale Among the Eastern Varsity Elevens---Tigers Will Lose Good Line Men---Minnesota's Team Will Be Strong.

It is a misfortune for Pennsylvania that the red and blue has no game with Harvard this fall, for here is one chance where it seems likely that the Quakers would surely beat their adversaries.

Rogan is an excellent drop kicker and he plays football much as Stevenson did, without the unnecessary rowdyism and roughness which was characteristic of Stevenson. It is a wonder that young man lasted so long as he did at Pennsylvania and a greater wonder that referees were so lenient with him. He was a splendid football player, but wholly without self-control.

Rogan has drop kicked a goal form the fifty-five-yard line, which makes it appear that Pennsylvania will have a valuable man in that respect, and a dangerous quantity whenever there is a chance to make a point by a long kick from a well protected point.

Pauxtis and Miller, of the freshmen eleven, are good enough to get into the 'varsity this year. It will be a wonder if they do not crowd Scarlett off the team, although Scarlett is likely to remain as long as he shows any speed, for he proved a good man for the Quakers when they were sadly in need of good men.

Macklin, who played at St. Paul's, will be eligible for the team this year, and the coaches will certainly try to provide for him in some way. He is a tackle and an excellent player. He is fully as fast as Gaston and perhaps a better all around player. So it will be seen that the coaches at Pennsylvania will have their troubles to use all their good material this year. They have so much of it that the university undergraduates will be expecting success from the start, and they have reason to do so.

Cornell Well Equipped.

Cornell is another team which will probably make a good showing this year. Of course, there may be some hitch, as it is the beginning of a new system of coaching at Ithaca. Glen Warner has left to go with the Indians, and the Cornellians will try the graduate system of coaching, a plan something similar to that of Yale, but perhaps for the first year, with less system than is in evidence at Yale, where coaching is better worked out than it has been at any university in the United States.

Halliday and Schoellkopf will have charge of the players. The most serious loss on the Cornell eleven will be Newman at center. He was one of the best players in the United States last year. For that matter, not only last year but the year before. He is not a large man, but there was not a center on an opposing eleven who could handle him.

Van Orman and Babcock, the ends, will be with the team; Thompson, the excellent guard, is eligible another year, and both of the tackles, Cook and Brinton, will be members. Jamieson will probably be the quarter back again, and it is very likely that Walder will be a better fullback this year than he was last. The "Big Red Team" has a fine outlook and is almost certain to be one of the 1907 successes.

Among the smaller colleges much improvement may be expected from Amherst, Dartmouth, Williams, Brown, Syracuse, Pennsylvania State and one or two others in the East. The reason for anticipated improvement is that all these colleges did well last year, and their material for the coming season is said to be up to the standard of last fall.

Syracuse made an enviable record in 1906. Although the team got away with a bad start, it continued to improve with good coaching, and because the players made an effort to bring their best to the surface, until it finished the year by beating West Point, no mean achievement, as West Point was favored with a good eleven in 1906.

Brown will have a team which will be hard to beat. Many of the old players are retained and the eleven is likely to have good backs and ends, which are so dians, of course, will put out a fairly good eleven, for they always do. There are no eligibility rules to govern them and the members can play on the eleven as long as they remain in school.

Outlook in the West.

Indiana promises to be a rich field for good football this year. Notre Dame, Wabash, Purdue and Indiana university will have some excellent material to work upon. Many of the best of the players of last year will be back to all four of the colleges. There is an excellent spirit among the Indiana institutions and the games among them are fought with splendid interest throughout the season.

Just what kind of a team Yost will be able to turn out at Michigan is a question. He has some of his old men left and promise of good material. There is no doubt that the appearance of the Michigan had nothing. In fact, the team wasn't up in some of the primary essentials of the game.

There was much excuse, however, as the eleven was crippled by injuries and because of faculty rules. The main point about Yost's team was that it had nothing new to show the East and it was the general opinion that the best team which Michigan had ever put out would be vanquished by the stronger elevens of the largest Eastern universities.

Football practice at Michigan will begin early. Yost is of the opinion that his team will be hard to beat. Most of his promising men, Schultz, Rheinschild, Casey, Joyce, Miller, Washmund, Flanagan and Douglas, passed under their final examinations and are at work.

Yost is particularly anxious to beat Pennsylvania and retrieve the prestige lost at Philadelphia last season, and with this object in view will strive to get his charges in the best possible shape.

"Our schedule this fall calls for seven games," said Yost, "and this will aid us materially in developing the team, as it will give all the men more experience. Most of the men are doing individual work this summer."

Prince at Cornell.

Cornell will have a royal football player among her candidates this fall. Prince Marayah, son of the Maharaja of the Coch Behar State, one of the big provinces of the Indian empire, and a grandson of the late Queen Victoria, will enter the Cornell College of Agriculture next fall, taking the regular course. The young prince is 19 years old and an all-round athlete. He has won great renown at cricket and has a record as a football player of Indian kind, which is very promising. The Indian game is not quite the American, but skill and strength, both of which the prince possesses, are the prime requisites in both.

In the South there is every reason to believe that the game will make more headway this year than it did last. Vanderbilt will make another effort to put out a strong team, and although five men have been lost from what was one of the best elevens of 1906, the coach is confident that he will be able to place a strong outfit on the gridiron by the first of October.

The Virginia elevens all promise well, and surer and more accurate football is likely to be played now that the teams

NORTON, QUARTER-BACK.

In the Army-Navy game the skill and generalship displayed by Norton, the Navy quarterback, were the features of one of the most interesting of the season's games. No eleven was handled with more skill than that displayed by the Annapolis man.

have a better conception of the new rules and are becoming acquainted with the fact that the style of football has changed greatly from that which was in vogue two years ago.

Chicago is reported to have good material and Stagg is likely to place a fine eleven on the field. Minnesota will be strong and Illinois promises to show some improvement, even if the team is not quite up to the standard of some of the others.

If the Western coaches will only give up the notion that their teams are to be worked to any extent in mass plays and devote their time to perfecting the open game there willleb esome of the grandest football throughout that section this fall that has ever been witnessed in the United States. There is question that the material is available. It is simply an issue of bringing out its possibilities in the most satsfactory manner.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia and Hibbing high school football teams meet today on Roosevelt Athletic field here, in the first game of the season on the range. GOTCH WILL MEET GOOD MEN IN DULUTH

FRANK GOTCH IN ACTION.
(On the Right.)

If Frank Gotch gets away from Duluth without dropping one or two of those $100 purses he is willing to turn over if he fails to throw any local wrestler in fifteen minutes, he will be extremely fortunate and must show that he has championship class. For Duluth is to send some good wrestlers against him.

McCauley, the St. Paul heavyweight, will be in Duluth to take a chance at the champion. McCauley is no mean mat artist. In his own little community down state, he has something of a reputation for putting men to the mat and he is expected to give Gotch some work. He is big, strong, knows the game and should be able to stay fifteen minutes.

Just to take a whirl at the king pin of American wrestlers, Martin Johnson, the fireman-wrestler, will also come out of retirement. Johnson hasn't done any wrestling in public for a long time, but he has been working privately right along, keeping in shape and not allowing himself to get rusty on the fine points of the game.

Local sports will probably place more faith in Johnson's ability to stay with the champion fifteen minutes than any other local man, who would step on the mat. In local wrestling circles, Johnson holds a top notch. Before any of the other local celebrities came to the front, he was throwing some classy grapples and he did it right along until he quit the game. His friends believe he can give Gotch some work and Martin modestly admits that he believes he will cut some figure on the mat.

Emil Peterson is another local man, who will probably get a go with Gotch. Peterson, holder of the championship of the city, is the best of the local men, who have come out in recent years. He has been in training all summer and is fit for a hard battle.

Gotch's visit to Duluth recalls the Zenith City's part in the bidding for the big Gotch-Hackenschmidt match, which will be pulled off in Kansas City next spring. Duluth made a strong pull for the bout. Manager Longstreet of the opera house offered a purse of $15,000 to the wrestlers, but Kansas City came forward with $20,000, and Duluth couldn't see the raise.

SCHEDULE IS UNSETTLED

Chippewa Falls Will Not Play the Centrals Here.

Probable That Trip to Ironwood Will Not be Made.

The opponents of Coach Colton's Central highs for next Saturday are still a matter of doubt. Negotiations are off with Chippewa Falls, as the necessary arrangements for bringing the Wisconsin squad here could not be made. Now, Aitkin and St. Cloud are possibilities, and one of them will undoubtedly be secured to play here. Both schools are said to have unusually strong team, and either would probably make a worthy opponent for the local school.

North High of Minneapolis has written the management of the Duluth team, but no game will be arranged. The only date open on both sides is next Saturday and North High could not very well be accommodated on that date, as the Minneapolis Centrals are here the following Saturday, and the two stiff games coming so close together, were considered too much for the boys to handle successfully.

The game at Ironwood, which was originally scheduled for next Saturday, is still a matter of doubt. There are some disagreements over terms, and it is very likely the trip will not be taken. The loss of the date will not materially injury the Duluth schedule, however, as there are any number of strong teams througnout the state willing to tackle the local boys.

Today Ashland is at Athletic park to line up against the Centrals. After a week of stenuous work, Coton put the boys through signal practice yesterday, lectured them a little, and did not work them very hard in any way, so that they would be fresh for the game today. Cook and Cummings did a little punting and Crawford was tried at place kicking, with indifferent results.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Fall Retail Trade is All That Could be Desired.

New York, Oct. 5.—Dun & Co.'s weekly Review of Trade says: Interest centers in fall retail trade, and results are all that could be desired. There is no sectional difference on this point, all leading cities reporting a liberal distribution of wearing apparel. Supplementary orders are coming to wholesale and jobbing houses, and satisfactory results with autumn goods encourage manufacturers to extend preparations for next season. Collections have also improved. Among the manufacturers the most notable increase in orders is reported by New England shoe shops, while there is no idleness at cotton mills, and the reduction of steel output is not significant. In some lines there is a conservatism that eliminates much of the customary speculative business. No change has occurred in iron and steel industry. Few sales of pig iron are recorded, and some sections of the market are slightly weaker, but as a rule steadiness prevails, and Bessemer is $8.50 per ton higher than a year ago. Export trade has broadened in several sections, a large tonnage of wire going to Canada. Ore comes down the lakes in larger quantities than expected, some accumulation being noticed on the docks. In metals the proportion of prominence has been taken by tin which declined severely on reports of increased supply. A better feeling exists in primary markets for cotton goods, while mills are producing as rapidly as possible. Jobbers at the West continue to transact a large business, although the money market is still a restraining feature. Fewer goods are sacrificed by second hand, removing the most depressing influence.

Narrow print cloths are sold well up to next spring, while white goods are taken less freely. Developments are slow in woolens, clothiers reporting little progress in locating the trend of demand which defers orders. There is idle machinery awaiting something definite. Better reports are received from worsted manufacturers, and duplicate orders are expected to command high prices.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

REAL ESTATE MARKET IN ACTIVE CONDITION

Good Demand for City Property and Many Deals Are Being Negotiated—Soo Road Takes Over More Property for Terminal Purposes at Foot of Eighth Avenue West—Local Parties Plan Big Cold Storage Plant at Seventh Avenue West and Railroad Street—East End Property Shows Big Advance in Value.

Stronger inquiry is noted in the local real estate market during the past week and there have been a number of trades in progress, although few have yet reached the closing point. It is expected that several large deals will be consummated by the middle or the end of the coming week. These deals involve both business and residence property. The local real estate men are feeling quite well satisfied with the present conditions, although, like any other class of business men, they would be perfectly willing to see the market even more active. Buyers in many instances, lately, have been reluctant about having publicity given to their purchase, and as they do not intend to place the deeds on record for a time the impression is often given that there are few sales being made when in reality there is pretty fair movement right along. One deed was recorded this week transferring a large centrally located property, for which the deal was made many months ago. A strong demands for loans is reported, and a considerable amount of money has been placed in the past few weeks at 6 per cent, which seems to be the "going rate." The loan agents claim that very little outside money is being placed in Duluth loans at the present time, that it is mostly local money that is being furnished. One prominent real estate and loan agent says that during the past several months three-fourths of the money he has placed was Duluth capital. He comments on the fact that this is a good thing for the reason that the interest will remain here instead of being paid outside capitalists.

The improvement movement continues to be one of the most favorable signs of the city's prosperity. The announcement made this week by The Herald, that four prominent Duluth citizens will erect a large seven-story cold storage and general storage plant at the corner of Seventh avenue west and Railroad street, which will probably cost $200,000 or over, has been received with a great deal of interest, for the need of such an institution has long been apparent as the city grows. The plans and specifications for the new plant will be in the hands of the contractors very shortly, and the first section will be constructed this winter to be ready for business next summer. It is the intention of those interested to make the plant second to none in the country.

Three building permits of importance have been taken out within the last week. Luther Mendenhall has secured permits for three brick and stone dwellings on the site of the old Craggencroft school building, which will cost $24,000. Watterworth & Fee have a permit for their new business block on Second street, adjoining the Y. M. C. A. building, and which will cost $22,000. The board of education has a permit for repairs to the Franklin school, to cost $12,000.

Several deeds transferring property on both sides of the slip at the foot of Eighth avenue west, to the Bay Front company, a holding corporation connected with the Soo Railway company, were recorded this week. These deeds are additional confirmation of The Herald's announcement several weeks ago that the Soo company intends to establish terminals on the bay front at the foot of Eighth avenue west, where it will erect a large freight depot.

A deed transferring from John Holleran to J. H. Erickson, the title to 100 feet of property on the east side of St. Croix avenue, below Railroad street, for $17,000, was filed this week. The deal was really closed several months ago.

An East end sale of considerable interest that was closed this week was the transfer from M. Zalk to Ida E. De Voist of the 100-foot property at the northeast corner of Twelfth avenue east and Superior street, for $8,000. Mr. Zalk bought this corner, one of the most desirable properties in the East end district, about a year ago, for $6,250. An $1,800 profit on this corner, within a year's time, is claimed to have much significance, as it tends to show the advancing realty values of good building sites in the East end.

The Duluth Home company has sold Charles Schober a 25-foot property on the upper side of First street, near Mesaba avenue, for $1,900. The property is described as the east half of lot 121, block 23, Third division.

E. Rein has purchased from the Dixon Land company for $1,700 a lot on the upper side of London road, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues east. It is understood that the purchase has been made with a view of improvement.

Hattie P. Lawson has sold C. A. Britts a residence property on the upper side of Fifth street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues west, for $2,500.

Effie T. Palmer has purchased from the Lakeside Land company a corner lot at the junction of Grand avenue and Occidental boulevard, Lester Park. The consideration was $900.

G. S. Green has sold George V. Fifer a residence property at the southwest corner of Fifth street and Eighth avenue east, for $2,300.

Herman Olson has purchased from Swan Carlson a residence property on Chestnut streeet, near Pacific avenue, The consideration was $2,000.

SAYS IT IS CONSPIRACY TO EXTORT BLACKMAIL

Alexander Gurtin Claims to be Victim of Deep Plot.

Says That Guardian is Using Girl to Blackmail Him.

Claiming that an attempt is being made to blackmail him, Alexander J. Gurtin of this city, who has been sued for $10,000 damages by the guardian of Matilda Mary Hinricks, a 15-year-old girl, has filed an answer to the complaint. In his answer Mr. Gurtin makes charges against the girl and her sister, which are as sensational as those made against him by the girl. He also pays some attention to William Rock, the guardian of Miss Hinricks, and accuses him of being a party to the alleged blackmailing scheme.

Mr. Gurtin claims that, on his information and belief, "William Rock and a woman who at times calls herself Miss Hinricks and, at times Mrs. Harrie, and another woman generally called Tillie Hinricks, entered into a conspiracy prior to the commencement of this action for the purpose of blackmailing the defendant."

The defendant claims that Tillie Hinricks is 17 or 18 years old instead of 15 years, as she claims, and that the sister is considerably older. Mr. Rock and Miss Hinricks or Mrs. Harrie, are charged with making a tool of the younger girl "in their nefarious scheme of blackmail to pull chestnuts out of the fire for the said Rock."

Mr. Gurtin claims that Mr. Rock and the older sister occupy rooms on Second avenue west, between Superior and First streets, and pass as man and wife; that Mr. Rock, although he claims to be a diamond drill operator, has for months past been a sort of runner for the two women and has, it is alleged, made propositions to other men about town to visit the women.

It is also charged by Mr. Gurtin that Mr. Rock imported the two women purposely for a nefarious trade and that they are of bad character.

Mr. Gurtin alleges that Tillie Hinricks, "instead of being a young and unsophisticated girl, is a graduate in crime," and charges that not long ago she remained over night in Superior with a Duluth hack driver and has on other occasions occupied rooms with a man on Superior street.

It is alleged in the answer that Mr Rock and the two women attempted to blackmail another Duluth resident out of $200 within the last six months, threatening to accuse him of having illicit relations with Tillie Hinricks. This man, whose name is not stated, is claimed to have refused to give up any money, but reported the matter to the police, and the two women, it is said, were cautioned that "another attempt of that kind would be a signal for them being ordered out of town."

The answer was filed by Davis & Hollister.

When the complaint was filed the other day, with it was a motion for an order for the defendant to make his answer more definite by stating the names of certain persons referred to in the same. It is understood that the motion referred to the "hack driver" and the certain other "resident in Duluth," whom Mr. Gurtin claims Mr. Rock and Tillie Hinricks and her sister attempted to blackmail.

The motion was denied by the court this morning.

MAKING JOURNEY AROUND THE WORLD ON A WAGER

Finnish Sailor in Duluth on Way to San Francisco.

One of Party of Four Who Started in 1904.

With three years and six months to his credit as a globe trotter, during which period he has traveled 37,000 miles, met with numerous adventures through which he has passed safe and sound, Frans Emanuel Kiekas, a Finnish ex-sailor and Spanish-American war veteran, walked into Duluth last evening, where he will rest for a few days and then continue his remarkable journey against time, and for a big wager, with San Francisco as his goal.

Kiekas was one of a party of four men, two Germans and two of his own countrymen, who left San Francisco on a wager entered into by two men of wealth on Feb. 15, 1904.

If he reaches that city before the five years allowed by the terms of the wagers expires, he will receive $5,000 in cold cash and a deed of 160 acres of good land in Southern California.

The nature of the wager leading up to his attempt to make a tour of the world in the time required is this. Two men of wealth met in Frisco one evening, and the conversation turned to globe trotters, and the time required to make the journey. One of them, a wealthy German, was of the opinion that the German race, by reason of their sturdy health and staying qualities in feats of endurance, could outclass any other nationality in a tour of the world, all things considered equal.

The other man, a Finn, disagreed, and the matter finally developed in each laying a wager of $5,000 and 160 acres of land that men of their nationality could win the race.

Started "Broke."

Two sturdy Germans were selected by the German, and the Finlander chose two of his own countrymen. The men started from San Francisco on the date mentioned, with less than $2 in their pockets, and their experiences would fill volumes.

One of the Finns and the two Germans dropped out of the race in Alaska, but the subject of this story, Kiekas, kept on, suffering numerous hardships, meeting with numerous adventures, but finally arriving thus far on his journey, far ahead of the schedule.

He has now 2,100 miles to complete his trip, through a practically easy country to travel, and will undoubtedly make the journey and reach the goal in time to receive the reward.

The men went to Alaska by boat, thence to China, on to Japan, across to Russian Corea, and through the bleak Siberian country.

Nights spent in the open country, even lying down in the snow, with only the sky over his head for a roof, did not daunt the hardy Finlander, who is today the guest of Duluth.

He was by nature endowed with remarkable health and vigor, and it stood him in good stead. His life before the mast upon an American man-of-war made him seasoned to hardships, and he kept pluckily on.

In Japan he was taken as a spy and held until Admiral Togo set him at liberty. One day as he was seated among the soldiers of the barracks where he was held as a prisoner, the men were having much sport at his attempts to eat rice with a pair of chop sticks, according to the custom of the country.

The admiral's attention was called to Kiekas by the laughter of the men, and making inquiry he investigated the case. Kiekas was set at liberty after an investigation of his credentials had been made.

After numerous adventures and hardships he reached the Atlantic coast and stil had intact his valuable papers showing his arrival at and departure from different places neccssary for him to secure the coveted prize once his remarkable journey is over.

At Harrisburg, Penn., he expressed a satchel with most of his papers on to San Francisco, and the receipt from the express company shows the value set on the precious documents as $5,000. To arrive with them safe and sound at San Francisco means more than that to the rugged Finlander making this remarkable journey.

Saw Royalty.

Kiekas has met many of the crowned heads of Europe and carries numerous souvenirs of his travels. The czar of Russia gave him twenty-five rupies, and King Edward donated three pounds to help him on his journey. He saw the pope and requested an interview, but states that the great man was too busy to see him at the time and he had to continue on his journey. He carries a valuable revolver presented to him by the king of Sweden.

Kiekas is a man of medium height, strongly built and speaks fairly good English. He was at the city hall today and obtained from the mayor and other officials the necessary papers to permit him to continue his journey and prove his presence here on this date when he arrives at San Francisco.

He wears a large button with the picture of McKinley thereon on his coat and among the most valued souvenirs he has with him is a card showing a visit to the White House and signature of President Roosevelt.

Kiekas was given the privilege of eating at the White House and shows letters to that effect with much pride. He is a loyal citizen and proud of the stars and stripes under which he served with credit during the late war. Kiekas is a single man, but admits that if he reaches the goal of his ambitions on time, as he seems sure to do, he will take unto himself a wife, and will settle down to enjoy the fine farm and the money he has so well earned.

OLD DOBBIN GOT PRIZE.

Farmer Hitches Family "Hoss" at Fair and Judges Give Ribbon.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 5.—William Smith, a farmer, drove to Londonberry to attend the Grange fair. Arriving on the fair grounds, Smith could find no suitable place to hitch his horse, so he unharnessed the animal and put him in a vacant stall in one of the sheds. When he got ready to return home, Mr. Smith found that the judges, thinking his horse was on exhibition, had awarded a premium and had fastened a blue ribbon in the animal's halter.

SERIES OF INSTITUTES

Sunday School Workers Will be in Duluth Next Week.

Sent Out by State Association to Better the Methods.

Some new ideas regarding the best methods to follow in Sunday school work will be given the numerous Sunday school workers of Duluth next week by Prof. A. M. Locker of St. Paul, and Miss Grace Longfellow of Minneapolis, at a series of institutes conducted at different churches of Duluth.

The institutes will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings. Monday afternoon and evening the workers at West Duluth will be give their chance and the institute will be conducted at the West Duluth Baptist church. On Tuesday there will be meetings at the West end at the Norwegian Methodist church, Twenty-first avenue and First street.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening the institute will be held at Trinity Pro-Cathedral at Twentieth avenue east and Superior street. The last day the workers will conduct meetings at the Y. W. C. A. in the afternoon, and in the evening at the First Presbyterian church.

The afternoon sessions will be especially interesting to teachers of primary and junior grades in the various Sunday schools, while the evening sessions will be of interest to all Sunday school workers. The afternoon meetings will begin about 3 o'clock, and those in the evening at about 7:30.

Prof Locker and Miss Longfellow are representatives of the Minnesota Sunday School association, the former being the association secretary and the latter the superintendent of the department of elementary grades in the Sunday school work. They are engaged in the institute work practically all the time.

The state association is a division of the International Sunday School association. It is the plan to eventually have each county and large city organized into sub-divisions of the state association. The object of the state association is to further the matter of better methods in the Sunday school work and to further the work generally.

The association is supported by voluntary contributions and by the various Sunday schools throughout the state. Each county, which is organized, is apportioned a part of the annual budget, which this years is $7,000. Of this amount Hennepin county will give $1,500, Ramsey county $800, Duluth $300, while the rest will be contributed by the remaining organizations in the state.

NATURALIZATION LAW

Will Result in Another Assistant to District Attorney Haupt.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Richard K. Campbell, chief of the bureau of naturalization, has returned from the West, where he has been arranging to carry out provisions of the new law relative to aliens.

A Northwestern naturalization district has been established, covering the four states of Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and North Dakota. The central point will be at St. Paul, although the United States district attorneys in each state will look after the business pertaining to their own districts.

An assistant to United States District Attorney Haut will soon be named, to have special charge of the naturalization headquarters in St. Paul, and it is strongly intimated that Attorney John C. Sweet of Minneapolis is to be the man selected.

In addition there are to be several examiners appointed, who are in classified civil service. These examiners will simply act as agents to go out and investigate any cases where special attention is needed. They will be appointed as exigencies if occasion demands. While the present naturalization act was passed in June, 1906, congress failed to make a sufficient appropriation to carry it into effect.

Assistant Attorney General Alvord W. Cooley is in charge of the work in the department of justice.

WINE DINNER

At Washington Will End in the Divorce Court.

Chicago, Oct. 5—Carousals at Washington, D. C., at a popular resort where wine was served in pitchers until those present were in a state of joyous forgetfulness; flirtations in which staid married men went down before the bewitching smiles of pretty women, and other similar escapades, will form a part of the story that Winfield Scott, a descendant of Gen. Winfield Scott of Mexican war fame, will tell to Judge McEwen next week when he asks for a divorce from his wife, Eda Scott.

Scott is an official in the federal bureau of statistics in Washington, but retains his residence at Chicago, although he and his wife have resided in the capital for eight years.

His wife is well known in South side society circles.

Among the names mentioned by Scott is that of George S. Hannifford of Chicago, who, during a recent wine supper, is said to have carried Mrs. Scott in his arms while her husband was at home minding the babies.

Attorneys for Mr. Scott have filed in the superior court the depositions of several witnesses taken in Washington.

Mrs. Scott has filed a formal denial of all the charges. The trial is expected to bring out the names of several men who are prominent socially at the capitol.

Following the opening and during the morning the market turned easier with pressure to sell, owing to the fact of heavy Russian clearances. At the close, however, firmness again developed, due to the aggressiveness on the part of leading bull interest and the decline was recovered, prices at this time being unchanged from the opening or 3/4d higher than the previous close.

"Corn was steady in tone with values unchanged. Later the market advanced on local demand for La Plata cargoes and in sympathy with wheat and prices showed a gain of 1/4d."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong on Small Receipts and Higher Liverpool Prices.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The wheat market today opened strong because of small receipts in the Northwest and higher prices at Liverpool. Commission houses were the best buyers. December opened ⅜c to ¾c higher at $1.00⅜ to $1.01⅛, and sold up to $1.01⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 578 cars against 745 cars last week, and 858 cars one year ago.

The market was strong all day because of sharp advances at Minneapolis and Winnipeg, which caused the local shorts to cover in energetic fashion. The high point for December was $1.02@1⅛. The close was strong with December, 1¼c higher at $1.01⅝.

The corn market was firm in sympathy with wheat. Trading was quiet. December corn opened ⅜c higher at 58¼c and sold at 58⅝c. Local receipts were 450 cars, with 117 of contract grade.

Prices held firm because of the strength of wheat. The high point for December was 58⅝c. The close was firm with December up ½@⅝c at 58⅜@⅝c.

The oats market was strong because of the strength of wheat and the fact that local receipts were below the estimate. December oats opened ⅜c higher at 52⅜c, and sold at 52⅝c. Local receipts were 218 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. January pork was 12½@15c higher at $15.25 Lard was up 2½c at $8.75. Ribs were 2½@5c higher at 7⅝-8¼.

Chicago wheat letter: There was another good bull market in wheat which lasted practically to the close. A feature of the market was the strength in the December as compared with other months. The constant strength in the cables indicates that Europe is considerably anxious over supplies. This has been confirmed late in the week by the heavy export sales. No doubt much of the wheat sold here yesterday to go to Buffalo is destined for export. The failure of the spring wheat crop to move as expected is another bullish feature. Minneapolis had a little more than one-third of last year's receipts today. There was a remarkably strong advance in the Winnipeg market. It looks a little as if the market had reached a sort of climax in its advance the same as two weeks ago. Believe those who have profits in long wheat will make no mistake in securing them. If the news continues bullish again next week there will be plenty of chance to replace lines on a good reaction, no doubt.

Corn—Shipments from Chicago today were 476,660 bushels. Stocks cannot accumulate at this rate. The large receipts and the fine weather were against the market while the trade had much help from the strength in wheat. At best prices the market was up ½c and the close was ¼@⅝c better than yesterday.

Oats—Traders showed their independence of the corn market by forcing prices up faster than in the other pit. Local receipts were 218 cars and there is a large estimate of 426 cars for Monday.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Trading Was on Limited Scale and Close Was Easy.

Prices Receded Slightly After Appearance of Bank Statement.

New York, Oct. 5.—The tone of the opening stock market was irregular within a narrow range, some of the most conspicuous stocks selling at prices unchanged from last night. Dealings were on an insignificant scale.

Trading continued light and fluctuations much restricted. A somewhat easier tone developed after the initial dealings, but the market stiffened afterwards to below last night's prices. Northern Pacific, United States Pipe and American Steel Foundries preferred moved up a point, and the International Mercantile Marine stocks fell 1.

The market closed easy and dull. After holding firm until the appearance of the bank statement, prices receded slightly. The rapid rate of decline in the cash holdings was not regarded as encouraging to the speculative outlook. Northern Pacific had risen 1½, and Kansas City Southern, 1. St. Paul, Rock Island preferred and Hocking Valley preferred declined 1, Southern Railway, 1½, and Third avenue, 2.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was not much disposition on the part of the trading element to commit themselves to any great extent on either side today. Trading, therefore, was on a limited scale and the publication of the bank statement, which was regarded as somewhat more favorable than expected, did not stimulate activity to any great extent. We are inclined to think that a better feeling will prevail next week in view of the fact that a return flow of funds to New York is expected to result from the October disbursements, which should improve the monetary situation to a certain extent.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: People are beginning to realize that the low grade proposition of the Bingham and Ely camps will have a hard time to make both ends meet on 15-cent copper and the stocks are being sold freely. Balak is coming out fast and has broken five points. Greene-Cananea is still being sold by New York interests. The balance of the list was very dull and shows no tendency either way. Amalgamated acts well, but is so steady that there is no encouragement for anybody to buy it.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: No papers have been yet prepared in any suit of minority stockholders of the Greene-Consilidated company or dissatisfied holders of shares of the Greene-Cananea Copper company, controlling the former and the Cananea Central Copper company. Neither has it been fully decided to enter suit in connection with proposed investigation of the formation of the Greene-Cananea company and the separating from the Consolidated Copper company of the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company, which is considered a very valuable property.

The law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermeyer & Marshall of New York is at present investigating certain phases of the recent merger of the two copper companies, but it was stated yesterday by a party interested that it has not been definitely decided whether to bring legal action in connection with these affairs. The annual meeting of the Greene-Consolidated Copper company is to be held in New York next Wednesday morning, but as all but about 5 per cent of the stock has been turned in for exchange into Greene-Cananea shares, the management did not accompany the notices of the meeting sent to the minority stockholders with blank proxies.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 5.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 to 9 points and worked up to a net gain of 12 to 14 points during the middle session, as a result of very firm cables, continued support from a local bull pool and covering for over the week end. But the weather man did not show the expected frosts in the western belt and there was a good deal of realizing by smaller longs as well as some rather aggressive selling by local bears, which checked the upward movement and caused a reaction of 3 or 4 points during the middle of the morning.

Cotton futures closed steady. Closing bids: October, 10.82; November, 10.84; December, 11.01; January, 11.05; February, 11.10; March, 11.15; April, 11.19; May, 11.23; June, 11.25; July, 11.30. Spot closed quiet, 10 points higher. Middling uplands, 11.75; middling gulf, 12.00. No sales.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 5.—Close: Money on call nominal. Time loans quiet, but firm; 60 days, 6 per cent; 90 days, 6⅛ per cent; six months, 6@7 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 7 per cent. Sterling exchange, steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.80@4.85.90 for demand and at $4.82.30@4.82.40 for 60-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.82@4.82¼. Bar silver, 66c. Mexican dollars, 51¼c. Government bonds easy; railway bonds steady.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 5.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market for the week has been very uneven. Plain and common classes have been stationary. Choice drafters have been moderately active. The bulk of the trade came from Western lumbermen, who are beginning to select their usual fall quota of horses. Mules met with fair demand. During today John Walt, of Wyoming, Iowa, and John Montgomery of Oakland, Neb., came in with loads of big drafters. The Laclede Lumber company of Laclede, Idaho, and the White Pine Lumber company, selected loads of choice loggers. Low summer prices still rule.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Cattle receipts, about 400; steady; beeves, $4.10@7.30; cows, $1.50@5.40; calves, $6.00@8.35; Texans, $3.70@4.80; westerners, $4.00@6.25; stockers and feeders, $2.00@5.00. MASS. DEMOCRATS SPLIT IN STATE CONVENTION AND NOMINATE TWO TICKETS form and it was adopted by acclamation. The platform expressed opposition to private monopoly, condemnation of "unlawful rebates and discrimination" by railroads and of the attempts of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad of Connecticut to obtain sole and absolute sway over the transportation of New England, and declared that tax laws should no longer be perverted to private uses, but restored to the single purpose of raising revenue for the public needs.

Gen. Charles W. Bartlett was unanimously nominated for governor and John A. Thayer of Worcester, for lieutenant governor. The state committee was authorized to complete the ticket.

Boston, Oct. 5.—When the delegates began to gather at Symphony hall today for the Republican state convention, they found the state ticket, which their organization will support for election, this year, already selected from governor down. The platform this year was drawn up by Congressman William S. Greene of Fall River, and it was supposed to follow out the principles of the Republican party, and it was expected that its different planks would be retained without dissent.

Preliminary work occupied but a few moments. The committee on permanent organization named Senator Lodge for permanent chairman, and he was escorted to the platform and greeted with cheers.

In acknowledging the demonstration, Senator Lodge spoke sarcastically of the divided Democratic convention at Springfield.

The opening planks of the platform commend the work of the Republican state and national administrations, saying of the policy of President Roosevelt that "progressive, courageous and effective, it has promoted the welfare of the whole people, and has enforced the laws and compelled their observance by all persons, rich and poor, high and low, alike."

Belief "in the principles of protection to American industries and American labor" is reaffirmed, and at the same time there is commended "for adoption by the next national Republican convention a resolution calling the congress to meet in special session to determine upon amendments to the present tariff law, or the enactment of a new measure to meet changed conditions, to remove duties, needless either for revenues or protection, and make such modifications as experience may have shown to be necessary."

Congress is urged "to give further consideration to the subject of the re-establishment of the merchant marine," the platform asserting that "this country, with a protected coastwise commerce and a coastline unparalleled in extent and importance ought to be a strong competitor for the commerce of the world."

The platform as reported was adopted without dissent.

All the present state officers, headed by Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., were renominated by acclamation and the convention adjourned.

"LONG TOM" BOUND OVER

Salverson Must Answer to Charge of Grand Larceny.

Claimed He Took $40 From Drunken Harvest Hand.

"Long Tom" Salverson is in the tolls.

Many times drunk, several times accused of petty thieveries, and one of the characters of West Duluth for several years past, Tom was never called upon to answer to a serious offense until this morning, when he was arraigned in municipal court on a charge of grand larceny and was bound over to appear before the grand jury.

The offense with which Salverson is charged is "rolling" Fred Danielson, a harvest hand from North Dakota, and securing $40. The West Duluth police say that Danielson arrived in West Duluth fresh from Dakota Thursday with a considerable roll. He met Salverson and they had a few rounds. Salverson evidently dropped out of the game, but it is said he was fairly sober at about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when it is charged he lifted the remains of Danielson's roll, while the latter was sleeping in William Johnson's barn.

Yesterday afternoon, at about 4:30 o'clock Salverson was located in Superior, gloriously drunk, but with $11.50 still on his clothes. Only the day before he didn't have a cent. Salverson was locked up and this morning was taken to court. The police say Salverson practically admits the theft, contending that he secured $30 instead of the $40 charged.

Few people who have been in West Duluth for any length of time do not know "Long Tom." His father, Ole Salverson, lives at 622 Fifty-sixth avenue west. Tom, who is but 27 years of age, was the black sheep of an eminently respectable family. An over fondness for liquor and a shunning of work have combined to cause his downfall, though his opportunities, if taken, would have led to better things.

BIG CROWD PRESENT.

West Duluth Commercial Club Entertains at Social Session.

Fully 200 members of the West Duluth Commercial club and members of their families gathered last evening at the rooms of the club in the Western State bank building for the social session, the first of a series to be given by the club during the winter months. The affair was a great success. Every person present fully enjoyed himself and the many entertaining features of the first will make the succeeding affairs of the series more attractive.

Miss Effie Brotherton gave a number of declamations. Charles O. Applehagen sang and W. S. McCormick gave a short address. There were several other musical and vocal numbers on the program and all were warmly received.

Following the program, progressive cinch was played. Mrs. S. J. Nygren and David Sang won the first prizes and the consolations went to Mrs. Russell Hamilton and William Cochran. Refreshments were served after the awarding of the prizes.

Library Open Sunday.

Beginning tomorrow, the library in the Western State bank building will be open each Sunday afternoon, from 2 until 6 o'clock. No books will be issued, but visitors will be welcomed to the reading rooms. The library is being patronized more as the cold weather comes, and a busy season is looked for by those in charge.

In West Duluth Churches.

Holy Apostles Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street. Sunday school will meet at 11:30 a. m. Tomorrow evening service with sermon will be held at 7:45 p. m., the subject of the sermon being "The Church and the 15-Year-Old." The music will be as follows:

RICH FINDS IN NEW ONTARIO

New York, Oct. 5.—A Toronto special to the Sun says: The eyes of the entire mining community in New Ontario are being turned toward the Montreal river, where the development of the last few weeks has shown riches not heard of before. Among the lucky men in that district is Charles Gifford of New York. He has five claims and on these are nine stripped veins, every one of which shows native silver. All of these veins have been found at or near the surface. Two of the claims will be formed into a company, to be known as the Moose Horn Mines, Limited.

On the Temagami reserve, not far from the river, two prospectors, Darragh and Slane, have located an eight-inch vein, which is the best so far reported. Darragh, it is worthy of note, is the same man who found the McKinley-Darragh mine at Cobalt, which is counted among the really good ones in the camp. While there are numerous good finds up the Montreal river, development promises to be slow. Prospectors seem unable to procure capital to work the properties, and because of the lack of transportation facilities little ore can be taken out of the country, even supposing it is mined, at least for a few months or a year. It is also reported upon good authority that many of the prospectors are hard up and selling their claims much below what they appear to be worth.

Little work is now being done at Larder Lake, not so much because the region has disappointed investors, as because the cost of development is to an extent prohibitive. The charge of transporting machinery and supplies from the railways is enormous, while the prices there are correspondingly high. It is estimated that altogether it costs the company doing the developing $10 a day per man. However, when the snow comes and the quagmires are frozen over the work will be taken up with renewed energy.

Though there has been a great deal of litigation threatened with respect to the Cobalt Lake company, the work is proceeding smoothly. There is now fifty-seven tons of ore ready for shipment, of which twenty tons is high grade. Sixty-five men are now employed on the property, while the workings under the lake are perfectly dry and no difficulty is expected from mining operations under the water. The Nipissing company has taken advantage of discoveries made by the Cobalt Lake people, and have found big silver values on the nicolite vein first found.

MOVE OF THE HEINZE CROWD

Report That Bingham Consolidated Company Will be Left Little But Its Name---Assets Likely to be Parceled Out.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 5.—From the manner in which things appear to be shaping up in the East, it seems possible that the Bingham Consolidated Mining company will, before a great while, have become but a memory. Papers that appear to talk by the card for F. A. Heinze are predicting developments soon that contemplate the scattering of the Bingham company's assets and leaving it little on which to maintain its organization other than its name and tape-bedecked charter.

Two years or more ago, when Mr. Heinze was understood to have blown himself for a large block of Bingham stock at not far from $40 a share, there was much talk of what he would do for the Bingham company—how he would built it up and make it earn something for the shareholders. Maybe he will do it yet, but not under the banner of the Bingham Consolidated company. Bingham Consolidated stock is now to be had freely at $9 a share, or less than a quarter of the price paid by Mr. Heinze for his original holdings, and the presumption is that he has been "averaging down" since the slump in copper stocks was precipitated a few months ago.

It now begins to look as though the shareholders in the Bingham company would be given an opportunity, after a while, to get in out of the wet by the sale of the bulk of the company's property to pay its debts and an offer of some stock in some one of the Heinze companies now being rounded into shape—possibly his new smelting company—and surely one or the other.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS.

Plant of Reliance Gold Company to be Improved---Mica Mining in Custer District Rapidly Becoming the Leading Industry.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 5.—The Reliance Gold Mining company, operating on Annie creek, has ordered improvements for its plant. It is announced that the company is about to expend $10,000 in the erection of an air compresser house and the purchase of ten air drills, another rolling mill and the erection of a dwelling for the mill superintendent. The Reliance will shortly be treating its full capacity of 150 tons per day and with the aid of the air drills is to do some extensive development work in the mine to keep enough ore broken down for a continuous run. The lower tunnel is to be run 800 feet to the vertical, and 1,000 feet of drifting will then be accomplished on this vertical. The present grade of the ore is about $5 per ton.

State Mine Inspector Nick Treweek and associates have taken hold of the Mohawk and Mary group of claims at the head of Spruce Gulch near this city on a bond and lease and will continue the extensive development work done on the property in earlier days. The claims consist of 200 acres of ground adjoining the Gold Queen property and show a vein for a distance of 1,200 feet of gold and silver ore running from $15 to $40 per ton, which in the Black Hills is considered unusually high grade ore. The property was developed with both shafts and tunnels by Martin Munson and artners some years ago.

The Hercules Mining company, operating in the Two Bit and Galena districts, is doing considerable work on both of its properties, which were producers in the early days. On the Ruby gulch ground a force of eighteen miners is busy developing, and a still larger force is working on the Butcher gulch property. The company has purchased the Borsch property in Galena and moved its assay office there. The Hercules has both silver and gold ore of high grade.

Custer, S. D., Oct. 5.—Mica mining in this district is rapidly becoming the leading industry and every holder of property that shows any of that material is figuring on some sort of deal. The principal operator in mica is the Westinghouse Electric Company of Pittsburg. During the past year it has purchased a number of claims and is operating all of them, using all the miners and sorters it can secure. The American Mining company, composed of Sioux City capitalists, has just been incorporated and has taken over the Rupert group of claims on French creek, six miles from here. Steam drills are being installed.

Judge A. T. Feay has just sold his extensive interests on Burnt Fork creek, about five miles north of Hill City, to New York and other Eastern parties, the consideration involving over $100,000 for the purchase of the ground alone and another large expenditure for the erection of modern hoists and mills. The Feay ground is among the early day properties that have received more or less development through the years. The ground contains a good gold showing and several veins. In this deal was included the purchase of Judge Feay's ground adjoining the Saginaw Mining company's ground near here.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 5.—The properties on the South Range, most of which have their chief and brightest prospects on the Baltic lode, have all shared in the general depression which has come into the market. This has been particularly so in regard to those that are in the development stage. The Calumet & Hecla people are satisfied as to the work of the big lode reported which they have been working in two shafts at the Superior property. This lode, according to the late information, shows a width of seventy-two feet and contains some rich copper chutes. If this discovery is all that it bids fair to be there is no doubt of the value of the Baltic lode in the Atlantic boundaries. The discovery of the Baltic lode in the Atlantic would likewise be a bull card for the Isle Royale, since it would undoubtedly secure for it a second lode in addition to old Huron, or Mabbs or Isle Royale vein. The exploration for the Baltic lode in Isle Royale territory has not yet been visited with much success, but the lode looks better than it has done for a long time past.

The Globe property of the Copper Range, being south, is the next property that is actively exploring for the Baltic lode. The great amount of development work on the three big Copper Range properties makes the exploration on the Globe certain of result although the deep overburden makes the completion of the work uncertain. There have been many efforts to locate the Baltic lode at many intermediate points, but the first that has ever met with any degree of success has been that familiar one on the Lake property. This company has what old timers pronounce to be one of the best lodes that has yet been discovered at the Lake from early inspection. The trenching that has been done confirms the early good opinion. The Victoria which likewise has a chance at the values in the Baltic lode, will in the very near future start an exploratory crosscut for the purpose of exploring all the lodes in its domain. There are known to be many lodes that have not yet been opened on the property. The completion of the second shaft which the company is now preparing will probably mark the beginning of the crosscutting.

BISBEE OUTPUT CURTAILED

Companies Devoting Their Attention to Development Work and Shipments to Smelters Show a Decrease—Showing of Ore at the Wolverine & Arizona is Excellent.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 5.—The Copper Queen, the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg companies, have curtailed production slightly, and are devoting their attention chiefly to development work. At the Shattuck, the normal amount of ore is being taken from the mine, but shipments to the smelters at Globe have been greatly hampered, and a reserve supply of sulphide is being piled on the dump at the mine. No shipments have been made from the Denn the past week, although stoping in the ore body opened up on the 1,100 has gone on steadily. This ore also is being held as reserve. While the production is thus being curtailed, no men are being laid off.

At the Copper Queen active work of sinking at the Sacramento shaft has been started in getting to the depth of 1,200 feet, which will have to be reached before the drifts running from other shafts will secure an entrance to this shaft, which is to be the main one of the company, and after the first of the year, it is stated, the only hoisting shaft for them. At the Lowell work of drifting toward the Sacramento has been well started. It will join the big shaft at the depth of 1,200 feet.

While developing work at the Shattuck has been pushing well during the week, the amount of ore gotten out has been much smaller than for some weeks, on account of the curtailment of the amount sent to the Douglas smelters of the Copper Queen, only 125 tons a day being shipped now, and the entire stoppage of the 200 tons heretofore shipped to the Old Dominion smelter at Globe, on account of the bad condition of the Gila Valley railroad.

While development work is proceeding well at the Denn-Arizona, shipments from property, the ore being taken from the new stopes on the 1,100 level, have been entirely stopped, the Copper Queen smlters refusing to accept any more ore from the mine at present. No new developments of startling character have come to light.

Stockholders in the Wolverine & Arizona have a perfect right to feel the greatest enthusiasm from the manner in which developments have shown up during the week. Work has progressed steadily on sinking the winze from which the incline from the tunnel to the drill hole, a distance of 160 feet from the beginning has shown up. In the raise, which is being worked, and in the winze, the ore body recently encountered, continues to show encouraging values, tending to prove the theory of Supt. Roberts that the ore body encountered extends to the drill hole, giving an area of ore large enough to warrant the statement that the property has passed the preliminary stage and is now a full-fledged mining proposition.

In the western end of the district operations have been resumed at the North Bisbee Development company's property, and operations generally in that section are morst satisfactory. For the depth sunk it is doubtful whether another company in the territory has as good an ore showing as these people have.

The Bisgbee Extension property, in which nearly all of the stockholders are local people, arouses especial interest among Bisbeeites. For several weeks work has been held up by the non-arrival of machinery, which will have to be installed before further sinking can be done with any expectancy of freedom from accidents. It is expected that this machinery will arrive at the mine within a week or ten days.

ACTIVITY IN CANANEA CAMP

Lessened by Decision to Curtail Operations at Greene-Cananea for a Short Time—Ore Extraction Will Probably be Confined to the Cananea Central Properties.

Cananea, Mex., Oct. 5.—In view of the present unsatisfactory condition of the copper market, it has been decided by the management of Greené-Cananea to curtail operations temporarily, or until conditions have readjusted themselves. This probably means that ore extraction will be confined to the Cananea Central properties. Elisa and Puertecitos furnish ores very desirable at the furnaces, and it is understood will not be affected. It is unfortunate that present conditions demand the course that has been taken. While the policy is not one which either management or employes find pleasure in, it appears the best for all concerned in the long run. What length of time the present situation will extend over is entirely problematical. It may go weeks or a few months.

At the Ortega the tunnel on the Native denouncement is still in the ore encountered a couple of weeks ago, and is steadily looking better. During last week a drift from this tunnel entered the ore, and is showing the extent of the body to be important. The tunnel proper is now in better than thirty feet on the vein, with the entire face of the work in ore. Assay of a sample taken across the vein last week showed good values in copper, silver and gold, the result of the assay being higher a good deal than had been expected. Full shifts are working in the tunnel and drifts. The results being obtained can be said to be the best the property has had at any time for the opening of a large body of high grade ore. No other development is now under way, pending the arrival of machinery which has been shipped by the manufacturers and should be on the ground the latter part of next month.

On the Cananea Nueva five shafts are now sinking, in each of which there is ore. In the last few weeks ore of better grade has been opened, and there is felt to be occasion for enthusiasm as to the future of the property. Little room now exists for doubt but that it will make a big mine. The ore lately encountered, to which reference is made above, is holding well with the sinking, and is said to make a fine average commercial grade, being a straight smelting proposition, running something better than 7 per cent.

Manager Wilhelm of the Arizpe Development was a visitor in the city during last week, bringing highly encouraging reports of success attending development on the properties of the company and of progress being made with the various betterments that are underway at the camp. This property has the advantage of high silver-gold values along with the copper contents of its ores, and can look on the decline in the copper metal prices with comparative equanimity.

Dr. Emmons, in charge of the geological survey of the district which has been under way for the Greene-Cananea since early last summer, has returned to the city following an illness which compelled his absenting himself for several weeks and is again in the field. A good deal of work yet remains to be done before the highly valuable information which it will compile is completed.

Attorney S. E. Hazzard of the Calumet & Arizona was here to take out from the office of the mineral agent the titles for the Santa Rosa mine extension denouncements, comprising some two thousand pertenencias, which were made last spring in his name for the Calumet & Arizona interests which are now developing the original Santa Rosa property under bond. This development work is showing up ground of splendid promise, there now being small room for doubt but that all that may have been expected from the property, and more, too, will be realized. It is understood that extensive prospecting will be commenced at an early date on the ground for which titles have just been taken out, a move which will be of much importance to many property holders in the Fronteras district, who are located in the vicinity of the Santa Rosa holdings.

R. D. Clancy returned during the week from a visit to the Oro Maximo mine. Work at this property is now going ahead steadily, with a full force of men employed. The line of development which is being followed is bringing about steadily improving outlook, the property being said by recent visitors to have never looked better than at the present time.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Hundreds of Diamond and Churn Drills at Work and Search for Ore Active—New Shaft at Tobin to be Largest in Crystal Falls District.

The search for iron ore was never more active in the region tributary to Lake Superior. Several hundred diamond and churn drills are in commission, and the results on the whole are very gratifying. Not only are new deposits continually being found, but the zone in which the prospector is at work is constantly being extended. Exporation is vigorous on all five producing ranges, excepting the Vermilion, and other districts as well are being given attention.

In the Canisteo field, at the western end of the Mesaba and six miles northeast of Grand Rapids, the Steel corporation is opening ore bodies estimated to contain 180,000,000 tons, most of which have been proved up during the past few years. As it lies in the ground, the ore is of low grade, averaging probably 48 per cent in metallic iron, but it becomes a very fine product with the sand washed out. In the same portion of the range the Itasca county poor farm is to be tested for mineral. This tract, comprising 176 acres, was recently taken over under option by a company of local men. The indications that ore exists are very good, and should large deposits be found as expected the county will fare handsomely. The terms of the prospective lease call for the payment of a royalty of 25 cents and the mining of a minimum of 80,000 tons per annum after the second year, prior to which 40,000 tons are to be taken out each season. The land cost the county $4,000 a few years ago, and it was considered steep at the price; but it was not suspected at that time there was a possibility ore would be found in the vicinity. West of the Mississippi river, and southwest of Grand Rapids, notably in the locality of Pokegama lake, some two score drills are in commission on the Mesaba extension. Much ore has been cut, but the bulk of it is of low grade and lies materially deeper than in the producing districts to the east. Some of it will have to be washed. However, it will all be mined, and in time a new field will be opened.

Some sixty-five miles southwest of Grand Rapids is the Cuyuna range, in Crow Wing county, to which much attention has been paid the past few years. The Steel corporation, Pickands, Mather & Co., the Shenango Furnace company, Rogers, Brown & Co. and other operators, particularly Cuyler Adams, the discoverers of the field, have conducted a great deal of exploratory work. No little ore has been proved up, but in general it is low in iron and high in phosphorus. Probably the best showing to date is in the vicinity of Robbit lake, six miles from the town of Deerwood, where Cuyler Adams and Rogers, Brown & Co. are actively at work. Hematite running 62 per cent iron has been brought up in the drill cores, though for the most part the ore is a limonite. There is no doubt that a very considerable percentage of the deposits are merchantable. However, practically no development work has been done as yet, and it is still a question as to just how extensive the ore bodies will prove. The conditions look encouraging. Meanwhile the development of the district is hampered by reason of the fact a rate of 80 cents is asked by the Northern Pacific railroad for the transportation of ore to the head of Lake Superior. The distance is eighty miles. The rate is the same as that which rules on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, but it is considered too high by the Cuyuna interests in view of the poor quality of the product. The Northern Pacific is the only railroad serving the district, and it is, itself, exploring for ore, just as has the Great Northern on the Mesaba.

Sixty miles west of the Cuyuna and 100 miles southwest by the western end of the Mesaba range as now determined is a new district, styled the Longyear. This lies in the northeastern portion of Otter-Tail county, and as far as exploration for mineral goes it is a virgin territory. It cannot be learned that any ore has yet been found there, but as there are some favorable surface indications and the dip needle shows a strong magnetic attraction, the district has been decided worthy of exploitation. This test will now be given it. Already state mineral options and private contracts for a considerable acreage have been taken, in considerable part by the Longyear Exploration company, and drilling will doubtless be undertaken shortly. Four-year options at $2.50 per acre have been secured from many farmers, with agreement that $150 per acre be paid for such 40-acre tracts as may eventually be taken over. The opinion has been expressed that possibly the "Longyear range" may be a continuation of the Mesaba, but beyond the fact that it appears to be along the general strike of that formation, if projected, there is little in support of such conjecture.

Still another possible iron ore field is the so-called "Hiago" range, lying near the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary, southeast of St. Paul. Drills are in operation. What is being met with is not given publicity, but that some exploratory work has been in progress for several years is a fact that may possess significance. Over in Wisconsin is the Baraboo district, where during the past four seasons the Illinois mine, the sole producer—yet developed, has shipped a quarter of a million tons of ore. Exploration still continues here, and while the limits of the field are pretty well defined it is not impossible other fair sized mines will be opened. The Steel corporation has a number of drills in commission.

Little is being done in an exploratory way on the Vermilion range, up in northeastern Minnesota, despite that the twenty-mile stretch between the two groups of producing mines, at Taber and at Ely, apparently offers an inviting field. A few tracts are being exploited, of which the most notable is the Section 30 property of the Shagawn Iron company, in 63-11, Lake county, just across the St. Louis county line from Ely. A deposit is being tested here at a depth of some hundreds of feet. The Vermilion's giant neighbor, the Mesaba, premier of all iron regions of the globe, is witnessing probably the greatest exploratory activity in its history. Drills are puncturing the ground most all the way along the strike of the formation from the extension of the range west of the Mississippi to the very eastern end, where George St. Clair of Duluth is demonstrating that the early-day prospector pulled up stakes prematurely. Scores of tracts are being tested on the Mesaba, and with notable success. Big as the shipments are this season from the range, it is no exaggeration to state that since a year ago at this time several times that tonnage have been added to the known deposits.

Exploration is very active on the Gogebic range, and much of it is being done at depth from present workings. This is particularly the case on the Michigan side of the Montreal river. Ore has been found to lie much deeper on the Gogebic than was ever suspected in the early days of the range, and it is evident that district is one with tremendous reserves. West of the Montreal, on the Wisconsin side, the old Penokee range, so-called, is receiving much attention. The ground is being tested as far west as Mellen, Wis. There is much ore in this portion of the Gogebic country, but so considerable a proportion of it is low in iron that the district has been neglected for many years. Ore of the kind is in demand now. Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland, the Ashland Iron & Steel company of the Berry interests of Detroit, and other operators are exploring the Penokee field. A similar revival is taking place on the western end of the Marquette range, where a number of properties producing low grade ores are now being exploited after an idleness of many years. Diamond drills are being utilized, and there are in progress shaft sinking and driving for ore as well. Drills are in service also in the Ishpeming and Negaunee fields, and the same is true of the Cascade district, a few miles south of Negaunee. The most important exploratory and development work in the Marquette region, however, is that under way in the Swanzel district, some twenty miles south of Negaunee. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company has had a large number of drills punching this territory during the past four or five years, and the work has been attended with great success. An immense tonnage of ore has been proved

IN THE MAMMOTH DISTRICT

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 5.—E. A. Clark, better known as "Hualiappi Clarke," is spending a few days in Tucson on a visit to his family from his mining properties in the vicinity of Mammoth. Mr. Clark states that the Calumet & Arizona people who have under bond his Giant Cap group in the Bunker Hill district, have a force of about fifty men at work. They have two shafts down more than a hundred feet and have run crosscuts in the bottom of both shafts. In the Prince shaft and crosscut a big body of ore that will run about 6 per cent has been opened up. In a tunnel on the Grove claim, which is in a distance of 270 feet, an ore body sixty-four feet in thickness was gone through that will average about 6 per cent. In the shaft of the Giant claim at a depth of 215 feet a body of sulphite ore has been encountered that will carry values of between 15 to 20 per cent.

J. K. Hooper is in charge of the properties and is acting as general manager and superintendent. The property has been under bond by the Calumet & Arizona people for about a year and now they have done considerable work on all of the claims of the group and have found ore in place in all of them.

Outside of the work being done on the Clark group by the Calumet & Arizona people there are at work on the Young group, which is under bond to the McKenzie company, an English corporation, consisting of a number of men. The company has just completed a wagon road from Mammoth to the properties, a distance of ten miles, so that they will now be able to get in the necessary machinery that is needed for the proper development of the properties. It is the intention of the management to begin work at once on the outcroppings, by sinking and drifting. The bond on the property runs for two years and is for the sum of $100,000, of which 5 per cent has been paid down.

On the Sibley group of claims, on the American Eagle, there are twelve men at work and ore was recently encountered that runs as high as $130 to the ton in gold and 10 per cent in copper.

Mr. Clark states that the Mammoth district is rapidly coming to the front as one of the richest districts in Arizona and that when the railroad is completed into that camp there will be any number of cars of ore shipped out daily.

BIG COPPER FIND IN NEVADA

Most Sensational Strike in Yerington Reported by Mason Valley Company---Fine Ledge of Silver and Gold at Fairview.

Yerington, Nev., Oct. 5.—The most sensational strike of copper ever made in Yerington has just been announced by the superintendent of the Mason Valley company. In a winze from a spur near the operating tunnel a body of black oxide ore, running 55 per cent copper, has been encountered. In sinking the winze forty feet the ore body has widened out to such an extent as to entirely include the working.

In the Utah-Yerington, just east of the Mason Valley, a five foot ledge is being opened that differs from the ordinary Yerington ore in that it carries well in lead and silver, in addition to copper and gold. The tunnel, now in thirty feet on the vein, has five feet of ore that carries 13 per cent copper, 26 per cent lead, $2 in gold and seven ounces of silver to the ton.

Fairview, Nev., Oct. 5.—At a depth of 225 feet a crosscut on the Fairview Eagle has gone through eighteen feet of ore and in turning along the footwall there are two feet that run from $358 to $690 to the ton. Three-fourths of the values are in silver, the remainder in gold. All the ore is sulphide. Nixon & Wingfield, the owners of the Eagle, have ordered an air compressor with pump sufficient to run five two and a half inch drills. The Jarvis lease on the Eagle, started about two months ago, is sacking ore on the fifty-foot level, the values running $148 a ton.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 5.—News of an important strike comes from the Silver Peak country. On the Candelaria the shaft which is being sunk to the ledge has reached a depth of ten feet, and the ore by a little sorting returns averages values of $375 to the ton. On the Reno a tunnel is being run. At a depth of twenty feet there is four feet of ore that carries $70 to the ton in silver and gold. In the Red Top ore has been found at a depth of a few feet that averages $50 a ton in gold and silver. The district is forty miles west of Goldfield.

Tonopah, Nev., Oct. 5.—A stampede is on for Millers, fourteen miles north. Two men engaged in boring a well brought up coarse gold in the gravel. Before stopping work for the day they reported to have collected a beer bottle full of nuggets, some of them half an inch in diameter. Everybody in Millers located ground, and people here, as soon as they heard of the find, hastened to the scene. It is the theory that the well borers bored into an old river bed. If this is true, the placers may extend for miles.

FIGHTING FIRE AND GASES

Alex Scott Shaft to be Sunk Deeper for Use as an Additional Updraft for the Minnie Healy Mine.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 5.—Quelling the fire in the Minnie Healy and disposing of the gases emanating from the combustion of rubbish in the 600 and 700-foot levels is still an absorbing question and the officials of the Boston & Montana are expending a great deal of energy in an effort to confine the annoyance to one spot. The latest move will be to sink the Alex Scott shaft of the Butte-Montana company to a depth of 1,200 feet in an effort to run a crosscut beneath the seat of the disturbance. The Minnie Healy, the Leonard, the West Colusa and the Alex Scott being practically closed down for the present, it is expected that the fire and the obnoxious gases will be completely disposed of by the time orders are received for a resumption of operations. The Gambetta shaft will also be used for an updraft conjunction with the Minnie Healy, West Colusa and the Alex Scott, and with the flooding of the seat of the fire by means of holes made by the diamond drills, will probably gain control in a few weeks.

A depth of 1,000 feet has been attained in the Greenleaf shaft of the Amalgamated Copper company, on the flat southeast of the Butte & London property, and a station is being cut at that depth. As soon as the station is completed a crosscut will be run south to intersect the vein which was cut by the shaft at the depth of 840 feet. The vein is one of the most important that has been encountered in that section of the country, and it is expected that it will give commercial values at the present depth.

The opening up of commercial ore bodies in the Greenleaf will be of the greatest importance to all the new companies operating on the flat, and especially to the Butte & London company, it being firmly believed that the vein on which the Amalgamated company is working passes in a northwesterly direction through the Butte & London property.

The Colusa-Leonard Extension company has already cut a promising vein, having a width of 200 feet, in the shaft, and this will undoubtedly be reached by the crosscut which is now being run from the 860-foot level.

The Badger State shaft is now down to a depth of 600 feet, and will be continued to the 1,200 or 1,500-foot depth before any underground work is done.

COMANCHE COMPANY'S MILL

New Three-Hundred Ton Furnace Proving a Success Beyond Expectations of Its Designer and Officials of the Company.

Silver City, N. M., Oct. 5.—The new three-hundred ton furnace at the Comanche Mining & Smelting company's reduction work has been put into operation and is proving a success beyond all expectations of its designer, and the officials of the company. Up to the present time the new furnace has run 30 per cent above its capacity with a fuel consumption no greater than the old furnace. This is attributed to its careful construction and the increased size, on the principle that a large fire is proportionately harder to put out than a smaller one.

Viewed from the top the furnace is an oblong opening in a concrete floor into which is being constantly emptied large wheelbarrow loads of ore flux and coke. The copper green flames that creep through the surface and an occasional glimpse of the white hot mass below give some idea of the intense heat. Raised three or four feet above the top of the furnace is an immense hood, which tapers into a five foot iron stack. This, after arising about twenty feet at an angle of 45 degrees, takes a downward turn and disappears into the floor ond from there enters into the large chimney. This device saves the dust carried out of the furnace by the draught, and its mineral contents are saved.

Air forced into the furnace at the bottom by immense blowers, quickly reduces the whole to a fluid, the walls of the furnace being kept from burning by the constant flow of cold water through the enclosing water jackets. Out of the bottom of the furnace the molten stream runs into a tank, in which the heavier substances, the metals, sink to the bottom, the lighter, the molten rock or slag, remains on the surface to be drawn off and hauled in immense iron slag pots to the slag dump. Every four hours the metal is drawn from the bottom of settler into convenient molds. This is the product, the copper matte.

RICH FINDS IN NEW ONTARIO

New York, Oct. 5.—A Toronto special to the Sun says: The eyes of the entire mining community in New Ontario are being turned toward the Montreal river, where the development of the last few weeks has shown riches not heard of before. Among the lucky men in that district is Charles Gifford of New York. He has five claims and on these are nine stripped veins, every one of which shows native silver. All of these veins have been found at or near the surface. Two of the claims will be formed into a company, to be known as the Moose Horn Mines, Limited.

On the Temagami reserve, not far from the river, two prospectors, Darragh and Slane, have located an eight-inch vein, which is the best so far reported. Darragh, it is worthy of note, is the same man who found the McKinley-Darragh mine at Cobalt, which is counted among the really good ones in the camp. While there are numerous good finds up the Montreal river, development promises to be slow. Prospectors seem unable to procure capital to work the properties, and because of the lack of transportation facilities little ore can be taken out of the country, even supposing it is mined, at least for a few months or a year. It is also reported upon good authority that many of the prospectors are hard up and selling their claims much below what they appear to be worth.

Little work is now being done at Larder Lake, not so much because the region has disappointed investors, as because the cost of development is to an extent prohibitive. The charge of transporting machinery and supplies from the railways is enormous, while the prices there are correspondingly high. It is estimated that altogether it costs the company doing the developing $10 a day per man. However, when the snow comes and the quagmires are frozen over the work will be taken up with renewed energy.

Though there has been a great deal of litigation threatened with respect to the Cobalt Lake company, the work is proceeding smoothly. There is now fifty-seven tons of ore ready for shipment, of which twenty tons is high grade. Sixty-five men are now employed on the property, while the workings under the lake are perfectly dry and no difficulty is expected from mining operations under the water. The Nipissing company has taken advantage of discoveries made by the Cobalt Lake people, and have found big silver values on the nicolite vein first found.

MOVE OF THE HEINZE CROWD

Report That Bingham Consolidated Company Will be Left Little But Its Name---Assets Likely to be Parceled Out.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 5.—From the manner in which things appear to be shaping up in the East, it seems possible that the Bingham Consolidated Mining company will, before a great while, have become but a memory. Papers that appear to talk by the card for F. A. Heinze are predicting developments soon that contemplate the scattering of the Bingham company's assets and leaving it little or which to maintain its organization other than its name and tape-bedecked charter.

Two years or more ago, when Mr. Heinze was understood to have blown himself for a large block of Bingham stock at not far from $40 a share, there was much talk of what he would do for the Bingham company—how he would built it up and make it earn something for the shareholders. Maybe he will do it yet, but not under the banner of the Bingham Consolidated company. Bingham Consolidated stock is now to be had freely at $9 a share, or less than a quarter of the price paid by Mr. Heinze for his original holdings, and the presumption is that he has been "averaging down" since the slump in copper stocks was precipitated a few months ago.

It now begins to look as though the shareholders in the Bingham company would be given an opportunity, after a while, to get in out of the wet by the sale of the bulk of the company's property to pay its debts and an offer of some stock in some one of the Heinze companies now being rounded into shape—possibly his new smelting company—and surely one or the other.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS.

Plant of Reliance Gold Company to be Improved---Mica Mining in Custer District Rapidly Becoming the Leading Industry.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 5.—The Reliance Gold Mining company, operating on Annie creek, has ordered improvements for its plant. It is announced that the company is about to expend $10,000 in the erection of an air compresser house and the purchase of ten air drills, another rolling mill and the erection of a dwelling for the mill superintendent. The Reliance will shortly be treating its full capacity of 150 tons per day and with the aid of the air drills is to do some extensive development work in the mine to keep enough ore broken down for a continuous run. The lower tunnel is to be run 800 feet to the vertical, and 1,000 feet of drifting will then be accomplished on this vertical. The present grade of the ore is about $5 per ton.

State Mine Inspector Nick Treweek and associates have taken hold of the Mohawk and Mary group of claims at the head of Spruce Gulch near this city on a bond and lease and will continue the extensive development work done on the property in earlier days. The claims consist of 2500 acres of ground adjoining the Gold Queen property and show a vein for a distance of 1,200 feet of gold and silver ore running from $15 to $40 per ton, which in the Black Hills is considered unusually high grade ore. The property was developed with both shafts and tunnels by Martin Munson and artners some years ago.

The Hercules Mining company, operating in the Two Bit and Galena districts, is doing considerable work on both of its properties, which were producers in the early days. On the Ruby gulch ground a force of eighteen miners is busy developing, and a still larger force is working on the Butcher gulch property. The company has purchased the Borsch property in Galena and moved its assay office there. The Hercules has both silver and gold ore of high grade.

Custer, S. D., Oct. 5.—Mica mining in this district is rapidly becoming the leading industry and every holder of property that shows any of that material is figuring on some sort of deal. The principal operator in mica is the Westinghouse Electric Company of Pittsburg. During the past year it has purchased a number of claims and is operating all of them, using all the miners and sorters it can secure. The American Mining company, composed of Sioux City capitalists, has just been incorporated and has taken over the Rupert group of claims on French creek, six miles from here. Steam drills are being installed.

Judge A. T. Feay has just sold his extensive interests on Burnt Fork creek, about five miles north of Hill City, to New York and other Eastern parties, the consideration involving over $100,000 for the purchase of the ground alone and another large expenditure for the erection of modern hoists and mills. The Feay ground is among the early day properties that have received more or less development through the years. The ground contains a good gold showing and several veins. In this deal was included the purchase of Judge Feay's ground adjoining the Saginaw Mining company's ground near here.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 5.—The properties on the South Range, most of which have their chief and brightest prospects on the Baltic lode, have all shared in the general depression which has come into the market. This has been particularly so in regard to those that are in the development stage. The Calumet & Hecla people are satisfied as to the work of the big lode reported which they have been working in two shafts at the Superior property. This lode, according to the late information, shows a width of seventy-two feet and contains some rich copper chutes. If this discovery is all that it bids fair to be there is no doubt of the value of the Baltic lode in the Atlantic boundaries. The discovery of the Baltic lode in the Atlantic would likewise be a bull card for the Isle Royale, since it would undoubtedly secure for it a second lode in addition to old Huron, or Mabbs or Isle Royale vein. The exploration for the Baltic lode in Isle Royale territory has not yet been visited with much success, but the lode looks better than it has done for a long time past.

The Globe property of the Copper Range, going south, is the next property that is actively exploring for the Baltic lode. The great amount of development work on the three big Copper Range properties makes the exploration on the Globe certain of result although the deep overburden makes the completion of the work uncertain. There have been many efforts to locate the Baltic lode at many intermediate points, but the first that has ever met with any degree of success has been that familiar one on the Lake property. This company has what old timers pronounce to be one of the best lodes that has yet been discovered at the Lake from early inspection. The trenching that has been done confirms the early good opinion. The Victoria which likewise has a chance at the values in the Baltic lode, will in the very near future start an exploratory crosscut for the purpose of exploring all the lodes in its domain. There are known to be many lodes that have not yet been opened on the property. The completion of the second shaft which the company is now preparing will probably mark the beginning of the crosscutting.

BISBEE OUTPUT CURTAILED

Companies Devoting Their Attention to Development Work and Shipments to Smelters Show a Decrease—Showing of Ore at the Wolverine & Arizona is Excellent.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 5.—The Copper Queen, the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg companies, have curtailed production slightly, and are devoting their attention chiefly to development work. At the Shattuck, the normal amount of ore is being taken from the mine, but shipments to the smelters at Globe have been greatly hampered, and a reserve supply of sulphide is being piled on the dump at the mine. No shipments have been made from the Denn the past week, although stoping in the ore body opened up on the 1,100 has gone on steadily. This ore also is being held as reserve. While the production is thus being curtailed, no men are being laid off.

At the Copper Queen active work of sinking at the Sacramento shaft has been started in getting to the depth of 1,200 feet, which will have to be reached before the drifts running from other shafts will secure an entrance to this shaft, which is to be the main one of the company, and after the first of the year, it is stated, the only hoisting shaft for them. At the Lowell work of drifting toward the Sacramento has been well started. It will join the big shaft at the depth of 1,200 feet.

While developing work at the Shattuck has been pushing well during the week, the amount of ore gotten out has been much smaller than for some weeks, on account of the curtailment of the amount sent to the Douglas smelters of the Copper Queen, only 125 tons a day being shipped now, and the entire stoppage of the 200 tons heretofore shipped to the Old Dominion smelter at Globe, on account of the bad condition of the Gila Valley railroad.

While development work is proceeding well at the Denn-Arizona, shipments from property, the ore being taken from the new stopes on the 1,100 level, have been entirely stopped, the Copper Queen smlters refusing to accept any more ore from the mine at present. No new developments of startling character have come to light.

Stockholders in the Wolverine & Arizona have a perfect right to feel the greatest enthusiasm from the manner in which developments have shown up during the week. Work has progressed steadily on sinking the winze from which the incline from the tunnel to the drill hole, a distance of 160 feet from the beginning has shown up. In the raise, which is being worked, and in the winze, the ore body recently encountered, continues to show encouraging values, tending to prove the theory of Supt. Roberts that the ore body encountered extends to the drill hole, giving an area of ore large enough to warrant the statement that the property has passed the preliminary stage and is now a full-fledged mining proposition.

In the western end of the district operations have been resumed at the North Bisbee Development company's property, and operations generally in that section are morst satisfactory. For the depth sunk it is doubtful whether another company in the territory has as good an ore showing as these people have.

The Bisgbee Extension property, in which nearly all of the stockholders are local people, arouses especial interest among Bisbeeites. For several weeks work has been held up by the non-arrival of machinery, which will have to be installed before further sinking can be done with any expectancy of freedom from accidents. It is expected that this machinery will arrive at the mine within a week or ten days.

ACTIVITY IN CANANEA CAMP

Lessened by Decision to Curtail Operations at Greene-Cananea for a Short Time—Ore Extraction Will Probably be Confined to the Cananea Central Properties.

Cananea, Mex., Oct. 5.—In view of the present unsatisfactory condition of the copper market, it has been decided by the management of Greene-Cananea to curtail operations temporarily, or until conditions have readjusted themselves. This probably means that ore extraction will be confined to the Cananea Central properties. Elisa and Puertecitos furnish ores very desirable at the furnaces, and it is understood will not be affected. It is unfortunate that present conditions demand the course that has been taken. While the policy is not one which either management or employes find pleasure in, it appears the best for all concerned in the long run. What length of time the present situation will extend over is entirely problematical. It may go weeks or a few months.

At the Ortega the tunnel on the Native denouncement is still in the ore encountered a couple of weeks ago, and is steadily looking better. During last week a drift from this tunnel entered the ore, and is showing the extent of the body to be important. The tunnel proper is now in better than thirty feet on the vein, with the entire face of the work in ore. Assay of a sample taken across the vein last week showed good values in copper, silver and gold, the result of the assay being higher a good deal than had been expected. Full shifts are working in the tunnel and drifts. The results being obtained can be said to be the best the property has had at any time for the opening of a large body of high grade ore. No other development is now under way, pending the arrival of machinery which has been shipped by the manufacturers and should be on the ground the latter part of next month.

On the Cananea Nueva five shafts are now sinking, in each of which there is ore. In the last few weeks ore of better grade has been opened, and there is felt to be occasion for enthusiasm as to the future of the property. Little room now exists for doubt but that it will make a big mine. The ore lately encountered, to which reference is made above, is holding well with the sinking, and is said to make a fine average commercial grade, being a straight smelting proposition, running something better than 7 per cent.

Manager Wilhelm of the Arizpe Development was a visitor in the city during last week, bringing highly encouraging reports of success attending development on the properties of the company and of progress being made with the various betterments that are underway at the camp. This property has the advantage of high silver-gold values along with the copper contents of its ores, and can look on the decline in the copper metal prices with comparative equanimity.

Dr. Emmons, in charge of the geological survey of the district which has been under way for the Greene-Cananea since early last summer, has returned to the city following an illness which compelled his absenting himself for several weeks and is again in the field. A good deal of work yet remains to be done before the highly valuable information which it will compile is completed.

Attorney S. E. Hazzard of the Calumet & Arizona was here to take out from the office of the mineral agent the titles for the Santa Rosa mine extension denouncements, comprising some two thousand pertenencias, which were made last spring in his name for the Calumet & Arizona interests which are now developing the original Santa Rosa property under bond. This development work is showing up ground of splendid promise, there now being small room for doubt but that all that may have been expected from the property, and more, too, will be realized. It is understood that extensive prospecting will be commenced at an early date on the ground for which titles have just been taken out, a move which will be of much importance to many property holders in the Fronteras district, who are located in the vicinity of the Santa Rosa holdings.

R. D. Clancy returned during the week from a visit to the Oro Maximo mine. Work at this property is now going ahead steadily, with a full force of men employed. The line of development which is being followed is bringing about steadily improving outlook, the property being said by recent visitors to have never looked better than at the present time.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Hundreds of Diamond and Churn Drills at Work and Search for Ore Active—New Shaft at Tobin to be Largest in Crystal Falls District.

The search for iron ore was never more active in the region tributary to Lake Superior. Several hundred diamond and churn drills are in commission, and the results on the whole are very gratifying. Not only are new deposits continually being found, but the zone in which the prospector is at work is constantly being extended. Exploration is vigorous on all five producing ranges, excepting the Vermilion, and other districts as well are being given attention.

In the Canisteo field, at the western end of the Mesaba and six miles northeast of Grand Rapids, the Steel corporation is opening ore bodies estimated to contain 100,000,000 tons, most of which have been proved up during the past few years. As it lies in the ground, the ore is of low grade, averaging probably 48 per cent in metallic iron, but it becomes a very fine product with the sand washed out. In the same portion of the range the Itasca county poor farm is to be tested for mineral. This tract, comprising 176 acres, was recently taken over under option by a company of local men. The indications that ore exists are very good, and should large deposits be found as expected the county will fare handsomely. The terms of the prospective lease call for the payment of a royalty of 25 cents and the mining of a minimum of 80,000 tons per annum after the second year, prior to which 40,000 tons are to be taken out each season. The land cost the county $4,000 a few years ago, and it was considered steep at the price; but it was not suspected at that time there was a possibility ore would be found in the vicinity. West of the Mississippi river, and southwest of Grand Rapids, notably in the locality of Pokegama lake, some two score drills are in commission on the Mesaba extension. Much ore has been cut, but the bulk of it is of low grade and lies materially deeper than in the producing districts to the east. Some of it will have to be washed. However, it will all be mined, and in time a new field will be opened.

Some sixty-five miles southwest of Grand Rapids is the Cuyuna range, in Crow Wing county, to which much attention has been paid the past few years. The Steel corporation, Pickands, Mather & Co., the Shenango Furnace company, Rogers, Brown & Co. and other operators, particularly Cuyler Adams, the discoverers of the field, have conducted a great deal of exploratory work. No little ore has been proved up, but in general it is low in iron and high in phosphorus. Probably the best showing to date is in the vicinity of Robbit lake, six miles from the town of Deerwood, where Cuyler Adams and Rogers, Brown & Co. are actively at work. Hematite running 62 per cent iron has been brought up in the drill cores, though for the most part the ore is a limonite. There is no doubt that a very considerable percentage of the deposits are merchantable. However, practically no development work has been done as yet, and it is still a question as to just how extensive the ore bodies will prove. The conditions look encouraging. Meanwhile the development of the district is hampered by reason of the fact a rate of 80 cents is asked by the Northern Pacific railroad for the transportation of ore to the head of Lake Superior. The distance is eighty miles. The rate is the same as that which rules on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, but it is considered too high by the Cuyuna interests in view of the poor quality of the product. The Northern Pacific is the only railroad serving the district, and it is, itself, exploring for ore, just as has the Great Northern on the Mesaba.

Sixty miles west of the Cuyuna and 100 miles southwest by the western end of the Mesaba range as now determined is a new district, styled the Longyear. This lies in the northeastern portion of Otter Tail county, and as far as exploration for mineral goes it is a virgin territory. It cannot be learned that any ore has yet been found there, but as there are some favorable surface indications and the dip needle shows a strong magnetic attraction the district has been decided worthy of exploitation. This test will now be given it. Already state mineral options and private contracts for a considerable acreage have been taken, in considerable part by the Longyear Exploration company, and drilling will doubtless be undertaken shortly. Four-year options at $2.50 per acre have been secured from many farmers with agreement that $250 per acre be paid for each 40-acre tracts as may eventually be taken over. The opinion has been expressed that possibly the "Longyear range" may be a continuation of the Mesaba, but beyond the fact that it appears to be along the general strike of that formation, if projected, there is little in support of such conjecture.

Still another possible iron ore field is the so-called "Hiago" range, lying near the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary, southeast of St. Paul. Drills are in operation. What is being met with is not given publicity, but that some exploratory work has been in progress for several years is a fact that may possess significance. Over in Wisconsin is the Baraboo district, where during the past four seasons the Illinois mine, the sole producer—yet developed, has shipped a quarter of a million tons of ore. Exploration still continues here, and while the limits of the field are pretty well defined it is not impossible other fair sized mines will be opened. The Steel corporation has a number of drills in commission.

Little is being done in an exploratory way on the Vermilion range, up in northeastern Minnesota, despite that the twenty-mile stretch between the two groups of producing mines, at Taber and at Ely, apparently offers an inviting field. A few tracts are being exploited, of which the most notable is the Section 30 property of the Shagawn Iron company, in 63-11, Lake county, just across the St. Louis county line from Ely. A deposit is being tested here at a depth of some hundreds of feet. The Vermilion's giant neighbor, the Mesaba, premier of all iron regions of the globe, is witnessing probably the greatest exploratory activity in its history. Drills are puncturing the ground most all the way along the strike of the formation from the extension of the range west of the Mississippi to the very eastern end, where George St. Clair of Duluth is demonstrating that the early-day prospector pulled up stakes prematurely. Scores of tracts are being tested on the Mesaba, and with notable success. Big as the shipments are this season from the range, it is no exaggeration to state that since a year ago at this time several times that tonnage have been added to the known deposits.

Exploration is very active on the Gogebic range, and much of it is being done at depth from present workings. This is particularly the case on the Michigan side of the Montreal river. Ore has been found to lie much deeper on the Gogebic than was ever suspected in the early days of the range, and it is evident that district is one with tremendous reserves. West of the Montreal, on the Wisconsin side, the old Penokee range, so-called, is receiving much attention. The ground is being tested as far west as Mellen, Wis. There is much ore in this portion of the Gogebic country, but so considerable a proportion of it is low in iron that the district has been neglected for many years. Ore of the kind is in demand now. Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland, the Ashland Iron & Steel company of the Berry interests of Detroit, and other operators are exploring the Penokee field. A similar revival is taking place on the western end of the Marquette range, where a number of properties producing low grade ores are now being exploited after an idleness of many years. Diamond drills are being utilized, and there are in progress shaft sinking and driving for ore as well. Drills are in service also in the Ishpeming and Negaunee fields, and the same is true of the Cascade district, a few miles south of Negaunee. The most important exploratory and development work in the Marquette region, however, is that under way in the Swanzel district, some twenty miles south of Negaunee. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company has had a large number of drills punching this territory during the past four or five years, and the work has been attended with great success. An immense tonnage of ore has been proved

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 5.—E. A. Clark, better known as "Hualiappi Clarke," is spending a few days in Tucson on a visit to his family from his mining properties in the vicinity of Mammoth. Mr. Clark states that the Calumet & Arizona people who have under bond his Giant Cap group in the Bunker Hill district, have a force of about fifty men at work. They have two shafts down more than a hundred feet and have run crosscuts in the bottom of both shafts. In the Prince shaft and crosscut a big body of ore that will run about 6 per cent has been opened up. In a tunnel on the Grove claim, which is in a distance of 270 feet, an ore body sixty-four feet in thickness was gone through that will average about 6 per cent. In the shaft of the Giant claim at a depth of 215 feet a body of sulphite ore has been encountered that will carry values of between 15 to 20 per cent.

J. K. Hooper is in charge of the properties and is acting as general manager and superintendent. The property has been under bond by the Calumet & Arizona people for about a year and now they have done considerable work on all of the claims of the group and have found ore in place in all of them.

Outside of the work being done on the Clark group by the Calumet & Arizona people there are at work on the Young group, which is under bond to the McKenzie company, an English corporation, consisting of a number of men. The company has just completed a wagon road from Mammoth to the properties, a distance of ten miles, so that they will now be able to get in the necessary machinery that is needed for the proper development of the properties. It is the intention of the management to begin work at once on the outcroppings, by sinking and drifting. The bond on the property runs for two years and is for the sum of $100,000, of which 5 per cent has been paid down.

On the Sibley group of claims, on the American Eagle, there are twelve men at work and ore was recently encountered that runs as high as $130 to the ton in gold and 10 per cent in copper.

Mr. Clark states that the Mammoth district is rapidly coming to the front as one of the richest districts in Arizona and that when the railroad is completed into that camp there will be any number of cars of ore shipped out daily.

BIG COPPER FIND IN NEVADA

Most Sensational Strike in Yerington Reported by Mason Valley Company---Fine Ledge of Silver and Gold at Fairview.

Yerington, Nev., Oct. 5.—The most sensational strike of copper ever made in Yerington has just been announced by the superintendent of the Mason Valley company. In a winze from a spur near the operating tunnel a body of black oxide ore, running 55 per cent copper, has been encountered. In sinking the winze forty feet the ore body has widened out to such an extent as to entirely include the working.

In the Utah-Yerington, just east of the Mason Valley, a five foot ledge is being opened that differs from the ordinary Yerington ore in that it carries well in lead and silver, in addition to copper and gold. The tunnel, now in thirty feet on the vein, has five feet of ore that carries 13 per cent copper, 26 per cent lead, $2 in gold and seven ounces of silver to the ton.

Fairview, Nev., Oct. 5.—At a depth of 225 feet a crosscut on the Fairview Eagle has gone through eighteen feet of ore and in turning along the footwall there are two feet that run from $358 to $690 to the ton. Three-fourths of the values are in silver, the remainder in gold. All the ore is sulphide. Nixon & Wingfield, the owners of the Eagle, have ordered an air compressor with pump sufficient to run five two and a half inch drills. The Jarvis lease on the Eagle, started about two months ago, is sacking ore on the fifty-foot level, the values running $148 a ton.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 5.—News of an important strike comes from the Silver Peak country. On the Candelaria the shaft which is being sunk to the ledge has reached a depth of ten feet, and the ore by a little sorting returns averages values of $375 to the ton. On the Reno a tunnel is being run. At a depth of twenty feet there is four feet of ore that carries $70 to the ton in silver and gold. In the Red Top ore has been found at a depth of a few feet that averages $50 a ton in gold and silver. The district is forty miles west of Goldfield.

Tonopah, Nev., Oct. 5.—A stampede is on for Millers, fourteen miles north. Two men engaged in boring a well brought up coarse gold in the gravel. Before stopping work for the day they reported to have collected a beer bottle full of nuggets, some of them half an inch in diameter. Everybody in Millers located ground, and people here, as soon as they heard of the find, hastened to the scene. It is the theory that the well borers bored into an old river bed. If this is true, the placers may extend for miles.

FIGHTING FIRE AND GASES

Alex Scott Shaft to be Sunk Deeper for Use as an Additional Updraft for the Minnie Healy Mine.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 5.—Quelling the fire in the Minnie Healy and disposing of the gases emanating from the combustion of rubbish in the 600 and 700-foot levels is still an absorbing question and the officials of the Boston & Montana are expending a great deal of energy in an effort to confine the annoyance to one spot. The latest move will be to sink the Alex Scott shaft of the Butte-Montana company to a depth of 1,200 feet in an effort to run a crosscut beneath the seat of the disturbance. The Minnie Healy, the Leonard, the West Colusa and the Alex Scott being practically closed down for the present, it is expected that the fire and the obnoxious gases will be completely disposed of by the time orders are received for a resumption of operations.

The Gambetta shaft will also be used for an updraft conjunction with the Minnie Healy, West Colusa and the Alex Scott, and with the flooding of the seat of the fire by means of holes made by the diamond drills, will probably gain control in a few weeks.

A depth of 1,000 feet has been attained in the Greenleaf shaft of the Amalgamated Copper company, on the flat southeast of the Butte & London property, and a station is being cut at that depth. As soon as the station is completed a crosscut will be run south to intersect the vein which was cut by the shaft at the depth of 840 feet. The vein is one of the most important that has been encountered in that section of the country, and it is expected that it will give commercial values at the present depth.

The opening up of commercial ore bodies in the Greenleaf will be of the greatest importance to all the new companies operating on the flat, and especially to the Butte & London company, it being firmly believed that the vein on which the Amalgamated company is working passes in a northwesterly direction through the Butte & London property.

The Colusa-Leonard Extension company has already cut a promising vein, having a width of 200 feet, in the shaft, and this will undoubtedly be reached by the crosscut which is now being run from the 860-foot level.

The Badger State shaft is now down to a depth of 600 feet, and will be continued to the 1,200 or 1,500-foot depth before any underground work is done.

COMANCHE COMPANY'S MILL

New Three-Hundred Ton Furnace Proving a Success Beyond Expectations of Its Designer and Officials of the Company.

Silver City, N. M., Oct. 5.—The new three-hundred ton furnace at the Comanche Mining & Smelting company's reduction work has been put into operation and is proving a success beyond all expectations of its designer, and the officials of the company. Up to the present time the new furnace has run 30 per cent above its capacity with a fuel consumption no greater than the old furnace. This is attributed to its careful construction and the increased size, on the principle that a large fire is proportionately harder to put out than a smaller one.

Viewed from the top the furnace is an oblong opening in a concrete floor into which is being constantly emptied large wheelbarrow loads of ore flux and coke. The copper green flames that creep through the surface and an occasional glimpse of the white hot mass below give some idea of the intense heat. Raised three or four feet above the top of the furnace is an immense hood, which tapers into a five foot iron stack. This, after arising about twenty feet at an angle of 45 degrees, takes a downward turn and disappears into the floor ond from there enters into the large chimney. This device saves the dust carried out of the furnace by the draught, and its mineral contents are saved.

Air forced into the furnace at the bottom by immense blowers, quickly reduces the whole to a fluid, the walls of the furnace being kept from burning by the constant flow of cold water through the enclosing water jackets. Out of the bottom of the furnace the molten stream runs into a tank, in which the heavier substances, the metals, sink to the bottom, the lighter, the molten rock or slag, remains on the surface to be drawn off and hauled in immense iron slag pots to the slag dump. Every four hours the metal is drawn from the bottom of settler into convenient molds. This is the product, the copper matte.

SOCIETY

AN OUT OF DOOR WEEK is what the last one might be named socially. It might be named several other things. But so long as Duluth provides such an autumnal out of doors at this time of year just so long will society refuse to be cooped up under pretext whatever and just so long will people be occupied with nothing but that which may be enjoyed out of doors. Golf exerts its sway more potently than at any other time of year and the Country club with delightful location is the scene of many delightful affairs. Cross country walks and shore suppers with high blazing fires are among the things that quietly distract attention.

Society's thoughts turn in the midst of all this to the cold days to come and the duty that is owed the less fortunate ones who are facing winter with more dread in the hardships to be endured than in participations of snow shoe tramps. And one of the most effective bits of charity done during the year is the annual work of the Duluth branch of the Needlework Guild. The call has already gone forth for the contributors and members to get ready for the round-up the latter part of November, at which time so much help and assistance is so expeditiously provided for many institutions and individuals of the city. The annual round-up will be held Oct. 29 and already the president, Miss Ensign, and the district presidents are busily arranging for three days of busy endeavor.

Mrs. G. A. St. Clair entertained at luncheon at the Country club Thursday. The table decorations were in white rosebuds and ferns, and her guests were:

Mesdames—
Homer Collins, Berlah Magoffin,
W. J. Olcott, W. C. Agnew,
Charles d'Autremont, Frank Lynam,
J. Q. A. Crosby, A. W. Dutton,
Miss Lillian St. Clair.

The first of the series of dances at which the members of Palestine assembly were hosts was given last evening in the hall room of of Masonic temple, and was a delightful affair. The members of the assembly entertained at a series of dances last winter, which were much enjoyed by the members and their guests, and this season's events are being eagerly anticipated. La Brosse played a delightful program of dance music, and nearly 200 guests were present.

Mrs. M. S. Hirshfield will read a paper on "The Life of Lessing," and Mrs. J. C. H. Engle will present a paper on "Lessing as a Critic," and Mrs. Mary Nelson will give readings from "Nathan the Wise."

Browning Study Class.

The first meeting of the year of the Browning Study class of the Twentieth Century club will be held Thursday morning of next week at th club room of the library. The poems of Mrs. Browning will be studied with Miss Abbie Upham as leader. Those interested in the study of Browning are invited to attend the class.

Twentieth Century Club.

The value of a department club is being demonstrated by the Twentieth Century club more forcibly this year than ever before. The Twentieth Century club, the most representative of the women's clubs of Duluth, is this year providing greater opportunities for its members than ever before. In addition to the study classes, which consist of a Morning Shakespear class, a Browning study class and literature class for the study of German literature and a travel class, two series of lectures have been arranged which will be free to members of the club. Rev. John Walker Powell, Jr., who has appeared before this cub for two years in Browning lectures will appear before this club again this year. The subject upon which he will speak and the date are as follows:

Jan. 3.—"Sordello."
Jan. 10.—"Caliban upon Setebos."
Jan. 17.—"The Men of Browning."
Jan. 24.—"The Women of Browning."
Feb. 1.—"The Key to Browning's Opportunity."

In addition to this series of lectures Kate Upson Clark of Brooklyn, the brilliant lecturer and writer, will appear before the club for a series of three lectures. The dates and subjects will be as follows:

Oct. 22.—"Slomon as the Modern Woman."
Oct. 23.—"The Effect of Club Life Upon Domestic Life."
Oct. 26.—"The Essential and Non-Essentials of Life."

Any woman interested in the work of the club is invited to attend any of the first meetings of the various classes and become a member of the club if she desires.

DePachmann's Address.

De Pachmann, the Russian pianist, who will appear in Duluth, the first attraction in the Star Lecture course at the Methodist church, is an eccentric genius and the following story is told of him in The Concert Goer:

"Several years ago, on the occasion of the great Berlin Musico-Pedagogical congress, at which the leading spirits were Richard Strauss, Joseph Joachim, Xaver Scharwenka, Max Bruch, Saint-Saens, and many others of the world's best known musicians, Vladimer De Pachmann was selected to represent the fraternity of famous piano virtuosi, and the committee invited him to make an address. De Pachmann prepared a thoughtful and interesting discourse, and occupied his platform seat at the appointed time on a certain evening. The chairman—he shall be nameless here—was a bumptious and tactless person who not only appropriated a full hour for his own talk, but also introduced several speakers who were not on the program at all. It was almost midnight when the chairman said to the audience:

"'Vladimir De Pachmann, whose name is his best introduction wherever musical folk are assembled, will now honor us with his address.'

"De Pachmann rose, and said calmly: 'My address is Hotel Deutscher Hof, on the Koniggratzer Strasse, City of Berlin, and I now wish you all good night for I am far from home.'"

Circle to Meet.

Circle No. 2 of the Endion Methodist church will meet Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. William Clifford of 1917 East First street.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior class meeting on Wednesday afternoon was the best showing of class spirit since the freshman year. The entire class gathered in the assembly hall, and the following officers were elected: President, Philip Poirier; vice president, Edna Park; secretary, Senta Erd; treasurer, Howard Manley; editor in chief of Zenith Board, Hal Brown; class historian, Mildred Washburn; sergeants at arms, Dean Coventry and Jack Kennedy; mascot, Jack Craig.

The class is at present in debt to a considerable extent, but the class plays, with the dues, will put it on a good financial basis. It is expected that the president will soon appoint a committee to find a few more class yells as the class has but one, which is not very effective for quick, loud yelling.

Tuesday night the second team scored on the first. That's "going some" for the second team, but what about the first team? Coach Colton isn't saying much about championship teams these days. Superior sent a large delegation over to witness the game last Saturday. They looked a little pale on the way home, but they are just as anxious to beat Duluth as Duluth is to beat them.

The lid is evidently off in the lunch room, for they are still serving that delicious ice cream.

Senior boys and girls are appearing in their full chemistry regalia and look somewhat like cartoons in the funny papers. The boys have a great time tying each others' apron strings and getting the garments on right side before.

It has been announced that the pupils must pass to the lunch room in a more orderly manner, and that when the lunch bell rings it is not to be taken as the "call of the wild." In case this tip is not taken, the lunch room will have to be closed for a time.

The Dramatic club has received copies of "The Rivals" and parts will soon be given out for a production of the play, which will take place in the near future. The seniors are taking up "As You Like It," with Prof. Lambert. A cast will be selected from those whose class work is the best in the piece ,and it is planned to produce the play on the senior commencement night next June.

Prof. Landi is planning to organize a French club on plans similar to the German society. If the club is a success a play will be given later in the year. Mr. Landi's new conversational class held once a week makes quite a hit with the students, as it is something entirely new.

Friday night the boys who make a noise like football fans meet in the assembly hall to rehearse the yells. If yelling will win the game, there ought to be a big score against Ashland.

Thursday afternoon the Agasiz club held its first meeting under the direction of Prof. Ulrich. Leo Schmied was elected vice president and Miss Clara Green secretary and treasurer. The club will take up the work it had last year with a few new features.

On Monday and Tuesday mornings the seats were given out in chapel.

Monday night the election of officers took place for the Public Speaking club. Oscar Helam was elected president; John Quinn, vice president; Andrew Medahl, secretary; Ray Phillips, treasurer, and Prof. Sprague, the new English teacher, was made manager.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Helon Leach to Become Manager of the Athletic Teams.

Dr. Richard Burton is Preparing to Publish a Novelette.

Minneapolis, Oct. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Helon Leach, former assistant athletic manager under Frank Reed, will probably succeed Reed as manager of Minnesota's athletic teams. The position will be offered to Leach by the athletic board of control, and it will undoubtedly be accepted. The proposition calls for a salary of $500 until June, and of $1,000 a year after that. Leach is a senior law, prominent in baseball and basketball. He is a Delta Theta Chi.

At the last board meeting John Gleason was present and took part in the discussion and voting, but did not preside.

The following men were awarded "M's" for participation in baseball last spring: Granaard, McRae, Brown, Dretchko, Marshall, Kestling, Capron, Caldwell, Larsen, Larson, Rossman, Walker and Doane. John Esser was appointed head guard, and E. J. Trowbridge, head usher.

Dr. Richard Burton has a novelette which will be ready for the public within a few months, a sketch which he calls "Three of a Kind." "A few years ago Dr. Burton published a few short stories, but lately he has turned his pen to poetry, until his most recent inspiration found expression in this new work. The principal characters are an old musician and a dog, portrayed after the life of a faithful animal that the author once owned. There are yet one or two more chapters to be written, and after a final revision the book will be sent to an Eastern publisher.

Shevlin Hall will open its doors next Wendnesday night to the university and overtown friends of Miss Comstock, dean of women. The reception is to be given by the Woman's league, assisted by members of the faculty and their wives.

Ruth Colter, Geneve Wales and Mary Heritage attended the thirteenth annual convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs, which was held in Faribault this week. They spoke to the federation on the needs of a girl's dormitory at the university. It will be remembered that Minneapolis club women interested themselves in this subject last winter and headed a delegation of girls, who spoke before the legislature on this same question.

Dr. Williams has wrought wonders in the past ten days with the "varsity." Progress at first was slow on account of the great amount of raw material. Capt. Schuknecht is the only "M" man on the team, and a portion of the team has had no football experience. A second difficulty was the lack of opposing material for practice games. Alumni games are prohibited by conference rules and the second team contains no seasoned men.

Dr. Williams says, however, that the snap and vim shown in practice plays will go a long way in making up for deficiencies. Signal work has occupied part of the time, but some lively scrimmage work with the second team has taken place.

Harry Capron has been put at quarter. He gets plays started with force and his passing is fast. Mowery holds down right end and with Dunn at center and Rademacher at full it begins to look as if this would be the combination for The Ames game at least. Capt. Schuknecht is playing up to his last year's form, and Woodrich seems to be making good on left end. George Capron promises to be one of the big successes of the year.

The loss of two stars in the girls' basketball team hurts the prospects for good backetball this year. Helen Cummings, captain of last year's 'varsity team, and Caro Browne, will not be out this year, on account of heavy courses. Only three old players are out, leaving two places to be filled. The freshman class contains some promising material. Arrangements for games with Nebraska and North Dakota are already under way.

Miss Margaret Burton, the new Y. W. C. A. secretary, arrived this week and will enter upon her duties at once. Bible study classes are to be organized immediately, and the regular systematic work begun.

Margaret Denfeld has been elected a member of the Thalian Literary society.

Some of the Duluth men pledged this year are: J. V. Claypool, J. A. Scott and William Pierce, Phi Kappa Psi: Laird Goodman, Psi U.; Harold Wyman and Reynold Suffel, Chi Psi.

Miss Clopath, art instructor at the university, has gone to Duluth to lecture Saturday afternoon on "The Value of Art Study."

Registrar Pierce is starting work on the student directory. November 1 is the date he has set for issuing it, but some students have neglected to hand in addresses, so its issue has been delayed.

It is expected that a total of 4,300 students' names will be found in the directory.

The Autumn Bride And Her Wardrobe

RECEPTION TOILETTE IN TOPAZ LANSDOWNE

THE NORMANDY CAP ARRANGEMENT OF THE VEIL —

VISITING COSTUME.

Garments Should Be Selected With Regard to Their Use - The Wedding Dress May Do Duty as a Reception Frock Later - Bridal Millinery and the All-Important Veil.

The idea of a June or Easter wedding may be more alluring than a similar event in chill October, but the subject of clothes in connection with such an event is ever paramount in interest to the greater majority of the fair sex. Whisper the word trousseau and where is the woman who is not on the qui vive for the least fragment of conversation on this interesting subject. We do not hear the word trousseau so much in these latter days as of old. Ultra costumers and couturieres are styling this special collection of garments "The Bridal Wardrobe," but to show the charm of the time honored French title seems to be lost in the more prosaic English phrase.

But trousseau or wardrobe, call it what you will, it makes little difference to the happy bride who is to wear it. Her only concern is its selection, a matter which depends entirely on the kind of wedding and the subsequent honeymoon. Naturally the bride whose wedding journey is to be an extended trip over various parts of the country will require a larger and more complete wardrobe than she who settles down immediately in the new home made for her by her partner in life.

However, there are certain things which should be included in every trousseau. Very frequently the wedding dress is likewise the travelling gown or may be the dressier visiting or reception costume, which will also be worn for evening on such occasions when a strictly evening frock is not demanded.

The Practical Tailor Made.

Then there is the walking suit, a severely tailored coat and skirt, worn with smart tailored shirts of linen or light weight worsteds, natty neckwear and chic millinery, together with all the other accessories which go to the finishing of the up-to-date street costumes.

Various Uses of the Separate Utility Coat.

Every wardrobe should include at least one separate coat for utility wear—a garment built for comfort and service. Its mould must be simple and smart and the material of a color and texture immune to all sorts of weather conditions. Brown and dark green are two splendid colors for a garment of this kind; so also is grey. They are fashionable and have the added virtue of not showing the wear and tear usually given a garment of this character.

Aside from their use as travelling coats they are just the thing for automobile wear and are especially attractive, either walking or driving, when worn with one of those little one piece dresses which continue their linen and lingerie vogue of the summer time in pretty worsteds and silks. The coat models in natty Scotch mixtures of dark staple colors with white are distinctive for their beauty of cut; each line of the garment giving the best possible figure lines. Sometimes the long seams from shoulder to hem are accented by braid or cloth strappings but even this trimming is limited in its use. The whole effort of the designer of women's garments seems to be centered this season in the perfection of cut. One reason for this, and it may be said the main reason, is the vogue of fancy fabrics which makes it necessary to develop them in the simplest and most artistic modes.

Velvet a High Style Fabric.

Velvet in the soft supple qualities adaptable to the modes of the day is to be used in dressy costumes again this year. Its most popular color now seems to be a rich purple—prelat purple—set off by trimmings of beautiful braids and accessories of costly fur. It is a shade which looks well with any fur and consequently we may expect to see it accompanied with the long, black glossy Lynx, rich Sables, Chinchilla and Ermine and others of the fashionable pelts. Those who cannot afford the expenditure which a costume of silk velvet necessarily entails, may choose velveteen with the consciousness that it is just as good style and will, in truth, give twice the amount of wear for half the cost.

Materials for Dressy Costumes.

There is such a range of fashionable materials for the gown which is to do duty as a semi-dressy dinner frock, a calling and church costume, that one cannot go wrong in selecting any one of the beautiful weaves offered in the shops today. All the soft silks, crepes, lansdownes and the chiffon broadcloths come in a bewildering range of colors and shades and these are easily matched at the trimming counter in braids and handsome ornaments. The crepes de chine and lansdownes are also attractively employed in dainty house gowns made up on simple empire and princess lines and trimmed in the simplest way with fine lace, ribbon and hand embroideries. Hand embroideries, by the way, are highly prized in this season's fashions, and the girl who can elaborate her frocks with her own handwork is indeed fortunate, for the dressmaker made embroidered frock is quite out of the question with the average girl, so excessive are the prices asked for such creations. On the other hand, one can have the dress made by some reputable establishment and supply one's own handwork as the design of the costume demands or add such finishing touches after the gown has left the costumer's hands.

Negligees.

Negligees are dainty articles of the trousseau which every prospective bride loves almost as much as the wedding gown. In these all sorts of charming effects are possible, and that too for a small outlay of money, for there are such delightful inexpensive fabrics which one can develop just as artistically and satisfactorily as the more expensive stuffs. The lace bargain table is a treasure trove for the girl who "simply must have one of those ribbon and lace peignoirs," and those new Japanese landscape cotton crepes make such delightful oriental looking kimonos.

Bridal Millinery.

The millinery this fall is unusually attractive, being of that picturesque type which is generally becoming to everybody. A hat may be dressy in style yet very serviceable in materials, and one should look for this quality when buying the traveling hat especially.

That Important Accessory, the Bridal Veil.

The subject of headgear brings to mind the wedding veil, its material and the arrangement. Lace veils, unless heirlooms, are the luxury of the rich only, but even these fortune favored very often prefer the soft tulle and malinette. Since it is not the fashion any more to have the short face veil a number of new arrangements of this accessory have come into vogue, quite the prettiest of which is the Normandy cap. The head of the veil is pleated into quaint cap form and pinned over the knot and pompadour of the high hairdressing. A handsome pin holds it in place at the front, or the conventional spray of orange blossoms can be used.

THE TRAVELLING COAT.

Brides of Mature Age.

Whether or no a woman should marry a man much younger than herself is after all a question each woman must decide finally for herself. During the last few years this class of marriages has increased so markedly that there seems to have been a popular change of view on the subject. Years ago parents opposed their sons marrying women older than themselves, but recently this prejudice seems to have lost a good deal of ground. There is no denying the fact that women nowadays retain their youth both mentally and physically much longer than their grandmothers are related to have done.

The dreary period of middle age for women seems to have been abolished. The increasing duties of women and their far greater freedom of choosing a career and leading lives after their own desire seems to protect them from growing old and uninteresting as was the case only a generation or so ago. From the man's point of view the fact that his wife is experienced and can carry her own end of the burden at home is attractive to what seems to be a rapidly growing number of marriageable men. The mature woman also furthers her husband in business and in social advancement. Also she has learned how to avoid many of the pitfalls of society and rarely gives her husband the uneasiness or heart burnings that younger and more frivolous wives are very apt to do. It is usually men anxious to succeed in life and who care a great deal about climbing up socially or financially who wed women older than themselves. This class has recently been especially noticeable in the big cities of Europe and in this country as well.

Things It Is Well to Know.

Paris designers have again taken up the Russian blouse, and are making much of the mode in both separate garments and suit coats. The separate blouse is of seven eighths length, while that forming the second piece of the street suit extends only to the knee line. The coat skirt is gathered onto the blouse belt of the trimming, which forms the side band on the left shoulder and that on the skirt running from belt to hem.

Long, slinky skirts differentiate Paquin's costumes for the fall and winter from those of many other French makers, and since Paquin is the great French authority on fashions, we may expect to see numbers of this type of skirt in dressy gowns throughout the winter. His newest skirt is the first suggestion of the return of the draped skirt, it being puckered halfway between the waistline and the knee, and worn with a very high girdle.

The overskirt idea is not without favor in fall fashions. Any number of the high class costume makers have adopted the overskirt for their most artistic and successful model. A variety of effects are possible with this mode. Some are short in the front and long in the back, suggesting a skirted bodice; others are long in the front, slope upward on the sides and down again in the back, and again this order is reversed, bringing the deepest part of the overskirt at the sides.

During the past summer it has been the fashion in Paris to wear dark coats with light colored skirts, dark blue and black cutaways with white linen skirts. And now this idea is to be followed out over here in America where we will wear plaid, check and novelty worsted skirts with plain cloth coats. It is a mode which represents considerable economy, and will thus appeal to many women. One may have three or four different skirts and wear each with one coat, so long as the coat and skirt harmonize in color.

The fad for bindings which started in midsummer millinery has made rapid progress within the last few weeks. Scarcely a fall hat which is not bound at the edge with silk, satin or velvet—velvet hats with silk and satin and felt hats using all three of these materials. The latest use of these bindings, however, is in tailored suits, where the edges of the coat, pockets, collar and cuffs are bound with braid, a plain binding braid about an inch wide. Black coats with these braid bindings are especially smart. Silk coats are frequently bound with cloth, and velvet and handsome broadcloth suits use satin bindings.

A distinguishing feature of fall costumes is the use of pendant ornaments on dressy gowns and two piece costumes. Maison Templier gowns show a lot of bugles in various sizes. Other makers employ fourgurieres and cord drops, the artistic use of which gives a very distinctive air to a plain costume of beautiful cut.

The most important feature of fashions today is the cut. Materials and trimmings are both fancy this season, and for this reason the simplest modes must be followed to make their development a success. Every line of the costume must be studied carefully to give that long, thin appearance of the Parisienne figure, and not a yard more of material used than is absolutely necessary to the correct modeling of the gown.

Description of Illustrations.

The Normandy Cap Arrangement of the Veil.

There are various attractive ways of arranging the wedding veil each becoming to the various types of face and figure. What looks charming on one may be wholly unbecoming to another, so that the various arrangements should be carefully studied to gain in the end the most artistic effect. The once fashionable face veil, thrown back over the coiffure at the end of the ceremony is no longer used, though it cannot be denied that there was an indefinable fascination about it which appealed to many. The Normandy cap arrangement of the veil whether it be of tulle or lace is perhaps the most artistic and generally becoming of any now in vogue. The hair is arranged high on the head and the top of the veil softly pleated into cap form over the knot, and pinned in place at the front with a handsome brooch or finished with the conventional spray of orange blossoms. This arrangement of the veil over the softly waved pompadour is equally successful with tulle or lace.

Visiting Costume in Prelat Purple Velvet.

As a material for the dressy afternoon costume nothing is more elegant and higher style than velvet. In the soft supple weaves of this season it is particularly adapted to the present modes, and many of the most ultra models for the early fall and winter are of velvet in the new shades. Purple is especially popular and will be seen much among the fashionables this year, trimmed with rich braids, satins and fur. The suit illustrated is a dressy walking model suitable for afternoon reception, visiting or matinee wear. The skirt is pleated, each pleat stitched flat over the hips, and the top of the hem is finished with a band of novelty braid about an inch wide, topped with two rows of soutache, this trimming in the same purple shade as the velvet. The coat is a garment of beautiful cut trimmed with braids and ermine fur. The fronts, crossing surplicewise at the waistline, are faced with the fur, likewise the novel sleeves of seven eighths lengths which may be turned back to elbow length to form a fur cuff when the coat fronts are worn open. A fitting accompaniment for such a costume is a chapeau of black velvet trimmed with white plumes.

Reception Toilette in Topas Lansdowne.

The new shade of topaz which has already made quite a place for itself in fall fashions is the color scheme of this lansdowne frock for reception wear and all occasions when a dressy costume of this cast is in order. The skirt, touching all around and trailing some six inches in the back, is gathered slightly into the waistband over the hips and in the back, though it is perfectly smooth fitting in the front where there is a front panel which widens as it approaches the feet. A flounce effect is created by tiny pin tucks, and between these tucks, in clusters of three, are applied bands of the lansdowne. The close fitting draped bodice has a tight boned lining, serving as a foundation for the high girdle into which blouses the lace guimpe and the lansdowne shoulder drapery, ornamented with revers of topaz taffetas embroidered in gold and silver. Striped gilt and silver buttons are also part of the bodice trimming, these in two sizes. The sleeves are of lace with elbow cuffs of the taffetas.

Peignoir of Ribbon and Lace.

What may be accomplished with ribbons and laces in the way of a pretty negligee is illustrated in this delightful boudoir creation of palest pink satin ribbon and Valenciennes insertions. The shops ask all kinds of high prices for these peignoirs, but the clever needle woman can produce one equally as pretty for a third and even a quarter of the price of the ready-made article. All that is necessary is a flat pattern of paper over which the lace and ribbon are basted, and then a little patience in sewing each strip of lace and ribbon together. In the garment the cross line of ribbon and lace is broken under the arm by the panel of points outlined with a narrow beading of cluny like that joining the body of the gown and the circular flounce. The ribbon is shirred over tiny featherbone cords into the lines of a Zouave jacket and this same treatment is noted in the sleeves, which are open on the top of the arm and tied together with narrow ribbon amid the cascades of lace. The neck is cut rounding and finished with a lace frill which follows the edges of the front to the bottom of the skirt. A dainty petticoat of fine cotton with lace or embroidery trimmings is worn with such a gown.

The Traveling Hat Has an Abundance of Ribbon and Feather Trimming.

The traveling hat of course depends much on the costume with which it is to be worn. The oldtime idea of matching the hat to the costume is not adhered to rigidly in these days, but it is necessary that it harmonize with the suit or frock in style as well as color. While dressy hats are worn with severely tailored costumes, it should be borne in mind that the traveling hat is subjected to much harder wear than one's ordinary street chapeau, and for this reason, the style and materials should be carefully selected. Wings, quills, breasts and feathers of the coq variety, together with silks, velvets and ribbons are beautiful trimmings which represent an infinite amount of service. An attractive hat for a bride of the autumn is a drooping brim shape of smoke brown velvet trimmed with coq feathers and wide, heavy satin ribbons in a lighter shade. These are arranged to entirely cover the round crown, half the side and front brim and the back brim, the feathers falling over the edge of the back brim several inches.

The Traveling Coat Is a Smart Model.

The traveling coat is such a utilitarian garment serving so many different uses in the wardrobe, that it should be selected with the utmost care. The style of garment should be considered first and then the material of which it is made. The most serviceable material and quite the smartest this season is a Scotch mixture which never wrinkles in wearing and does not show the dust and dirt of travel. This illustrated model is an especially good garment. It has the broadened shoulder line attained with a Gibson pleat piped with brown velvet, brown being the color of the fabric, and the newest cut possible in traveling coats. The double breasted front fastening with novelty metal buttons is loose fitting, while the back is fitted in to the figure just enough to suggest its lines. The full length coat sleeves are roomy enough for any blouse sleeve, and the cuffs, like the collar, are of brown velvet stitched with silk in a lighter shade. As a street garment with one of those little "dressees" which are to be so popular this winter such a coat is particularly good style.

Oyster Recipes.

Boiled Turkey and Oyster Stuffing. Take a medium-sized turkey and stuff it with the following ingredients: Chop four ounces of suet very finely; mix it with six ounces of bread crumbs, the grated rind of half a lemon, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt, cayenne pepper and grated nutmeg to taste. Take the beards off two dozen oysters, add them and their liquor, strained, and lastly two eggs. Truss the bird and tie it in a cloth. Place the turkey breast downward in boiling water and when it has come again to the boil skim well and simmer gently for an hour and a half, or longer, according to size.

Scalloped Oysters.—Two dozen oysters, one ounce butter, one ounce flour, two tablespoonfuls of milk, pepper, salt, bread crumbs. Scald the oysters in their own liquor; take them out, beard them. Melt the butter in a stewpan, stir in the flour, the milk, the strained liquor from the oysters, pepper, salt; let it boil up; stir in the oysters, heat gradually, but do not boil. Butter some scallop shells, lay in the oysters and as much of the sauce as they will hold, cover with bread crumbs, on the top of which put small pieces of butter; brown them in the oven or before the fire.

AT THE LYCEUM

Mack-Leone Players, Ezra Kendall and "The Hypocrites" Will Give Varied Program for Week at the Lyceum.

Next week will be another full one at the Lyceum.

Tomorrow the Mack Leone players will return to the Lyceum with Nat Goodwin's great success, "In Missouri," giving both an afternoon and evening performance.

Monday and Tuesday evenings, Ezra Kendall will be seen in his "license for laughter," "Swell Elegant Jones."

Wednesday afternoon and night and Thursday the Mack Leone players will give three more performances of "In Missouri," and Friday and Saturday nights with a Saturday matinee, "The Hypocrites," the big Froham production, which has electrified Chicago, will be seen.

Tonight the last performance of "The Heir to the Hoorah" will be given.

"IN MISSOURI."

Mack-Leone Players Will Present Nat Goodwin's Drama.

"In Missouri," the bill which the Mack-Leone players will use the coming week commencing Sunday matinee and continuing Wednesday and Thursday, is a story built on self sacrifice and the love of Jim Radburn, the sheriff for the daughter of the village blacksmith, who in turn loves another man, who is unworthy. The discovery that the man she loves is a criminal, the sheriff's obvious duty to arrest the man, and his allowing him to escape because the girl he loves loves the criminal, make a pretty story.

While there is nothing new in this particular situation it is so free from bombast, so removed from theatrical heroic, so gentle and withal so human, that it does not seem as if the auditor was listening to a play, but had stumbled onto the little romance quite by accident and was unwilling to leave until he had heard it told.

Nat Goodwin will use the play this coming season, which in itself speaks more for "In Missouri" than could anything else, as Mr. Goodwin is a man who has hundreds of plays submitted to him every year, and who now goes back to a piece which he laid on the shelf eight years ago.

Willard Mack will appear as Sheriff Jim Radburn, the uneducated, big-hearted officer of the law, who allows his prisoner to escape because his love for Kate Vernon is stronger than his duty to the state, and Miss Beatrice Meadex will play Kate Vernon, the girl whom he loves. William Fitzsimmons and Dorothy Davis have two great "rube" parts.

The scenic artist and the stage boys at the Lyceum are working day and night to make "In Missouri" one of the big productions of the season.

JUST FUN.

Is What Ezra Kendall Promises Lyceum Patrons.

"They will sell court plaster by the stick" at the Lyceum for two nights, beginning Monday, when Ezra Kendall begins an engagement under the management of the Harry Askin company. There is no comedian who can create more laughs than Kendall, who will appear here in a comedy bearing the title, "Swell Elegant Jones."

"Swell Elegant Jones" has been provided not only with a logical interesting plot, but with lines which give Mr. Kendall opportunities to deliver the best of his scintillating epigrams, sharp wit and delightful humor. He has also introduced his famous twenty-minute monologue, "My Face Slipped Out of My Hand," in the second act.

Kendall is the same Kendall, whether he's buying vinegar in "The Vinegar Buyer," selling Benson's bean bread and potato cakes in "Weatherbeaten Benson," or meeting his troubles with jest and joke in "Swell Elegant Jones," for "he couldn't be different if he would, and he wouldn't if he could."

Although constructed for Kendall and Kendall ways, "Swell Elegant Jones" tells a coherent and interesting story, in which country folk of a small Indiana village figure largely. This allows or the introduction of several quaint characters, who prove excellent foils for Mr. Kendall, besides adding comedy themselves. Mr. Kendall appears as a quaint philosopher and keen observer, quick at repartee, and in the costumes in which he is known best—the tall hat and long black frock coat, though it's "not the hat which makes the laugh—it's what's under it."

"Swell Elegant Jones" has been staged by John Stapleton, who produced "The Heir to the Hoorah" and "The Virginian." In short, its a Kendall play, in the Kendall way, which means a fun play, and full of clean wholesome humor. The seat sale for the engagement is open.

"THE HYPOCRITES."

Story of the Frohman Production Coming to Lyceum.

"The Hypocrites," which is generally conceded to be the masterpiece of the author, Henry Arthur Jones, is to receive its local presentation at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee.

Charles Frohman presents the play and it was generally conceded to be the dramatic triumph of last season and the most talked about play of the year. It is the story of a girl who trusts and finds that she has trusted too implicitly to the word of her lover. Society stones her and sends the man free to live his life in full honor and in the odor of sanctity. The satire in the play is spoken of as most trenchant, and the story stirring in its succession of dramatic scenes that follow one another in such rapid sequence and of such tensity as to hold the audience as in a vise.

In selecting the company for "The Hypocrites," Mr. Frohman has picked his players with a special regard for their fitness in the various roles they are called upon to interpret.

Mr. Jones has told his story in four acts, all of the scenes being laid in a small village, Weybury, in the south of England. The young son of the house of Wilmore has deceived a good young woman, Rachel Neve, prior to the opening of the play, and on the rise of the curtain it is learned that he is about to marry the daughter of a wealthy neighbor. Young Wilmore's father is the lord of the manor of Weybury, a loud, outspoken, hypocritical moralist, who would force every one to his own beliefs of the proprieties of life. His morality is inpregnable from his own standpoint. When confronted with that of his son the elder Wilmore uses every means in his power to hide the scandal. The stumbling block is a young curate, the Rev. Edgar Linnell, who is dependent upon the elder Wilmore for his living, and he is a thorough believer in not doing right for the sake of expediency, but for its own sake. Wilmore has the unqualified assistance of his wife, who is bound up in the coming marriage of her son, and in the legal advice of his astute family solicitor. The curate, however, has very positive views of his own and he proposes to live up to them even though it costs him his living and any possible advancement which might come were he to recede from his position, which he has manfully and fearlessly assumed. The great scene of the play comes at the end of the third act. The scandal has got abroad, and the future father-in-law to be, of young Wilmore, insists that the name of his daughter's fiance be cleared. Even the wronged girl has been persuaded oy his family to make a written denial absolving their son, doing this and making the sacrifice of herself, thinking to prove her love. When it comes to an oral examination her efforts in giving testimony to help the young man are too great; she swoons under the ordeal. A moment before young Wilmore has boldly confronted his accuser, the curate, even giving him the lie. The young clergyman is apparently completely defeated in his efforts to right the great wrong which has been done. He is ordered from the house. But when Rachel faints, young Wilmore is so overcome that he rushes to her side, catches her in his arms as she is falling, publicly confesses his sin, and begs forgiveness from every one. The curate is righted. The principal characters are in the hands of the flower of Charles Frohman's forces. Richard Bennett plays the young curate, Donald MacLaren, young Wilmore; Louis Massen and Jessie Millward, his parents, while others in the cast are Arthur Elliott, J. R. Crawford, W. H. Denny, Cecil Kingstone, Jay Wilson, Olive Temple, Grace Hadsell, Helen Tracy, Louise Reed and Mabel Morrison. The stage settings are said to be particularly effective and atmospheric.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Miss New York Jr., With Frank A. Gotch, America's Champion Wrestler, As a Special Feature, Will Be the Attraction There All Next Week.

Miss New York, Jr., made one of the biggest hits of last season at the Metropolitan and next week, when the company plays its annual engagement here, it is expected that all records at that theater will be shattered, as Frank A. Gotch, America's champion wrestler, has been engaged as a special attraction with the organization.

The coming of Gotch is particularly interesting at this time, in view of his approaching meeting with Hackenschmidt, Europe's best wrestler. These men will wrestle for the championship of the world at Kansas City next May.

Gotch will meet all comers at every performance of the Miss New York, Jr., company during the week and will forfeit $100 to anyone whom he fails to throw in fifteen minutes. Some good men will meet the champion during the week.

Upon its own merits, Miss New York, Jr., is said to be a crackerjack show. Patrons of the Metropolitan remember it very pleasantly from last season, and it is the boast of the management that last year's entertainment has been eclipsed from every point of view. The olio teams with high-priced acts, not the least of which is that of Ampere, known as "the King of Electricity." His act caused much comment in the Eastern vaudeville houses this summer. It is said that he allows currents of electricity to pass through his body and he performs such feats as lighting a cigarette and pieces of cloth with his fingers. Another stunt he does is to hold two pieces of steel together, under water, by the contact of his bare hands.

Abe Reynolds, a well known comedian, is the principal fun-maker, with the organization and in the present production is said to have ample opportunities in the way of clever lines and situations.

Other well known troupers are Dave Ferguson, George Perry, the Esterbrooks, Davis and Davis, and Miss Lee White, hailed as one of the handsomest women on the light musical stage.

Miss New York, Jr., will begin her engagement at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon, Oct. 6, and will give matinees as well on Tuesday, Thursday (ladies' day) and Saturday.

AT THE BIJOU

Andrews Grand Opera Company Will Present Scenes From Faust Next Week. Spanish Dancer in Pantomine Performance. Other Big Features.

The program of vaudeville attractions seen at the Bijou next week, should be one of the best shows ever seen at the popular theater.

Heading the bill will be the Nellie Andrews Opera company, from the original Andrews Opera company, which toured the country several years ago, and was one of the most prominent of all opera companies during its career. The present company, which is now touring the principal vaudeville theaters of the country, includes such noted operatic singers as Louis La Valle, Henri Gunson and W. C. Deusing. Louise Lehman, the noted director and pianist, is directing the act. Two scenes from Faust will be presented. The first will be the laboratory scene from Faust and the second Valentine's home and garden. As a musical treat the Andrews company will surpass anything ever seen at the Bijou.

Other acts of excellence will be George Stewart, known as "The Man who Made the Mississippi Famous." Mr. Stewart will offer an act of imitations which are original.

A good comedy act will be Evan Evans in an original monologue introducing new parodies, new jokes and original sayings.

H. E. Parkhurst will render a new illustrated song entitled, "I Can't Find Another Girl Like You."

As an added feature attraction and one engaged at heavy expense, the management presents "La Belle Estillita," the dancer, who was the craze of New York during her recent and first American appearance. La Estillita will be assisted by Senor Garcia in "The Dancer and the Toreador," a pantomime in one act. The action takes place near Malaga, Spain. Jealousy of a professional dancer exists between two bull fighters, a quarrel takes place. The less favored one mortally stabs his rival and escapes. The act shows the cause of the duel and many interesting scenes.

The moving pictures for the week will show a number of Edison's latest and best subjects. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon and regular performances on Sunday afternoon and night.

SCENE FROM ACT III OF "THE HYPOCRITES." At the Lyceum Next Week.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

The Young Season Already Prolific of Surprises and Failures---Farnum in "The Ranger" Cost Frohman a Pretty Penny.

New York, Oct. 5.—The season is very young, goodness knows, but already the inevitable shifts on the theatrical checker board, which come with the season's advance, involving heart-breaking disappointments and in some cases serious financial sacrifices, are becoming evident in the local field.

A number of first-class attractions, first-class as far as investments go, or as far as the shrewdest foresight can make for the good things in the drama, are announcing the cessation of their engagements, and a number of the better class of theaters are temporarily closing their doors while other attractions are being made ready to take their places.

The remarkable thing about it all is that the more sober offerings, concerning which the gravest doubt existed in the minds of those who watch the theatrical situation year in and year out with keen interest, are proving their staying qualities beyond precedent.

Dustin Farnum, in spite of his individual good work and personal popularity, was unable to vitalize Augustus Thomas's "Ranger" sufficiently at Wallack's to overcome the handicap of the inherent weakness of the play, and its place has been taken by "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," a musical piece with Richard Carle as the center of attraction.

It cost Mr. Frohman something like $25,000 to put on "The Ranger," and great things were expected of it.

Great things were expected of Martha Morton's "The Movers," which inaugurated the season at the Hackett. But the play was totally disappointing. The author had simply been swamped by her subject, and the event is remembered more for the curtain speech she made on the opening night, amid the glamor of a deceptive sense of triumph, than for anything her play achieved in the nature of exposing a vital problem.

"The Man on the Case," with Jameson Lee Finney, which started out very well and promised to hold up the traditions of the little Madison Square theater for successful runs, has been taken on tour and the playhouse is closed, not to reopen until some time the middle of October, when New York is to have another opportunity of witnessing a play by Rachael Crother, author of "The Three of Us."

The new play is called "The Coming of Mrs. Patrick," beyond which nothing has been given to the public that would enable it to form an idea of the subject with which Miss Crother is to deal.

At the Hackett the moving of "The Movers" makes possible the much earlier appearance of Florence Roberts in the new play by Milton Royle, author of "The Squaw Man," than was expected. The new play is "The Struggle Everlasting," and the interest in this event is as keen as in regard to any production made this year.

It is understood that the play was offered to Bertha Galland before it was decided to make it the vehicle of Florence Robert's metropolitan reappearance. Why Miss Galland did not use the play is left unexplained. This gifted actress, completely recovered from her illness, will make her re-entree as soon as she finds a suitable medium.

The latest gossip is that Nazimova has broken with Henry Miller, who made it possible for her to appear in English, and that Miller in turn will sever his connection with the Shuberts at the close of the term of his present contract.

At all events, Nazimova is no longer under his management and is now a Shubert star. The brilliant little Russian has had a remarkable career the past two years. Within less than that time she learned to play "Hedda Gabler" in English, following that rote with Nora in "The Doll's House," then scoring a distinct hit in Bracco's "La Comtesse Coquette," and now she is drawing large audiences to the Bijou in "The Master Builder."

She has played continuously in New York, and when she goes on tour she will not have to rely on one play, but will have a repertoire to vary her program.

Her work in "The Master Builder" is as distinct and refreshing as anything she has done.

The play itself will give rise to as much comment as "Hamlet." The Master Builder as acharacter is as much a man of mystery as the Prince of Denmark in Shakespeare's play, and those who attempt to solve him at one sitting are undertaking a heroic task.

It has no story to tell in the usual dramatic way. It is a stupendous exposition of psychological phases of human nature. It takes the introspective being, living upon himself, from the far northland, where Shakespeare found his Hamlet. We who live so much more on the surface have no psychological affinity with the type, and to us "The Master Builder" will always be an unsolved puzzle.

Ibsen in this play completely breaks with the French influences under which he wrote "The Pillars of Society" and "Hedda Gabler," and launches off into unexplored regions of speculation on human nature, where we find it difficult to follow him. Yet, episodically, the play is interesting and the dramatic feeling is never miss in his wonderful dialogue. In spite of all the symbolism in which it abounds, there are moments upon moments of intense interest that hold one's attention in an unrelaxing grasp.

The performances will add to the reputation of the Russian actress, and it is doubtful if any other of our present day players could exercise the same magnetic influence in the character that she does. Her accent has appreciably diminished and only in the longer speeches of impassioned feeling does she lose control of her mastery of our tongue at times.

This scribe was one of a party of newspaper men and regular first-nighters who went to New Haven to see the premiere of David Warfield's new play, "A Grand Army Man." The play went with thunders of applause before an audience composed largely of Yale students, and its fate was left in no manner of doubt. Warfield has a worthy successor to the Music Master in the part of Wes Bigelow, the charming old Indiana ruralist, whose love for his adopted boy is in many respects as touching as was the sacrifice of Barwig for his daughter in the earlier play.

In "A Grand Army Man" Mr. Warfield bids farewell to the dialect of the East side Hebrew, and the educated German and adopts the vernacular, rounded out with a slight tinge of the West.

The period is Indiana, twenty-one years after the war. Bigelow served on the Union side and had "a speaking acquaintance with Gen. Grant." The only woman he ever loved married his rival. This is the romance of his life. She died and left an orphan boy, Robert, who was received as a baby into the bachelor home of the old veteran and reared jointly by him and Letitia, Bigelow's spinster housekeeper.

Robert grows up with the eyes of his mother to remind the kindly old veteran of his shattered romance and to enlist all his love and interest. In the eyes of Bigelow, Robert can do no wrong, and much of the quiet humor of the piece develops from the exaggerated notions he has formed of Robert's inventive genius in constructing patent bolts, burglar alarms and printing presses. Outside of Robert the old man has no ideals save the welfare of the Grand Army post of the town of which he is post commander, and whose doings supply the greater part of the local color in a most characteristic manner.

The post is building a hall, and Robert is sent to Terre Haute on his bicycle with $1,000.47 of the post money to make a deposit in the bank. The boy's ambition has been spurred by the apparent preference given to a rival by Hallie Andrews,

PROGRESS IN SCIENCE OF ROAD BUILDING WELL ILLUSTRATED IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Salvation of Wild Lands Depends on Good Roads.

Good System is Being Used in Northern Minnesota.

The progress that has been made in the science of road building in Minnesota is nowhere better illustrated than in St. Louis county, where, this year there have been a number of miles of new highway constructed.

opening up to settlers who have been locating on the wild lands an outlet to the stations and to the markets.

The people of the state are giving more attention now to road building than they did a few years ago, in fact those in the northern part of the state realize that the salvation of the wild lands, adapted to dairying and agriculture, depends on roads that will open up the country and make it desirable for settlement.

Only a few years ago the highways of St. Louis county were practically all built by hand, but with the advent of the improved road graders, road construction in many localities had progressed very satisfactory in the past two or three years, and every year more graders are being placed with the county and town authorities.

Where the nature of the soil is such that a grader can work, road construction can be accomplished more rapidly and with less expense than by hand, but there are many localities in this county, notably swamp land, where the ground is too soft to permit of the grader, and where the work must be done by hand.

One of the best recent examples of new highway constructed with a road grader is one two and one half miles of road built this season by the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company, from the Payne and Whiteface road south to the Whiteface river. The road extends straight through what is known as the "big meadow," in Meadowlands. The railroad company, which owns practically all the big meadow, put the road through at its own expense, following out its liberal policy of opening up the country to the settlers that it has been placing in meadowlands in large numbers in the past few years. The accompanying picture of a machine graded road shows a section of the road built by the railroad company, near the Whiteface river, the opening to the big meadow being in the background.

Roadbuilding through a swamp is a slow and laborious process. It is also an expensive process, as compared with the roads built with a grader.

Under the custom in vogue the route across a swamp is first covered with corduroy. Ditches are then made on either side of the right-of-way, and the material from the excavation is thrown up on the corduroy, where it disintegrates, and is by use gradually worked down and packed firmly about the corduroy. The last step in making a good swamp road is to cover the corduroy and its swamp covering, after the latter has worked down well, with gravel. Roads built in this manner, it is claimed, have lasting qualities. In some places it has been found practicable to omit the corduroy entirely. The road is well ditched, and the material from the ditches thrown to the center to be worked down as the ground dries out, when the top dressing of gravel is put on.

Two of the accompanying ditches show the work in progress on a road to Lake Nichols, across a swamp just east of Payne station, on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company. One of the pictures show the corduroy well covered with the ditch excavations, while the other shows a workman in the act of pulling a big mass of vegetable matter and earth out of the ditch on the corduroy. Much of this work is done with a fork rather than a shovel.

AWARD TWO CONTRACTS

Commissioners Arrange for Remainder of Lakeside Extension Work.

High Pressure Gas Will be Given Lakeside System.

Contracts for the laying of the remainder of the water and gas pipes on the Lakeside extension and for the erection of a pumphouse at Forty-sixth avenue west and Grand avenue for the "booster" pump, have been awarded by the board of water and light commissioners.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co. were awarded the contract for the remainder of the pipe work on the Lakeside system on the following bids: Laying six and four inch mains, 28 cents per foot; laying four inch gas main, 14 cents a foot; laying three inch main, 12 cents a foot; earth excavation, 71 cents a yard. One other bid was submitted by Thomas & McCoy on the following basis: Laying six and four inch pipes, 62 cents; four inch gas pipe, 29 cents; three inch gas pipe, 28 cents; excavation, $1.20 a yard.

P. A. Falstad was awarded the contract for the frame pumphouse with concrete foundation, on his bid of $1,343. The other bid was $1,437, submitted by E. M. Olson.

The electric centrifugal pump has been installed at the Lakewood station and the connections have been made ready to start it in operation. Yesterday the pump was tested satisfactorily up to a pressure of 125 pounds. The board has instructed the manager to commuuicate with the Great Northern Power company and learn how soon it will be ready to furnish power to operate the pump.

Yesterday connections were made in the "Y" where the high pressure gas will be taken out of the main at Eighth avenue west and Superior street to supply the Lakeside system.

The governor for the high pressure gas is located at Eighth avenue and Superior street, at which point the gas pressure is, in technical terms, "sixteen inches." On the other side of the governor it is only "four inches," the pressure required for all ordinary purposes. When the Lakeside system was planned it was found that with the four inch pressure the gas could not be forced to Lakeside, and some means had to be devised to get the high pressure straight through to that part of the city without interfering with the lower pressure necessary for consumers in the central part of the city. With that end in view the board of water and light commissioners sought the acquisition of the Prindle Gas company's old main in First alley between Fifth avenue west and First avenue east.

The plan of the department is to lay a pipe from the high pressure governor, up Eighth avenue west and east on First alley to a connection with the old main in the alley at Fifth avenue west. The old main will then be extended in the alley from First avenue east to Seventh avenue east and down the latter avenue to Superior street where it will connect with the ten-inch gas main laid between London road and Seventh avenue east six years ago, when Superior street was repaved.

With this system the high pressure gas can be sent right through the central part of the city to Lakeside without disarranging the down town gas service.

Next week the board of water and light commissioners will receive bids for a booster pump for the Forty-sixth avenue west and Grand avenue station; the laying of pipes in First alley, the laying of a ten-inch main on London road between Nineteenth and Twenty-first avenues east; the sale of the old boilers at the Lakewood pumping station, the leveling of the frost boxes on Grand avenue and the laying of pipe in Wicklow street.

vaudeville himself. The composer has been singing his latest compositions, with a few old ones thrown in for good measure, at Hammerstein's Victoria in New York the past week, and is credited with a hit of generous proportions for even that well-known New York house. It is said that for once the composer has proved that there is no one to compare with him for getting the fullest effects out of his own songs.

Miss Frances Starr continues her unbroken success as the dainty coquetish heroine of the Belasco-Tully drama of Spanish-California, "The Rose of the Rancho," at the Belasco theater. Sept. 24 marked her 300th appearance in the role.

The announcement that Miss Blanche Bates is to appear again for a short season at the Belasco theater about the middle of winter, following Miss Frances Starr in "The Rose of the Rancho," is welcomed by many metropolitan playgoers who are anxious to see the noted actress once more in her fine impersonation of the girl in "The Girl of the Golden West" before she bids a final farewell to the part, for next year Miss Bates will be seen in a new Belasco play.

with whom he is in love. Hallie is the daughter of Judge Andrews, who has been defated for re-election to the bench by Bigelow, and his comrades, and does not share Miss Hallie's secret fondness for Robert.

The boy falls into the hands of a sharper dealing in bucket-shop options, speculates with the post fund intrusted to his keeping, and loses it. His hopes of making money quickly in order to win the favor of the judge's daughter are rudely shattered, and he confesses himself a thief.

The pathos of the story lies in the devotion of Bigelow, who at first refuses to believe the evidence against his boy.

When Robert confesses Bigelow is overcome. He makes the lad bring him a whip and he deals him a stinging lash that can be heard through the whole theater; then, recalling the image of the boy's mother, he slowly drops the whip and folds him in his arms.

Then he goes out to raise the money, dollar by dollar, assisted by his Grand Army comrades, who take a lenient view of the boy's indiscretion.

But Judge Andrews is filled with resentment against Bigelow for defeating him, and against the boy for being loved by his daughter, and on the last day of his judicial term sentences the youth to a year in state's prison.

The great scene of the play occurs in the wonderfully realistic courtroom, in which Bigelow is called upon to part from his adopted son, tearfully appeals to the judge and finally gives away his Grand Army badges, declaring he is through with life.

This forms the climax of a thrilling scene, in which Warfield's realism and tenderness are seen at their best. It is one of the most stirring moments in any play.

It is succeeded by a quiet after-act, the following New Year's day, when Bigelow's comrades are on a round of merry calls and appear at his home to lend cheer to his deserted hearthstone. Even here the pathos is effectively relieved by Warfield's quaint humor, which finds ample expression in its sad setting and serves to vary tears with laughter.

But Robert has made a valuable invention during his stay in prison, and his unexpected release and return form a satisfactory solution of all the difficulties. Hallie has been true to him all the time, although he has asked her to forget him, and she is there to greet him and to assure him of her confidence and faith in his future, and with Bigelow and Hallie withdrawing into the other room, the curtain falls on the young people fondly holding each other heart to heart and lip to lip.

The production is typical of Belasco in all that goes to make up a performance that holds the spectator by the compelling power of the story, the splendid acting and the atmosphere realism of the whole subject, and it enables Warfield successfully to shake off the incubus of being tied to one role for life. Entirely different from "The Music Master," the audience accepted its tears and its smiles with as much enthusiasm as its predecessor.

A few weeks having passed along, the vaudeville situation again bobs into the limelight as being the one topic of interest in developing theatricals. Practically a month has passed since Klaw & Erlanger inaugurated their "advanced vaudeville" and naturally in that time the situation has brought out different angles. From these have sprung all sorts of stories. Sifted down to a common sense basis it looks as if their venture into vaudeville is still a question of futures. They claim to be entirely satisfied. Here and there some of the houses opened have not come up to expectations and one in Brooklyn was abandoned last week. Mr. Erlanger in a recent interview frankly admitted that the house was losing money, and that they had come to the conclusion it would not pay to continue it as a vaudeville theater. This has been the policy of the syndicate and they have been known to drop some big undertakings on short notice when it showed that there was no money to be had in continuing them.

Of course, the older vaudeville people having the established theaters and time to prepare themselves for a conflict are easier under the circumstances. There have been persistnt reports of a compromise being effected between the rival interests, but from all outward appearances it does not look as if this can be as easily brought about as those interested thought would be the case. However, the extent of the inroads that the new vaudeville interests can be made and the costliness of the warfare will determine that. If precedent counts for much it is likely that before the warring managers deplete their personal resources they will get together upon some basis or other. This is the general rule and eventual finish of theatrical fights.

Meanwhile Klaw & Erlanger are broadening out and going ahead with their advanced vaudeville. They say they will have a circuit to the Pacific coast before they get through, and that they will carry this fight through at any cost.

In order to take care of their big acts and supply the time to round out the season they are organizing road tours of vaudeville combinations and will book them in their higher-priced houses. This is a radical departure, and one which will be watched with keen interest, for it marks a big change. It may also be far reaching in its effect. For instance, the experiment of playing a $2 vaudeville bill for an entire week in Lexington, Ky., is something that must be tried before it can be determined as to what measure of success it is going to score.

Henry Arthur Jones's latest play, "The Galilean's Victory," was produced in Rochester, N. Y. last week, and according to the critics of that city made a deep impression. It is a story of modern life in England, but its discussion deals with religious topics from the viewpoint of this dramatic author. One scene, showing an Evangelistic meeting in full swing, promises to be one that will arouse much widespread discussion. Owing to business suggestions Jones has renamed the play "The Evangelist."

The general opinion is that the play will cause much comment, and upon the eventual acceptance of its strikingly new treatment of the old theme will depend its ultimate success as a theatrical offering. As a well-made and powerful play the critics seem satisfied that Mr. Jones has worked well.

Maude Adams began her season in "Peter Pan" in Upper New York state last week, and will continue for a short time in that delightful play. Later in January she goes into New York City to produce the new comedy, "The Jester," there. It is a surety that Miss Adams will reluctantly lay aside "Peter Pan," for it has been her surest success since "The Little Minister." Now that this verdict has been settled it is worth mentioning that for a time the question as to "Peter Pan" being received in this country was a ticklish one. It did not start off with a furore in New York, and only the adroit manipulation of the early stages of that run by Charles Frohman's New York forces served to establish the play there. When the tide did turn it was all for the good, and Miss Adams on tour and during the latter part of her metropolitan engagement broke all of her old records.

The Aborns have succeeded Charles Blaney as the managers of the Lincoln Square theater in New York city, and will substitute comic opera stock there instead of the melodramatic offerings that have of late been booked in the house.

David Kessler, the Yiddish actor, who essayed to play in English in the East, has abandoned the project, and is again back on the Bowery, where he will continue to play in his native tongue and remain the idol of East side theater-goers in the metropolis. Kessler's American drama, "The Spell," evidently got under the influence of its own weaving, for it never got a start in the public estimation. M. Thiese, who financed this venture, has also abandoned it. Thiese just at present is illustrating effectually the ups and downs of theatrical success. Last season he took a revivified burlesque show called "Wine, Woman and Song," into the Circle theater in New York, and made an electrical hit with that merry affair. For some reason that has as yet never been fully determined the show ran all season at the Circle, and established such old burlesque favorites as Bonita and Alex Carr as possible stars. Carr is now playing a big Shubert show, and Bonita is doing her work in the popular priced houses. Emboldened by this success Thiese undertook to make a new show for the Circle theater, and he hit upon the German comedian, Adolph Philip, as a new discovery. Philip was brought forth in his new musical comedy, "Across the Pond," which had a run of 1,000 nights in Berlin. Just what happened to it between Berlin and the American debut in the shadow of the Columbus statue is not known, but it came to an awful finish. Thiese has withdrawn it, Philip has been labeled back "to the German," and some American humorists are trying to work the piece over into a possible hit. It is to be brought out there in revised form shortly. With the downfall of Kessler and Philip, Manager Thiese has encountered two failures to offset his unexpected hit with "Wine, Woman and Song."

Helen Redmond, the statesque beauty who will be recalled as a member of the original Florodora company, has been coaxed back to the footlights after a retirement for several seasons. Miss Redmond married a prominent physician in Philadelphia, and for a time was only an occasional visitor to the theaters. Alfred Aarons, who is planning a big production called "Yama" for the Walnut Street theater in the Quaker City, has a part for Miss Redmond in the new piece and has secured her consent to play it.

Miss Viola Allen, after a vacation of unusual length for her, will return to the stage later in the season and present two interesting revivals of "As You Like It," and "The School For Scandal."

COREY'S CHATEAU NEAR VERSAILLES

By Dexter Marshall.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

Paris, Oct. 5.—Conspicuous as he was in the United States for some time before he expatriated himself for reasons not entirely his own, James Hazen Hyde is not a very prominent personage in the American colony today. His house, at the corner of Boulevard Lannes and Rue Adolph Yvon, is in the Sixteenth "arrondissement," which means that it is due west of the city's center; the western edge of the ground is separated by the street only from the fortifications which form the city's boundary line. Near by are Port Muette—deaf woman's gate—the chateau and Parc de la Muette, where George Kessler, not altogether unknown in New York, is building a costly residence for himself.

Hyde's house, set flush with the street line, as many fine Paris houses are, is of white stone and decidedly French; so is the treatment of the "corner lot" adjoining, which forms his garden. The ordinary street wall, shutting in the beauties of the garden completely, is absent, to be sure, but the high metal fence and closely set trees and shrubbery are as effective almost in preventing the wayfarer from more than guessing at the garden's delights as any wall could be.

Hyde himself has a much wider acquaintance among the French than among the American colonists. His name does not appear often in the papers, he is not seen often in public places, he is not much in evidence at American social gatherings. He seems to care very little for his compatriots and they as little for him, and he would be as unlikely to accept an invitation to one of Mrs. J. J. Hoff's Y. W. C. A. entertainments, of which I shall speak a little later, as she would be to invite him. Nor does he pay much attention to the races, or, in fact, to any other of those things in which he might be expected to be interested. His arrival in Paris after the insurance troubles attracted some public interest, of course, since the Equitable and several of the other big life insurance companies of New York have branches here, and have insured thousands of Frenchmen; but what little attention his coming aroused soon died down.

Hyde is a prime favorite in university circles, however, as the founder and former president of the allied French and American societies organized to promote the numerical increase of Americans who speak French and the exchange of French and American "culture" through the university systems of the two countries. It has been Hyde's money that has paid the expenses of the various French lecturers at Harvard and Columbia and of various American lecturers at the Sorbonne here in recent years.

Although Hyde's college course was taken in America, his preparatory schooling was largely received in France. Thus his personal point of view and his sympathies are almost wholly French, and here, as in the states, he would be taken for a Frenchman nine time sin ten. He is of a type that is often seen in the most exclusive salons of Paris; correct in dress and manners, and of high cultivation, in a dilettant way and accepted as such, but without the slightest initiative or originality whatever. Some of Hyde's personal friends on both sides of the water might object to such a characterization of him, but that is exactly the sort of chap he seems to most of his fellow American-Parisians at the present time.

Like most Parisians, nearly all the permanent American residents of the French capital live in apartments. It is much more of an apartment city, even, than New York. Were it not so it would be impossible to crowd its 3,000,000 or more population, only about 1,000,000 less than New York's inside the fortification, on a territory much smaller than the territory of the five boroughs that make up the American metropolis—a territory that covers less ground, in fact, than the borough of Brooklyn alone.

Edmond Kelly's Remarkable Place.

But the handful of Americans who do "own their own houses" in Paris and within easy distance thereof, have very handsome places. To my mind the most interesting of them all is owned by Edmond Kelly, the American lawyer, who acted as attorney for the Fairs in settling the estate of Charles Fair after the death of himself and his wife in an automobile accident a few years ago, and of the Gould family in conducting the action brought by Anna, the Countess de Castellane, against her precious husband. You may remember that Mr. Kelly's clients won in both these cases; he has been extraordinarily successful in many other instances before the Parisian courts, too, although no others among his cases have attracted as much attention in America.

Mr. Kelley's remarkable "chateau" is located at Coucy de Chateau, a town of about 2,000 inhabitants, on a branch of the Chemin de Fer du Nord, in the department de l'Aisne, about 100 miles north of Paris. This queer town dates back to the thirteenth century. It was built and fortified by a fine old Frenchman of the middle ages who was known as Enguerrand III, and who bowed the head nor bent the knee to no one, neither did he care for a title. Upon his great, thick-walled castle he made this clear in a chiseled announcement which, freely translated, read as follows:

"I am neither king, nor prince, nor count, either; I just am Mr. Coucy."

Beyond a doubt, the history of Coucy de Chateau, if it could be obtained, would be full of thrilling incidents, of desperate fights and of determined seiges. But the assailants must have been beaten off almost invariably, for its walls and towers today are practically intact, magnificient witnesses to the solidity with which the barons of medieval France built their fortifications. Some of the walls of "Mr. Coucy's" castle were thirty feet thick and more. It stood partially within the walled village and partially outside, and was fortified almost as strongly on the village side as elsewhere.

In places the village walls are as thick as the walls of the castle; the three village gateways are still in use and the strong founded towers still stand firm and gray and grim, rank grass growing on the soil covered tops of all save one.

It is this tower, which faces to the west, that Mr. Kelly has taken and turned into a home. It is his boast that it is the only thirteenth century structure in all France now used as a human habitation, though whether this be true or not I do not know. At all events the Kelly "chateau," if it may properly be so termed, stands in a class by itself.

It contains only two rooms—quarters of the guard in olden days—and, therefore Kelly also took two houses within the tower wall, facing a street and backing up to the tower. The houses are very old also, though not as ancient as the tower. One is larger than the other, and apparently they were built to serve, one as the residence of a family of some pretensions and one for the servants of the family. Each has ten or twelve rooms. Originally they were not connected with the tower, but Mr. Kelly has built passages that make the three structures practically one.

Two Remarkable Rooms.

The tower is forty or fifty feet high and of an oblong ground plan, the end which projects outside the wall being rounded, while the other end is square. The outer walls are thirteen feet through, and the wall between the two rooms is of the same thickness. The outer room—in the round end of the tower—which is now used as a library, is lighted by three narrow windows; the inner room by two. The rooms are connected by a door which resembles nothing so much as a short tunnel.

The inner room contains a wonderful fireplace, high enough for a man to stand upright in, and deep enough for one to sit inside it and enjoy the fire on a cool day without being scorched. It is so wide that sticks of American four-foot cordwood would be too small to feed its fire with; it takes veritable logs, six or eight feet long, and so cool is the tower, even in warm weather, that a fire is comfortable in mid-July. Near the fireplace stands an organ on which Mr. Kelly often plays, and plays well, too. His collection of books is so extensive that they overflow the outer room and occupy much of the inner one's wall space.

Both rooms are very high, with groined-arch ceilings, and although it might be expected that they would be rather gloomy, lighted only, as they are, by windows cut through such thick walls, they are furnished with warm colors that make them very cheerful indeed, especially when the great fireplace is aglow with burning logs. The fireplace, by the way, is supplemented nowadays by an up-to-date American fireplace both winter and summer.

Attractive as the owner of the tower has made his two pet rooms, they are not a whit more so than the top of the tower, the top of the town wall adjoining and the terraced grounds outside the wall, which form a part of the property.

This tower's top, like that of all the others which once helped protect the town of Coucy-de-Chateau, is covered with several feet of earth. In this soil Mr. Kelly has planted trees. Part of its surface is sodded and there are winding gravel walks. Flowering plants have been set out there. Under the shade of the trees seats have been placed, and there sometimes the meals are eaten, al fresco, in the thick shade of the trees, the delights of the lofty roof garden being supplemented by a wide view of the smiling cultivated surrounding plain, which is dotted here and there with prim French villages. The terraces are treated in harmony with the tower's top.

At present Mr. Kelly is in America, where he was obliged to go not long ago for his health, but while he has given up his residence in Paris and sold out his law practice, he has not relinquished his tower house at Coucy-de-Chateau. He is 60 perhaps, tall, dresses and looks like a genuine American, despite his long residence in France, and, of course, has amassed a comfortable fortune, since his legal fees have been large. Unlike many American residents here, he is not especially devoted to the automobile, preferring horses to motors as a rule.

Gardner's House Full of Pictures.

Frank L. Gardner's house, built along the fortifications of Paris at La Muette, on Avenue Raphael, and to the west of the Passy district, is famous among Parisians as well as his own countrymen. It is filled with art objects, which he has gathered from many sources, at an expenditure, say those who should know, of little, if any, less than a round two millions—of dollars, not francs.

Gardner started life in Philadelphia. As a theatrical agent or manager he went to Australia. There he deserted the business end of histrionics, went in for gold mining, struck it rich and amassed a fortune; how large may be conjectured only, but Parisians and his countrymen here put it at from fifty millions to one and a half times that great sum—dollars again, not francs. For some time after coming here he remained president of the Golden Horseshoe Mining company, and at one time was interested in the manufacture of automobiles. He relinquished his mining presidency some time ago, however, has given up automobile making, and is now a man of leisure. He has lived here twenty years and knows everybody who is in the swim.

Gardner's art collection really is worth while, although, of course, it contains some things probably that are not of the first water. He owns one of the five authenticated detached paintings by Michael Angelo. He has a "life-size" portrait of Philip II, by Titian, and Raphael's celebrated Venus and Cupid, besides a lot of statuary, ivory carvings and other fine things. A baptismal font, made for Napoleon III is also in Gardner's possession, and, with fine American lack of reverence for imperial relics, he has turned it into a bird cage. He likewise owns a music box which was presented to that son of the first Napoleon who was made king of Rome, and called l'Aiglon, and who lives again on the stage sometimes, in the person of Sarah Bernhardt or Maude Adams, as the case may be.

Gardner's greatest joy, perhaps, is the Venus and Cupid by Raphael, for which he paid $75,000. It was originally in the collection of a certain Prince Borghese, an Italian of the same family as the prince of that name, who recently outdistanced all competitors in an automobile trip from Pekin to Paris. Gardner had a great time getting the picture to Paris, owing to the Italian government's rule that no great objects of art should be taken out of Italy.

The canvass, which is about 36 by 48 inches in size, was, and still is, inclosed under glass in an elaborate gilt frame. In order to make its removal easier, the purchaser had a part of this frame removed, and then hired a clever Italian artist to paint another picture on the glass. Thus disguised, it was brought away without difficulty. Although necessarily the precious canvas was shoved under the very nose of an inspector, whose duty it was to detect all such subterfuges, he never examined it at all.

The picture made a great stir here and has been written up and reproduced in some of the American papers, but, to the amusement of those who are familiar with it and its history, one "art critic" described it in an elaborate article as "a beautiful Madonna and Child." It is a beautiful picture, but the "Child" has wings, while the "Madonna's" face has not a trace of a Madonna in its expression, and no halo encircles the head. Mr. Gardner has been offered by a London collector $165,000, more than twice the price he paid, for the canvas.

The Gardner collection includes several fine Rembrandts, besides the works of other noted old and new masters. His religious and ecclesiastical pictures are unusually good. He is fond of the automobile, and is often seen at the races. Some years ago he owned a string of horses, but he disposed of them long ago.

The Famous Hoff Chateau.

Located about thirty-five miles southwest of Paris, the Chateau du Breau, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Hoff, is one of the most famous American houses in all France. Mr. Hoff is a Standard Oil man, of religious temperament and a prominent supporter of the American Presbyterian church, on the Rue de Berri, of which the Rev. Chauncey Goodrich is pastor. It is the second largest and most prosperous Protestant church in the French capital, the American Episcopal church, on the Avenue de l'Alma, of which the Rev. Dr. J. B. Morgan is the rector, being first.

Mrs. Hoff was Grace Whitney of Detroit, the daughter of a lumber king, and she is counted the richest American woman in her own right now living in Paris. It is understood here that her inheritance, on her father's death, included a fund that produces $25,000 a year, which, by the terms of the will, she is to devote to philanthropic purposes. At all events, her charities have made her famous, alike in Paris and the cities of the States, and the Hostel for American art students on the Boulevard St. Michel, in the Latin Quarter, the Young Woman's Christian association in the Rue de Turin and the tea room in the Rue Cambon, are as famous as their founder.

The chateau du Breau is near the Ablis station, on the Orleans railroad, and not far from Rambouillet, but Mr. Hoff, who is at his office in Paris daily, except when he takes his "holidays," comes to town in one of the half-dozen autos which the Hoff establishment boasts.

The chateau was built in the time of king Henry IV, the old moat and drawbridge still exist, and the grounds cover fifty or sixty acres at the least.

At one time it was known as the "Chateau du Breau sans Nappe," because of the big stone table in the grounds of the place, from which Henry IV is said sometimes to have dined al fresco occasionally without having any one take the trouble to lay the cloth. The legend may or may not be be true; the stone dining table still stands in one of the many gardens of the Du Breau grounds, and is the object of much curiosity and comment.

Much of the estate is covered with fine old trees growing thickly as in a forest in some parts, but in others intersected with well kept walks and drives, while near the great house there are broad lawns, elaborate gardens and "plashing" fountains, the whole forming one of the finest private parks in France.

Tuck's Villa at Maimaison.

Edward Tuck, another rich American resident of Paris, has a villa adjoining the famous Chateau Malmaison, where the Empress Josephine died, and has bought all the land nearby that he could get. He is a brother of Judge Marmaduke Tuck of Egyptian achievements and fame, and of such wide sympathies and friendships that he has both John Pierpont Morgan and William Jennings Bryan as his guests when they are in Paris, although I have never heard that he ever had them at his house together.

He has finished and furnished his place in fine style; so fine, indeed, that some enthusiastic visitor has described it as "hardly less splendid than a royal palace." Tuck is a man of great wealth and a devoted automobilist. He has been made a knight of the Legion of Honor for his charities, and he is a prominent member of the American Episcopal church.

Sali de Jonge, whose house is on the Avenue d'Iena, has been a Parisian resident for about fifteen years, and although his name looks about as foreign as it possibly can, is a sure-enough American, who will be remembered by some old-time New Yorkers as a broker of other days, with the Vanderbilts among his steadiest and most profitable customers. He is tall, wears side whiskers, and is supposed to have barrels of money, much of which he has spent on pictures and other beautiful things, the possession of which has made his house known as a real treasury of art.

John Evans, nephew of the late Dr. Thomas Evans, who introduced tooth surgery of the most approved sort into Paris, is a highly characteristic member of the landed proprietor division of the American colony here. He bears the title of Marquis d'Oyley, granted by the Pope in recognition of his services to the Empress Eugenie, services which were not mentioned at all in Dr. Evans' account of the escape of Eugenie, because, gossip goes, they were bad friends for many years.

The home of the marquis dentist—for he practices his profession as assiduously as he could had he never received a title—is the famous Chateau Sans Souci, located at Bellevue, a few miles to the southwest of Paris, near Saint Cloud. It is a place of much historical interest, and near by there are remains of an underground passage that used to connect the house with one of the several royal chateaus in the neighborhood. The Marquis d'Oyley looks to be 60 or 65, but very well preserved. He is tall and very straight, perhaps because of his lifelong devotion to fencing. Swordsmanship appears always to have been a hobby with him; it was his intention to make his son, the late Alester Evans, the finest swordsman in all France.

Such a decision would not seem very important one way or another in the United States, but in France it made the marquis and his son almost personages, especially as the most expensive fencing teachers were hired for the younger man, who early showed that ultimately he might realize his father's ambitions.

Early in his twenties, however, young Evans killed himself for a Peruvian beauty with whom he had been infatuated for some time and from whom his parents had tried to separate him, but in vain. The death of young Evans made plenty of stir, alike in the landed American colony and out of it. It was hinted freely that possibly his death was not suicide, but nothing came of the hints. He had threatened several times to kill himself, and once had sent premature news of his suicide to his father and mother, so when he really was dead they did not believe the message they received about it.

Alfred Clark, well known in the commercial section of the colony for some years, has done so well that he was able to buy the Chateau de la Roche at Charge, in the department of Indre et Loire, some two or three years ago. This house is about forty miles from Paris, just about far enough to make the auto run from home to the office in the morning and back again at night pleasant daily diversions.

Mr. Clark hopes his art collection will be as fine ultimately as Mr. Gardner's. It includes tapestries, bronzes, old carved furniture, etc., as well as pictures, many of which were selected by Mr. Clark's friend, Leslie Cauldwell, who used to be a painter, but, who, alas! has deserted the brush and palette in Paris for commercial life in the states.

The two most famous American-owned houses in Paris, of course, are the Gould-Castelane palace, at the corner of the Avenue Malakoff and the Avenue Bois de Boulogne, and the house built in the Place des Etats Unis by Julian Story as a residence for himself and his songbird wife. The American ambassador has occupied the latter house for some time; it belongs to Story and not to Eames, and now that they have been divorced she is not likely ever to live in it again.

Since the divorce between the Count Castellane and Anna Gould, she has occupied the replica of the Grand Trianon which she had built for their joint home and where her boys are being brought up.

Mrs. Collis P. Huntington's newly acquired residence, the palacelike, wall-inclosed, embowered mansion built by Baron Hirsch, on Avenue Gabriel, is one of the best known houses in Paris, and as much talked about as the Huntington house on Fifth avenue in New York, so long unoccupied because it was supposed to be unlucky. Another house recently built for Mrs. Hershey Eddy, an American, at Andressy, is much talked of, because its plans were made by Sardou's son, who has turned architect.

The house of the millionaire Duc de Loubat, that interesting Franco-American whose father founded the family fortunes by building the first tramways of Paris, and who has given a lot of money to American universities, as well as to various French educational institutions, has a relatively modest house on the Rue d'Umont Durville. He is a great archaeologist, and has supported many excavations in various parts of the world.

The chateau that was occupied by President Corey of the Steel trust for some time after his marriage with Mabelle Gilman is near Versailles, between Verriere and Palaiseaux, only a few miles from Paris. Nobody in Paris knows whether he means to occupy it again and nobody here cares much whether he does or not. His arrival at the metropolis of pleasure attracted scant attention, as perhaps he hoped it would—his departure less, and he made so little of an impression even upon the American colony that most of its members have forgotten where the chateau is located, even.

"The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre," by Zona Gale—"Mam' Linda," by Will N. Harben—"The Red Feathers," by Theodore Roberts—"The Car of Destiny," by C. N. and A. M. Williamsom.

THE LOVES OF PELLEAS AND ETARE. By Zona Gale. New York: The MacMillan company. $1.50.

It was a daring experiment to write a love story about a hero and heroine of seventy summers, and for those who look upon romance as the exclusive possession of warm-blooded youth it might seem, if that were all, almost a dangerous experiment to attempt to read it. But it isn't all. There is much more. Pelleas and Etarre have been married half a century, and are still ardently in love with each other, but the are also irrepressible match-makers, and thereby hangs the tale. Without children of their own, they adopt all the children of the friends and make it their self-appointed task to smooth the rough course of true love for every one they know. The book is merely the history of their adventures in the pursuit of this amiable occupation. Now it is Pelleas who discovers in the raw clerk at the drug store the lover sighing for his mistress, and by the most conscienceless scheming brings the couple headlong into their happiness. Now it is Etarre who shamelessly encourages a young fellow to defy his parents and marry the girl of his choice regardless of worldly considerations. Both are painfully—say rather joyfully—conscious of their wickedness in challenging all the maxims of the prudent, and there is much humor in the picture the author has drawn of these guileless old lovers furtively rejoicing in their desparte pots. A first touch of humor is given in the character of their servant Nichola, a sour, crabbed, matter-of-fact old Italian woman who under pretense of serving them has terrorized them for years, and who in the end turns out to be the most hopelessly romantic and soft-hearted creature imaginable. The tale, which is simple in form, though not lacking in incident, is half whimsically humorous, half sentimentally romantic, and wholly delightful.

MAM' LINDA. By Will N. Harben. New York: Harper & Bros. $1.50.

The race question treated from a wholesale, Christian and Southern viewpoint is the basis of Will N. Harben's latest novel of Georgia life. Don't think from this that it is a tract. It isn't; but it is a stirring story of society, politics, and real people in a small Georgia town where the race question is a live, tangible, everyday problem instead of a vague abstraction as it is in the North. The theme of the novel, broadly stated, is a plea for law and order and the observance of Christian principles in treating the most difficult phases of the race problem. Drawing upon the well-beloved and familiar scenes and backgrounds of the Georgia mountain town in which the author's youth was spent, and upon its kindly people as well as the rugged types of the mountaineers for his inspiration, his work is strikingly real and suggestive. His people look like real people, and his story moves logically and smoothly, with all its rush of events, to its conclusion. For Northern readers it will have value and charm not alone for the stirring story that it tells, but for the pictures of life and conditions as they exist in one of our sister states of the South.

THE RED FEATHERS. By Theodore Roberts. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

This is an unusual story for children; so unusual that it will pay reading not only by them, but by their grown up kin who still have in their veins blood that responds to the call of romance and mysticism. The sub-title of the book is "A Story of Remarkable Adventures When the World Was Young," and its scenes are laid in Newfoundland at a prehistoric period. The chief characters are magicians and tribal chiefs who employ powerful magic in governing their fellows and in combating each other. It is a combination of fairy story and story of adventure, and without burden of some attempts at dialect or ethnological instruction, the author tells the tale simply, interestingly and forcefully. It should be kept in mind as a holiday gift for besides being admirably printed and bound, it has ten excellent pictures by Charles Livingstone Bull.

THE CAR OF DESTINY. By C. N. & A. M. Williamson. New York: The McClure company. $1.50.

This is another example of the modern type of motor car romance, with all the breeze, dash and sparkle that ought to belong to such a tale. A young Spanish dare-devil, barred from his native land because of the political deeds of his father, follows a pretty face into the forbidden land, aided only by his quick wit, an American friend, a faithful chauffeur and his trusty automobile. The girl is coveted by a Spanish nobleman of the heavy villan order, and the pathway of the hero across Spain is beset by perils and disturbing incidents that make it little less exciting than that of d'Artagnan, though the modern automobile takes the place of the guardsman's relay of horses. Besides a breezy and captivating narrative, there is judiciously intermingled with the thread of the story some brilliant and entertaining descriptive matter about the route taken by the hero and his companions from Biarritz at the border to the opposite coast of Spain. The story takes place about the time of the recent wedding of the present king of Spain, who appears in the narrative in a very attractive light.

The children of two families, through a long summer vacation, carry on a splendid game of "playing Indians." They built wigwams, made camps, went hunting, fought fierce, but bloodless battles upon the war trail, and otherwise comported themselves as their imaginations and fancies dictated. In short, they had a fine time, and the telling of it makes a fine story for children, because it is attractively related. It will appeal to the "make-believe" instinct that exists in all children, and that is not without its attractions for some of them in after years. Its best feature, perhaps, is that it will give its child readers a healthy interest in the wholesome life out of doors. It is illustrated by Diantha W. Horne.

THE WRECK OF THE OCEAN QUEEN. By James Otis. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

This is a boy's story, with a touch of romance to appeal to girls who like a strong and realistic tale even if it is of the adventurous order that boys are supposed to claim as their exclusive property. There are a sea voyage around the world, a trip in a treasure ship, terrific gales, a shipwreck, mutiny; in short, ample thrill and incident, well and strikingly related. It is a wholesome story that is safe to put into a youngster's hands, not only because he will be sure to read it and enjoy it, but because it will not do him the slightest bit of harm to do it. Illustrated by A. O. Scott.

THE YOUNG TRAIN DISPATCHER. By Burton E. Stevenson. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

The hero of this story for boys is a brave and manly boy, fighting his way earnestly and with fidelity, and the tale includes the exciting adventures that beset him, in which he has a chance to show the stuff he is made off. It is well told and wholesome, and it will interest all boys because the hero is a real boy and not an unpleasant and impossible prig, like too many boy heroes of fiction.

THE SANDMAN: HIS SHIP STORIES. By William J. Hopkins. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

These are bedtime stories for the younger children. For those whose pleasant duty it is to put the little ones to bed, and to make the incident pleasing to them by telling or reading stories, it will prove a gold mine. There are sixteen stories of the brig industry, from the "Ship Building Story" to the "Deserted Ship Story," including a charmingly fascinating and, withal, instructive history of the stirring events in the career of the vessel and its crews, simply and interestingly told.

BIG BROTHER. By Annie Fellows Johnstone. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.25.

This is a holiday edition of a very charming story and it is beautifully illustrated in color. The devotion and care of Steven, himself a small boy, for his baby brother, is the theme of the simple story.

FRIENDS AND COUSINS. By Abbie Farwell Brown. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.

This is a sequel to "Brothers and Sisters," by the same author, and tells of the doings of Kenneth and Rose during one summer. Playing at pirate, impersonating outlaws, and a tardy rescue of Rose are the chief events. The cumulative interest of this book will make it especially popular. The illustrations are by Ethel C. Brown.

THE COUNTRY CHRISTMAS. By Frances Margaret Fox. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. 50 cents.

This is one of the Cosey Corner series, which has attained great popularity among the children. Miss Fox is a clever writer of stories for the young boys and girls, and in "The Country Christmas" she has produced a bright, little story that will will appeal to every child. It is well illustrated.

OUR LITTLE ARABIAN COUSIN. By Blanche McManus. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. 60 cents.

The Little Cousin series now contains many volumes by various authors, and the latest is "Our Little Arabian Cousin," which has been printed in style similar to the others, and is illustrated with several full-page plates in tint, and has a decorative cover. The book tells of the customs and doings of two little Arab children of the desert; how they lived their lives; their plays and games, and many of the curious sights they saw as they traveled about with their parents, on one occasion visiting the great city of Medina, where they were as much strangers as if they were little American cousins who had come there on a journey.

October Magazines.

The leading article in Scribner's Magazine for October is a most entertaining account, by Theodore Roosevelt, of the "Small Country Neighbors" which he has observed in his walks around the White House grounds, his Sagamore Hill home at Oyster Bay, and at Pine Knot, the place in Albemarle county, Virginia, where he and his family go for three or four days' outing at various seasons. The article shows very close observation of the life of the woods and fields. He treats of the little friends of the household, birds and small mammals, which are so interesting in their habits if one has the eye to see them. The description of the life at Pine Knot, with its one big room on the ground floor, is particularly attractive. There are illustrations of the house and its surroundings. Madame Waddington begins in this number a new series of her entertaining, unconventional, and extremely well informed articles—this time not in the form of letters, but regular narrative acounts of "Chateau and Country Life in France."

The migration of the elephant from the ancestral home in the Fayum desert all over Europe and through North and South America, according to Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn of Columbia, is, with the single exception of the perigrinations of the horse, the most remarkable feat of travel in the whole history of creation. The story of this migration is told by Prof. Osborn for readers of the October Century, as part of his article on the discoveries of the recent African expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, of which expedition he was in charge. "Hunting the Ancestral Elephant in the Fayum Desert" is the leading article of the number, and it is richly illustrated with pictures from photographs and restorations by Charles R. Knight. "The Outlook for Tariff Reform" is discussed by Congressman Samuel W. McCall, who urges the necessity of tariff revision, gives his reasons therefor, and says that immediately after the next presidential election is the earliest practical time for such revision.

In variety and interest the October McClure's is remarkable. After a break of two months Ellen Terry resumes her delightful Memoirs with an account of her domestic life called "My Children and I," which has much amusing gossip of Rossetti, Irving, Bernhardt, Charles Reade and other famous people. Prof. Munsterberg has an article on "The Third Degree," which points to the legal and medical possibilities of experimental psychology and is full of interest and suggestion for the average lay reader. Harold Macfarlane Moffett's "Winning the First International Balloon Race," an absorbing account of adventurous sport in the upper air, tells how the first international race was won by a young American with "a second-hand balloon." It is also a strong fiction number.

The novelette which opens the October number of The Smart Set is by a new English writer, H. Cheriton Hilgate, and is entitled "Spinners of Fate." It is a delightful love story, most of the scenes of which are laid in a small German town where the hero, an English clergyman, has gone for a time to take charge of a parish. How he encounters the charming heroine and falls in love is told in breezy fashion by the author. Minor characters, excellently drawn, play parts in this delightful little drama. This issue is particularly rich in short fiction. Catherine Carr, a promising new Southern writer, is represented by a strong story called "The Payers"; Anne Warner, always a popular contributor to any magazine, writes "Smoke, or Fire?"; Ellen Duvall has a splendid psychological study which she calls "The Lamp of Psyche."

Romantic were the days when Arras flourished, and art and industry walked hand in hand. This is the period from which was drawn the inspiration of William Morris, who inspired so many. In those days, history and literature and religion were wonderfully pictured by the weaver of tapestries from ancient Egyptian and Peruvian to Greek and Roman, from Coptic to Arras, from Arras to the Gobelins, begins in the October issue of House and Garden. The author of the series is George Leland Hunter, whose erudition and expert knowledge of the subject do not prevent him from turning picturesque phrases that are easy to read and that linger in the memory.

Smith's Magazine appears on the newsstands this month with a list of good things that make it perhaps the ideal magazine for the home. There is a timely article on the financial situation of the railroads at the present time that will interest every man who has ever thought of investing in railroad stocks or bonds. There is an article illustrated with photographs, telling about the smart waists and new hats which will be worn this fall, that will interest every woman who cares at all about her dress. We imagine this means every woman. There is an article illustrated with photographs on a strange religious house in Europe where women are never allowed to speak. There is a department devoted to the people who are in the public eye at the present time and another department telling about the bargains, which may be had in the big dry goods shops in New York.

In the October issue of The People's Magazine, which is now on the stands, Alex Irvine has a story of slum life in New York, which is worthy of attention. It has been learned that the story is founded upon true episodes which came under the attention of the author. The attempt of a sincere and manly vagelist to instill something of his godly view-point into a well-nigh irredeemable slum character is graphically described. The story is worth reading, not only as a story, but also as a study in contemporary sociology. This, however, is only one of more than twenty short stories which, with a complete novel and a department devoted to the review of current theatrical productions, make up the large bulk of The People's for October.

The recent booming of Northwest Canada, that mighty tract of land which comprises but a handful of settlers, is a fitting scene for Bertrand W. Sinclair's new novelette, "Raw Gold," in the October Popular. The Northwest Mounted Police have always been objects of interest to the settled Easterners, and it is evident that a tale in which these men figure, will be read with an interest seldom awakened. In serials, "The Man Who Was Dead," is happily concluded, and H. B. Marriott Watson's "Devil's Pulpit," and "Zollenstein," by W. B. M. Ferguson, are continued with ever-increasing interest. A rare collection of short stories from such able authors as A. M. Chisholm, Frank Whitlock, George Bronson-Howard, William MacLeod Raine, Charles K. Moser, B. M. Bower, and Scott Campbell make the October Popular a treasure for fiction-lovers.

Among the leading articles in the October number of the Technical World Magazine are the following: "To Cross Atlantic in Thirty Hours," by William G. Fitz-Gerald; "The Mind of the Mechanic," a poem by Emily Beatrice Gnagey; "The Conjurer at Windy Gulch," a story by Howard Dwight Smiley; "How a Big Balloon is Sent Up," by C. H. Claudy; "Steel Direct from Iron Ore," by Harry H. Dunn; "How Wastes and By-products are Made Valuable," by William R. Stewart; "You Cannot Kill the Tallow Dip," by William Hard.

The October number of Popular Mechanics contains in all 143 articles and 121 illustrations, and among the interesting features are a description of a process for chemically producing sugar from elements almost as free as air; how the big palatial ocean liners of the present age are taken out of the water after every voyage and given an overhauling both inside and out that surpasses anything in the way of spring house cleaning ever undergone; a new system of draining a mine by means of a water wheel; a method of teaching swimming on dry land; how the railroad is conquering the African interior—a vivid description of the dangers besetting such enterprise in the Dark Continent; and many others fully as interesting.

The Popular Science Monthly for October contains the following articles, "A Trip Around Iceland," by L. P. Gratacap; "The Sacrifice of the Eyes of School Children," by Prof. Walter D. Scott; "Notes on the Development of Telephone Service," by Fred DeLand; "Linne and the Love for Nature," by Edward K. Putnam; "Early Movements in the United States for a National Observatory," by Charles Oscar Paulin.

The causes of children's headaches are discussed in The Housekeeper for October, by Dr. Kate Lindsay and many valuable hints are given to parents. It would seem that the causes of headaches should be first inquired into by Dr. Lindsay shows by statistics that the common way of treating headaches among school children is by drugs, etc., without seeking for the causes. There are several interesting stories in the number by such writers as Mary Heaton Vorse, Arthur Upson, Clara Morris and Grace McElroy Iurs. An attractive feature is the fashion plates in colors. There are many special articles appropriate for the season and the usual departments.

In The World Today for October, there is a fine portrait of Richard Mansfield, and two pictures of him in character, together with an appreciation of him as a great actor, by Lyman B. Glover. "The Late Vineyard War in France" is graphically described by James Westfall Thompson, who writes understandingly of the conditions that led to it, and the dire need of the vinegrowers. "Rugby Football on the Pacific Coast" is proving popular, according to Karl A. Bickel, who tells of the advantages it offers in contrast to the American game. Ida Husted Harper writes of the first national parliament to which women have been elected—that of Finland. The recent disturbances in Wall street give interest and timeliness to the article by Siason Thompson on "The Railroad and the Small Town."

Seldom does it fall to the reviewer's lot to peruse a more thoroughly satisfying and praiseworthy magazine than the October Lippincott's. Everything in it, story and essay, poem and joke, seems to have been selected with rare discrimination and exceptional good taste. One quality especially should make a strong appeal to the great class of readers who bring magazines into their homes, and that is the entire absence of anything risque in its pages. A complete novel is entitled "The Whited Sepulchre," and its scenes are laid in and around the island of Martinique at the time of the eruption of Mont Pelee. The shorter stories are a lively lot, and range from grave to gay.

Just what may be the strongest passion in the human heart is an ideal topic, no doubt, for a village debating society. The passion for timeliness, the passion for the topic of the hour, is as strong, in its way as love, or ambition, or as the longing of the high-souled youth to attain imperishable renown. It is because it caters with such skill to this human appetite that the October number of Current Literature promises to sell even more extensively than the famous July issue, which told so much about Knox and Fairbanks. This new October number presents the history of the past month in all that concerns Governor Hughes of New York, as a presidential candidate. The facts supplemented by representative press opinion reflecting all views prove that Hughes is at any rate a presidential possibility. More crucial in its appeal to the man in the home is this question: Has President Roosevelt destroyed prosperity? This national inquest is undertaken in an impartial spirit, the editor of Current Literature himself, Edward J. Wheeler, writing a summary of the facts and giving the opinions of the administration's foes as well as the opinions of the administration's friends.

Transatlantic Tales for October contains the complete novelette, "Crevalcore," from the Italian of Neera and a dozen short stories selected from the French, German, Spanish and Swedish. It contains poems from the French, German and Japanese. Among the authors represented are: Paul Verlaine, Catulle Mendes, Francois Coppee, Paul Bourget and Detlev von Liliencron. Some of the translators who have collaborated in this number are: Elsie Lathrop, Reginald Wright Kauffman, Edward Tuckerman Mason, Sinclair Lewis and Grace Isabel Colbron.

"Needed: A Greater American Navy," is the title of an interesting article by Elwin Wildman in the Broadway Magazine for October. Then there are the following, all handsomely illustrated: "The Game and the Gambler," by Richard Spillane; "The Next American Cardinal," by William Allen Johnston; "Work and Play in the Ghetto," by Adolph Danziger; "Rapid Transit in Great Cities," by Fred Gilbert Blakelee; "Famous Pictures of Courtship," by Florence Finch Kelly.

There are several short stories of unusual strength in the October number of Uncle Remus' Magazine. Among these may be mentioned "The Long Fellow from Scotland," by Semus Mac Manus; "From Dawn to Dusk," by Arthur Colton; "The Ghost of the Tuscquittee," by Luther Roberts, and "A Voyage in Shallows," by Emery Pottle.

While each one of the stories holds a degree of interest all its own, yet "A Voyage in Shallows" is undoubtedly one of the few really valuable short stories found among the mass of such writings which flood the country today, that it deserves more than a passing word. It is a story of love, and is a subtle yet eloquent sermon on the sacredness of the marriage vows and the weight of such vows to bind the spirit as well as the body.

The October Wood Craft has an elaborate illustrated article on the tendencies of joinery and furniture making, the essay having reproductions of notable specimens of modern and ancient craftsmanship. There is also a discussion of some suggested changes in the forms of woodscrews and the designs that have been attempted hitherto. A machine woodworker finds much to admire in the adaptability of Douglas fir and also criticises a number of rediscoveries in the shape of saw teeth.

Edwin A. Abbey has made three characteristicaly fine pictures for the opening article in the October Harper's Magazine, illustrating Arthur Symons's critique of Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida." In the same number William Nicholson has a striking picture in color of a Morris dancer in England. This accompanies a charming article on May-day dances in Old England by the brilliant young English writer, Max Beerbohm. Charles Edward Russell writes very entertainingly about Burmah and the Irrawaddy River, under the title, "The River of Pagoda Land," in which he recounts some facts about Burmese women which are rather startling to Western readers. The lazy delights of motoring in Spain are humorously described by Louise Closser Hale, in an article called "The Manana Habit," and the illustrations by the beautiful drawings by Walter Hall, reproduced in tint.

Ainslee's for October has the opening chapters of a new novel by Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders" and "The Seeker," as well as of a new play, in collaboration with Booth Tarkington, soon to be produced in New York. This new serial, "Ewing's Lady," so far as can be judged by the first instalment, is a story which will far surpass anything that he has previously done. It begins in the West, and introduces the hero and heroine, afterward transferring them to New York. It is full of action, so far, and evidently is preparing for a series of dramatic climaxes.

The October American Magazine contains the whole romantic life story of Governor John Johnson and his swift winning of a people's affection. It is great reading, and especially timely. Lincoln Steffens' story of how Francis J. Heney grappled the land graft in Oregon is intensely interesting. In the same number Ernest Thompson Seton describes the habits of wolves, with special reference to animal marriage. Edgar Beecher Bronson tells the last survivor's story of an exciting adventure—twenty-six hours in a baloon in 1874, the longest aerial voyage in point of hours, ever made in the United States, and the world's endurance record until 1900.

A girl of moods, "switching them off and on every ten minutes to make life more exciting for her friends;" a tall, black-eyed, domineering man, who has overridden a thousand obstacles to great wealth; these are the figures in an uncommonly strong love-story, "The Ordeal," by Lindsay Bashford, in October Young's Magazine. Mr. Bashford is one of the best known English writers of the day and he handles "The Ordeal" with a daring not often found outside of Continental fiction. The girl, beautiful, cultured, with a restless spirit chafing under the unvarying round of social duties, defies convention in her eagerness for new sensations and interest. Then when the distorted appearance of her really harmless indiscretions threatened her with shame, she abandons her precocious cynicism and turns happily to conventional matrimony.

The feature article of Our Country for October is a carefully compiled synopsis of the views of Hon. Henry Watterson on the question of prohibition, temperance and the regulation of the liquor traffic. Among other statements that furnish food for reflection, Mr. Watterson says: "The saloon should be so conducted as to no more invite police supervision than any other retail business—than the corner grocery, or the drug store; and the liquor interests should welcome the regulations that take it out of the category of crime and put it in that of commerce." Other leading articles are "Hunting Whales in the Pacific," by Agnes Deans Cameron; "On the American Trotting Circuit," by Nancy Lewis Greene; a reminiscence of Col. Sellers, Mark Twain's famous character; stories, book reviews, etc.

The Woman's Home Companion for October is primarily a fashion number, not that the other regular departments are slighted in the least, nor that the fiction is in any way below the excellent standard the Woman's Home Companion has set for itself. Two of the many good articles deserve special mention—Jack London's article, "Riding the South Sea Surf," an animated description of that "Royal Sport for the Natural Kings of Earth," and Anna Steese Richardson's "The Influence of Women on Business." Mrs. Richardson, herself a most successful business woman, is telling the hard truths connected with woman's entrance into the field of business, in a series of three remarkable articles, of which this is the second, on "The Woman in Business."

The October number of the Kermic Studio, published at Syracuse, N. Y., is rich with designs and instructions for the china and water colorists. The design in colors for asters, which appears in this number, is especially rich.

Success Magazine for October begins four new features of more than ordinary importance. The first is "Dragging a Race," by Samuel Merwin, in which that well-known writer will show how the Chinese nation was practically drugged at the point of the British bayonet. The second is "The Real Lawson," Frank Fayant's life-story of the great Boston financier and publicist. The third is "Lentala," a new novel by W. C. Morrow, the San Francisco author. The fourth is "Our Own Northwest," by Chauncey Thomas, who was commissioned by Success Magazine to investigate the industrial and other conditions of Uncle Sam's northwestern states.

Pau-puk-keewis, the mischief-maker, is the central figure of the two-color cover of the October American Boy, it being the third of a series of attractive Hiawatha covers this popular publication is running. The October American Boy will delight the boys; it is full of matter of interest to grown-ups, as well. There appears the first instalment of a new serial pronounced by the editor to be the best sea story published in recent years, entitled "Jimmy Jones—Pirate," by Dr. Orville Ward Owen. The first chapters of another new serial, "A Boy of the Revolution," by Arthur J. Burdick, also appears.

The Engineering Magazine for October is a special mining and machinery number, of much increased size and of great interest and wealth of illustration. Dr. Douglas' article on the copper situation has the leading position—fittingly, on account of the timeliness of the contribution and the high authority of the author; but abreast of it in importance, and prospect, in relation especially to the production of gold. He finds a sound basis for continued prosperity in the enormous output of all forms of natural wealth, but a disturbance of prices in the readjustment which this output makes inevitable, and a certain strain due to the limitation of circulation in the United States—a limitation increased by the unnecessary hoarding of gold in the treasury, and concealed by the misleading statement issued of "money in circulation."

The militia were armed with this rifle up to a year ago, and in consequence of the issue of the new small-bore Krag rifle, the Government ordered the sale of them. This style rifle went through Indian wars from 1870, and is the only gun the Indian ever feared. They are still used in the Philippine islands by the Scouts and Constabulary, which is proof nothing is better for the hunter, farmer, sporting man or home protector. PRICE $3.00.

Sample shot and ball cartridges free with gun for trial. Money refunded after trial if not wanted. Ball Ammunition 2 cents each, or 40 cents box of 20.

The October number of Recreation reflects most strikingly the tremendous interest in outdoor recreation that now prevails throughout America. "The Evolution of the Irene," by A. W. Dimock, and superbly illustrated from photographs by the author's brother, is a very entertaining story of a cruise in Florida waters in a small cruising power boat. Another well illustrated article of general appeal is "A New Game Fish—the Pickle Tuna," by Charles Frederick Holder. "Observations of an Amateur Aeronaut," by Alan Hawley, also makes absorbing reading, and gives the reader an idea of what it is like to spend a night above the clouds.

That there has been a complete revolution of methods in retailing in the last twenty-five years is not appreciated by the purchasing world at large. This change is the result of the conception of the department store in the mind of John Wanamaker, and its development by him and by other eminent merchants. How the new methods have been worked into the organization of many establishments is described by Alphonsus P. Haire in an article entitled "The Conquerors of Business," which appears in the October issue of System, the magazine of business.

The special features of the October number of the American Review of Reviews are a discriminating estimate of Richard Mansfield's influence on the American drama, by Franklin Fyles; a sketch of Edvard Grieg, "the Chopin of the North," by G. W. Harris; a timely article on "India: a Nation in the Making," by W. M. Zumbro, illustrated with more than twenty photographs recently taken and never before published; "A Yankee Engineer on Five Continents," being an illustrated summary, by David F. St. Clair, of the remarkable achievements of James G. White, the American engineer, in North and South America, Europe, Asia and Australia; "The President's Mississippi Journey," by W. F. Saunders; McKinley Memorial in Sculpture," by E. H. Brush; "Three Hundred Years of the Episcopal Church in America," by Charles Johnston; and a frank statement of the Japanese case in Korea by Adachi Kinnosuke.

So much has been written in belittlement of the Jamestown exposition that the majority of Americans have been inclined to regard the enterprise as a failure. That it is, however, both an attractive and a successful affair is shown in Harriet Quimby's article, and an accompanying page of illustrations in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly. Miss Quimby's statements are the result of personal observation, and she relates the facts without bias. The number contains many interesting pictorial features. Noteworthy among them are Sigurd Schou's cover drawing representing an exciting chase after a wild steer in the streets of New York; exterior and interior views of New York's new $5,000,000 customhouse; a page of foreign pictures; panoramic views of the naval academy at Annapolis and of Battery Park, New York, and photographs relating to the anti-Oriental riots in British Columbia and the state of Washington.

The current issue of Harper's Weekly is one which will appeal to many readers by reason of the variety of its contents. The present agitation against Asiatics in Canada is treated interestingly by a Canadian journalist, and there are photographs of the wreckage wrought by the mob during its rioting. "All the Comforts of Old Home Week" is a truthful, although seemingly fantastic, record of a visit to a New England town. It is admirably illustrated. Capt. A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., contributes a paper of much historical as well as literary value, "Sailing Home to War," which records the conflict of emotions in the wardroom of the U. S. S. Congress, while that ship was sailing homeward from South America at the beginning of the Civil war. The number contains also the next to the last instalment of Hamlin Garland's dramatic serial, "Money Magic." In addition to these features there are the usual pages of "Comment" and editorials, and a review of two new plays by "L," the anonymous but authoritative critic who contributed to Harper's Weekly last season. Numerous pictures and photographs embellish the number.

CREW OF TUG RECORD CLAIM TO HAVE THE SPEEDIEST BOAT IN THE GREAT LAKES FLEET AT DULUTH

Boat Has Been in Commission Here Twenty Years.

Has Been Sunk Three Times in Local Harbor.

Her Chapter of Accidents is Believed to be Ended.

After a long career at the Head of the Lakes, towing barges, pulling steamers off rocks and shoals and breaking ice channels every spring, the tug Record is still the champion in the matter of speed at Duluth, and it is claimed can show her heels to any of the other tugs, even including the newest which have been brought up here.

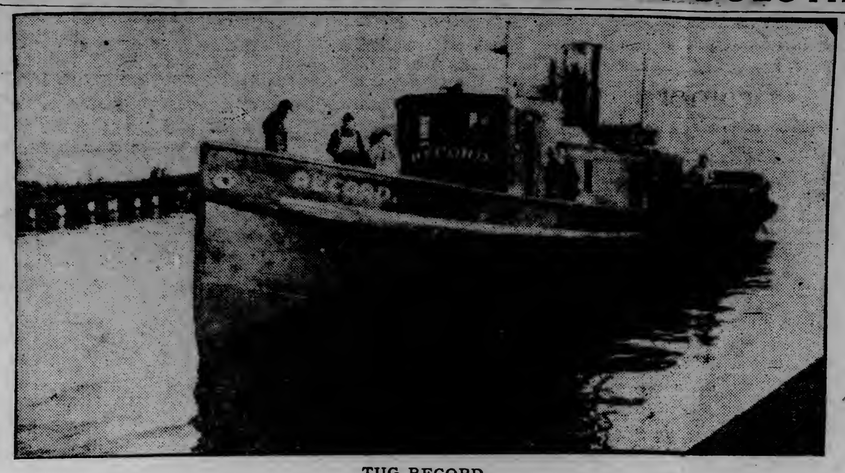

In a race recently with the tug Sinclair, a steel boat, which was brought up from the lower lakes last spring, the Record held on to the championship by defeating the new boat. Each had a tow bound for the Missabe docks, and it was a race in which skill on the part of the pilot and engineer counted for as much as the power of the boats' engines.

The tug Record was brought to Duluth as far back as 1887 when Capt. Inman was at the head of the local towing company. She had been built by the Globe Iron Works at Cleveland and was a steel tug equipped with powerful engines.

For many years the tug had the best kind of luck and had practically no accidents. She was not only the swiftest tug at the Head of the Lakes, but was also one of the most powerful. The tug captains were always much pleased when they were given the Record to command.

Her good luck did not stay with her always, however, for after a successful career of a dozen years or more, a series of bad accidents befell the tug, and various crews which sailed her. Three times she was sunk as the result of colliding with big steamers, and each time one or more lives were lost.

The first accident took place between the piers of the Duluth canal when the steamer Fulton ran her down and sank her. All hands were drowned but one fireman. The Fulton had whistled for a tug and the Record was sent out. Just as she was about to catch the line, the current got hold of her and pulled her directly under the bow of the steamer.

CREW OF THE RECORD.

The next catastrophe in which the Record suffered was when she was run down by one of the whaleback steamers at the turn near the Ohio coal dock. One man was drowned then. The last time the Record was sunk was when she was struck by the steamer Bradford while lying at the Allouez ore docks. This happened early in the morning of Nov. 7, 1902. One man known as "Sport" MacAlister was scalded to death.

Since that time the Record has had better luck and is one of the best tugs operated by the Great Lakes Towing company. For years she has done practically all of the ice breaking at the Head of the Lakes. Her master this year is Capt. Frank Byers, and her chief engineer is Charles McEichen.

up, and the fourth mine—the Smith—is now being developed.

Diamond drill work has been productive of remarkable results at the western end of the Menominee range. A large number of deposits have been found during the past few years, many of them in properties formerly regarded as valueless when judged from a mineral standpoint, and in the aggregate they contain many millions of tons of ore. The principal discoveries have been in the Iron River and Stambaugh districts, where exploration continues more active than in any other portion of the Michigan fields, but very good finds have as well been made in the Crystal Falls and Amasa districts at the opposite side of Iron county. The country to the east of Crystal Falls and north of Amasa has been attracting considerable attention latterly, and a number of important operations are now in progress. It is unquestioned that the western end of the Menominee will witness the opening of many more mines within the next decade. It is proving one of the very largest fields in the Lake Superior region. The known limits of the ore formations are gradually being extended, and there is a very great stretch of territory that has not been scratched yet. Some exploration is in progress at the east end of the range, also, but to date the results have been of no particular importance. Similar work is under way in the Felch Mountain country, northeast of Iron Mountain. There are large deposits of ore here, but of very low grade for the most part, and something better is being sought.

The new shaft to be sunk at the Tobin mine by Capt. A. E. Buzzo of Ishpeming, under contract with the Corrigan-McKinley company, will be the largest in the Crystal Falls district. It will go down to a vertical depth of 800 feet and will be 8x26 feet in interior dimensions, large enough for four compartments. Preliminary work is in progress at the surface now, and as soon as a drift is run underground a distance of 200 feet to the ground to be cut by the shaft, up-raising will be started also. It is figured that the excavation should average about 100 feet a month, in which event the shaft should be completed shortly after April 1, next year. The shaft will go through a slaty formation most of the way, but will likely meet with jasper also.

The shaft put down at Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Dunn mine for the purpose of redeeming the property after the old shaft had been lost through the caving of the open pit workings has been productive of results that further shatter the idea held in the early days that the ore bodies of the Crystal Falls district were of comparatively shallow depth. It was the opinion along abou the time that Ferdinand Schlesinger was an extensive operator in the field that there was little use in seeking ore below the 500-foot level. Developments at various of the mines during later years have been such as to refute this theory, and results at the Dunn are giving eloquent testimony in the same connection. A depth of nearly a thousand feet has been attained at this property, and there is more ore visible now than at any time in the history of the mine. It will not be at all surprising to see the Dunn again taking rank as the biggest producer in the field.

Corrigan, McKinney & Co. have a diamond drill at work at their Kimball mine, which has been the latest property to join the shipping list in the Crystal Falls district. A churn drill had previously been operated, and with encouraging results. A system by which the surface tram cars will be operated by a continuous cable is to be installed at the Bristol mine of Oglebay, Norton & Co. The Bristol, which will ship 300,000 tons this season, stocks a very large amount of ore each winter and the decision to dispense with manual power on the long trestlework is in the interest of economy. Labor is scarce in the Crystal Falls field, trammers and miners both being needed, but there is hope of securing a share of the men returning from Butte and other western copper camps, where production is now being extensively curtailed.

All-rail shipments of ore are being made by Pickands, Mather & Co. from the Menominee range to the Mayville, Wis., furnace. The ore is from the Hemlock mine, at Amasa, and 30,000 tons will be sent out. At Red Rock, near Amasa, Pickands, Mather & Co. now have in operation two diamonds drills, one of which had recently been in service for the New York State Steel company north of the Hemlock. In the country to the north of Amasa, systematic exploratory work is being conducted by Robert Whiteside of Duluth, who controls the so-called Pricket lands, comprising a very large acreage. Preliminary surveys had been under war for some time and the mineral formations have been well mapped out. While test-pitting is in progress now, drills will be employed later on. W. G. LaRue of Duluth, in conducting exploratory work in the country between the steel corporation's Mansfield mine and the town of Sagola, some miles east of there on the main line of the Chicago, Minneapolis & St. Paul railroad. Camps are being built and operations will continue all winter.

The Iroquois Iron company has met with success in its exploratory work at the old Gibson property, at the Amasa district, and is preparing now to mine the deposit that has been proved up. Buildings and shaft houses are being erected, and machinery is going in. The ore is low in grade, but the deposit is large and can be economically worked. One tract to be given attention by Pickands, Mather & Co. in the same vicinity is that which J. Parke Channing explored fifteen years ago. Mr. Channing was after Bessemer ore, however, and paid no attention to such ores of low iron content which are in demand now. There is no great doubt that deposits similar to those at the Gibson will be found by Pickands, Mather & Co.

In the Felch Mountain spur, in Dickinson county, Pickands, Mather & Co. are exploring a property in Section 9, 41-28, half a mile east of the old Calumet mine and twelve miles due north of the Loretto. A shaft is down 150 feet, and cross-cutting is starting. The ore is a low grade product, but there is hope it will be found to improve with depth. To the west, in Iron county, Pickands, Mather & Co. are sinking a shaft and installing machinery at a promising property held under option in Atkinson township. The same big Cleveland concern is enlarging the shaft at the Buckholz property, an Iron River tract it recently took over from the leaseholders, and will sink deeper. The Buckholz adjoins the Mineral Mining company's Beta mine. From its now inactive Vivian mine at Quinnesec, Pickands, Mather & Co. are shipping the 50,000 tons held in stock.

The action of Corrigan, McKinney & Co in closing the St. James mine at Aurora, has occasioned considerable surprise on the Eastern Mesaba, and there has been much speculation as to the reasons responsible for the step. Just what brought about the decision is not known publicly, but the fact that pumps have been pulled would indicate a shut-down of considerable duration. The St. James is a new mine, in progress of development for some time past, and it is ready for production on a fairly large scale. It is on underground property, and is well equipped with machinery, including electric underground trams. The men laid off have been taken on at other mines in the vicinity, the Meadow, Fowler, Mohawk and others. Labor is so scarce on the Mesaba a man need not be idle a moment.

One of the biggest stripping operations on the Mesaba is that which centers in section 9, 58-17, east of Virginia, where are located the Steel corporation's group of Ohio, Oliver, Norman and Lone Jack properties, and the Bessemer, Franklin, Union and Victoria tracts of the Republic Iron & Steel company. Some of these properties were operated years ago and were believed to have been pretty well developed, and all had long been neglected before the big program now in hand was undertaken. The deposits are known now to be of very large extent, and it is quite likely the particular section mentioned will be found to be one mammoth body of ore, dipping into adjoining lands. There are intrusions of rock, but undoubtedly the ore at one group connects through to the other. A prospective big mine in the Virginia district is the so-called Silver property of 155 acres, adjoining the Steel corporation's Sauntry-Alpena tract north of the town. The ownership of the land having been settled after many years' litigation, the property is due now to be taken over by some big mining concern and thoroughly tested. That it contains ore, there is no question.

A contract has been awarded for the erection of a double track coal trestle at the Brelijung company's Mary Charlotte mine at Negaunee, Marquette range. The structure will be 420 feet in length and will have a capacity of 5,000 tons. A 6,000-ton trestle has just been completed for the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company in the Swanzy district. A similar structure, 400 feet long, will be built this fall at the Steel corporation's Prince of Wales mine at Negaunee, as will a new engine house, 48 by 64 feet and brick-veneered.

The Cocolay charcoal iron furnace, a Marquette plant, which is being rehabilitated by the Lake Superior Iron & Charcoal company, a Berry concern, will go into commission about Nov. 1. The furnace has been idle for years. It is being rebuilt and newly equipped, a work which has been in progress since last spring.

SOCIALISM AND ITS MEANING.

There is no word of the English language used today that has been given so many incorrect meanings as the word Socialism. To give all of these meanings would only be a waste of time. Socialism is of English origin. Its growth has been phenomenal, and its rapid spread surpasses that of early Christianity, with which it has many features in common. It has become international and cosmopolitan in character. There has been much calumny and vituperation heaped upon this word, due to ignorance and prejudice and partly to wilfull misconceptions. In this period of modern industry the progress of concentration has been so accelerated that the prophecy of complete unification is no longer considered Utopian. This inevitable evolution of the social order has not only evidenced the possibility of Socialism, but also its necessity. Being convinced that Socialism is the only solution of modern problems, and absolutely essential to a higher state of civilization we, as Socialists, have taken up its cause.

Socialism recognizes society as a growing organism, and not as a mere aggregation of individuals. Individualism regards humanity as made up of disconnected or warring atoms, while Socialism regards it as an organic whole. The aim of Socialism is the fulfilment of service, while the aim of individualism is the attainment of some personal advantage, such as riches, place or fame. Socialism seeks such an organization of life as shall secure for every one the most complete development of his powers; individualism seeks the satisfaction of the particular wants of each one, in the hope that the pursuit of private interests will in the end secure public welfare.

Socialism means the collective management of production, this in order that the benefits of production will accrue to society as a whole, and that production will proceed as the public needs. When production is carried on as now, for private profit, it ceases as soon as it becomes unprofitable, regardless of the needs of the people. But under Socialism production would be carried on for the purpose of satisfying our needs, and would continue as long as our wants remained unfilled. Until that end is obtained there can be no overproduction. This, of course, will be impossible under the system of individualism, where production is carried on for profits of individuals.

Socialism declares that no man has the right to levy a tax or tribute upon the labor of others. It proposes to abolish the idlers at both ends of the social scale. As all are consumers, so all must become producers, so far as they are mentally and physically able to do so. Socialism means that the instruments of production and exchange must be socialized, so that social justice will be secure to one and all alike. We hold fast to the thought that the course of human history warrants us in believing that society is capable of being born again out of its travail of sorrow, and will struggle into a condition of plenty, peace and comfort for all.

Under Socialism all forces would work for a large product, not as it is at present, to diminish production. This is natural, as production is carried on for exchange, for a large production would mean small values. The interests of society and the interests of private producers are antagonistic, and therefore to diminish production aids the individual private owners. Society wants a large product, but producers want high values, and that can only be brought about by a limited production. The industrial combines are clearing the way for Socialism, preparing the way, and sooner or later it must come.

On the one hand the capitalist class are combining their wealth and resources, centralizing their capital, cooperating instead of competing, organizing industry and eliminating competition. This is the new and better way. It is good as far as it goes, but does not go far enough. On the other hand, the working classes are organizing. They are beginning to feel the galling yoke of oppression, and with all of the strength of mind are crusading against the ignorance of their fellow workers. The working class make the tools, the working class alone can use them, and the working class must own them.

BARNES-KING IS FOUND TO BE BAD

Stockholders Mourning the Hard Dollars They Have Invested.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 5.—The Barnes-King Development company bubble has burst, and several thousand stockholders in Butte and elsewhere have rudely been brought to realize that they are victims, one and all. It is claimed in Butte by friends of the promoters that they were also victims, and that the character of the Barnes-King mines was not known to them until after the first payment had been made on the property by the new company. For a long time there have been very ugly reports in circulation about the former management of the company and the flotation. To answer some of these ill reports, John C. Lalor, former president of the company, prepared a statement in which the conditions at the property were presented in a very inviting manner, and which said that there "is now in the treasury about $275,000, which is ample to provide for further development and equipment and new additions to the milling plant, so that hereafter profits can be used for dividends."

About that time a number of dissatisfied stockholders insisted on the election of a new board of directors and managers, and John Gillie, general superintendent of the Amalgamated mines, was selected to accept the presidency, and Charles W. Goodale, general manager of the Boston & Montana company, was elected vice president. Mr. Gillie and Mr. Goodale have just completed an exhaustive examination of the Barnes-King mines, spending nearly a week there, and they have joined in an official report to the stockholders, which was made public last evening. Rumors of what the report contained resulted in a rush to unload stock, and the price quickly fell from $2 per share to 91 cents, at which latter price sales were made in Butte. Many thousand shares were thrown on the market in New York, and probably as many more in Boston, and thousands of shares more are listed for sale.

The Barnes-King Development company was capitalized for $2,000,000 in 400,000 shares at $5 each, and in the underwriting every share was offered by the promoters, and greatly oversubscribed. Butte alone subscribed about $2,000,000 and a great deal of the money was returned after the allotment had been made in New York.

President Gillie and Vice President Goodale report that the net value of the ore in sight in the mines is $50,000. They say the property has a considerable prospective value, and the money in the treasury of the company, about $260,000, will furnish a sufficient fund thoroughly to test the property, and it is the intention of the management to pursue such development to the fullest economical extent.

E. W. King of Bozeman, was the chief owner in the Barnes-King before the organization of the new company, and Will Word of Helena, made the expert examination and report, on which the promoters took the property and placed it on the market. The report was of the most glowing character. The mine had paid many and regular dividends, and it was claimed by the promoters that it would continue to pay about 20 per cent on a capitalization of $2,000,000.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before the baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is women's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit

O'Brien, his notices in all the county papers this week calling a meeting of the county board of commissioners to consider a petition for the removal of the county seat from the city of Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. A petition was filed with the county auditor some two years, but was stolen from his office last fall and this new petition will now have the right of way. It is not thought likely that the board will meet in answer to this request as they have fully determined to let the matter be settled in the courts. Accompanying the notice is a mandamus from Judge Watts of the district court citing them to appear before him in case they refuse to obey the county auditor's notice. This is the third time that the board has been required to meet to consider the petition and they will bitterly oppose any move to take the county seat away from the place where it now is. Local politics absorb the attention of all concerned in the good government of the city. The biennial election takes place next month. It is probable that Daniel Shaw will be the strongest candidate for city treasurer. This position has been held by one of the oldest residents, Mr. Wallin, ever since the first white men organized any local form of government in this place. He is now on a homestead in Beltrami county and the city will have to secure some one in his place.

TOWER WANTS TO COME HOME

Ambassador to Germany Asks to be Retired Next Spring.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—Ambassador Charlemagne Tower has written to President Roosevelt asking that he be permitted to retire from the diplomatic service next spring. Mr. Tower's reasons are understood to be that he has been abroad for nearly eleven years, and desires again to live in his own country in order to have a home there for his sons, who are now nearly ready to go to Harvard and to give his personal attention to his extensive financial, mining and railroad interests that have been left to the supervision of others.

As the lease on Mr. Tower's house in Berlin expires next spring, it is presumed that he will remain as ambassador until after that time. Mr. and Mrs. Tower and the two young daughters are at present in Baden. They intend to return here the end of this month.

Mr. Tower's retirement will remove from the diplomatic service one of the most experienced of American representatives in Europe. He has been continuously abroad longer than any diplomat in the American service. In addition to the public questions with which Mr. Tower has dealt with at this post, such as assisting in the tariff negotiations and regarding the status of American citizens of German birth in Alsace-Loraine, he has had exceptionally agreeable relations with the American colony in Berlin. He was chiefly instrumental in placing the American association of commerce in proper relations with the German government.

He has been very welcome at the German court because he was known to possess the entire confidence of his own government and he has been able to get all that he ever asked for on behalf of any American. Mr. Tower's first experience in foreign affairs was as attache at the Spanish court thirty years ago, and during the long interval between that time and his appointment as American minister to Vienna in 1897, while actively concerned in railroads and the iron industry of Minnesota, he found time for the study of foreign politics.

A CORNER FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS

Let Good Enough Alone.

Boy:

I wish I were a bird to fly;
I'd never go to school:
I'd swing in tree-boughs every day,
And dip in shady pool.

Bird:

Were you a bird, my silly boy,
Worms would your diet be:
And boys would take a shot at you
When you swung in leafy tree.

Boy:

I wish I were a little fish,
With fins upon my side:
Then all day long through water deep
I merrily would glide.

Fish:

Were you a fish, my silly boy,
And swimming in the brook,
You'd find yourself quite suddenly
Caught on some angler's hook.

Boy:

Then if I may not be a fish,
Nor bird, with plumage gay,
What may I be besides a boy?
Will you two tell me, pray?

Bird and Fish:

Why, go to school and study hard,
And learn all that you can:
Improve your mind while you are young,
And grow into a MAN.

Great-Grandpapa's Way.

BY HELENA DAIVS.

Great-grandpapa sat in his big arm chair in the sun, dreaming no doubt of the days long, long ago when he was young like his little great-grandson whose voice could be heard ringing hilariously from the children's playground in the rear of the fine country home, situated in the city suburbs.

"Harry!" called a voice, "come, it's time for school." At the sound of his mother's voice Harry—the playful little great-grandson of the dreaming old man on the porch—came reluctantly from his play with hoop, ball and dog, to the porch, answering his mother who was in the house, and who had called to him from an open window.

But as Harry came upon the porch his face indicated that all joy had gone from him, for he drooped his head and thrust out his under lip in a decided pout. "I hate school," he declared vehemently to himself as he walked leisurely past great-grandpapa. "I wish there wasn't any such thing as school, so I do."

Grandpapa looked up from his revery, having been roused by Harry's impatient words.

"What's that, son?" he asked, detaining Harry as he was about to enter the house. "Come, what's that about hating school?"

"That's all there is to it, grandpapa," said Harry, a bit of a blush coming at having been overheard by grandpapa, for Harry knew that his wish had been a very naughty one, although he did not yet understand the enormity of it. "I just hate school. That's all."

"Now, son, suppose you call your mother here for a minute. I think I can persuade her to allow you to remain away from lessons today—and maybe—if you then wish it—to remain away all the time. Call your mother."

A look of eager anticipation came upon Harry's face, and he ran to the door and called to his mother to come upon the porch. "Grandpapa wants you on important business," he added, as his mother appeared.

"Now, daughter," said grandpapa (who was in fact a grandfather to Harry's mother, but he always addressed her as daughter), "I think we'd better have Governess excuse Harry from lessons today. He says he hates school, and wishes there was no such thing. Now, since he doesn't approve of the institution of learning—hates education, so to speak—we should see to it that he is excused from books."

Grandpapa gave a knowing look at his granddaughter who seemed to perfectly understand him, and turning to her little son she said:

"If you do not wish to go upstairs to the schoolroom I'll have Governess excuse you, as grandpapa has requested me to do. You may stay here and talk for an hour or so with grandpapa."

And then Harry's mother went upstairs to tell the governess—who was engaged to teach Harry, and his older brother and sisters—that Harry was to be excused from lessons that forenoon. And she also had a few very private words with the governess before she again returned to the porch where grandpapa and Harry were now in conversation.

"Grandpapa, tell me about your own school days," said Harry, loving better than anything to hear grandpapa talk of his own boyhood.

Grandpapa sat silent for a minute, then said: "Do you like to study history, son?"

"Harry pursed up his lips, shook his head emphatically and said:

"No, grandpapa, I don't. I hate history."

"Then I must not tell you anything about my boyhood, for that would be history," said grandpapa dryly. "All history deals with past events. Were I to tell you of my boyhood it would mean to enlighten you concerning certain customs of those times. And that is history."

"But I like that sort of history," cried Harry.

"How would you like to hear me tell of the Civil War?" grandpapa asked suddenly. "Oh, I'd love that," answered Harry, drawing his chair nearer. "I know you must have had some exciting times during the war, grandpapa, for mama has told us so."

"Not nearly so exciting as did the many great army officers," said grandpapa, smiling.

"Tell me about some of the officers," begged Harry. "That would be great, grandpapa."

"Well, I'm so old that my memory is not as it used to be, son, but if you'll run and bring your United States history—that may refresh my mind—I'll tell you about Abraham Lincoln, a strange and wonderful genius."

Harry was not long in fetching the text book grandpapa had asked for, and laid it on the old gentleman's knee. Grandpapa took it up, opened the pages and began to scan them. Then suddenly he closed the book, saying; "But you hate school—which means learning, and this would be teaching you a history lesson. So, we must not open this book. Your dislike for study forbids us to do so."

"Oh, but grandpapa, I want to hear about Abraham Lincoln," protested Harry.

Grandpapa shook his head. "No, son, you are excused from lessons today, and I must not turn teacher. You wish there was no such thing as school. Were there no schools you would never have learned to read. If you could not read you would not have books. The past would be a sealed mystery to you, and a mystery to all people were there no learning—no schools and books and lessons. So, since you do not care to learn we must destroy your books, for they are useless."

Harry's face was serious, but he did not say anything to this suggestion, though he did not relish it in his heart. He began to understand that going to school and studying from books meant something vastly more important than he had realized before. But he hardly knew just what to say to his grandfather about destroying his books, and adroitly turned the subject. "Say, grandpapa," he began, "since you can't tell me about your own boyhood, nor about Abraham Lincoln, s'pose you tell me about the time your father and mother—when you were a little baby—were almost taken prisoners by the Indians. I'd love to hear that again, for I've almost forgot it."

"No, that would be Indian history," explained grandpapa. "And we must not touch upon anything of the past, for that is history. And you are supposed to study nothing."

"But that wouldn't be study," protested Harry. "You'd tell it to me and I'd listen."

"It's one form of learning," said grandpapa. "You'd learn from my recital just as you would from books. So, that's a forbidden thing."

Harry began to grow nervous. It seemed there was little of interest to talk about that did not pertain to history. Well, he would give up the pleasure of hearing of the past. He'd ask grandpapa about things of the present. He rummaged about in his mind for something to talk about. Just then an automobile went dashing past on the road in front of the house. Harry's inquisitive mind found relief.

"Grandpapa, how do they make electricity?—Is it different from the lightning we see flashing in the sky?"

"Electricity, my son, was discovered—But, I must not tell you, for that would be teaching you something you do not already know. Since you hate school and books and lessons you must not be instructed in things educational. If men had not been great students there never would have been books. Without books they could not delve into the sciences. No, we must not talk about electricity nor lightning. We must not talk about things that call for questions on your part and enlightening answers on my part. We can talk about your ball and dog and kite. We can talk about our food and our sleep. We can talk about the things we see about us, but we must not ask how they came or for what purpose. That would be learning. But don't you think you'd better run and play with the dog and ball and hoop? There's no studying in idle pastime, you know."

Harry reluctantly withdrew from the porch to the playground, but he could not get interested in his play and sent Fido about his business, saying, "Oh, you are such a stupid thing, Fido, for you don't know anything." Then Harry sat down to meditate on his last words to the dog. Suppose he should never go to school again! Wouldn't he grow up to be a very ignorant man? Would he be able to cope with the world? Would he ever become a business man, like his papa, if he stopped learning? Would he forget even what little he already knew? And wouldn't his brother Tom and his sisters, Betty and Alice, be ashamed of him when they were all grown up and he was a fool? Yes, it was really a very serious matter. Tom and Betty and Alice were now learning their lessons up in the big pleasant school room. Perhaps they were learning Indian history, or maybe about Abraham Lincoln. And here was he, Harry, too lazy to like lessons. But when he got to be a big boy—Well, then he wanted to be very smart indeed. He wished that he might make the whole world hear of him. But how was he to accomplish anything if he did not study now?

Harry threw his ball on the ground and returned to the porch where grandpapa still sat. As he resumed his seat grandpapa said: "When it is recess time I want you to tell Tom and Betty and Alice to come to the porch, I've got a fine story of the Revolution—of our George Washington—to tell them, for I think they are now studying about Revolutionary times. It is a most interesting subject, too. But we'll ask you, son, to withdraw from the porch while we discuss their lessons. We'll not forget that you are excused from learning today. And of course, if you miss one day you will miss many more. And one link at a time dropped from a chain in the making destroys it as a useful thing. One must pursue one's studies if one would accomplish any good from them."

"Are you going to talk about anything else when Tom, Betty and Alice come down at recess time?" asked Harry eagerly.

"Well, I should like to explain how the children studied botany when I was a youngster," said grandpapa. "And our method of learning spelling was vastly different from the method used now, and most exciting and interesting, too. But—here I am rattling on, just as if you were a little student instead of a boy who had decided to throw books away and stop going to school."

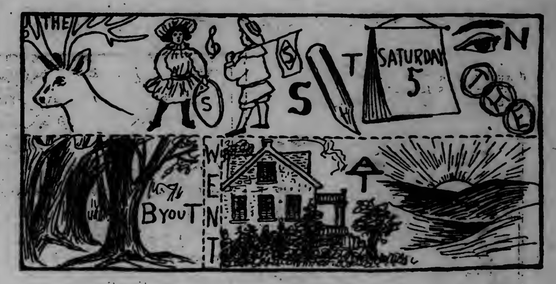

Harry sat with head down for a minute, then raising his eyes to his grandpapa's face he said: "Grandpapa, I'm tired already of not going to school. I'm going up to the schoolroom right now and ask Governess to let me come in and get at my lessons, for I don't want to be a fool, I don't. So, grandpapa, just count me in on being one of the party when you tell that Revolutionary story. I don't hate school, and I'd be mighty sorry if there were no books, no lessons to learn, and no school to attend. And since mama and papa are so kind as to get a governess for us, so that we may have school right in our own home, I'd be very naughty if I failed to appreciate it. So, from today on I'm going to look at learning in a different light."

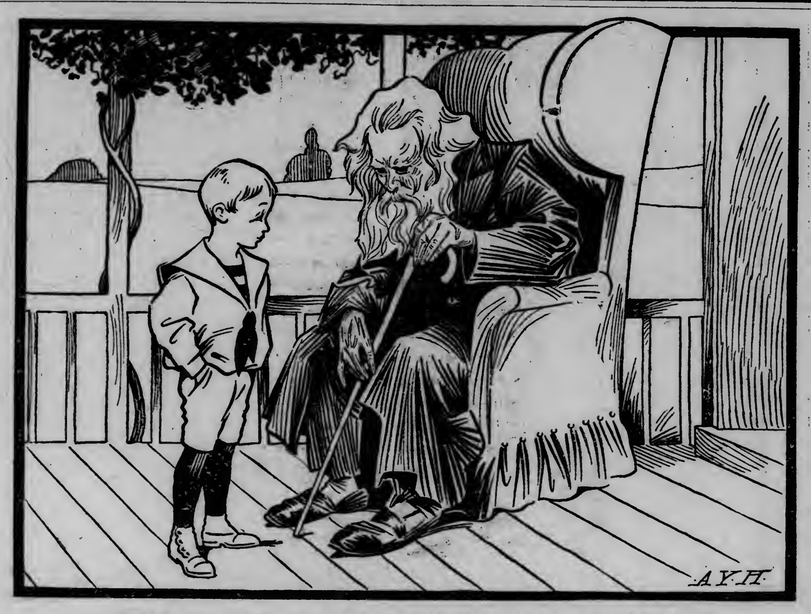

"Ah, now son, you are shouting," laughed grandpapa. "The world has no place for idlers. It offers premiums, however, to the well-educated boys and girls who are earnest and energetic. I'm glad my Harry has had his eyes opened this morning, and that he now understands the necessity of an education."

"And you'll tell us about the Indians, too?" asked Harry as he rose to start upstairs to the schoolroom.

"Yes, about the Indians, and my own school days, too, this evening," agreed grandpapa. "And now run along and tell your mother that her little son has turned over a new leaf and means to be the brightest scholar of them all."

Live to accomplish something, not merely to exist.

"What's that son?" he asked. "Come, what's that about hating school?"

WHITIE AND BLACKIE AND THEIR NARROW ESCAPE IN THE WOODS

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Whitie and Blackie were twin lambs. Their life was a very happy one indeed. All day they roamed about the grass-covered hillsides and clover-filled meadows with their great, loving and watchful mother. And when the sun went down behind the western hills and the twinkling stars peeped from the sky Whitie (who was the color of snow) and her brother Blackie (who was the color of ebony) went with their mother to the great farm where a comfortable house sheltered them from the night.

But as Whitie and Blackie grew older they began to grow restless, and wanted their mother to allow them to explore the deep and forbidding forest near the pasture where they roamed and fed. They could see that inside this forest all was deep blackness, and it seemed to run on northward forever, for as far as the eye of lamb could see there was no end to the line—blue in the distance—of that mighty growth of trees whose tops ran up almost to the clouds.

"You shall not go to that place," declared the mother of Whitie and Blackie one day when her petted darlings were coaxing for permission to stray into lands unknown. "There are terrible creatures in that forest, and they eat up little lambs. You are too young to know of the dangers that abound there."

"Tell us of them," urged Blackie, a bold young fellow for his tender years. (But it is said that all black sheep are bold and bad. However, Blackie was not bad, and never in his life became so.) "Tell us, ba-ba, what those dangers are." ("Ba-ba" was their name for "mama".)

"Well," said their wise old mother, "there are the Fire-eating Dragons, the Stinging Lizards, the Arrow-toothed Turtles, and the Claw-footed Monster. Any one of these would soon put you two little innocents out of the way. So, you must avoid the dangers that lurk in the mires and caves of yonder forest. Stay in your own sweet pasture by day and sleep in your own secure beds at night. That's the advice of your old mother, my twins."

But true to his color, Blackie was a bit disobedient. (Not really bad, understand, but of a roving and adventurous spirit.) So one morning, while their mother lay sleeping under a spreading elm tree in the pasture, Blackie whispered to Whitie: "What say you, sister, to a stroll towards the forest? We might go near enough to see some of those horrible beings that our mother tells us of, and yet remain far enough away to get into no danger."

"But ba-ba would not permit us to go from the pasture," said Whitie, anxious, nevertheless, to join her brother in a stroll towards the forest.

"But ba-ba is old and without the courage of the young," said Blackie. "All old sheep become a bit afraid of unusual things, and are content to remain within their own pastures. But young lambs cannot endure so much hum-drumism, and need a change once in a while. We will not disobey ba-ba by just going close to the forest. She only warned us against entering it. She said nothing about our going to the edge of it where we might get a peep into its depths and see the creatures that lie hidden there. I feel sure there's nothing wrong in our doing that."

Thus prevailed upon Whitie consented to accompany her brother to the edge of the forest that held so many dangers for them. They crept away from where their mother slept, and once a safe distance from her they scampered as fast as their young legs could carry them. And lambs are very fleet of foot, you know.

After awhile they stopped near to the edge of the forest, looking with all their eyes into it. But nothing but stately trees could they see.

"Why, upon my curly wool, there are no creatures in there!" declared Blackie. "And see how wide apart those trees are! Why, the sun shines right in, and it is scarcely darker there than under the elm where we left ba-ba sleeping. I'm of opinion that the dangers our ba-ba has told us of are falsehoods told to her when she was young, just to prevent her going out of the pasture. Of course, she has the strongest faith in the story, and believes the forest is full of terrible devouring beasts and reptiles."

"Maybe the beasts sleep through the day and wander forth at night, like the owls and cats do," suggested Whitie. "If so, there is no danger in our going a bit nearer."

This suggestion just suited Blackie, and he proposed that they go to the nearest tree and look farther within the woods. Whitie consented, and they found themselves in the very edge of the forbidden place.

"Nothing here but coolness and falling leaves," said Whitie. "Shall we go to the next tree which is scarcely farther within the wood than is the one we are now beneath?"

"Yes, let us step a little farther in. It is cooler in the shade, and I'm quite warm from running so far."

And so they advanced into the wood some considerable distance, going from one tree to another, and hardly realizing that they had gone beyond the very edge of the forest. Presently both looked behind them and were surprised to find they were surrounded by woods, close and dark, but they could still see the open space far away where they had entered. "Let's rest here awhile," said Whitie. "It isn't far from the outside, and we are as safe as at home. You see, our ba-ba has been misinformed about the dangers lurking here. It is a perfectly grand place. Just listen to the birds singing!"

"Yes, and when we return to ba-ba and tell her all about how lovely it is here she'll be delighted that we slipped away and came while she was asleep. She'll probably come here some day with us, too, to enjoy the change of scenery," said Blackie.

And so they rested for awhile. Then, Blackie growing thirsty he suggested that they hunt for a stream of water where they might cool their feet and tongues. "Farther into the forest I'm sure we'll find a creek of clear cold water," he said. So they went in quest of the water, finding some at last, but a very long way from the place where they had been resting. Indeed, the lambs had been so taken up with the density of the forest and the increasing darkness that they did not notice they were traveling a long way from the outer edge of the wood. When they came to the stream—which looked deep and treacherous—they felt afraid to step into it, and stood on the damp, cold bank looking at their own images mirrored in the water.

Just as Blackie was about to thrust his tongue into the water to taste of its quality a strange noise was heard coming from behind them. Looking up both lambs saw a sight that made their hearts stop and their wool stand up straight on their backs. "The Fire-eating Dragon," whispered Blackie, his breath almost stopping. "How are we to escape?"

Whitie stood with her knees knocking together in fear. But she found voice to say: "Oh, I wish we were back in the pasture with ba-ba. She knew what she was talking about when she warned us against this forest. Oh, oh, oh!"

On came the Fire-eating Dragon, its eyes bulging out and smoke issuing from its nostrils. "Oh, it will get us!" hoarsely whispered Blackie. "How I wish we had not disobeyed ba-ba!"

"We are done for," wept little Whitie, shrinking up into a round wooly ball and dropping behind a huge rock. Blackie, seeing that Whitie had hidden herself followed suit, and doubled himself into as small a ball as possible and hid behind another rock nearby.

Thus crouching in dark corners and shivering with fear Blackie and Whitie heard the horrible dragon crawl slowly past them to the water's edge. There it plunged in, cooling its hideous body, which seemed a mile long to the watching lambs.

Blackie beckoned to Whitie to follow him while the dragon was bathing itself and throwing the water about so noisily. Whitie obeyed her brother's summons and crept quietly from her hiding place. Together the poor foolish and frightened lambs hurried from the spot where the dragon still splashed water. They were out of sound of the commotion and were beginning to feel safe once more when a hissing noise fell on their ears. The sounds chilled their blood, and they involuntarily doubled up as with stomach ache. Then they hid in the hollow of a great nearby tree, holding their breath lest they be discovered by some other horrible beast. They did not conceal themselves a moment too soon, for almost immediately there was the crackling of brush and dead leaves and past their hiding place went a huge creature that caused them both to feel that their end had surely come. "It's the Claw-footed Monster," whispered Blackie, his teeth chattering together as he spoke. "If he smells up we are goners."

Whitie did not speak, but sat trembling as with a chill. But on went the dreadful Claw-footed Monster, never once scenting them out. It was so tall that its three-cornered head was among the tree-branches, and its huge feet wore long heavy claws that with one stroke could tear the flesh from a lamb.

As soon as it was out of sight and sound Blackie and Whitie once more ventured to start for home. They were so weak from fright that they could scarcely keep their balance and trot along. Quietly they went and their little hearts beat high with hope as they neared the bright line of light that they knew to be the open country, the space that led into their own dear meadow where their ba-ba had been left sleeping.

But they were not yet "out of the woods," as goes the old saying. And as they were making all possible haste towards safety, a most horrible noise as of a rough tongue grating on metal sounded at their right and their left. Both looked instantly in the direction of the awful sounds and saw a sight which caused them to drop to earth.

"The Arrow-toothed Turtles!" cried out Whitie, beginning to faint. But at this instant another form—a beloved one—dashed to their sides. It was ba-ba, their mother. She had been tracking them and had found them after hours of search, for they had not followed the same path returning that they had gone over on entering the wood.

"Ah, my lambs!" cried Mother Sheep. And she was beside Whitie, licking her back to consciousness. But again came the scraping noise so horrible to hear, and looking around ba-ba saw the Arrow-toothed Turtles coming as fast as they could. There were two of them, and their teeth were showing in a malicious way. "Run with me for your lives," urged the mother sheep. And Whitie and Blackie obeyed her. But they could not go fast enough for as they neared the clearing—beyond which no wood monster would venture—the Arrow-toothed Turtles grabbed their tales and bit them off. Of course, it was dreadful to lose their pretty tails, but they were glad to save their lives and did not mourn over the loss.

And maybe you little readers will know what Blackie's and Whitie's mother had to say to them, once they were safe in the pasture again. And it is safe to say that never again did those little lambs wander "from home and mother." Their experience had been enough to satisfy them.

On came the Fire-eating Dragon, its eyes bulging out and smoke issuing from its nostrils.

Some Facts About the Sun.

Children, when you feel the warmth and see the light of the mysterious body we call Sun do you know that its density does not compare to that of our own world? The sun in size equals 1,300,000 of our planet, while in weight it would take only about 332,000 earths to weigh it down to an even balance. Thus you will readily see that our earth is of much heavier substance than is the sun. In fact, the latter body is not much denser than water.

The sun is distant from our world about 92,700,000 miles, and that you may get some idea what that distance means we quote the following from the astronomer, James Baikie:—

Some conception of the immensity of the sun's distance from us may first be gained from Professor Mendenhall's whimsical illustration. Sensation, according to Helmholtz's experiments, travels at the rate of about 100 feet per second. If, then, an infant were born with an arm long enough to reach to the sun, and on the day of his birth he were to exercise this amazing limb by putting his finger upon the solar surface, he would die in blissful ignorance of the fact that he had been burned, for the sensation of burning would take 150 years to travel along that stupendous arm.

In diameter the sun is about 866,000 miles, and were it hollowed out till its crust remained but a shell our own earth could be placed in its centre, allowing room for our moon to travel in its regular orbit, which is distant from earth 244,000 miles, and outside of which another satellite could have an orbit at a distance of 100,000 miles from the moon.

THE DIOCESE OF DULUTH ADMITTED AS MEMBER OF EPISCOPAL CONVENTION

Erstwhile Missionary Jurisdiction to Have Vote Hereafter.

Convention Expects to Get Million From Men's Offering.

Will be Used for Permanent Work of the Church.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7.—At the Episcopal convention, the committee on admissions recommended the diocese of Duluth be admitted as a full fledged member of the general convention. The report was adopted, and at the next meeting the erstwhile missionary jurisdiction will have a vote in the proceedings.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7.—The second week of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church began today. The early morning hour in both the house of bishops and the house of deputies was devoted largely to routine work. The Woman's Auxiliary will have an all day conference on diocesan offices. The features of the work will be the men's thank offering and the Sunday school exhibit with the mass meetings to be connected with it.

It is expected the men's thank offering will amount to a million dollars, which fund will be used in some permanent work of the church and not to pay current expenses.

In the matter of Sunday schools some action will be taken as regards the different series of lessons. The present condition is admitted by those interested to be chatotic and there is a strong sentiment for a general graded system of instruction similar to that in the public schools, but of modified form.

Tonight there will be a public missionary meeting in the Auditorium which will be addressed by distinguished speakers.

The lord bishop of London left today for Harvard university, where he has an appointment to make an address. He has extended invitations to Bishop Randolph, Bishop Gibbons of Virginia and others to attend the Lambert conference next year.

THE THEATRICAL FIGHT TO GO ON

No Prospects of Peace in the Vaudeville Business.

New York, Oct. 7.—Answering the declarations of the past week that there was a prospect of peace in the vaudeville business, Klaw & Erlanger have issued a statement that their fight with the Keith-Practor-Williams combination will go on and that under arrangements just completed the field of rivalry will be extended from coast to coast.

Among the new arrangements announced is the signing of a contract with the American Theatrical company, a new Missouri organization, at the head of which is Louis Cella of St. Louis. This contract will open to the Klaw & Erlanger vaudeville attractions the Shubert theater in Milwaukee, the Shubert theater in Kansas City, the Mary Anderson theater in Louisville and the Grarick and American theaters in St. Louis.

Altogether the Western company, it is stated, will soon have under its management for booking purposes twelve or fifteen houses. These will reach out to the Pacific coast.

Directly after the contract with the American Theater company was signed the same sort of a contract was made with the William Morris Amusement company. This will open to the Klaw & Erlanger vaudeville all the Morris company theaters in New England with the exception of Boston; in Pennsylvania with the exception of Philadelphia and Pittsburg, and in New York state with the exception of New York city, Buffalo and Rochester. These exceptions noted have houses already controlled by the Klaw & Erlanger company. Altogether the Klaw & Erlanger combine will control enough theaters to offer performers contracts for fifty-two straight weeks.

Tobolsk, Siberia, Oct. 7.—A gang of convicts, who were being escorted here from Tyumen, Eastern Siberia, attacked their guards yesterday and wounded six of them. The guards fired on the convicts, twenty-two of whom were killed. Eleven of the prisoners escaped with rifles, which they had wrested from the members of the escort in the hand to hand fight which followed the outbreak.

TROUBLES OF COMPANY

Which Competed With Standard Oil Told at Hearing.

Contracts Taken Away and Given Octopus at Higher Prices.

New York, Oct. 7.—The difficulties of the New York Lubricating company in its fight with the Standard Oil company for the business of railroad lubrication throughout the United States were related today by Philip Harrison of the New York Lubricating Oil company, in the hearing of the government's suit against the Standard.

Mr. Harrison said that the Vacuum Oil company, previous to 1894, manufactured lubricating oil, but that it made an agreement with the Standard whereby it turned all of its lubricating business over to the Galena Signal Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard. The witness said that his company made a contract with the Louisville & Nashville railroad in 1903 to supply the road with lubricating oil. On the expiration of the contract President Milton Smith of the Louisville & Nashville refused to renew it, but would give no reason.

Mr. Kellogg then placed in evidence the statement of the Galena Signal Oil company, showing that the Louisville & Nashville, at the expiration of the contract with the New York Lubricating company, made a contract with the Galena at a higher rate than that paid by the New York company. Mr. Harrison said President Smith had stated in a letter that the oils of the New York Lubricating Oil company were entirely satisfactory.

Mr. Harrison said that the Galena agents went to President Smith and told him that the Standard was shipping a large amount of oil on the Louisville & Nashville, and that the road should give the contract to the Galena.

"President Smith told the Galena agents that he was not paying rebates in that way," said Mr. Harrison.

Mr. Harrison testified that the New York Lubricating Oil company had contracts with the Central of Georgia railroad, and that the Galena obtained contracts with the two railroads at prices which, he said, he understood were higher than the prices of the New York Lubricating Oil company.

EXTRA DIVIDEND

Of 1 1-2 Per Cent Declared by the Great Northern Railroad.

New York, Oct. 7.—Announcement of an extra dividend of 1½ per cent declared by the directors of the Great Northern Railway company was made today. It was announced that the funds for the dividend are derived from the Lake Superior company and comes not from the ore lands, which the company leased to the United States Steel corporation, but from other of its holdings, such as coal lands and express companies stock.

GREAT BRITAIN TO PAY $150,000 FOR MACLEAN.

Tangier, Oct. 7.—The release of Caid Sir Harry MacLean, who for some time has been held captive by the Bandit Raisuli, seems to be within measurable distance. The Associated Press was informed, on the best possible authority, that the British government had arranged with Raisuli for reduced terms for MacLean's release, the terms being $150,000 ransom, and British protection for Raisuli and his family. Great Britain's advance of the ransom will be guaranteed by Sultan Abd-El-Aziz.

Sir Harry MacLean's brother is now at Rabal, bringing the negotiations for the sultan to a close.

MURDERER OF THREE

Will be Tried at Present Term of Goshen Court.

Has Confessed to Killing of Two Brothers and Girl.

Goshen, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A murder trial of more than passing interest will begin here today when Charles Henry Rogers will be called on to answer the charge that he murdered Frederick and Willis Olney, prosperous dairy farmers, who lived together on the road between Middletown and Howells and the daughter of their housekeeper, Alice Ingerick.

Rogers is 32 years old, country born and bred. He has a wife and five children, none of whom he has seen since he left his home in Middletown on the morning of Oct. 6, 1905, a few days before the commission of the crime charged against him.

Rogers is said to have confessed the crime. According to the confession, he had lost his place and was greatly in need of money. He heard that the Olneys had received $300, and, armed with a two-foot section of gas-pipe and a loaded pistol, he set out for the Olney farm. By pretending he was a railroad detective, in search of a desperate character, he lured the Olney brothers into the woods, near their homes. There he shot and killed the brothers, and robbed them of their watches and $16 in money. Returning to the Olney farm, he felled Mrs. Ingerick with the gaspipe. Then he killed her little daughter, Alice, with the same weapon, and was ransacking the house when neighbors approached, who caused him to flee. He went to Chicago, and later to Los Angeles, and was captured in the latter city last April, after the police had searched for him for a year and a half.

After he was brought to the jail here, Rogers for a time was bent on self-destruction by abstention from food. Delicacies which were brought to him daily, however, so tempted his palate that he was unable to carry out his inclination to starve himself to death.

The defense is to be insanity, based on injuries received years ago by Rogers in a railroad accident. Alienists are to testify on both sides.

Rogers' wife, who has been supporting herself and her five little ones by day labor, called at the lockup the other day for the first time to see her husband.

"She waited so long, she can go," said Rogers.

EVIDENCE OF CRIME

Found in Discovery of Body of Fort Snelling Soldier.

Private Nestor Thompson Believed to Have Been Murdered.

St. Paul, Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Strong evidence of a murder was discovered yesterday afternoon when the body of Nestor Thompson, a private in Company H, Twenty-eighth United States infantry, was found under the Fort Snelling bridge.

The body was lying about fifty feet from the river bank, lying face downward in soft sand. The neck was broken, the left wrist was broken in two places, the right hip and left shoulder were fractured and dislocated.

The discovery was made by two boys who were crossing the bridge about 4 o'clock and, looking over the railing, they saw a bundle lying on the ground. Descending the steps to the river bank, they found that the bundle contained a soldier's uniform, a bottle of toilet powder, a new nail brush and a cake of toilet soap. It was after unearthing these things that they discovered Thompson's body lying a short distance away, in the brush. Officers at Fort Snelling were notified and Coroner A. W. Miller was called.

The murder theory is strongly corroborated by all the circumstances connected with the case. It would have been practically impossible for Thompson to have fallen from the bridge accidentally, as the railing above the place where he was found is so high that it would have been necessary for him to have climbed over it before falling. The suicide theory is discounted by his comrades at the fort.

Thompson had been in St. Paul Saturday night and returned to the reservation on the 10 o'clock car. Several soldiers who saw him on the car say he did not have a bundle with him. He did not go directly to the fort after leaving the car, but stopped at the corner saloon, where a number of soldiers were gathered.

A fight occurred about midnight between some of the infantrymen and cavalrymen and Thompson is said to have threatened to kill one of his antagonists.

The crowd of fighters were dispersed and it is supposed that Thompson started across the bridge carrying the bundle for some comrade when he was waylaid by some of the men with whom he had quarreled and thrown over the railing, the bundle following him to prevent immediate discovery of the crime.

MONTREAL MEN ARE DROWNED IN CANAL.

Montreal, Oct. 7.—Three men, whose identity has not yet been established, were drowned yesterday at Therese, a village on the Chambly canal.

They were driving along the canal bank in a buggy, when the horses took fright and jumped into the canal. There was no assistance at hand, and the entire party were drowned. The men are supposed to have come from Montreal.

INJUSTICE DONE PILOT

Who Had His License Suspended by President Roosevelt.

Pittsburg Delegation Says There Was No Danger of Collision.

Pittsburg, Oct. 7.—The members of the Pittsburg delegation to the deep waterways convention at Memphis, Tenn., returned home last night. They do not agree with President Roosevelt that during the trip to Memphis there was any danger of a collision between the steamboat Mississippi, on which was the presidential party, and the Fred Hartwig, on which was the Pittsburg delegation. The members of the Pittsburg delegation profess to believe that an injustice was done Pilot C. L. Nichols of the Hartwig, who was suspended on orders from the president.

Capt. John Moren, who was on the Mississippi, says he was close to the president when the Hartwig came near, but at no time were the steamers closer than 100 feet, and there was not the slightest danger of collision.

"I was on the Hartwig," said Capt. W. B. Rodgers, "and I never saw a fleet handled better. There was no accident and at no time was there the least danger of any accident or collision. The president must have had a mistaken notion when he thought that the experienced river men would take any chances at such a time."

BOY PROVES TO BE HERO

Tries Hard to Rescue Brother, But Death Intervenes.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 7.—William Egler, aged 22, of this city, was drowned in Lake Michigan yesterday under circumstances that reveal his brother, Harry, aged 18, in the light of a hero, as well as that of a powerful swimmer. Turning Cat Head point in an eighteen-foot launch that they had built themselves, the young men encountered a southwest gale, too heavy for them to go forward. In turning back, their boat was capsized and sank, the older brother going down with the launch. Harry Egler dove to the bottom, secured hold of his brother's clothing, and being an expert swimmer, fought his way through the icy water nearly a mile to the shore. Cold and exhaustion began to overcome him as he was rolling the unconscious form of his brother on a barrel, and he was compelled to leave the dying boy on the beach and run a mile to the nearest farm house for help. There he fell exhausted, after explaining what had occurred, and urging that help be sent instantly to his unconscious brother. It was too late, however, to resuscitate the older boy, whose heart had stopped heating before assistance reached him.

FIVE INDICTED OFFICIALS ASK FOR DISMISSALS AND CASES ARE POSTPONED

Perkins Withdraws Plea of Not Guilty and Joins Rest.

Arguments on the Motions to Be Made Next Week.

Hegeman Asked a Longer Delay But Was Refused.

New York, Oct. 7.—The trial of the five former life insurance company officials, who were indicted as a result of the recent insurance investigation, was temporarily postponed when the cases were called in the supreme court today. In each instance motions for dismissal of the indictments were made. Arguments on these motions will be made early next week.

Counsel for John Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, asked for a delay of two or three weeks. The district attorney opposed granting the request, and the case was set down for next Monday.

When the case of George W. Perkins, former vice president of the New York Life, was called, a plea of not guilty, which had been entered, was withdrawn, and a motion was made that the pending indictments be dismissed.

Arguments on the motion will be heard on Oct. 16, as also will arguments on a similar motion made in behalf of Charles S. Fairchild, a former official of the New York Life.

Walter R. Gillette, former vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, pleaded not guilty to a charge of perjury, and a hearing in his case was set for Oct. 17.

It was agreed that arguments be made in the case of Robert A. Granniss, also former vice president of the Mutual on Oct. 14 and 21.

REV. R. S. MacARTHUR,
Who Tells His Classes of the Private Conception Which John D. Rockefeller Has of Himself.

OIL KING TRUSTEE

For Others in Great Holdings of Standard Oil Stock.

Rockefeller Says He is Responsible to God for Stewardship.

New York, Oct. 7.—John D. Rockefeller's private conception of himself, that he is only the steward of the Standard Oil wealth, responsible to God alone for his stewardship, was quoted Sunday by the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, the pastor of Calvary Baptist church, before his young people's class. Dr. MacArthur said:

"A few years ago some one asked Mr. Rockefeller privately why it was, since he had suen a tremendous fortune and his tastes were so simple that he could not possibly use one-tenth of his income, that he did not retire. Mr. Rockefeller then made a reply which he did not intend should be made public and which gives an attitude of his mind never before appreciated by the public.

"'I am the trustee of the property of others,' he said 'through the providence of God committed to my care. I am the steward of vast interests belonging in great part to widows and orphans and others who are actually or relatively poor. For this holding I am responsible to God. Were I to give up my interest in the Standard Oil company I would impefil the interests of these people, according to the popular supposition that my withdrawal would hurt the company's business. Therefore I feel it my duty to God and to the people whose money is invested in my company to continue active in its welfare.'"

Dr. MacArthur was asked after his address about the directness of the quotation he had cited. He said that it was authentic and he intimated that he himself was the one who had heard Mr. Rockefeller so characterize his position in the world.

HAD NOT HEARD OF ANY CHARGES

Manager of Envelope Company Surprised at Government's Action.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 7.—In regard to the report from Washington last night that Postmaster-General Meyer has suspended the payment of all moneys due from the postoffice department to the Hartford Manufacturing company of this city, on the ground that the quality of envelope paper furnished the government was below the requirements of the contract, General Manager Charles Sloane of the company today said that it came as a great surprise to him. Mr. Sloane said he had no information whatever that any charges had been brought against the company. As to the specific charge that a paper of a cheaper grade than the contract required had been used, he could deny that specifically. All the paper used by the Hartford Manufacturing company comes from the Holyoke mills of the American Writing Paper company and the Whiting Paper company and, he said, is of a uniform grade. This paper is inspected by the government representative in a general way, but not to the extent of a chemical analysis.

It is charged that the company has wrongfully benefitted to the extent of $425,000 during the last four years.

READS NOVEL TO AUDIENCE

New York Pastor Has New Way to Interest People.

New York, Oct. 7.—To his congregation in St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Tottenville, Staten Island, last night, the Rev. Guy C. Jamieson, pastor, read the first installment of his novel, "Capt. Jack Lynn's Club." He read ten typewritten pages in half an hour. At the moment when he had his audience deeply interested, and at a climax in the story, the earnest clergyman ceased to read, and said:

"That is all for this evening."

The Rev. Jamieson will continue his reading of his novel every Sunday evening during the next three months. He hopes, diversifying the service, to draw large congregations and to point to them a strong, good moral.

His novel, written with this purpose, teaches temperance in strong drink and urges the extinction of the saloon.

CHICAGO DIVINE HAS NEW PLAN

Would Decorate All Men Who Ask Women to Drink.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—There will be a large number of men walking about Chicago with the letter "D" embroidered in vivid scarlet on the breast of their fall overcoats, if suggestions are adopted which were made last night by Rev. Frederick E. Hopkins, to a congregation which jammed the Pilgrim Congregational church.

Mr. Hopkins, speaking on the topic, "What Ought to be Done to a Man Who Asks a Woman to Drink?" laid down specific rules as to the treatment of the men of whom he was talking. He divided into classes the men who invite their feminine acquaintances to listen to the frolicsome popping of champagne corks, and he offered a punishment for each class. The address was a continuation of his crusade against women drinking in public restaurants and elsewhere. According to the speaker, the man who asks a girl or woman to drink in a restaurant is no gentleman, and should not be treated as one. The most picturesque suggestion by Mr. Hopkins was as follows:

The man who insists upon a woman drinking after she has said she "thought she should not"—this citizen should be ostracized by society. The church and the public at large should compel him to wear the old scarlet letter "D" pinned on his breast, for he is a debauchee, a devil."

WEATHER FORECAST — Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; slightly cooler tonight; warmer Tuesday.

October

is the month for overcoats. Men who are foresighted made their selections early, while stocks are complete—and those who come here will find that completeness means more here than in any other store in Duluth.

—Already we are showing winter overcoats to a great many men—and an unusually large per cent of them are buying. The new models are so handsome and the new fabrics are so beautiful our salesmen are enthusiastic. This enthusiasm is contagious and men who appreciate "niftiness" in overcoats cannot resist it.

—$15 to $40 with the Oak Hall Hand-made labels—and every garment shows the expert tailoring we put in them.

—We'll not undertake to describe the new models or fabrics in this advertisement. Come in and see 'em. You'll enjoy the "show" and not be made to feel under obligations to buy.

WANTS $25,000 FOR LOSS OF LEG

Gilbert Hagen Brings Suit Against the Northern Pacific.

For the loss of his leg while working for the railroad company at Superior last spring Gilbert Hagen is suing the Northern Pacific for the sum of $25,000. The case which was started in the district court has been transferred to the United States circuit court and the papers were filed with Clerk Pressnell today.

At the time of the accident Hagen claims that he was working about the engine in the Northern Pacific yards at Superior and alleges that the engineer without giving sufficient warning, started the locomotive forward with the result that his leg was badly crushed and bruised.

He was afterwards taken to a hospital and on examination showed that the limb would have to be amputated. Hagen claims that the accident was due wholly to the negligence of the servants of the railroad company and for the loss of his leg and the fact that he has been crippled for life, he asks judgment for the sum of $25,000.

In the answer of the railroad company which was filed today it is admitted that the accident took places as described in the answer, but every allegation concerning the responsibility of the company is denied. It is claimed that Hagen knew of the risks and that he was therefore responsible for his injuries.

Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell are conducting the case for the railroad company. It will come up for trial at the January term of the federal courts.

A COLLECTION OF WOMEN'S GARMENTS

EMBODYING THE LAST THOUGHTS OF THE WORLD'S DRESS-CREATING GENIUSES.

Such in brief is a definition of our apparel display. But to attempt word pictures which will bring to the mind of the reader even a faint conception of color schemes, trimmings, faultless lines, texture and perfection of tailoring, is quite a broader scope, and one requiring the skill of an artist and the analytic ability of an essayist, so broad is its range and so varied are the details. But enough said when we say you are cordially invited to come and see them even though not in a buying mood, and should you purchase we warrant that the garments will improve on acquaintance.

Faultless Tailormades

This type of apparel covers a broad field and is probably receiving more attention at present than has ever before been bestowed upon the street class of outer-wear. As to details of our lines we would say: THE COATS are more or less extended in length. THE FRONTS are straight, closely fitted or the new and happy medium between tight and loose. THE BACKS are either wholly fitted or at least conform somewhat to the figures. THE SLEEVES are Mannish. THE EDGES plain or braid-bound. THE SKIRTS are full, mostly plaited or multi-gored—with or without the popular foot-holds. THE SILHOUETTE shows style in every inch of its outline. Prices $25.00 to $125.00.

Women's Underwear!

The undisputable superiority of the famous brands which we place before you put them in higher favor with women who are more than ordinarily particular as to fit, texture and finish. They are of the best selected yarns and knit to conform to figure. Price $1.25 to $10.

Waists for Business, Street, Afternoon or Evening Wear

The plain tailored linens are near-mannish in their severity. The wide plaits, laundered collars and link cuffs lending to the wearer an air of stern severity. The handsome plaided, striped, checked or plain, thin woolens, taffetas or wool and silk mixtures are both dressy and serviceable. The dainty and airy Chiffons, Silk Voiles, Nets, Veilings and Messaline Silks are almost fairy-like in construction, so unexpected are some of the artistic touches. Prices $3.50 to $25.00.

Just the Snappy Gauntlets Which You're Looking for

We have just received another shipment of those new and nobby Street Gauntlets of heavy crepe kid. Colors, tan, brown, chocolate, black and gray. Prices $1.25, $1.75, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50.

Our Annex Dresses the "Little Women to a Nicety"

We firmly believe in the revolutionized American ideas of bringing children up on a level with their parents—thus fitting them to cope with the demands of the generation of which they are to be masters. Hence our care in the selection of our Girls', and Misses' Garments.

SUPERIOR NEWS

CITY FILES APPEAL.

Famous Street Railway Franchise Case to Be Revived.

The city of Superior today filed an appeal from the decision of the circuit court in their case with the street railway company, which decision was rendered about two years ago. The time for filing an appeal would expire Oct. 9, and the city appealed, in order that it might not be forestalled by the street railway people. Should the street railway fail to appeal, the city will also drop its proceedings.

The case involved an extension of the franchise of the street railway company twelve years. At the time the case was begun, the franchise still had eighteen years to run. That was seven years ago, so it still has eleven years to run. The company lost by the decision in that the extension was not granted, while the city sought to have the old franchise declared void also, but failed.

CONDEMNATION CASE.

Hearing on Great Northern Proceedings at Shell Lake.

This evening at Shell Lake, where Judge Vinje is holding court, the condemnation proceedings of the Great Northern Railway company against certain lands on the bay shore will be heard. The proceedings are being fought by W. E. McCord of Superior and J. J. Hibbard of Duluth, owners of the land.

The proceedings have been instituted to secure land for yard purposes. The first hearing was held about ten years ago, and was adjourned until today. Judge Vinje being at Shell Lake, they will be heard there. The people opposed to the condemnation first took out an injunction against the railway company, but the injunction was dissolved and a favorable decision by the court is their only hope. The railway company is going on with its preparation for the use of the land.

Wants Bond Settlement.

F. E. Guernsey, president of the Piscataquis Savings bank of Dover, Me., is in Superior to confer with the city authorities relative to the taking up of $5,000 worth of city sewer bonds held by this bank. The city has offered to settle with owners of the special street improvement bonds at 51 per cent of their face value. It is claimed that about $23,000 worth of bonds have already been taken up. The city officials intimate that the offer may be withdrawn soon and that the city will refuse to take up any of the special improvement bonds in the future.

EASY FOR BLAINE.

Superior High School Defeats Rice Lake 31 to 0.

The football team of Blaine high school Saturday afternoon defeated the Rice Lake high school by a score of 31 to 0. Despite the one-sided score, the Rice Lake boys gave Blaine a good game. They were heavy and fast, but poorly trained. On defensive play, they worked hard and with some degree of success, but when in possession of the ball, could do nothing against Blaine's strong lineup.

Buchanan, Sherman and Long shone for the Superior team. They pulled off some long runs, and together they gained most of the ground covered by the Superior boys. H. Rassmussen of the visitors showed the best form, being strong on defensive play. Twenty-five minute halves were played, the score at the end of the first half being 11 to 0. The teams lined up as follows:

Superior	Position	Rice Lake
A. Smith	c	Knudsen
St. Pierre	r.g.	Stark
Zeaman	l.g.	Trygstad
Long	l.t.	Achtenberg
Sherman	r.t.	Brain

KILLED BY ACCIDENT.

Arthur Kronlund is a Victim of His Own Gun.

Arthur Kronlund, aged 14 years, who resides with his brother, Oscar Kronlund, of 6010 Banks avenue, was accidentally kiled Saturday by the discharge of his own gun.

Kronlund was playing with a dog in a gasoline launch, while on a hunting trip on the Pokegama river. He pushed the gun to one side to get it out of the way, and, in some unknown manner it was discharged, the load striking the boy in the groin.

Every effort was made by the older brother and friends to get young Kronlund to a physician in time to save his life, but he never regained consciousness and died before he could be taken home.

HOLDS UP LOGS.

City Replevins Cedar Logs Stolen From Its Land.

The city of Superior has tied up several thousand feet of saw logs in a boom in the Memadji river, through replevin proceedings instituted to recover possession of about $200 worth of cedar logs, claimed to have been cut from the Stinson tract, owned by the city.

Andrew McIntosh, who owns the saw logs, brought them down the river to boom, where the cedar logs had been put in by persons who are as yet unknown to the city authorities. They intend holding all the logs in the boom until steps can be taken to prevent the city from suffering a loss by reason of the cedar logs taken. The later have been marked, it is claimed, in the usual way to enable owners to identify them, but thus far there has been on attempt on the part of anybody to claim the logs.

GERMANS CELEBRATE.

Observe Anniversary of First German Settlement in America.

The 224th anniversary of the first German settlement at Germantown, Pa., was observed at the Grand Opera house last evening by the German-Americans of Duluth, Superior and vicinity. The celebration was given under the auspices of the Superior Germania society and was a most successful affair.

Addresses were made by Mayor Linley, Congressman J. J. Esch of La Crosse, Wis., and Louis Bohmrich of Milwaukee. A fine musical and literary program was rendered. The stage was handsomely decorated with the German and the American flags, and potted palms. Seats near the speakers' stand were occupied by officers of the Germania society and many prominent citizens.

Brothers Are Arrested.

Henry and Martin Martin, brothers, were arrested Saturday evening while making a rough house in a saloon on Third street, where they claimed they were not given a drink they had paid for. The police claim that Henry Martin is wanted on a more serious charge, that a warrant has been issued for him, charging him with threats to do bodily harm to a companion.

May Build Exchange.

It is reported that the Douglas County Telephone company, a Bell Telephone company interest, will erect a new exchange building on Broadway, east of the old high school building, the coming year. It is thought possible that a start may be made on the construction work this fall. The plans are said to provide for a two story brick building of modern design.

NOW RIVAL TO CHICAGO

Duluth Becoming One of Great Grain Markets of Country.

"A few years ago the grain men of the country watched the Chicago market, and as Chicago went the country went," said James Kidston, a well-known Chicago broker, who was in the city today, and visited the Duluth board of trade. Mr. Kidston has just returned from a trip to Europe, and during his visit there he made a pretty thorough study of the wheat situation.

"Things have changed during the last few years," he continued. "Chicago no longer rules the markets of the country, but the Northwestern markets, Duulth and Minneapolis, are becoming equally important. I am amazed at the growth of the Duluth board of trade, which is rapidly becoming one of the leading markets of the world.

"The foreign situation appears to be very strong at the present time, and it is my belief that the Old World will want more wheat than we have to sell. It is rapidly coming to a place where this country will have little or no grain to export, and will require all it raises for home consumption. The world has to look to the Northwest for a large part of its wheat this year, and the Northwest doesn't seem to have it. The foreigners are coming into the Northwestern markets strongly, and I don't see how we are going to spare all the wheat they want, in spite of the way they are bidding for it."

Novel Cooking Demonstration.

This morning an interesting demonstration of the celebrated Moore's ranges was begun at the down town store of R. R. Forward & Co., 107 West Superior street. Mrs. L. Smith, one of the best cooks in America, is in charge, and certainly demonstrated the superior qualities of Moore's ranges in an unmistakable manner. Pies, cakes, biscuits, light bread, rolls, were baked before the eyes of a large and very interested audience. A novel feature is that one can watch the baking process in the oven during the baking. The demonstration will continue tomorrow and Wednesday.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ACCUSED DENY DYNAMITE PLOT

McNair and Two Others Say They Are Not Guilty.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—President McNair and two other members of the Western Federation of Miners, who have been brought here to the county jail to await the outcome of the preliminary hearing on the charge of having conspired to blow up the La Rue mine at Nashwauk, emphatically deny the accusation, and feel confident they will be dicharged. The detectives working on the case are said to be in possession of some very damaging evidence, that will place the accused in a bad light. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed, and the hearing is expected to be a long drawn out affair.

TO BUILD BRIDGE ACROSS MINE PIT

Something Novel is to Tried on Mesaba Range.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 7.—Special to The Herald.)—A suspension bridge across a mining pit is a novelty in engineering and mining circles that is to be tried at the Stevenson mine. The span will be 525 feet long.

The Stevenson pit is long and comparatively narrow. The location is situated on the opposite side of the pit from the shaft to the underground workings and the problem of getting the men to and from their work has been a serious one. The pit is deep, it is a long ways around it, and in winter it is both difficult and dangerous for the men to get from their homes to their work.

A foot bridge has been decided upon to solve the difficulty, and the foundations for the span are now in place. It is expected that the bridge will be ready for travel before winter sets in in earnest. The bridge will swing over the pin just in front of the office building toward the newer end of the works. A suspension bridge with a span of 525 feet is not a difficult engineering project, but it will be an unusual undertaking and an unusual sight on the Minnesota iron ranges.

BECOME FARMERS.

Many Former Renters Have Decided to Become Landowners.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Land company, through its agent, A. H. Randahl, has sold a quarter section of land in 57-25 to Peter Laudert of St. Peter. Mr. Laudert was formerly a renter on a farm near St. Peter, and as his lease down there ran out this year he will move up at once and proceed to procure a farm. Mr. Laudert states that there are at least half a dozen families who were formerly renting who will come up soon and buy land here and come up to make their homes.

VIRGINIA BOYS DO UP HIBBING

Visiting Eleven Proved Rather Easy on the Gridiron.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the Virginia and Hibbing high school elevens, who played a game on the local grounds Saturday afternoon, were quite evenly matched in weight, the Virginia boys played all around their apponents, winning by a score of 10 to 0. Two 20-minute halves were played. L. Gill made a touchdown for Virginia in the first half and Edward Deering another in the second. The locals failed to kick goal at either time. There was a large crowd over from Hibbing to witness Virginia's victory. The officials were Dr. Deering for Virginia and Mr. Getchel from Hibbing.

The line-up of the two elevens was as follows:

FIND TIN LEAD ON LAKE SHORE

Is Discovered Near Tower by Expert Mining Engineer.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large and well defined vein of tin ore of very high grade has been discovered on the shore of Vermilion lake, a few miles from this city, by Fred Hannon, an experienced mining engineer, who has been quietly working in this vicinity for the past two years.

Several assays of the ore have been made, each showing a very high percentage of tin. The exact location of the discovery is being kept a secret, presumably until all adjoining lands can be secured. This is the first and only information given for publication. If the facts are as reported, this is the largest and most valuable vein of tin ore ever discovered in the United States.

Owing to the great variety of eruptive rocks in this vicinity, it has been the general opinion of geologists that other minerals besides iron ore would be discovered on the Vermilion range, and it now looks as if they had guessed aright for once.

Who Mr. Hannon represents, no one seems to know, and he has been so successful in covering his tracks at all times that no one ever surmised what he was looking for. He is at present in Chicago having gone there a few weeks ago, expecting to be gone about two months.

MRS. JOHN BODILLY,

One of Pioneer Women of Iron Range, is Called Beyond.

Coleraine, Minn., Oct. 7. — (Special to The Herald.)—The burial of the late Mrs. John Bodilly, wife of Capt. Jonn Bodilly, one of the veteran mining men of the Minnesota iron ranges, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Wright, will take place in the Virginia cemetery tomorrow, following services at her former home at Mountain Iron. Mrs. Bodilly is survived by her husband, her son, John Bodilly, Jr., and family living at Oshkosh, Wis., and her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Wright and family of Coleraine.

Mrs. Bodilly came to the iron ranges of Minnesota in 1884 with her husband and Capt. Elisha Morsom of Quinnesec, Utah, when the first party of mining men invaded the Vermilion range. They made the trip overland, as there were no railroads into the range country then, the journey from Duluth to Tower on the Vermilion range being full of privations.

Four days were consumed on the journey, which was made on sleighs, and the nights were passed at the rough camps provided by the Minnesota Iron company for the tote teamsters and men going to Tower, but these difficulties did not daunt the brave women who accompanied their husbands to the then unopened iron mines in the wilds of Minnesota.

The family also lived for some time at Ely before coming here.

ITASCA COUNTY FAIR

Held at Grand Rapids Last Friday and Saturday and Voted Success.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Successful beyond the fondest expectations of those behind the enterprise was the Itasca county fair, held here Friday and Saturday of last week. The number and excellence of the exhibits was cause for general commendation. The attendance was large and the visitors from outside points were well taken care of here.

The Itasca county exhibit at the state fair was reproduced in detail, and was one of the sights of the fair. The productiveness of the soil in Northern Minnesota was certainly shown to excellent advantage, and the fair was voted a splendid success.

TOWER LID TIGHT.

Early Closing Headgear Appears to Fit Very Snugly Now.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lid is again on in Tower, this time a little tighter, it is supposed, than was noticeable at the time of the council's first orders, for the state attorney has this time served notice on the officials of the city and every precaution will undoubtedly be taken. The first orders were strictly observed for a few days, but gradually the leak commenced until the old routine was again observed and the saloons were wide open.

A number of the business men are in favor of obeying the orders and now that the city officials find it necessary to be strict, there will probably be no further trouble.

The accident was caused by the engine running off the end of a track during the night. Engineer Hutchinson's death was caused by scalding while the fireman was badly bruised and is thought to be injured internally.

SPARTA WILL TRAVEL.

Range Town Expected to Be Moved in Short Time.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Within a short time it is expected that the town of Sparta will be moved to the new townsite that has been selected, about two miles east of here and south of the Gilbert location. Boring operations at the latter place have shown there is no ore underneath, and that the town will not have to be moved again to make room for mining. The Duluth Engineering company is expected to have a corps of engineers in the field this week surveying the new townsite, and as soon as the plat has been approved in the New York office of the Steel company, actual moving operations will begin.

CHILD'S DEATH SUDDEN.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little Elsie Nelson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Nelson, who reside next door to the city hall, on Pierce street, died Sunday of diphtheria. She had been ill only four days. The sudden death came as a shock to her friends and family. The body was buried in the Virginia cemetery.

ON INSPECTION TRIP.

Two Harbors, Oct. 7.—County Commissioners Hans C. Hanson, G. H. Good and C. V. Johnson will leave tomorrow morning for Beaver Bay and Crystal Bay, the two towns in the eastern end of the county, on a tour of inspecting roads and bridges.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Hibbing—One year ago there were 240 cases of typhoid fever in Hibbing. Today there are but four cases, which were brought in from other points. The board of health early in the spring inaugurated a vigorous clean-up campaign and it is believed that to this fact Hibbing owes its escape from a severe epidemic.

Biwabik—Half of the land for the proposed cemetery near Biwakik has been cleared. The plat consists of ten acres. The evergreens have been left standing.

Chisholm—John Amos fell in the shaft at the Shenango mine near Chisholm Saturday afternoon and sustained a broken leg. He was taken to the Reed hospital at Hibbing.

Aurora—It is probable that a commercial club will be formed in Auroa. The town is growing so rapidly that its citizens and business men believe a commercial club would materially assist in furthering its advance.

Virginia — The new passenger equipment for the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg has begun to arrive, and the road will shortly have one of the finest passenger trains of any line in the northern part of the state.

Biwabik—Biwabik is to have a first-class bakery in a short time. John Almen, who now does his work with a brick oven, today made a contract whereby he will erect a building for bakery purposes and have a first-class steel oven.

Aurora—Walter Karkeel, who recently left the employ of the Aurora Mercantile company, has entered school at Alma, Mich., where he is taking a course in shorthand and bookkeeping and otherwise fitting himself for commercial duties.

Grand Rapids—Miss Myrtle Blood has left for Duluth where she will visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Clausen. She was accompanied by her nephew Master Herman Clausen, who has been visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Blood.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty three years old thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. "She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and sleeps well." That's the way Electric Bitters affect the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weakness and general debility. Weak, puny children, too, are greatly strengthened by them. Guaranteed also for stomach liver and kidney troubles. 50c. St. Paul. Druggists 50c.

GAMBLERS ARRESTED

An Even Dozen Prisoners Caught in Two Raids.

An even dozen gambling cases were called in the municipal court this morning as the result of two raids on the knights of the green cloth Saturday afternoon and night.

Frank Davick, Mike Davick and Thomas Arnick were arrested Saturday afternoon by Lieut. Fiskett and all three forfeited their bail of $5 when their cases were called in court this morning.

Nine men were arrested Saturday night over the saloon at 216 Central avenue by Officers Brouillette, Ek, Sullivan and Toewe. They gave their names as John Ockinson, John Johnson, John Harris, Fred Boudette, Samuel Garland, Charles Wilson, Burt Ottiness, Nils Erickson and William Stewart. Ockinson and Erickson forfeited bail of $10 each this morning, and the other seven entered a plea of not guilty, their cases being set for this afternoon.

WAS TRYING TO DROWN HIMSELF

Itel Klarutzki, a young Russian of about 19 years, who has been in this country but a short time, attempted suicide by drowning in the lake yesterday, and but for the timely intervention of a stranger, would have accomplished his purpose.

The boy waded out into the cold waters of the lake near Lester park, at about noon, and plunged under; when an elderly man, passing at the time, discovered him in his rash act and drew him from the water.

The youth seems to be despondent because of ill health and poverty. He was taken to the police station and sobbingly told Chief Troyer his story. The unhappy youth stated that he came to the United States in the hopes of recovering his health, but that his heart has given him more trouble of late and he decided there was no help for him, so he determined to end it all.

His parents are poor, and he spoke feelingly of his aged mother as he told the police his story. Several of his nationality were called in to interpret his tale, as he cannot speak much English.

Should his countrymen fail to take care of him, the attention of the immigration inspector will be called to his case and he may be deported.

Silberstein returned this morning from New York, where he has been collecting the newest creations in Woman's apparel, and expect the shipments to come daily from now on. Inspiration from Paris will be present in every garment shown. At no season have we been so thoroughly prepared or so confident of meeting high expectations. Elaborations on the diversified and extreme exhibit of fashions in tailored Suits, Costumes, Coats, Waists, Furs, Silks and Dress Fabrics seems unnecessary. An invitation is extended to you.

STRUCK BY A STREET CAR

Teamster Narrowly Misses Fate Which Befell His Wife.

Patrick Kelley, an aged teamster, living at Lester Park, narrowly missed meeting the same fate that overtook his wife a year ago.

Last year his wife was struck and killed by a Duluth & Iron Range train at one of the Lakeside crossings, and Saturday evening the old man was struck by a street car while driving across the track at Forty-seventh avenue east. One of his horses was killed and the other quite badly bruised, and he was thrown from the wagon and very badly shaken up. He was removed to St. Mary's hospital, and later taken home after his wounds had been dressed. He will probably recover, as his injuries did not consist of anything more serious than some bad bruises.

Vilas J. Stack Dies.

Vilas J. Stack, a young man who has been representing Spaulding & Merrick in this territory for some time, died suddenly at St. Mary's hospital Saturday evening, following an operation for appendicitis. Deceased was but 22 years of age and very popular among a wide circle of friends here.

He was the son of Michael J. Stack, a retired lumberman of Stillwater and the remains have been shipped there for interment. Mrs. Day of Sixteenth avenue east and Fourth street is a sister, and two brothers, Harry of this city and James of Stillwater are surviving relatives.

SWIMMING TANK PROVIDED FOR

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the board of regents of the state university an appropriation of $2,000 for a swimming tank was granted.

An action which will cause consternation among prospective engineering students was the decision by the regents that applicants for entrance into the engineering departments will be subject to the same requirements as to entrance English as academics. This means that they must take the examination in English with the academics, and if they fail, must take preparatory English with the academics who flunked. This is the result of a recent agitation among engineering instructors for stricter requirements in entrance English.

The debt of $1,177 of the Self-government association will be paid by the regents. This debt is for furnishings in Alice Shevlin Hall.

"BOO-HOO"

Shouts a Spanked Baby.

A Doctor of Divinity, now Editor of a well-known Religious paper, has written regarding the controversy between Collier's Weekly and the Religious Press of the Country and others, including ourselves. Also regarding suits for libel brought by Collier's against us for commenting upon its methods.

These are his sentiments, with some very emphatic words left out.

"The religious Press owes you a debt of gratitude for your courage in showing up Collier's Weekly as the "Yell-Oh Man." Would you care to use the inclosed article on the "Boo Hoo Baby" as the "Yell-Oh Man's successor?"

"A contemporary remarks that Collier's has finally run against a solid hickory "Post" and been damaged in its own estimation to the tune of $750,000.00."

"Here is a publication which has, in utmost disregard of the facts, spread broadcast damaging statements about the Religious Press and others and has suffered those false statements to go uncontradicted, until, not satisfied after finding the Religious Press too quiet, and peaceful, to resent the insults it makes the mistake of wandering into a fresh field and butts its rattled head against this Post and all the World laughs. Even Christians smile, as the Post suddenly turns and gives it back a dose of its own medicine."

"It is a mistake to say all the World laughs. No cheery laugh comes from Collier's, but it cries and boo hoos like a spanked baby and wants $750,000.00 to soothe its tender, lacerated feelings."

"Thank Heaven it has at last struck a man with "back bone" enough to call a spade a "spade" and who believes in telling the whole truth without fear or favor."

Perhaps Collier's with its "utmost disregard for the facts," may say no such letter exists. Nevertheless it is on file in our office and is only one of a mass of letters and other data, newspaper comments, etc., denouncing the "yellow" methods of Collier's. This volume is so large that a man could not well go thru it under half a day's steady work. The letters come from various parts of America.

Usually a private controversy is not interesting to the public, but this is a public controversy.

Collier's has been using the "yellow" methods to attract attention to itself, but, jumping in the air, cracking heels together and yelling "Look at me" wouldn't suffice, so it started out on a "Holier Than Thou" attack on the Religious Press and on medicines.

We leave it to the public now, as we did when we first resented Collier's attacks, to say whether, in a craving for sensation and circulation, its attacks do not amount to a systematic mercenary hounding. We likewise leave it to the public to say whether Collier's, by its own policy and methods, has not made itself more ridiculous than any comment of ours could make it.

Does Collier's expect to regain any self-inflicted loss of prestige by demonstrating thru suits for damages, that it can be more artful in evading liability for libels than the humble but resentful victims of its defamation, or does it hope by starting a campaign of libel suits to silence the popular indignation, reproach and resentment which it has aroused.

Collier's can not dodge this public controversy by private law suits. It can not postpone the public judgment against it. That great jury, the Public, will hardly blame us for not waiting until we get a petit jury in the court room, before denouncing this prodigal detractor of institutions founded and fostered either by individuals or by the public, itself.

No announcements during our entire business career were ever made claiming "medicinal effects" for either Postum or Grape-Nuts. Medicinal effects are results obtained from the use of medicines.

Thousands of visitors go thru our entire works each month and see for themselves that Grape-Nuts contains absolutely nothing but wheat, barley and a little salt; Postum absolutely nothing but wheat and about ten per cent of New Orleans molasses. The art of preparing these simple elements in a scientific manner to obtain the best food value and flavour, required some work and experience to acquire.

Now, when any publication goes far enough out of its way to attack us be cause our advertising is "medical," it simply offers a remarkable exhibition of ignorance, or worse.

We do claim physiological or bodily results of favorable character following the adoption of our suggestions regarding the discontinuance of coffee and foods which may not be keeping the individual in good health. We have no advice to offer the perfectly healthful person. His or her health is evidence in itself that the beverages and foods used exactly fit that person. Therefore, why change?

But to the man or woman who is ailing, we have something to say as a result of an unusually wide experience in food and the result of proper feeding.

In the palpably ignorant attack on us in Collier's, appeared this statement—"One widely circulated paragraph labors to induce the impression that Grape-Nuts will obviate the necessity of any operation in appendicitis. This is lying and potentially deadly lying."

In reply to this exhibition of—— well, let the reader name it, the Postum Co., says:

Let it be understood that appendicitis results from long continued disturbance in the intestines, caused primarily by undigested starchy food, such as white bread, potatoes, rice, partly cooked cereals and such.

Starchy food is not digested in the upper stomach, but passes on into the doudenum, or lower stomach and intestines, where, in a healthy individual, the transformation of the starch into a form of sugar is completed and then the food absorbed by the blood.

But if the powers of digestion are weakened, a part of the starchy food will lie in the warmth and moisture of the body and decay, generating gases and irritating the mucous surfaces until under such conditions the whole lower part of the alimentary canal, including the colon and the appendix, becomes involved. Disease sets up and at times takes the form known as appendicitis.

When the symptoms of the trouble make their appearance, would it not be good practical, common sense, to discontinue the starchy food which is causing the trouble and take a food in which the starch has been transformed into a form of sugar in the process of manufacture?

This is identically the same form of sugar found in the human body after starch has been perfectly digested.

Now, human food is made up very largely of starch and is required by the body for energy and warmth. Naturally, therefore, its use should be continued, if possible, and for the reasons given above it is made possible in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts.

In connection with this change of food to bring relief from physical disturbances, we have suggested washing out the intestines to get rid of the immediate cause of the disturbance.

Naturally, there are cases where the disease has lain dormant and the abuse continued too long, until apparently only the knife will avail. But it is a well-established fact among the best physicians who are acquainted with the details above recited, that preventative measures are far and away the best.

Are we to be condemned for suggesting a way to prevent disease by following natural methods and for perfecting a food that contains no "medicine" and produces no "medicinal effects," but which has guided literally thousands of persons from sickness to health? We have received during the years past upwards of 25,000 letters from people who have been either helped or made entirely well by following our suggestions, and they are simple.

If coffee disagrees and causes any of the ailments common to some coffee users quit it and take on Postum.

If white bread, potatoes, rice and other starch foods make trouble, quit and use Grape-Nuts food which is largely predigested and will digest, nourish and strengthen, when other forms of food do not. It's just plain old common sense.

"There's a Reason" for Postum and Grape-Nuts.

A Square-Deal

Is assured you when you buy one of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and attested under oath as being complete and correct. They are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native, medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. While potent to cure they are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into Dr. Pierce's leading medicines. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine of proper strength. This agent possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable anti-septic and anti-ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, "heartburn," foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

For all diseases of the mucous membranes, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific. Catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs is cured by it. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even in the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate hang-on, or chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Doctor Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend them, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Doctor Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that want. Insist upon it.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

This is a true story.

In most cases that precludes all possibility of its being a good one, and the person most vitally concerned does not think it is at all good and the assisting actors to the leading man do not know yet that there is a story, but several other people think it is excruciatingly funny.

It is a story of an automobile and its owner.

The owner could not find a satisfactory driver for his machine and so he consequently drove himself. When his wife wanted to shop and he could possibly tear himself away from the business that occupied most of his waking moments, he himself piloted her in this lovely car from shop to shop.

He waited outside.

The gentleman who owns the car is tall and slender with a nonchalant grace that would distinguish him anywhere. This day he had on automobile togs, and you know how they rather disfigure people, and moreover, in order to attend his wife in this obliging capacity he had foregone shaving. He was in the car waiting for his wife who was cooing unconcernedly over beautiful things inside one of the shops. For amusement he was piling up millions at a terrific rate. He had just reached the place where he had so many of them that he was fairly dizzy himself, when a dulcet toned observation reached his ear.

The observation was "What a lovely car!" and it was not at all queer that it reached the ear of the gentleman who owned the car and was sitting in it, for the observer was standing on the walk right alongside and with her was a lady who might have made just as dulcet toned an observation.

Of course, the man is married, but, well one thing led to another, and presently before he quite knew how it happened he had invited the lovely ladies to step in and try the car. If it had been the wildest kind of an escapade of frolicsome youths and maidens it would not have begun any differently.

He stepped out and saw that the sparker was working by carefully squeezing the plump little hand which he held for a minute while he assisted her into the car. He stepped into the driver's seat and threw the clutch open and put the lever into low gear and did a lot of unnecessary but quite effective fumbling, and then the car glided off as gently and easily and gracefully and ecstatically as you please. Before they quite knew it the ladies were home, brought up to their door with a flourish and ease of motion that made them gasp. The gentleman driver sprang out and helped his passengers to alight. There were expressions of delight and gracious thanks, and then the same plump little hand which he had squeezed unnecessarily, pressed a dime into his paralyzed hand and the owner made another dulcet toned observation.

It was "Here, my good man, is 10 cents. Buy a good cigar for yourself," and by the time he had foolishly quit staring at it, they were gone.

He looked at the dime again. And he turned it over. It was exactly like those he had often passed over in exchange for—but let that go. It was not a particle different from every other dime he had ever owned. "A good cigar," he said to himself as he thought of the Havanas at home. The good comradeship which prompted the giving did not escape him. "Just as man to man," he muttered to himself. "Or as a lady to a gentleman. She didn't have a cigar so she gave me the dime, and for fear there might be any hesitancy about my taking it, she stipulated what I must do with it. She didn't give it to me to buy shoes for the children or to get porterhouse steak for their hungry mouths. It was for a 'good' cigar. Well, I'm quite put out."

Now to show the perfidy of man. He reached the store on his return about ten seconds before his wife came out.

"For Heaven's sake, Sarah," he said in greeting, "how long do you think a man can spend waiting while you buy a package of pins and a few fum-a-diddles? I've got to put in a portion of the day at least making money enough to keep gasoline for this car," he said sarcastically.

And that's how he got even.

NO DAMAGES ALLOWED

Jury Awards Mrs. Sosnovsky Nothing for Her Tumble.

Mrs. Golda Sosnovsky failed to recover damages from Joseph E. Fox, a Superior street hardware merchant, for injuries claimed to have been received several months ago in falling down the basement stairs of the defendant's store.

Mrs. Sovsnosky claimed that she went to the store to buy a wash boiler, and that while looking around, at the proprietor's invitation, she stepped in an open hatchway and took a bad tumble. She claims that the hatchway was not properly guarded or protected, and that the proprietor was liable for her injuries. The suit was instituted to recover $1,025 damages. The case was submitted to the jury Friday evening, and Saturday morning a sealed verdict was returned. The verdict was opened in Judge Cant's room this morning.

In Judge Cant's room this morning, the appeal case of the Western Land association from the award of the appraisers in the Wisconsin Central Railway company's condemnation proceedings was being heard before a jury. The owners of the land involved in this appeal, claim that the award is not large enough.

The trial of the damage case of John Hakman against the Oliver Iron Mining company will probably be concluded in Judge Dibell's room today. Hakman is suing for $20,500 for injuries claimed to have been received in an explosion occurring when he attempted to open a can of powder with a railroad spike and a rock.

As soon as the Hakmen case is disposed of the state will begin the trial of the remaining criminal case on the present term calendar. The case of the State against a Pike Lake citizen, charged with assault in the second degree, will be the next case to be tried.

WILL HOLD MEETING

County Commissioners Gather for Regular Monthly Session.

Commissioners McMahon of Tower, P. J. Ryan of Hibbing and Neil McInnis of Eveleth arrived in the city this noon to attend the meeting of the various board committees this afternoon, preliminary to the regular meeting of the board tomorrow.

It is quite probable that a meeting of the courthouse commission, of which Commissioners McMahon, McInnis and Sundeen are members, will be held this evening. Efforts have been made to get the new plans for the courthouse here for the inspection of the courthouse commission this evening. If the plans do not get here in time for it a special meeting of the commission will be held in the near future. Burnham & Co., the architects, will send one of the men from their office, who will be prepared to explain the plans in detail to the commissioners. The plans to be submitted will be the first prepared by Burnham & Co., and will be in the nature of preliminary sketches of the proposed county courthouse.

Little business outside that of a routine nature is scheduled to come before the county board tomorrow. The road work, which has been in progress this summer, is being finished up for the season and there will be a number of road payrolls to be allowed and orders to be drawn.

Commissioner Grant McMahon, who has for the past several weeks been attending constantly to the road work in his district, says that the wet weather has hindered operations to a great extent. Commissioner McMahon called to instance one interval of twelve days lately when the road gang got in but five and one-half days' work on account of wet weather. In some places the construction of swamp roads has been practically impossible, as muck was so soft and full of water it ran off as fast as thrown up on the roadway from the ditches.

DAIRYMEN IN TROUBLE.

Warrants Issued for Local Dealers on Dairy Inspector's Complaint.

Upon complaints made by Harris Bennett, deputy inspector for the state dairy and food commission, warrants have been issued for J. H. Ezard and John Benson, local dairymen.

Ezard pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to a charge of selling watered milk, and paid a fine of $15 and costs. Benson is charged with selling milk of a low standard of butter fat. His case has not yet come up.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Michigan peaches, 65 cents a basket.
Pickling onions, 75 cents a peck.
Squash, 15 cents each.
Pumpkins, 10 cents each.
Warmed over roast or Stew.

The market does not offer warmed over roast. Mercy no! All you get there is brand new roasts, that have never seen the fire, but nevertheless most people had a warmed over roast this evening for dinner. Monday is that way. Upon that day you eat what is left from Sunday.

There are still pickling onions in the market, as well as green tomatoes. So if your happiness is dependent upon "putting up" something most of the time you can still keep at it.

Peaches, in baskets, with slats across the top and red mosquitto netting, giving them the blush of delicious ripeness, are to be had. The peaches and the mosquitto netting both come from Michigan.

WOULD KILL COMPANION

John Casury of Proctor Develops Dangerous Proclivities.

John Casury of Proctor will be reexamined as to his sanity.

Yesterday, at St. Mary's hospital, he is said to have attempted to kill another man who was in the same ward with him. He tore his bedding into strips, and the hospital attendants had to lock him up in the strong room.

Casury was brought down from Proctor the other day, suffering from epileptic fits. It was claimed that the fits had caused him to be mentally deranged at times, and that he showed violence.

Casury was partially examined before the probate court, but at that time he seemed to be perfectly sane, and the examination was not concluded. He was sent to the hospital for treatment, and seemed to be getting along all right until his outbreak yesterday.

The man who was in the ward with Casury is satisfied that Casury would have attempted to kill him had not the hospital attendants interfered.

THE CHAMPION BEAR HUNTER

Of South Reports to President, Ready for Business.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 7.—Holt Collier, the champion Mississippi bear hunter, reported to the president's camp early today, ready for business in the cane brakes. He came down from Greenville on a boat and brought with him a fine kennel of dogs, all of which were yelping as though ready for work in the jungles. The first report of a killing since the arrival of the presidential party was received today.

Ben Lilley, Collier's white rival, succeeded in killing a fine buck late Saturday noon, soon after he made his appearance, consequently the president dined sumptuously yesterday on a choice cut of venison.

ELECTION OF ELDERS

By Conference is Favored by Northern Minnesota Methodists.

Dr. Clemans Reports Great Year's Record by Duluth District.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Minnesota conference, by a large majority vote, decided to memorialize the next general conference, asking for the election of presiding elders by the vote of the conference, and not by the appointment of the bishop and cabinet. The discussion was led by H. W. Knowles and T. W. Stout, for the motion, and Doctors Dewart, Hingley and others against.

The Sunday conference love feast was conducted by Dr. S. P. Long. Several Indians spoke and sang in the Chippewa language. Bishop Daniel A. Goodsell preached from Genesis iii, 8: "And they heard the voice of the Lord God."

The deaconess board of control has issued licenses to the following, who were consecrated as deaconesses on Sunday afternoon by Bishop Goodsell: Mary J. Kreider, Mary E. Livingston, Ida Tirzell. It also received the licenses of the following: Sarah L. Cutler, Harriet Fritschle,. Tirza Dinsdale, Bertha Morrison, Mary Wilson, Hannah Northfield, Nellie Borsheim, Sybil C. Palmer, Eliaz Hauger.

One of the most interesting features of the conference was the report of Presiding Elder Clemans for the Duluth district. It shows a marked improvement in property and increase of membership. The debt of $200 at Isanti has been paid. At Cohassett the debt of $250 has been paid, and the church property improved. Grace church, Duluth, is making improvements on its church property. The parsonage at Asbury church, Duluth, has been greatly improved. At Ely improvements, costing $500, have been made. At Eveleth, the debt on the property has been reduced over $1,600, the pastor, Rev. R. J. Taylor, deserving the credit for this. The interior of the church at Milaca has been beautified, and at Pine City the church property has been improved. The parsonage at Aitkin has been enlarged at an expense of $250. The church and parsonage at Mora have been improved at a cost of over $200, and improvements in churches and parsonages have been made at Princeton, Carlton, Cloquet, Deerwood, Lester Park, Eveleth and Proctor. Every pastor in the Duluth district has been on the alert during the year to seize opportunities and open up new work. At Two Harbors the pastor, W. E. J. Gratz, having during the past year paid off all indebtedness on the church property, has inaugurated a movement for the purchase of the lot on the corner adjoining the church for $2,500 and is planning an enlargement of the present church building. This can be well done by the active, energetic preacher, who is familiarly known as "Revenue Gratz."

Dr. Clemans said: "The present year has been a great one for material development in Duluth. The United States Steel corporation has secured nearly 1,000 acres of land in West Duluth and has begun the erection of a steel plant that will cost nearer $20,000,000 than the estimated $10,000,000. Within the past month the power plant at Thomson has begun operations and in a short time will be sending down to Duluth 100,000 electric horse-power. Explorations made during the year on the iron range have added wonderfully to the known wealth of iron, so that within a few years Duluth and its tributary territory will be furnishing most of the iron of the world. St. Louis county is today paying one-ninth of the taxes of the state. Duluth is rapidly growing, and Methodism is trying to keep pace with the great opportunities that are opening up."

Dr. Clemans reported a grand total of twelve churches dedicated or to be dedicated in the district in less than a year.

The new building enterprise at Endion, Duluth, J. W. Powell, pastor, is already under way. Subscriptions to the amount of $20,000 have been secured, plans have been adopted by the quarterly conference, and with the coming of spring, ground will be broken for the building of a church to cost, when completed, $35,000. The building will be in the California mission style and will be a great and pleasing addition to the beautiful churches of Duluth, also giving us possession for all the years to come of the best residence section of the city. Under the peculiar circumstances that surround our work in this part of Duluth, no one but Brother Powell could have so successfully led this building enterprise.

The parsonage for First church, Duluth, has been completed and entirely furnished during the year, and is now occupied by the pastor, M. S. Rice, and family. The building and lot have cost $18,271, and the furnishing $3,600. Everything has been paid, and Brother Rice now occupies the finest parsonage in Methodism. First church has also provided for every dollar of indebtedness against its property, and the pastor comes to the conference reporting this great church absolutely free from indebtedness. Under his wise leadership and with the help of his splendid body of laymen, First church occupies a commanding position in Duluth.

Lester Park church, Duluth, is now in possession of an up-to-date parsonage. The pastor J. A. Geer, ably aided by his willing lay workers, has led his people in the building of a home for the preacher that has cost about $4,800, a thoroughly modern house, good enough for a bishop of the church to live in, making Lester Park a very desirable and comfortable appointment. Lester Park had a parsonage with a mortgage, and the disposal of this building gave $1,400 to the new building.

TO RESTRICT THE JAPANESE

Government to Adopt Stringent Measures to Keep Them Out.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Immigration of Japanese into America is increasing at so large a rate that it has been determined by the government to adopt extraordinary measures to prevent the introduction into the United States, not only of Japanese but of other Asiatic coolies.

One result of the trip of Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor along the Canadian border and the Pacific coast has been an increase in the force of immigration inspectors along the Canadian line with a view to controlling the flood of Asiatic immigration into America.

More than double the number of Japanese have come to the United State thus far inthe year 1907 than came here during the same period last year. The figures of the government do not include the hundreds of Japanese who have come into the country surreptitiously.

For many months the government has had inspectors in Mexico and Canada investigating the coming to America of Asiatic laborers, especially Japanese. In every instance inspectors have reported that the Japanese who reach Mexico or Canada are bound for the United States. Inquiries in the Hawaiian Islands have revealed organizations whose business it is to procure Japanese laborers to work in the United States. They not only provide the means, but pave the way by which the Japanese may easily obtain entrance into this country through Canada and Mexico.

It is this which the government proposes to combat. In the appointment of what probably constitutes a patrol guard of the northern and southern borders of the country, Secretary Straus hopes to reduce the number of Asiatics who are coming across the borders.

Returns from the Canadian immigration office show that 8,286 Asiatics were landed at the British Columbian ports of Victoria and Vancouver between Jan. 1 and Sept. 18, 1907. Of this number 2,872 were Hindus, and 4,811 were Japanese, most of the latter reaching Canada from Honolulu. The remaining were Chinese, who paid an admission fee of $100 for privilege of landing in Canada.

SECURE ANOTHER MINE.

Republic Iron & Steel Company Leases Paxton Property.

A deal has been closed between the Paxton Mining company and the Republic Iron & Steel company whereby the latter company acquires another mine near Nashwauk. A lease has been taken on the property, but no details have been given out.

The Paxton property is near the Missabe Chief mine and is of moderate size and the quality of the ore is non-bessemer. It has been drilled, but no development work has yet been done.

During the coming winter it is expected that the Republic people will sink a shaft on the Paxton land and the mine will enter the shipping list the latter part of next season. The property is described as the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of 23-57-22.

SWINDLER ESCAPES

MARINE NEWS

PREFER TO CARRY ORE

Some Vesselmen Refuse Grain Cargoes at Present Rates.

Trade Should Show Increase in Activity This Week.

It is expected that the grain trade will show a big increase in activity this week. The receipts of grain at Duluth and Superior are liberal and there will probably be a good demand for tonnage during the greater part of this week. Cargoes are offered freely and the market is in good shape.

The rate on wheat from Duluth to Buffalo still remains around 2¼ cents and there is not much tonnage at this rate. A number of vesses were placed for early loading when the rate was first advanced to 2¼ cents, and altogether there was a lot of grain taken out of the local elevators.

At Chicago the grain trade is using a fair amount of tonnage and the rates hold steady. The grain rates at present figure a little better than the carrying charges on ore but few of the big carriers have been taken out of the latter trade. Some of the vesselmen have refused to take grain at the rates offered to place their boats wild for ore.

There is not quite as much coal coming up the lakes at present as was the case during August and September, but the trade is in good shape. There is a big supply on tonnage on hand for coal but the supply on the docks at Ohio ports is rather light.

DIRECT FROM SCOTLAND.

Steamer G. R. Crowe is Coming to Lake Superior for Grain.

Laden with a ballast cargo of 150 tons, direct from Dundee, Scotland, the new steel freighter G. R. Crowe has arrived in Toronto. The vessel is the latest addition to the St. Lawrence & Chicago Steam Navigation company and has been specially built for the Canadian grain trade, although also adapted to general freight business. The keel of the boat was laid in Dundee May 15 of this year, and it was completed Sept. 10. She is 260 feet in length, has a beam of 43 feet and 9 inches and is 26 feet deep. After having disposed of her cargo she will be sent to the upper lakes for grain.

CAPT. HAYES ACCUSED.

Claimed to be Incompetent---Mismanaged Tug Katie Williams.

Milwaukee, Oct. 7.—Complaint against Capt. John Hayes, who recently libeled the tug Katie Williams at Jackson Harbor for wages claimed to be due, has been filed with the board of inspectors by the Amelia Martin Dredge, Wrecking & Towing company, owner of the tug.

The complaint, which is signed by John Martin, alleges that Hayes is not a competent man. In support of this allegation it is charged that at Washington island on a calm day Capt. Hayes ran the Katie Williams on a rock and that it required the services of two tugs to pull her off.

The second specification is that while towing two dump scows in Washington harbor the towlines were negligently allowed to slacken and the two scows collided. The third specification alleges that the Katie Williams ran on the beach at Manistee, Mich., in July, while in charge of Capt. Hayes.

It is further alleged that the tug ran aground at Sturgeon bay, and that later Capt. Hayes ran the tug into Washington island, Jackson harbor, and left the vessel lying at anchor without a mate aboard, in condition perilous to life and property, and that he then went to Milwaukee.

The complaint asks that Hayes' license be revoked, not for three months, but permanently, under section 4449 of the United States statutes concerning licenses of masters on lake steam vessels.

Distress After Eating

Do You Ever Feel As Though You Had Swallowed A Brick Instead of a Meal?

That heavy, bloated, stuffed-up, leadlike feeling, which you often experience after eating a meal is positive proof that something is wrong with your digestive organs. They are becoming weak and fagged out. There is a lack of gastric and other digestive juices. The food is no longer properly digested and it forms a heavy load on your stomach, so that nearly every meal causes you misery and distress.

If you are in this condition, it means that you have dyspepsia in some form and may have had it for some time, though you didn't realize it.

Now is the time to check it, for if you don't it will surely develope into worse forms of dyspepsia and other stomach troubles, which may have serious results.

But that is not all. The stomach is the hub of the body and an injury to it is the injury to all. A weak stomach causes the whole body to suffer. The action of the heart, liver and kidneys becomes sluggish. The brain becomes inactive. The nerves become unstrung. The blood loses its vitality.

The only safe, sure, scientific method of restoring your stomach to its healthy, normal state, is to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will act as a substitute in digesting your food, thus giving your stomach a much needed rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the tests for years. Thousands have used them and been cured. Physicians all over the United States recommend them. They are not a secret remedy. They contain fruit and vegetable essences, pure concentrated tincture of hydrastis, golden seal, lactose, and pure aseptic pepsin. These combined ingredients will digest the coarsest kind of food and do the work just as well as any good, strong, healthy stomach will.

Don't take our word for it. Ask your physician, your druggist or any of your friends, who may have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. But you don't even have to take their word for it. Find out for yourself. Send for a free sample package and try them. That's the surest way to learn the truth. Then, if you are satisfied, you can go to your nearest druggist and get a fifty-cent box. All druggists sell them.

SEPTEMBER LAKE LEVELS.

Superior Made Unusual Rise, But Other Lakes Have Lowered.

The United States Lake Survey at Detroit reports the stages of the Great Lakes for the month of September, as follows:

Lakes.	Feet above tide water New York.
Superior	603.13
Michigan-Huron	581.39
Erie	572.77
Ontario	246.52

During the past month all of the lakes have lowered except Lake Superior, which made an unusual rise for this time of year.

During October, Lake Superior should hold its present level; all the other lakes should fall somewhat as follows: Lakes Michigan and Huron 2¾ inches, Lake Erie 3½ inches, Lake Ontario 4½ inches. It must be understood that these are averages, and an unusually wet October would check this, and a very dry October might cause greater lowering.

During September, Lake Superior rose 2½ inches and is practically at the average September stage of the past ten years. It is 2¼ inches higher than last year, and 6½ inches higher than in 1896, but 2½ inches lower than in 1905, and 8½ inches lower than in 1876.

Lakes Michigan and Huron fell ¾ of an inch during the month, but are still 6½ inches higher than last year, 7 inches higher than in 1895, but half an inch lower than in 1905, and two feet lower than in September, 1876.

Lake Erie fell 3 inches during the month, but is still over 6 inches above the average September stage of the past ten years, 5 inches higher than last year, 1½ feet higher than in 1895, but 1 inch lower than in 1904, 1½ inches lower than in 1896, and 14 inches lower than in 1876.

Lake Ontario fell 4 inches during the month. It is, however, 8½ inches above the average September stage of the past ten years, ½ foot higher than last year, and 2½ feet above the stage of September, 1895, but 4¾ inches below that of 1905, and 10 inches below the water of 1876.

ON SHORT CRUISE.

Naval Militia Boat Went Down the North Shore.

The United States ship Gopher of the Duluth naval reserves, went out on a short cruise Saturday afternoon with a large number of the militiamen on board. She went out for eight or ten miles and took on a supply of water and then continued down the north shore and cruised about Two Harbors. No target practice was held, although a number of the drills on the ship were gone through with. Commander Guy Eaton was in charge of the boat on the cruise.

TWO STEAMERS LAUNCHED.

Two more lake steamers were launched on Saturday, one, the Arthur Hawgood, at the Bay City yards of the American Shipbuilding company, and the other, the steamer Verona, at Lorain.

The Hawgood was christened by Miss Edith Hawgood, daughter of Arthur Hawgood of Cleveland. The new boat is expected to be placed in commission the latter part of the month and will be brought out by Capt. H. S. Hackett of Marine City.

Miss Elsie Young christened the steamer Verona at Loraine. The steamer is being built for the Lackawanna Steamship company, and is 600 feet long and 52 feet beam. She will be commanded by Capt. James Jackson.

A NATION'S SHAME.

A writer in the London Post, who evidently knows what he is talking about from careful personal observation, brings a severe indictment against the American people for their rule in the Philippines and its results, a copy of which has been sept to The Herald by a Duluth citizen who is now abroad.

The arraignment is not actuated by malice or unfriendliness, either, because it appears quite conclusively from the general trend of this writer's remarks that his is a spirit of entire friendliness to the United States. His article is written apropos to Taft's visit to the Far East, and he shows a thorough knowledge of American methods and conditions in the Philippines.

"It will be recognized," he says, "that no government can be permanently successful which does not bring economic prosperity in its train." Applying this rule to the American regime in the Philippine archipelago, he deduces this uncomfortable but undoubtedly correct conclusion: "So far, American rule has killed trade in the Philippines." He quotes Governor Ide as saying in 1906: "We killed the Spanish market for Philippine sugar and tobacco, and our tariff shuts these products from United States markets, and today these, the most important industries in the islands, are practically prostrated."

This British writer shows, too, a clear-visioned conception of the cause of this condition. He says it is not due to "blindness or supineness on the part of the Philippine administrators or of the president and secretary of war, who have made the most earnest representations on the subject, but to the opposition of the vested interests in America, which have killed every bill for preferences to the Philippines."

In short, because the sugar and tobacco trusts are strong enough in congress to kill the Philippine tariff bills, even though these have always given sugar and tobacco a preference over other commodities, and have placed upon them a duty of 25 per cent of the Dingley schedules, "the industries which should form the staple of Filipino prosperity are hopelessly crippled."

"Consequently," says the English writer, and his unassailable charge should bring the blush of shame to every American citizen, "the islands are actually worse off now than they were under the Spanish regime. The annual exports of sugar have declined from $10,000,000 to $3,000,000; of tobacco from $2,500,000 to less than $2,000,000; and of coffee from $1,500,000 to $2,000. Rice, which used to be exported, is now imported at ruinous rates."

Yet so long as Senator Aldrich remains the power he is in the senate, and so long as his inside coat pocket remains as capacious and as tenacious as it is, all Philippine tariff bills will find ther way into that pocket and stay there as the previous bills for the relief of the Philippines have done.

Before discussing what we are to do with the Philippines, and whether we shall let them go free or sell them, we should redeem our national honor by restoring their industries to the state of prosperity in which we found them, and we can only do that by opening our markets freely to their products.

AN INQUIRY.

Speaking of the improvement of the Mississippi waterway, there is one thing to be said, and it is taken up by The Herald without the slightest desire to discourage the movement for this improvement, which seems to be along the right lines.

This is whether there is not something needed besides the deepening of the channels, something to stimulate their use as well as to make them easier to use. There are channels in the Mississippi now, available for such vessels as ply them. Though the river trade has fallen off enormously from its palmy days, there are still river steamers making their regular trips.

It seems worth while considering the business they are now doing. If they are conducting a profitable business, why are there not more of them than there are? And if they are not conducting a profitable business, would the deepening of the channels, of itself, make it profitable?

It is said that the river business is now very small. There are vessels making the river runs, but they do not appear to be doing such a profitable business as to tempt others to engage in it. Is this due to the unsatisfactory condition of the channels, or is it because the business does not now exist? If it does not exist, no amount of money spent in improving the channels would create it, without some other efforts designed to start trade going in that direction.

These suggestions are not made in any spirit of opposition to the improvement of the waterways. The Herald believes in lavish expenditures for improving waterways that will serve the public. But it would be a sad waste of money to spend millions on the Mississippi unless a sufficient increase in business follows to make it a paying investment. If the present facilities of the Mississippi are not being used to their full capacity, what assurance is there that an increase in the facilities would be followed by an increase in traffic?

THE NON-VOTER.

Says the International Falls Press: "The independent voter is no back number these days, as evidenced by the failure to adopt new charters in some of our large cities."

The independent voter had nothing to do with the defeat of the city charters that have been voted down lately. The independent voter is usually a man with a mind of his own and a clear brain to teach it how to act, and such a man will study a proposed city charter and vote for or against it, as his judgment dictates.

But the men who defeated proposed city charters, in Minneapolis and Chicago, were the men who stayed at home and did not vote at all. While perhaps neither of the charters that were defeated were all that they might have been, and while it might be easy to pick flaws in both of them, they are clearly far in advance of the old charters in both cases, and both should have been adopted.

The citizen whose action most endangers the safety of free government is neither the one who is hot-headedly but honestly wrong nor the one who is dishonestly seeking personal advantage at the expense of the state and the people. The really dangerous citizen is the one who gives no thought to public matters and who does not go to the polls to do his duty by voting his honest convictions regarding the men or policies there to be decided upon.

The stay-at-home citizens, sadly numerous in all communities, who boast that they "take no interest in politics," are a greater menace than the tricksters and charlatans who make of politics a game wherein the object is self-interest instead of the common good. If all of the citizens use their minds and their ballots, the tricksters will never stand any chance of succeeding. They can only succeed when there is a large percentage of stay-at-homes among the voters, and when they can control enough of their own kind or of the thoughtless to gain their ends.

It was recently related of Andrew Carnegie that he has not cast a ballot in twenty-five years. If this is true he ought to be ashamed of himself, and he certainly ought to cease talking about public matters. No man who has a right to vote and does not do it has any excuse for talking about public affairs or for criticising public policies.

The non-voter and the partisan who votes blindly for the policies and candidates of his party are the stumbling blocks of political and economical progress. The independent voter and the man that studies all questions and all candidates and votes his convictions are the hope of democracy.

The blind partisan is becoming extinct; he will soon be nothing but a tradition, like the dodo and the megatherium.

But the non-voter is still with us, as a comparison of the voting population with the total vote in almost any election will show.

DRAWING THE LINE.

Since it seems to be pretty well settled that while this country has no quarrel with Japan or the Japanese it does not care to entertain too large an influx of Japanese immigrants, the government is taking a very proper course in attempting to curb the growth of Japanese immigration. The line must be drawn somewhere, and if it cannot be drawn more closely, it certainly should be drawn so that this country will not have to try the hazardous experiment of assimilating hordes of Orientals, whether they are Chinamen, Japanese or Hindus.

There is little doubt about this country's ability to assimilate even the most baekward Caucasians, for they are our own people, capable of being made into Americans. But an American with slant eyes and brown complexion is not a pleasant thing to look forward to. The Oriental can be no more merged into the new race that is being formed here than can the African.

A Washington dispatch in The Herald tonight states that one result of the recent Western trip of Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor has been an increase in the force of immigration inspectors along the Canadian line with a view to controlling the flood of Asiatic immigration. This is a step in the right direction, and it will save a lot of trouble if the guard is made so effective that these unwelcome visitors will be stopped at the border.

THE EXPATRIATE.

The expatriate, the man who becomes an exile from his own native United States because he prefers to live in Europe, is a strange creature, and while no doubt he fancies that the American people are foaming with indignation at his complacent superiority, as a matter of fact he is more an object of amused wonder than he is of serious resentment.

One of this class of cads writes in the current issue of an Eastern weekly magazine the story of the expatriates from their own viewpoint. It is a venomous attack upon the country that gave to its writer not only birth and opportunity, but the wealth that has enabled him to make his absurd attempt to play the aristocrat in a foreign land where his pretensions are understood and laughed at.

His complaints are mostly petty and frivolous, but some of them prick real evils. He complains because the customs inspectors open his trunks, yet the same thing happens in Europe. He ridicules our Sunday closing laws, yet he can find similar ones in Europe. He pretends, hypocritically, to blush at certain advertisements tolerated in this country, yet he says nothing of the indecent publications that are encouraged in most of Europe. He dislikes our habit of working, and praises the European capacity to enjoy. Here he strikes something really worth criticising, but the trouble is that the source of the criticism and advice will destroy all of its real value. We don't pay enough attention to play in this country, and we do not know how to employ our leisure. But we will learn in time, and in the meantime our habits of work are providing fortunes for the creation of more expatriates.

No European traveler, journeying through the United States and going home to write us up, has treated the American people so contemptuously and uncharitably as this American-born expatriate has treated us. There is one exception to this, and that is Maxim Gorky. The reason he did not like us was that we didn't like his free and easy sex relations, and showed our dislike very plainly. Perhaps it was hypocritical of us to do it, since we tolerate abuses of this nature more flagrant than his, but that is the sole reason why Gorky abused us when he got home. Has the expatriate a reason that is akin to Gorky's?

As a matter of fact, however, the expatriate is understood by the people of this country a good deal better than he understands himself. His evolution is simple. First, a shirt-sleeved forebear, working and saving and piling up a fortune; then a generation to spend the fortune and to try to live down the shirt-sleeved laborer that created it; then a sprig or two of would-be aristocracy, who become impatient of the democracy that still prevails in this country, no thanks to them or their kind; then a trip to Europe, where the infatuated imbecile becomes carried away by the spectacle of a common herd kowtowing to the nobility. That settles it. He remains in Europe and scrambles for social recognition, the laughing stock of Europe for his vulgarity and affectations. He is now an expatriate, viewing his native land from a perilous perch of self-created superiority from which any wind of common sense may tumble him headlong.

The organization of the attorneys general will permit united state action against the trusts, but there is already a federal organization that is supposed to be tackling that problem: namely, the federal government.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

What's new in Detroit, was asked of W. H. Perry of that city, who is stopping at the St. Louis.

"Politics, business, brotherly love and home ties are forgotten in my town in the mania that has overtaken the inhabitants since the prospects of Detroit capturing the pennant have turned into active realization," said the man from the Wolverine state.

"Wives," he says, "wait anxiously and vainly for recreant husbands, who have forgotten the existence of home and home ties in the wild exuberance incident to celebrating a Detroit diamond victory. Business men neglect business, and Detroit business has felt its desertion by decreased figures since the Tiger team began its winning streak. Street cars are stopped and traffic impeded by dense crowds that surge before bulletin boards that announce the result of the ball game. Wives are forgotten for the time, sweethearts are neglected, and if all the relatives reported deceased really died the mortality list would be astonishing.

"The great American game has seized the rich and poor, the old and young, the active and decrepit, the aristocrat and plebian in its clutches, and Detroit inhabitants will recover from the mid-summer insanity that has raged with unabated vigor since the Michigan team began its winning streak, only when the world's championship series is settled. We have forgotten other things in the joys that are incident to the winning of a pennant. In the wild delight and primitive methods of celebration, that are attending the winning of a big league pennant after Detroit has watched with dull lethargy for twenty long years the mediocre performances of second division teams, has caught the town by the heels, and the average citizen from a perfectly sane city could not be seriously blamed for thinking the city had suddenly become affected with a peculiar form of harmless insanity, were he to walk the streets during an afternoon when the Detroit team is winning a baseball game."

H. S. Hasida, who played the part of the Japanese valet in the "Heir to the Hoorah" company, and who is a native born Japanese, is a believer in the pacific intentions of Japan in the acquiring of supremacy over the Pacific ocean. Mr. Hasida discredits the lurid talk of war that has lately become so agitated in this country, and declared that the traditional friendship of the land of Nippon for the United States would effectually act as a barrier to any demonstration of armed hostilities. He says that there is a party in Japan composed, for the most part, of men ambitious to gain political positions at the expense of plunging their country into war, but that this band of plotters comprises only a minority of the government party, which stands but little chance of leading the farseeing and conservative politics of the empire into the most serious mistake of war.

Speaking with the knowledge of a person familiar with sentiment in Japan and conditions in the United States, the actor's opinion may prove of interest on the question that looms large as a possible factor in the world's events of the next few years.

Are the people of Duluth superstitiaus? A little study in human nature was afforded one day last week, when a ladder was left for a few moments over the sidewalk at the uncompleted entrance to the St. Louis hotel.

There was sufficient space under the ladder for the passage of pedestrians, and to walk around the ladder necessitated walking in the mud beyond the ourb stone. Yet almost 25 per cent of the passing crowd, after an appreliensive glance at the ladder that slanted over the sidewalk, would walk around it. It is considered an ill-omen by some to walk under a ladder, an ancient bit of tradition saying that ill luck will attend such a performance.

Actors, professional baseball players and gamblers are notoriously superstitious. Yet to observe hardheaded business men and matter of fact housewives paying respect to this bit of hard luck lore only goes to show that George Bernard Shaw was right after all, when he said, "you never can tell."

"My Lord Bishop."

Boston Transcript: The emphasis which the press put upon "lord bishop" in its references to the Bishop of London, suggests unfamiliarity with the fact that that is a courtesy designation applied in Great Britain to every wearer of a miter in the Church of England. Even the incumbent of CSedar and Man is referred to as a lord bishop, and addressed as "your grace" or "my lord." The courtesy of the church gives the missionary, colonial, and American bishops the same address as those of Great Britain whenever they are present in that country. Americans in London are occasionally startled by the announcement in the church column of the Times that " the lord bishop" of Massachusetts, or Connecticut, or North Dakota, will preach at St. Paul's on the Sunday designated.

Good Literary Crop.

Baltimore Sun: In addition to the bay he "got in" at Oyster Bay, Mr. Roosevelt also harvested a large crop of magazine articles.

THE WEATHER.

A northeaster crept up Sunday, and after day-long threats settled last evening into a steady rainfall that kept up most of the night, with intervals of cessation. Later the wind showed a tendency to shift to the northward and the clouds lightened up considerably. The weather man expects clearing and cooler weather tonight and tomorrow with northwest winds. Yesterday's highest temperature was 50 degs. and last night's lowest was 40 degs.

A year ago today it was cold, and the air was clear but frosty.

The sun rose this morning at 6:15 and sets tonight at 5:37, making 11 hours and 22 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A storm of moderate intensity is central this morning over Lake Michigan having moved to that locality from Minnesota since Sunday morning. This disturbance caused light to copious showers in the Lake region the Red River, Mississippi and Upper Missouri valleys, Gulf states and the Southwest, besides brisk southerly to easterly winds in the Lake region. High pressures and cooler temperatures overlie most Northwestern states and Western Canada but the barometer is falling again over British Columbia due to another depression developing there. The easterly movement of the Lake Michigan low pressure will cause a shift to strong northwesterly winds on Lake Superior tonight and clearing skies may also be expected tonight and Tuesday as regards this locality.

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Four Thousand Ethereal Miles.

St. Louis Times: With the arrival of the first ships of the new Pacific fleet at San Francisco we hear of a new wireless record. It is reliably reported that the cruiser Pennsylvania, while 1,000 miles off the Pacific coast, communicated with the Marconi office at Savannah, Ga., quite another 3,000 miles across the continent of plain, valley and mountain, to the eastward—a terrible total of 4,000 miles through the ether.

Whatever may be the outcome of the Pacific fleet enterprise here is at least a result worth noting—a new record for applied science. The story is truly awful—in better speech, it is awe-inspiring. The vasty deep, from landsend to landsend on the Atlantic, is roughly 3,000 miles, a waste of blue and salty sea, deep and compelling in force and grandeur. Against the space we have the ethereal waves, captured and controlled by the Italian Marconi.

Not long ago the new Lusitania, crossing the Eastern ocean in five days, was out of touch with the two continents only forty-eight hours, and in all of the five days the ship spoke either land or other moving vessels.

Thus do we find that the perils of the deep are minimized by the wireless wonder. A ship passing through the ice-bound dangers of the Gulf of St. Lawrence may tell her troubles to land or sister vessels. She may summon aid by night or day. The peril of the deep is passing.

It is fine to think of flashing a word or love or trade or war across the surface of the sea, but it is fine to know that succor, too, may be called. that the stress of storm or accident or the pounding of an iceberg may come as naught when the wireless works.

We are fortunate children of an age of wonder!

Fame.

What's fame? a fancy'd life in others' breath,
A thing beyond us, e'en before our death.
Just what you hear, you have; and what's unknown
The same (my lord) if Tully's, or your own.
All that we feel of it begins and ends
In the small circles of our foes or friends;
To all beside as much an empty shade
An Eugene living as a Caesar dead;
Alike or when, or where, they shone, or shine,
Or on the Rubicon, or on the Rhine.
A wit's a feather, and a chief's a rod;
An honest man's the noblest work of God.
Fame but from death a villain's nabe can save,
As justice tears his body from the grave;
When what t' oblivion better were resign'd,
Is hung on high to poison half mankind.
All fame is foreign, but of true desert;
Plays round the head, but comes not to the heart;
One self-approving hour whole years outweighs
Of stupid starers, and of loud huzzas;
And more true joy Marcellus exil'd feels
Than Caesar with a senate at his heels.
—Alexander Pope.

From Morgan's Office.

New York Globe: William R. Garrison, well known among New York's financially and socially elect, had a caller not long since, who was announced by his man as "from J. P. Morgan's office."

"I told my man to usher him in, and soon a tall stranger entered. I proffered a chair and drew forth my best box of Perfectos," said Mr. Garrison, in telling of the incident. "The stranger lighted a cigar, settled himself easily in his chair, and pulled two long puffs, while I said, with all the deference at my command: 'Now, what is it that I can do for Mr. Morgan?'

"He puffed again, and then, reaching into a long pocket of his coat, replied: 'I have just come from Mr. Morgan's office, where I endeavored to interest him in the purchase of this unparalleled little work—' I interrupted him, but it was of no use. He showed his prospectus, and I voted him then and there the sharpest book agent that I had ever seen, and many there are, too."

"Did you buy?" was asked of Garrison.

"Of course," he replied. "Could I throw a wet blanket upon genius of that magnitude?"

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

•••Miss Eva Barker has returned from a week's visit to Northern Pacific Junction.

•••The city council had a lively session last night over a claim against the city held by Youngren & Gleason, the contractors for the Superior street sewer. From the statement of City Engineer Fuller it appears that when the contract was let, Prof. Herring's survey was taken as a basis for the estimate of the cost of construction, but after the work had been begun it was discovered that from First avenue west to Eighth avenue west the grade was at least three feet two inches high and the bottom of the sewer trench had to be lowered about three feet. The contractors claim $36,100 extra for the rock they had to take out of the bottom of the trench, they having been ordered to do this work by the former city engineer, Mr. Fowler. Engineer Fuller has now made a final estimate of $35,102.17 in their favor, and the contractors are willing to accept it. The council finally referred the claim to a committee to investigate.

•••Wieland Brothers have purchased the grocery business of C. H. Presley at 15 Superior street east and have sold their stock of crockery and glassware in the store on Lake avenue to Martin Sorenson, who will continue the business.

•••The building formerly occupied by Mr. Silbert and known as the Model restaurant, on Superior street, will be torn down and a brick block built on the site.

•••Col. Jimmie Lowe has returned from a Western trip, during which he visited numerous Dakota towns. He thinks that the best of them is Aberdoen, but none touches Duluth.

•••Col. Pat Donan of Fargo, the silver-tongued sky-scraping orator of America, is unable to come to the St. Louis county fair to deliver a speech, but Col. W. C. Plummer, the great Aberdeen, Dak., orator, has been secured to fill his place.

•••Mrs. J. Brock left this afternoon for Chicago, where she will visit a few days and then proceed to Erie, Pa., to visit her sister for a few weeks.

•••Tom Holmes, the humorous writer of the St. Paul Globe, arrived in the city today to spend a few days with friends.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Willmar Journal: Every Republican is talking "harmony," but many are insisting that there can be no "harmony" in the Republican party if certain men are placed on the ticket. The Republican party has got to create a great big burying ground for concealed weapons before it can hope to again get control of the political ship in "solid Republican" Minnesota.

Roseau Region: Governor Johnson's head might easily have been turned by all this adoration, but he is still the same approachable, courteous and level headed man he was before he found himself to be a noted character. Perhaps he is more surprised at it all than are his old-time friends, for Johnson, but does and acts as he conscientiously believes he should do and act.

Fergus Falls Journal: The boarding house keepers are the people to be pitied these days. All food products, wages and fuel have advanced tremendously. The boarder not only kicks on paying more, but kicks on the grub. The boarding house keeper's union is justified in striking.

Austin Transcript: The Litchfield Independent says that lumber prices have been advanced to such an exorbitant figure that people have quit buying. Building of all kinds has ceased. People will not stand to be fleeced by the lumber trust to the extent of the present exactions. This is true to some extent elsewhere. We hope that cement building will help to solve the problem of building material at a reasonable price.

Crookston Times: Next we know the railroads will enjoin the legislature from holding a session.—Mankato Free Press.

Perhaps this would not be an unmixed evil.

Big Falls Compass: Already the anti-Bede forces are sponging down Clarence Miller as Duluth for a trial heat next year with the speedy Adam.

North Branch Review: Some of those gubernatorial bees that are buzzing around the state capital may turn out to be yellow jackets.

Eveleth News: Much has been said about red flag Socialism in Minnesota, but our observation is that the majority of agitators and speakers who have visited on this range in the last four years have come from the Michigan Copper country. Clean red flagism out of Hancock, Houghton and Calumet and it will languish in Minnesota.

Preston Times: Among the latest to be mentioned for governor is the Hon. Michael J. Dowling. Well, Mike is gubernatorial size and has shown sprinting qualities not to be sneezed at.

Le Sueur News: Must be getting ready for a campaign. Tariff experts are to be sent to England, but all the trouble is right here.

Who Eats the Butter?

Pittsburg Dispatch: Some effete foreigner who has risen to the condition of a statistician by the levitation of his own fancy has given to the world the grotesque statement that the Englishman eats more butter than any other man of any other nationality." His yearly average is thirteen pounds."

Imagine an American, native and to the manner born, or duly acclimated and transformed into a patriotic citizen, living as Americans will live, so skimping his consumption of butter that the average would be only thirteen pounds a year for each person! Even American babes would cry out against the slander. Every American who has reached the butter or the butter age consumes about a pound a week of the creation which cheers and lubricates, and no well-regulated family would be satisfied if that quantity did not disappear with regularity in affectionate companionship with hot and cold bread, buns, muffins, waffles, potatoes and other dishes digestible and indigestible.

We are known and recognized by all the foreign keepers of inns, hotels and pensions as the supreme butter-eaters of the world. At these houses of entertainment and tips no butter will be seen at table except the guest is an American. In that fortunate event there will appear voluntarily a bit of tasteless, bleached out matter the size of a quarter dollar which, as there is no other name to call it by, is euphemistically dubbed butter. Butter is rarely eaten, even by the well-to-do foreigner, possibly because the foreign butter appears not to have made the acquaintance of a churn. Foreign milk runs to cheese, from the insistent Limburger through the more conservative creations, such as fromage de Brie to the great Neufchatel, which is as inoffensive as American curds. It is to be hoped the allegation of English supremacy in butter consumption will meet with the contempt that all monstrous misrepresentations deserve.

The Bigfork Philosopher.

A. M. Greeley in Ripple Compass: Gossip creeps into a microscope and comes out of a megaphone.

Public opinion is the mirror in which public officials see their duty.

Solitude makes poets and philosophers, but makes their output solemn.

The knocker never submits to a majority rule. If he did, he would have less to say.

Some men are being mentioned for governor who would at least make good presiding officers of a free lunch counter.

Civic Spirit Needed.

Springfield Republican: The great need of America today is more civic spirit among its citizens, and the fundamental reason for our scandalous failures in municipal government is the lack of this civic or public spirit. We are putting a money price on everything, until now even the honors and responsibilities of public position and opportunities for public service are being tagged with the dollar mark.

The Trade of Living.

Jean Jacques Rousseau: In the natural order of things, all men being equal, their common vocation is manhood, and whoever is well trained for that cannot fulfill badly any vocation connected with it. Whether my pupil be destined for the army, the church or the bar, concerns me but little. Regardless of the vocation of his parents' nature summons him to the duties of human life. To live, is the trade I wish to teach him.

SUPPOSED TO BE FUNNY.

Philadelphia Press: "What's the matter with him, anyway?"

"Sh! they're trying to keep it quiet. It's gastritis."

"Why, that's not contagious. Why should—"

"Sh! they're afraid the gas company may send in a bill against him."

St. Louis Times: Eve was calling on a neighbor.

"No," she remarked, "when we lived in the garden we never had to borrow rubber plants for our entertainments."

Thus she started the seen better days habit.

Chicago Tribune: Customer (at department store)—Where is your complaint department?

New Salesgirl — Complaint? Guess you've come to the wrong place, mister. This ain't no hospital.

Judge: Hewitt—Are you in favor of capital punishment?

Jewitt—I think capitalists should be punished.

Harper's Weekly: Artist (indicating an exquisite marine view)—This picture is valued at $50,000.

Stock Broker—Well! well! There's a lot of water in it, isn't there?

Baltimore American: "I guess that Tom over there is pretty old," remarked the young Tomcat.

"I should say," replied the other. "Why, he claims that once in his youth he actually saw a bootjack."

Kansas City Times: "You say you owe your life to this patent medicine."

"Yes, indeed. I was penniless and starving when I received $10 for writing that testimonial."

Washington Star: "What do you think of my remarks on government ownership?" asked the politician.

"I couldn't tell whether you favored it or not."

"Then the speech is a success. That is what I was trying to keep people from finding out.

Houston Post: "Did you and your wife do much rowing at the seashore?"

"That's the way it's spelled, but it is pronounced different."

Philadelphia Press: "What's the price of this silk?" asked the shopper.

"The price, madam," replied the clerk, "is $1.98, which you must admit is quite decollete."

"Decollete?"

"Yes, madam; cut low."

Lutheran Observer: "Now," said the vicar, "can anyone tell me what a lie is?"

Immediately a small hand shot up.

"Well, my little man?"

"Please, sir, a lie is an abomination unto everyone, but a very pleasant help in time of trouble."

TO CONVENE IN DULUTH

Presbyterians of State Will Begin Annual Meeting Wednesday.

About 150 Delegates Are Expected to Attend Sessions.

Minnesota Presbyterians will be well represented in Duluth this week, as there will be about 150 delegates in the city from different churches of the state to attend the annual convention of the Presbyterian synod of the state, the first session of which will be held at the First Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 7:30.

That evening there will be a sermon delivered by the retiring moderator of the synod, Dr. John Bushnell, of the Westminster Presbyterian church of Minneapolis. Following his address there will be a business session and a moderator will be elected to succeed Dr. Bushnell. He will serve one year.

The meetings on Thursday and Friday will be all day affairs and there will be a number of addresses by representative men of the church from New York city on foreign and home missionary topics. Other speakers from Minnesota are also expected to give interesting talks.

According to the program which has been arranged it will be a busy convention and the sessions are likely to run over until Saturday afternoon and evening. If so it is likely that a number of the visiting delegates will remain in Duluth over Sunday.

Besides the main business sessions of the convention the Women's Missionary society will hold meetings Thursday and Friday at the Pilgrim Congregational church. Mrs. Campbell Coyle will deliver the welcoming address to the ladies.

Rev. Campbell Coyle, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be in active charge of the local arrangements for the convention. He is deeply interested in making it a successful one and expects the aid of all the members of the Presbyterian churches in Duluth to assist in making it so.

It is an opportunity which local Presbyterians do not often have, that of listening to the church leaders from different churches of the state and other leaders from the East.

GEORGE L. GORTON PASSES AWAY

Well Known Duluth Man Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia.

This morning at about 5 o'clock George L. Gorton, aged 41 years, passed away at the family residence, 1826 London road. Death was due to pneumonia from which the deceased had been a sufferer but a short time.

Those surviving are the widow and one child, and Mr. Goton's mother, all of this city.

Mr. Gorton was a highly respected and well known citizen of Duluth, having been prominently identified with church work. He was for many years treasurer of the First Presbyterian church.

He was employed as bookkeeper for Mendenhall & Hoopes at the time of his death, and had a wide acquaintance among the business men of the city. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the residence, Dr. Coyle of the Presbyterian church officiating.

WILL REPAIR BRIDGE.

Structure Over Tischer's Creek is Considered Unsafe.

City Engineer McGilvray will recommend to the board of public works that necessary repairs to the bridge across Tischcher's creek at Thirty-fifth avenue east be made at once.

The city engineer recently made a careful inspection of the structure, which is an old wooden one, and while he does not intimate that there is any danger of a collapse of the bridge he discovered that the freshts have washed away much of the pier filling and that several wooden beams are decayed and must be replaced by new ones to make the bridge perfectly safe for traffic.

The street cars run rapidly across this bridge because of the incline at either end, and several people have intimated that they felt timid while crossing, as the noise made by the cars as they dash across is almost deafening. The bridge spans a deep gulch, and an accident there would undoubtedly end seriously. City Engineer McGilvray felt it best to make a careful inspection, since the numerous rains which have swollen the stream to beyond its normal size.

TO BOOM NORWAY MINES.

Loan of $3,000,000 Secured in Germany to Develop Iron Field.

Christiania, Oct. 7.—The South Varanger company, which bought the Anker iron ore fields on the Pasvig peninsula, in Northern Norway, has secured a loan from the Norddeutsche bank of Hamburg and the Disconto bank of Berlin of 12,000,000 kroner ($3,000,000.)

The capital is to be increased from 5,000,000 kroner ($1,250,000) to 10,000,000 kroner ($2,500,000.)

The mines will be fully worked and by 1910 it is calculated that the annual production will be between 600,000 and 900,000 tons of concentrate and briquets containing 65 per cent of iron of high quality.

Special steamers of 8,000 tons each will be built by the Norwegian owners.

TO WIDEN SIDEWALK

Wider Sidewalk Is Needed For New Courthouse.

Other Matters of Importance to Come Before Council.

A matter, which it is likely will be discussed at the council meeting this evening is the desirability of widening the sidewalks on Fourth avenue west, between Superior street and Second street, or at least between First and Second streets.

The street is being paved at present and several prominent citizens have expressed their opinion that on account of the site of the new court house being on this street, the walks should be wider than those at present. While there will be no additional traffic on the street to speak of, the sidewalks will be used by many more people, and that a wide cement walk should be placed on the court house side of the street at least, seems to be the opinion of many.

City Engineer McGilvray is of the opinion that the widening of the walk would cost but little more, than the difference saved in the paving of the street, and stated to The Herald today that if anything was done it should be done at once as it is desired to get the work of paving the street completed as soon as possible.

Jut what the contractor having the paving job would do about the change is not known, but as there is little of the curbing put in between First and Second streets, it is anticipated that it would be necessary to undo little of what has been accomplished on the contract.

One prominent citizen expressed that the walk could be widened fronting the court house on Fourth avenue by taking a little off the site and leaving the street as it is. The matter will probably be taken up by the council tonight.

The tax levy of 16 mills will be made tonight, the matter having been left over from the last meeting.

A hearing on the condemnation of the extension of Railroad street from its western terminus to Garfield avenue will come before the council this evening. Bids for beoming depositories for city funds will be received from the banks at the meeting tonight. The bids are for two years service and each institution is asked to set its rate of interest offered for the city's cash.

"IN MIZZOURA."

Old Favorite Given Good Production by Mack-Leone Players.

"In Mizzoura" shows the most careful preparation of any play yet presented by the Mack-Leone company in Duluth.

Even at yesterday's matinee, the first performance, the members of the company seemed to be letter perfect in their lines, and the performance went through with plenty of snap and no signs of the dragging which so often mars a first performance.

The play is one of the old favorites, Nat Goodwin having been seen in it years ago. The story is a pretty one of a rough but honest young Missouri sheriff and the sacrifices he makes to win the girl of his choice.

Willard Mack's Jim Radburn is one of the best pieces of work he has done in Duluth. Mr. Mack has proven his versatility as an actor by the widely different roles he has essayed, but he seems to be at his best in a Western part, and his work yesterday was of a grade seldom seen in stock.

Miss Meade plays the leading feminine role of Kate in a satisfactory manner, and William F. Chapman handles the role of Travers capably.

Practically all of the other roles are character parts and some splendid opportunities are given for the members of the company to show their ability in this line. Miss Davis as Lizbeth and Mr. Fitzsimmons as Dave take good advantage of these opportunities, and Miss Bonsall does her usual careful and capable work as Mrs. Vernon. Frank Patton as old Col. Bollinger and Frank Joiner as Joe Vernon show up to good advantage.

The bill as a whole is one of the best the company has yet given, and the two big audiences yesterday were quite enthusiastic. It will be presented in Superior tonight and tomorrow, and will return to the Lyceum for Wednesday and Thursday with the usual Wednesday matinee.

The Burlesquers.

Miss New York, Jr., made a very favorable impression when she and her suite were here last season and she returned to the Metropolitan yesterday for her annual engagement, with a better entertainment than she ever left Gotham with. Yesterday's audiences were large and enthusiastic at all times.

The regular performance is on the extravaganza plan. It is in two acts and eight scenes and is called "The Navigators." The book, lyrics and music were furnished by Frank Wesiberg, I. H. Herk, Tell Taylor and Bob Adams.

The slender plot concerns the efforts of a certain Prof. Shylark, an East side Hebrew named Leschinsky, a dude named Archibald Dunse, and several others, including burlesque's fairest daughter, Lee Waite, as Jeanette La Tour, to find the north pole. This story permits of numerous changes of picturesque scenery. The settings are elaborate and so are the costumes.

Abe Reynold is very funny as the Hebrew and Dave Ferguson is positively clever as the dude. No one who saw this young man here last season expected such good work from him. George Perry, Jack Davis and Fred Esterbrook do what they can.

Miss Lee White is the hit of the show, however, and when she comes on the stage, even the jaded ones sit up and take notice. She has a voice that easily excels most others playing this circuit. Her specialty with George Perry makes good, mostly because of her charming personality. The Esterbrooks have an enjoyable musical act and the Davises do clever dancing, on roller skates.

The chorus is expensively costumed at all times and the songs are worth while. The entire performance is several steps ahead of most organizations of the kind. Some explanation of this may be found in the statement that the manager is I. H. Herk, the first burlesque manager who ever came to Duluth, and who had "The Jolly Grass Widows" under his wing at a time when they were the biggest hit on "the wheel."

Ezra Kendall's Hat.

St. Patrick's day is always a happy one for Ezra Kendall. If there is to be a parade, Kendall will be found standing on the curb long before the march begins so that he may not allow anything to escape him. He is looking for hats. The tall tile affair of old shape and ancient pattern has always been affected by him, and he declares that a St. Patrick's day parade will bring out more of these oddities than he could find in a store in a year. When he finds a hat that strikes his fancy he tries to make a purchase and in this way declares that he has walked in more St. Patrick day parades, for a short distance at least, than any other comedian on the stage. The hat that he wears in "Swell Elegant Jones" was secured in this way. Mr. Kendall is at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow.

CROPS IN ALBERTA.

Harvest is Proving a Great Bonanza for the Farmers.

To the editor of The Herald:

Seeing in your paper an item on Alberta, decrying the country, let me hasten to assure you, that having been on the ground continuously from early spring until the present writing, I must say that the unfavorable article published by your paper is totally without foundation. The season has been a splendid one in all respects, and the harvest is proving a great bonanza for the farmer, forty to fifty bushels of the finest Alberta red wheat to the acre, and from seventy-five to ninety bushels of oats. This is the general average and many farms are yielding even heavier and many and many a farmer is paying for his farm with one crop.

Anyone who tries to decry the wheat fields of Sunny Southern Alberta had best come out here and see the result of the season's crop before so doing, and then instead of wielding a big hammer, he will be making a dash for the big boosting band wagon. All the Duluth boys out here are well and those who are farming, can verify my statement as to the crop. We are going to play a game of baseball on the public square Saturday, the 5th. Would be very glad to have you publish the above, if convenient.

Very truly,
JACK M. OLDHAM.

ADA DEFEATED.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the football game here Saturday afternoon, between the high school teams of Crookston and Ada, Crookston won, 53 to 0. The Crookston team showed up the best they have this year, and played the visitors off their feet from the first blow of the whistle. More interest is being displayed in football in the valley this fall than for years past, and every little burg has a team.

TAFT WANTS $5,000,000 FOR MILITARY CLOTHING.

Washington, Oct. 7.—It is understood that Secretary Taft will ask congress for an appropriation of $5,590,000 for military clothing material needed during the next fiscal year. This was the estimate made by the quartermaster-general, and the secretary was told that the money was greatly needed, inasmuch as the stock of clothing is depleted, and there are no means of replenishing it.

LINEMAN MEETS SUDDEN DEATH

Is Instantly Killed by Touching a "Live" Wire.

By coming in contact with what is known as a bus bar on a switch board, on which he was working at the Duluth Edison Electric Light company's station Saturday evening, John Myers, a young man 28 years of age, was instantly killed by the electric shock sustained.

Myers, it is stated, had been warned not to touch any portion of the work that was charged with electricity, but disregarded the instructions and as soon as he grasped the fatal bar fell over dead. He was carried to the open air and every effort made to revive him, but to no avail.

A. M. Frazee, chief electrician for the company, was present at the time of the accident. He speaks very highly of the unfortunate man, who has been in the employ of the company for a little over a year and was in line for promotion. He leaves a wife and three little children in destitute circumstances, and it is understood that a purse will be made up for the young widow, left as she is in such distress. Myers carried some insurance in the Maccabees at one time but had let it lapse.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from Stewart's undertaking rooms and interment made at Forest Hill.

DULUTH GAINING ON MINNEAPOLIS

Car Receipts Here Increasing, Decreasing in Flour City.

Most of the Northwestern wheat is being shipped to Duluth this year. The local car receipts show that this market is running ahead of its own figures of a year ago and beating Minneapodils, when last year it did not.

A comparison of the wheat receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week and those of the same days a year ago tell an interesting story of the growing importance of this city as a grain receiving center and market place.

The amount of export business done on the floor of the Duluth board of trade last week adds another chapter to the tale, which is mighty interesting to Duluthians.

That Duluth should beat its own records of a year ago in the face of a short crop shows the progress of this market and its gains over the same time a year ago.

Thursday of last week the car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 484, against 301 a year ago, and at Minneapolis 197 against 404 last year. Duluth's gains are apparent in the figures. On Friday of last week the car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 416, against 297 a year ago, and at Minneapolis 151 against 481 a year ago. Minneapolis shows a loss of more than 66 2-3 per cent, while Duluth nearly doubled its record of the year previous.

Saturday's receipts of wheat at Duluth were 377 against 366 last year, and at Minneapolis 146 against 475 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 532 against 842 cars last year. The aggregate shows a decrease in the total number of cars from the same day a year ago, but it discloses an increase for Duluth and a considerable decrease for Minneapolis.

OF INTEREST TO DULUTH

Are Two Cases To be Heard by Supreme Court.

Washington, Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States supreme court convened for the October term today. In glancing through the docket there seems to be an abundance of business to occupy the judicial minds of the "court of last resort." There are docketed nine "original actions" and 444 actions left over from the last session. There are two cases of particular interest to Duluth, their docket titles being as follows:

Northern Pacific Railway company, plaintiff, in error against the state of Minnesota et al; city of Duluth on appeal to the supreme court from the Minnesota supreme court; Charles W. Bunn will represent the plaintiff in error, "the railway company," and Thomas J. Davis and Bert Fesler the defendants.

The case of the Duluth-Superior Bridge company, appellant, vs. Steamer Troy, on appeal, is docketed to be heard by the supreme court. Charles E. Kramer is of counsel for the bridge company and Harvey D. Goulder for the company owning Steamer Troy.

HEALTH OFFICERS SAY

Common Colds Are the Primary Cause of Consumption.

The ravages of the dread "white plague" has aroused in the national health department the keenest alarm and every effort is now being put forth to prevent its further spread. A most prominent physician on the advisory board recently summed up the situation in a very simple manner by declaring that if people would give common colds the proper attention the increase of consumption would be materially checked. A neglected cold weakens the entire sysetm and especially the pulmonary organs and renders them liable to the attack of the tubercle germ. He also gave the formula for a very simple remedy for colds which he claimed if generally known would prevent an enormous amount of suffering and eventualy save many lives. The formula is as follows:

Two ounces of glycerine; one-half ounce Concentrated oil of pine; half pint of good whiskey; this is to be used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours the bottle shaken well each time.

He claims this will cure any cough that is curable and frequently break up a severe cold in twenty-four hours.

He cautions that care should be taken to get the real Concentrated oil of pine which any first class drug store will supply. It is put up in air tight wood boxes for dispensing, thus avoiding the bulk oils and patent medicine imitations which are insoluble and often injurious.

Capital and Labor Ought to Keep Golden Rule in Hearts.

Rev. Campbell Coyle Says This Will Solve Problems.

"Only let capital and labor get into their hearts the spirit of the golden rule and the problem is solved," said Rev. Campbell Coyle, in the course of the final sermon in the series to workingmen at the First Presbyterian church. His topic was "The Problem of Capital and Labor, and How It Can Be Solved."

Rev. Mr. Coyle condemned some of the methods now being used against each other by capital and labor. He did not approve of some of the things capital has done recently and he said labor could not justly ask as much wages for one laborer as another because of the difference in the workmen.

"The organization of capital will never solve the problem and the organization of labor will never solve the problem. Coercion has never solved any question in the history of the world," continued Mr. Coyle.

"They have always tried to knock each other out by brute force. Right is the only might that God recognizes and it is the only might that will endure. Capital must stop trying to do labor and do unto labor as it would have labor do unto it, and labor must stop trying to do capital and do unto capital as it would have capital do unto it.

"No man, rich or poor, high or low, capitalist or laborer, is living right unless he makes it a fundamental business principle to keep God in his heart. The golden rule never can abide in the hearts of men until Jesus Christ comes into the hearts of men to abide. This is fundamental. It is simple, but it is true.

"The time has come for capital and labor to come together. They should see that each involves the other; that one cannot work without the other and that they must work side by side."

Mr. Coyle, by way of illustration, cited the case of two birds in India, each of which has but one wing. They were unable to fly in consequence, as one bird had only a left wing and one bird had only a right wing. Finally, they discovered that they could hook themselves together and fly all right, and in his closing words Mr. Coyle suggested that capital and labor link themselves together and fly onward and upward together.

AN EXPLOSION KILLS FOUR

Butler, Pa., Oct. 7.—An explosion caused by the upsetting of the metal pot in No. 1 cupola of the Standard Steel company here late Sunday night caused the death of four men, fatally injuring twenty, and seriously injuring ten others. Nearly all the men were foreigners.

The large wheel plant was demolished, causing a loss of $100,000. The dead are: Nick Dorna, Nicholas Blotar, John Vereck and an unknown man.

The condition of the injured men is pitiful. Although still alive, the features of a majority are mutilated beyond recognition.

The hot metal was showered over them, causing horrible injuries. Arms, fingers and ears were torn off, while a number of the men had their eyes burned out. Several men are in the hospital with their legs burned to a crisp.

The explosion was caused by the upsetting of a metal pot in the cupola, which contained 5,000 pounds of molten metal ready for casting. A span in the pot broke allowing the liquid iron to spill over the wet sand.

An explosion followed so quickly that none of the workmen in the building had a chance to escape. Streams of burning metal poured out on the workmen, some of whom were engulfed and literally cooked. Twenty men near the cupola had every shred of clothing blown off by the force of the explosion. Many were hurled under the wreckage and were not rescued for an hour after the catastrophe.

Buildings in the city from the force of the explosion shivered as if shaken by an earthquake, and people rushed from their homes panic stricken.

Mike Blotar, one of the dead, was so terribly burned that his own brother could not identify him. At the gate of the car plant, men and women struggled frantically to gain admission and were kept out only by a force of policemen.

In the crush many women were injured and their cries of pain and anguish could be heard blocks away.

The car wheel plant was finished last year at a cost of $200,000. The wrecked cupola alone cost $30,000. The car works proper, costing $3,000,000, was in danger of destruction, but the fire department soon had the blaze under control.

MEETINGS FOR MEN RESUMED

First Lecture of Series Given at Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

At the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., on Superior street, the fall and winter series of Sunday afternoon meetings for men have been resumed, and the first was held yesterday, when Phil Bevis, general secretary of the association, delivered an address to a good-sized audience.

His subject was "The Call to Service," and in his talk he urged the men to take up the work of helping themselves and others to a better life. There was an unexpectedly large attendance for the first meeting, and the prospects for the year are very promising. The officers of the association were much pleased at the showing made yesterday.

It will be impossible to resume the series of big meetings held at the Lyceum theater last year, as the theater is occupied practically every Sunday by the Mack-Leone players. Well-known clergymen and business men, and some from outside Duulth, will speak at the meetings at the auditorium, however, and all men are invited to be present.

At the auditorium of the boys' department two meetings were held yesterday for the boys, one at 3 o'clock and the other at 5. As usual the boys belonging to the department turned out in numbers.

CITY OF CUMBERLAND, MD., HAS ITS FIRST LYNCHING.

Cumberland, M. D., Oct. 7.—The first lynching in the history of Cumberland occurred yesterday, when William Burns, a negro slayer of Policeman August Banters, was killed by a mob.

Banter's death on Saturday was followed by the threats against the negro these coming as much from trose of his own race as from the whites. Few, however, seem to have thought a lynching possible, and the police paid no attention to the rumors that were afloat. Only Deputy Sheriff Adams Pendley was at the jail when a crowd of less than a hundred men arrived. A telegraph pole was used as a battering ram, and entrance to the building was forced. The lynchers found their victim crouched behind his cot, and seizing him by the feet, dragged him down stairs and into the street, where, within a few yards of the jail, Burns was shot to death.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

GAME ENDS IN DISPUTE

Statements of Officials Regarding the Trouble on Saturday.

Referee Says Ashland Won—Other Officials Say Duluth.

Ashland 2, Duluth 0—Referee Uptegrove.

Duluth 6, Ashland 0—Umpire Cummings, Judge Furni.

With the ball in Duluth's possession about four feet from the Ashland goal, Saturday's football game at Athletic park was brought to an unsatisfactory end by a decision of Referee Uptegrove, who declared that Caulkins had made a forward pass, the ball crossing the line of scrimmage within five yards of where it was put in play. The forward pass was denied by the Duluth officials and players, and, after a long wrangle, in which the rule book was often brought into play, Referee Uptegrove declared the game forfeited to Ashland by a score of 2 to 0. Duluth lined up, with no opposition, crossed the line, kicked goal and claimed the game by a score of 6 to 0.

The unsatisfactory result of the game was one of those unfortunate incidents brought about by the failure to provide uninterested officials. The Duluth players refused to believe that Referee Uptegrove called the forward pass in a disinterested spirit, and they refused to abide by his decision, claiming that no forward pass was made.

The situation was a complicated one. Both sides of the question may best be shown by statements made after the game by the officials and others interested:

Referee Uptegrove—"I had warned the quarter back against holding the ball and allowing the half back to take it from, at the same time carrying his hands, still holding the ball, forward. The pass in question was such a one. The ball was taken from the quarter back's hands, while his arms were extended toward the Ashland goal. The player receiving the ball crossed the line of scrimmage, within five yards of the point at which the ball was put into play, and the pass was palpably illegal.

"I offered to bring the ball back to the point at which it was put into play, call second down again, and let the play be started again. The Duluth team would not consent to that, and the only course for me was to forfeit the game. I called the timekeeper, told him to let me know when two minutes was up, and when Duluth failed to play after two minutes, I declared the game forfeited to Ashland by a score of 2 to 0. I left the field, and what the Duluth team did afterwards doesn't concern me.

"In defense of my position and action, I refer you to the following:

"Rule XIX, Sec. 3.—A player of the side which puts the ball in play from a scrimmage may pass or throw the ball toward the opponents' goal, under the following restructions:

"'(a). A forward pass shall be illegal if the ball crosses the line of scrimmage within five yards of the spot where it was put in play.

"'Section 1, Rule XVIII—The referee shall have general oversight of the game. He shall be sole authority for the score and sole judge of forfeiture of the game under the rules.

"'Section 3, same rule—The referee shall be judge of illegal forward passes.'"

Umpire Cummings—"Caulkins had his back toward the referee and was facing me when he passed the ball. I should say it was not a forward pass. I did not hear the referee warn Capt. Crawford that in two minutes he would forfeit the game, nor did I hear him announce the forfeiture."

Field Judge Furni—"Duluth certainly won by a score of 6 to 0. In the first place, there was no forward pass. In the second place Uptegrove left the field without declaring a decision. There was nothing to do but for Duluth to continue play."

Coach Colton—"I regret the game ended as it did, but under the circumstances, there was no other way for Duluth to bring it to an end. The referee did not notify our captain of his intention to forfeit. I saw no semblance of a forward pass in the play in question, but conceding there was a forward pass, the referee had no authority to penalize for a forward pass of that kind. The referee didn't announce any forfeiture and we scored a touchdown and a goal."

As far as the game went, it was interesting to the large crowd of spectators, which lined both sides of the field. Warmly contested, it wasn't well played by any means. Duluth undoubtedly had the better team. They gained through the Ashland line almost at will. Cummings, Caulkins and Crawford pulling off long runs and Cook tearing through the line for big gains. Only twice during the entire game did Ashland hold them for downs and Ashland didn't make first down once.

But fumbles were costly on the Duluth side. Nearly every time the ball went over, it was on a ball fumbled in scrimmage, or a missed forward pass. The forward pass was tried quite often by Duluth in the first half, but it worked successfully only once. With a penalty of fifteen yards for each failure to pass, considerable distance was lost. On the whole, the team showed that it needs much coaching. Caulkins loses many minutes in a game by his slow manner of reading signals. He gives his opponents plenty of time to line up, besides losing valuable time when there is little to play.

Ashland undoubtedly had a stronger team than the Duluth boys expected to encounter. Weight was its principal asset. They had little or no offensive work, trying ineffectual line bucks when the ball was in their possession. But they were scrappy and held Duluth well at times, holding the home boys for downs in the last half with the ball only a few feet from the goal line. Wilkenson showed good booting ability, sending the ball out of danger every time it came in Ashland's possession near their own goal line. The play was nearly all in Ashland territory during the entire game, but the Duluth play was not persistent enough to put the ball across.

Duluth would probably have scored but for the decision over which the dispute arose. Even if they had accepted Uptegrove's decision, they very likely would have scored, for they would only have gone back to the former scrimmage point and could easily have made the goal line in the time remaining to play. But they thought an injustice was being done them, and would not submit.

The teams lined up as follows:

Duluth	Position	Ashland

Paine	lt	Macmiller
Ostergren	re	Culver, Genner

RACE MATINEE.

Final Event of Season in Duluth Next Friday.

Next Friday afternoon the last race matinee of the year will be pulled off at the West end driving park. It will be the last matinee of the season for most of the horse owners, and they will wind up their campaign in Duluth.

The Northern Minnesota owners, who have been racing their horses at the Wisconsin and Minnesota fairs, will nearly all bring their strings to Duluth to enter them for the final card. Lon Matthews will have about six horses entered in the different events, and other Duluth owners will also put their best into the races. The card has not yet been fully arranged, but it will be a good one and will furnish good sport for Duluth horse race followers.

ENGINEER INSTANTLY KILLED IN COLLISION.

Rocky Mount, N. C., Oct. 7.—The north bound Florida & West Indian limited passenger train on the Atlantic Coast line ran into an open switch and collided with an engine at South Rocky Mount at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Engineer W. Boney of the passenger train was instantly killed and Postal Clerk T. T. Hill slightly injured. Although many passengers were thrown from their berths none suffered injury. Both engines were completely demolished, as was also the mail, express and baggage cars. Engineer Boney's body was pinned under the boiler of the engine and could not be removed until six hours had elapsed. After a delay of three hours the passengers resumed their journey.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

The deep, underlying cause of every old sore is a bad condition of the blood. This vital fluid has become infected with some germ or poison which prevents the place from healing. This infection may be the result of an inactive, sluggish condition of the system leaving the refuse matter in the body to be absorbed into the circulation instead of throwing it off through the usual channels of nature. Another cause is the weakening or polluting of this life-stream from hereditary taints, or from the effects of a long spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system. When the blood is in this condition a sore cannot heal because the impurities with which the circulation is filled are being constantly discharged into the place to irritate and inflame the tissues and further disease the surrounding flesh. The only treatment that can do any good is one that removes the cause, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. It begins at the fountain head of the trouble and drives out all germs, impurities and poisons, and then the place, being supplied with rich, pure blood, heals naturally and permanently. Local applications assist in cleansing the place, but a cure can only be affected through a purification of the blood Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free. BIG SERIES ARRANGED

Detroit and Chicago Teams to Play for World's Honors.

First Two Games at Chicago, Next Three at Detroit.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The details of the world's championship series between the Chicago club, winners of the National league pennant, and the Detroit team, pennant winner in the American league, were arranged at a meeting of the national commission here yesterday. The schedule of the games follow:

Tuesday, Oct. 8, Chicago. Wednesday, Oct. 9, Chicago. Thursday, Oct. 10, Detroit. Friday, Oct. 11, Detroit. Saturday, Oct. 12, Detroit. Sunday, Oct. 13, Chicago.

By agreement of all the representatives, the existing rules governing the playing of the championship series were amended so that 60 per cent of the were those who went some distance played shall form a pool for the players of the two teams, 60 per cent of this amount to go to the winning and 40 per cent to the losing team.

The schedule as adopted was determined by lot. If any of the games scheduled are postponed to play the postponed game on the first day available at the same park.

If a seventh game is necessary to decide the series the city in which it is to be played will be decided by the commission. The players eligible to play in the championship series were designated as follows:

Chicago team—Brown, Chance, Durbin, Evers, Fraser, Hofman, Howard, Dundgren, Kling, Moran, McCormick, Overall, Olis, Pfeister, Reulbach, Sheckard, Slagle, Schulte, Steinfeldt, Tinker, Walsh and Zimmerman.

President Pulliam selected Henry O'Day as umpire for his organization during the series. President Johnson of the American league named John F. Sheridan. The official scorers selected by the commission were A. J. Flannery and A. D. Richter. The scale of prices for admission to the games was fixed at $1.50 and $2 for Chicago and $2.50 for Detroit. The reason for the lower prices at Chicago was the large seating capacity of the Chicago park. The games will be called at 2:30 in Chicago and at 2 o'clock in Detroit.

PARTRIDGES ARE SCARCE

Duluth Nimrods Did Not Find Very Good Shooting.

Birds Are Well Scattered Along the Hardwood Ridges.

Yesterday was the first Sunday since the opening of the partridge season and hundreds of boys and men scoured the woods and thickets around Duluth and the surrounding country in the effort to bag that popular game bird.

Many of the hunting parties that had a long distance to go left the city either Saturday afternoon or evening in order to be out to the hunting grounds for the early shooting.

Last evening the hunters could be seen coming home on nearly every road leading into the city, and the story of hard luck was pretty general.

There were very few well filled game bags, in fact the majority of the hunters had from one to three birds or none at all.

The nimrods that had the best luck balance from the first four games from the city, and even these had a comparatively small number of birds.

An aggregate of probably twenty-five birds were brought in by hunters who went out over the Rice Lake road, some as far as the Cloquet river, or the Cloquet river dam. One party had ten or eleven birds and this was, probably, the largest number secured by any one set of hunters. Some of these birds were shot along the road on the way home. The weather in the country back of Duluth was quite warm yesterday.

The partridges are scarce this season in the country around Duluth. The local nimrods were expecting to find plenty of birds this year because the summer season was much more favorable for breeding and the raising of young birds than a year ago. They have been much disappointed in their expectations, however, for the birds are few and are pretty well scattered. Rarely is a covey of the birds to be found. Hunters claim that they find only one partridge, or, possibly, a couple of them in a place.

No partridges are being found in the low districts this fall. This is accounted for by the heavy fall rains which has made the low ground pretty wet. About all the birds that have been shot were found on the hardwood ridges. Although the frosts have turned the leaves, and they are dropping off, the foliage is still a little too heavy in the woods for good shooting. In about another week or ten days it will be very much easier to see the birds. Hunting without a dog at the present time is a pretty low way of getting any results, particularly when the birds are as scarce as they are this season.

Some hunters have claimed that the reason the partridges are so scarce this winter was on account of the heavy snowfall last winter, and the crust that formed so early and lasted all winter. They claim that the birds were caught under the snow and starved. Others claim that there is nothing to the theory, that they saw the birds out feeding in many places last winter, in spite of the snow.

Since the Great Northern Power company's Rice Lake dam was completed the water in the lake has been raised about two or three feet. It is claimed that a boat can be floated anywhere on the lake now, and that duck hunting is particularly good there early in the morning and about dusk in the afternoon. Several Duluth hunters had pretty good duck shooting on Rice lake last week. They claim the shooting is the best there that it has been for several years.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by all Druggists, 25c.

GOTCH IS IN DULUTH

Has Two Hard Matches With North Dakota Blacksmith.

Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the United States and aspirant for championship honors of the world, opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan opera house yesterday afternoon, in connection with the "Miss New York, Jr." company. Gotch closes the bill at each performance with a wrestling exhibition, agreeing to throw any man who cares to meet him within fifteen minutes or forfeit $100.

Gotch had a tough proposition yesterday afternoon, and last night in Charley Olson, a wrestling blacksmith from Minot, N. D. Olson appeared in the afternoon and asked to go on. Gotch's manager agreed and the big fellow stripped. He weighs in at 205 pounds, the greater part of which is in his shoulders, which are massive. Strength is his strong point, with some knowledge of the wrestling game thrown in.

Gotch hadn't been on the mat with him long before he knew he had a man who would make him work. The North Dakota giant was fast and agile. Time after time, Gotch evidently had him in a position to pin him, but the big fellow slipped away and came back smiling for more. He even did a little offensive work and came mighty close to getting Gotch to the mat a couple of times. After they had been going about eleven minutes, the champion secured his famous toe hold and Olson went down.

Again last night, Olson appeared and he did even better. For fourteen minutes he had Gotch worried. The champion tried everything. Time after time he secured wicked head locks and used all his strength to put his opponent to the mat, but Olson bridged, rolled and slipped away. He showed wonderful strength and only when Gotch used his whole weight and strength to force his shoulders down from a bridge did he get him. Gotch didn't handle his man any too gently in either match. Especially after they had gone ten minutes, he sailed in and punished Olson severely. It was all in the game, and Olson took the punishment gamely.

After the match, Gotch said Olson was one of the best men he has met in such an exhibition.

Tonight Emil Peterson, champion of Duluth, will attempt to take down the $100 offered by Gotch to the man who can stay with him fifteen minutes. Peterson is considerably lighter than Gotch, but he is a hard worker, knows a good deal of the game, and expects to give the champion a good run.

The Champion Talks.

Gotch is getting an early start in his training for the big match with George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," which is to be pulled off at Kansas City May 10 next. The champion was seen at his hotel yesterday and he talked pleasantly of himself and his work. The quality which strikes the visitor most favorably is Gotch's never-failing good nature. Ever with a smile, he is a most gracious host. Modest, but confident of his ability, he tells of his hopes and expectations with a spirit of enthusiasm, which compels one to believe in him. When he says he believes he can defeat the "Russian Lion" you look at his splendid physique, his case of motion, his flexible bulging muscles and, remembering his record, you believe him. Grace is hardly to be expected in a man weighing over 200 pounds, but Gotch is more graceful than most athletes of much smaller proportions. There is no superfluous weight on him. Every ounce is necessary to preserve the symmetry of his massive frame and he carries it so that the fact is evident.

"This tour of mine will continue until April 1, when I will leave the stage to put the finishing touches on my training for the match with Hackenschmidt," he said. "I expect to defeat the Russian. I have never yet met a man whom I could not throw, and I have met the best in the United States. This work on the stage is giving me actual experience, invaluable for training, while I am not overworking myself. I will be down to the point where I will be at my best by the time my tour is over. I expect to be champion of the world after the Hackenschmidt match, but whether I am or not, I am going into the ring. I have been doing some work with the gloves all along, and I expect I will get along pretty well in the ring."

When queried as to his opinion of Fred Beell, he waxed enthusiastic.

"Let me tell you that Fred Beell is a wonder. He is the greatest little man who ever stepped on a mat. There isn't a man in the world his equal at his weight. His strength, skill and ability to cope with heavier men is wonderful in one of his weight and I with so much of a weight advantage over him, had three of the hardest matches with him I ever wrestled."

Gotch knows the wrestling game and likes to talk of it, for he loves it for sport's sake. But next to wrestling, he would rather talk of farming in general and his farm in Iowa in particular, than any subject one might bring up.

"Crops were great in Iowa this year," he said. "My farm will yield me a fine return and everybody in my vicinity is in the same position. Harvest hands were scarce this year, so I had to work a little harder than usual, but I enjoy it thoroughly and get more benefit from a day in the fields than I could in any other manner of training. I have seen a good many places since I have been wrestling, but none look any better to me than Humboldt, Iowa, and that farm of mine, with its wholesome air and its plentitude of hard work, is a real home."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

GAME ENDS IN DISPUTE

Statements of Officials Regarding the Trouble on Saturday.

Referee Says Ashland Won—Other Officials Say Duluth.

Ashland 2, Duluth 0—Referee Uptegrove.

Duluth 6, Ashland 0—Umpire Cummings, Judge Furni.

With the ball in Duluth's possession about four feet from the Ashland goal, Saturday's football game at Athletic park was brought to an unsatisfactory end by a decision of Referee Uptegrove, who declared that Caulkins had made a forward pass, the ball crossing the line of scrimmage within five yards of where it was put in play. The forward pass was denied by the Duluth officials and players, and, after a long wrangle, in which the rule book was often brought into play, Referee Uptegrove declared the game forfeited to Ashland by a score of 2 to 0. Duluth lined up, with no opposition, crossed the line, kicked goal and planned the game by a score of 6 to 0.

The unsatisfactory result of the game was one of those unfortunate incidents brought about by the failure to provide uninterested officials. The Duluth players refused to believe that Referee Uptegrove called the forward pass in a disinterested spirit, and they refused to abide by his decision, claiming that no forward pass was made.

The situation was a complicated one. Both sides of the question may best be shown by statements made after the game by the officials and others interested:

Referee Uptegrove—"I had warned the quarter back against holding the ball and allowing the half back to take it from at the same time carrying his hands, still holding the ball, forward. The pass in question was such a ride. The ball was taken from the quarter back's hands, while his arms were extended toward the Ashland goal. The player receiving the ball crossed the line of scrimmage, within five yards of the point at which the ball was put into play, and the pass was palpably illegal.

"I offered to bring the ball back to the point at which it was put into play, call second down again, and let the play be started again. The Duluth team would not consent to that, and the only course for me was to forfeit the game. I called the timekeeper, told him to let me know when two minutes was up, and when Duluth failed to play after two minutes, I declared the game forfeited to Ashland by a score of 2 to 0. I left the field, and what the Duluth team did afterwards doesn't concern me.

"In defense of my position and action, I refer you to the following:

"Rule XIX, Sec. 3.—A player of the side which puts the ball in play from a scrimmage may pass or throw the ball toward the opponents' goal, under the following restrictions:

"'(a) A forward pass shall be illegal if the ball crosses the line of scrimmage within five yards of the spot where it was put in play.

"'Section 1, Rule XVIII—The referee shall have general oversight of the game. He shall be sole authority for the score and sole judge of forfeiture of the game under the rules.

"'Section 3, same rule—The referee shall be judge of illegal forward passes.'"

Umpire Cummings—"Caulkins had his back toward the referee and was facing me when he passed the ball. I should say it was not a forward pass. I did not hear the referee warn Capt. Crawford that in two minutes he would forfeit the game, nor did I hear him announce the forfeiture."

Field Judge Furni—"Duluth certainly won by a score of 6 to 0. In the first place, there was no forward pass. In the second place Uptegrove left the field without declaring a decision. There was nothing to do but for Duluth to continue play."

Coach Colton—"I regret the game ended as it did, but under the circumstances, there was no other way for Duluth to bring it to an end. The referee did not notify our captain of his intention to forfeit. I saw no semblance of a forward pass in the play in question, but conceding there was a forward pass, the referee had no authority to penalize for a forward pass of that kind. The referee didn't announce any forfeiture and we scored a touchdown and a goal."

As far as the game went, it was interesting to the large crowd of spectators, which lined both sides of the field. Warmly contested, it wasn't well played by any means. Duluth undoubtedly had the better team. They gained through the Ashland line almost at will. Cummings, Caulkins and Crawford pulling off long runs and Cook tearing through the line for big gains. Only twice during the entire game did Ashland hold them for downs and Ashland didn't make first down once.

But fumbles were costly on the Duluth side. Nearly every time the ball went over, it was on a ball fumbled in scrimmage, or a missed forward pass. The forward pass was tried quite often by Duluth in the first half, but it worked successfully only once. With a penalty of fifteen yards for each failure to pass, considerable distance was lost. On the whole, the team showed that it needs much coaching. Caulkins loses many minutes in a game by his slow manner of reading signals. He gives his opponents plenty of time to line up, besides losing valuable time when there is little to play.

Ashland undoubtedly had a stronger team than the Duluth boys expected to encounter. Weight was its principal asset. They had little or no offensive work, trying ineffectual line bucks when the ball was in their possession. But they were scrappy and held Duluth well at times, holding the home boys for downs in the last half with the ball only a few feet from the goal line. Wilkenson showed good booting ability, sending the ball out of danger every time it came in Ashland's possession near their own goal line. The play was nearly all in Ashland territory during the entire game, but the Duluth play was not persistent enough to put the ball across.

Duluth would probably have scored but for the decision over which the dispute arose. Even if they had accepted Uptegrove's decision, they very likely would have scored, for they would only have gone back to the former scrimmage point and could easily have made the goal line in the time remaining to play. But they thought an injustice was being done them, and would not submit.

The teams lined up as follows:

Duluth	Position	Ashland
Coventry	c	Borecky
Quinn	r.g.	Seestran
Helmer	l.g.	Briggs
Crawford	r.t.	Kennedy
Paine	l.t.	Macmillier
Ostergren	r.e.	Culver, Genner
McFadden	l.e.	Lindsay
Caulkins	q.b.	Sanborn
Cummings	r.h.b.	Turner
Bowen	l.h.b.	Schrank
Cook	f.b.	Wilkenson

GOLPHERS GO TO CHICAGO

Northland Club Represented at Women's Tourney.

For the first time in its history, the Northland Country club of Duluth will be represented at the tournament of the Women's Western Golf association. The tourney opens at Chicago this morning, to continue throughout the week. Last evening, eight members of the Northland Country club left for Chicago to participate.

Those who will represent Duluth are Mesdames W. C. Winton, Stephen H. Jones, E. P. Towne, J. Q. A. Crosby, R. P. Dowse, H. T. Abbott, A. W. Hartman and Miss Markell. The ladies have all made good records in the club play during the summer, and although they are not counting on any championship honors, they expect to make a good showing at Chicago.

This week the finals in the fall championship will be played, F. L. Finkenstead and J. Q. A. Crosby being the only two remaining. On Nov. 6 the annual meeting of the club will be held.

RACE MATINEE.

Final Event of Season in Duluth Next Friday.

Next Friday afternoon the last race matinee of the year will be pulled off at the West end driving park. It will be the last matinee of the season for most of the horse owners, and they will wind up their campaign in Duluth.

The Northern Minnesota owners, who have been racing their horses at the Wisconsin and Minnesota fairs, will nearly all bring their strings to Duluth to enter them for the final card. Lon Matthews will have about six horses entered in the different events, and other Duluth owners will also put their best into the races. The card has not yet been fully arranged, but it will be a good one and will furnish good sport for Duluth horse race followers.

ENGINEER INSTANTLY KILLED IN COLLISION.

Rocky Mount, N. C., Oct. 7.—The north bound Florida & West Indias limited passenger train on the Atlantic Coast line ran into an open switch and collided with an engine at South Rocky Mount at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Engineer W. Boney of the passenger train was instantly killed and Postal Clerk T. T. Hill slightly injured. Although many passengers were thrown from their berths none suffered injury. Both engines were completely demolished, as was also the mail, express and baggage cars. Engineer Boney's body was pinned under the boiler of the engine and could not be removed until six hours had elapsed. After a delay of three hours the passengers resumed their journey.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

The deep, underlying cause of every old sore is a bad condition of the blood. This vital fluid has become infected with some germ or poison which prevents the place from healing. This infection may be the result of an inactive, sluggish condition of the system leaving the refuse matter in the body to be absorbed into the circulation instead of throwing it off through the usual channels of nature. Another cause is the weakening or polluting of this life-stream from hereditary taints, or from the effects of a long spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system. When the blood is in this condition a sore cannot heal because the impurities with which the circulation is filled are being constantly discharged into the place to irritate and inflame the tissues and further disease the surrounding flesh. The only treatment that can do any good is one that removes the cause, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. It begins at the fountain head of the trouble and drives out all germs, impurities and poisons, and then the place, being supplied with rich, pure blood, heals naturally and permanently. Local applications assist in cleansing the place, but a cure can only be affected through a purification of the blood Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free. By agreement of all the representatives, the existing rules governing the playing of the championship series were amended so that 60 per cent of the were those who went some distance played shall form a pool for the players of the two teams, 60 per cent of this amount to go to the winning and 40 per cent to the losing team.

The schedule as adopted was determined by lot. If any of the games scheduled are postponed to play the postponed game on the first day available at the same park.

If a seventh game is necessary to decide the series the city in which it is to be played will be decided by the commission. The players eligible to play in the championship series were designated as follows:

Chicago team—Brown, Chance, Durbin, Evers, Fraser, Hofman, Howard, Dundgren, Kling, Moran, McCormick, Overall, Olis, Pfeister, Reulbach, Sheckard, Slagle, Schulte, Steinfeldt, Tinker, Walsh and Zimmerman.

President Pulliam selected Henry O'Day as umpire for his organization during the series. President Johnson of the American league named John F. Sheridan. The official scorers selected by the commission were A. J. Flannery and A. D. Richter. The scale of prices for admission to the games was fixed at $1.50 and $2 for Chicago and $2.50 for Detroit. The season for the lower prices at Chicago was the large seating capacity of the Chicago park. The games will be called at 2:30 in Chicago and at 2 o'clock in Detroit.

PARTRIDGES ARE SCARCE

Duluth Nimrods Did Not Find Very Good Shooting.

Birds Are Well Scattered Along the Hardwood Ridges.

Yesterday was the first Sunday since the opening of the partridge season and hundreds of boys and men scoured the woods and thickets around Duluth and the surrounding country in the effort to bag that popular game bird.

Many of the hunting parties that had a long distance to go left the city either Saturday afternoon or evening in order to be out to the hunting grounds for the early shooting.

Last evening the hunters could be seen coming home on nearly every road leading into the city, and the story of hard luck was pretty general.

There were very few well filled game bags, in fact the majority of the hunters had from one to three birds or none at all.

The nimrods that had the best luck balance from the first four games from the city, and even these had a comparatively small number of birds.

An aggregate of probably twenty-five birds were brought in by hunters who went out over the Rice Lake road, some as far as the Cloquet river, or the Cloquet river dam. One party had ten or eleven birds and this was, probably, the largest number secured by any one set of hunters. Some of these birds were shot along the road on the way home. The weather in the country back of Duluth was quite warm yesterday.

The partridges are scarce this season in the country around Duluth. The local nimrods were expecting to find plenty of birds this year because the summer season was much more favorable for breeding and the raising of young birds than a year ago. They have been much disappointed in their expectations, however, for the birds are few and are pretty well scattered. Rarely is a covey of the birds to be found. Hunters claim that they find only one partridge, or, possibly, a couple of them in a place.

No partridges are being found in the low districts this fall. This is accounted for by the heavy fall rains which has made the low ground pretty wet. About all the birds that have been shot were found on the hardwood ridges. Although the frosts have turned the leaves, and they are dropping off, the foliage is still a little too heavy in the woods for good shooting. In about another week or ten days it will be very much easier to see the birds. Hunting without a dog at the present time is a pretty low way of getting any results, particularly when the birds are as scarce as they are this season.

Some hunters have claimed that the reason the partridges are so scarce this winter was on account of the heavy snowfall last winter, and the crust that formed so early and lasted all winter. They claim that the birds were caught under the snow and starved. Others claim that there is nothing to the theory, that they saw the birds out feeding in many places last winter, in spite of the snow.

Since the Great Northern Power company's Rice Lake dam was completed the water in the lake has been raised about two or three feet. It is claimed that a boat can be floated anywhere on the lake now, and that duck hunting is particularly good there early in the morning and about dusk in the afternoon. Several Duluth hunters had pretty good duck shooting on Rice lake last week. They claim the shooting is the best there that it has been for several years.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by all Druggists, 25c.

GOTCH IS IN DULUTH

Has Two Hard Matches With North Dakota Blacksmith.

Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the United States and aspirant for championship honors of the world, opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan opera house yesterday afternoon, in connection with the "Miss New York, Jr." company. Gotch closes the bill at each performance with a wrestling exhibition, agreeing to throw any man who cares to meet him within fifteen minutes or forfeit $100.

Gotch had a tough proposition yesterday afternoon, and last night in Charley Olson, a wrestling blacksmith from Minot, N. D. Olson appeared in the afternoon and asked to go on. Gotch's manager agreed and the big fellow stripped. He weighs in at 205 pounds, the greater part of which is in his shoulders, which are massive. Strength is his strong point, with some knowledge of the wrestling game thrown in.

Gotch hadn't been on the mat with him long before he knew he had a man who would make him work. The North Dakota giant was fast and agile. Time after time, Gotch evidently had him in position to pin him, but the big fellow slipped away and came back smiling for more. He even did a little offensive work and came mighty close to getting Gotch to the mat a couple of times. After they had been going about eleven minutes, the champion secured his famous toe hold and Olson went down.

Again last night, Olson appeared and he did even better. For fourteen minutes he had Gotch worried. The champion tried everything. Time after time he secured wicked head locks and used all his strength to put his opponent to the mat, but Olson bridged, rolled and slipped away. He showed wonderful strength and only when Gotch used his whole weight and strength to force his shoulders down from a bridge did he get him. Gotch didn't handle his man any too gently in either match. Especially after they had gone ten minutes, he sailed in and punished Olson severely. It was all in the game, and Olson took the punishment gamely.

After the match, Gotch said Olson was one of the best men he has met in such an exhibition.

Tonight Emil Peterson, champion of Duluth, will attempt to take down the $100 offered by Gotch to the man who can stay with him fifteen minutes. Peterson is considerably lighter than Gotch, but he is a hard worker, knows a good deal of the game, and expects to give the champion a good run.

The Champion Talks.

Gotch is getting an early start in his training for the big match with George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," which is to be pulled off at Kansas City May 10 next. The champion was seen at his hotel yesterday and he talked pleasantly of himself and his work. The quality which strikes the visitor most favorably is Gotch's never-failing good nature. Ever with a smile, he is a most gracious host. Modest, but confident of his ability, he tells of his hopes and expectations with a spirit of enthusiasm, which compels one to believe in him. When he says he believes he can defeat the "Russian Lion" you look at his splendid physique, his ease of motion, his flexible bulging muscles and, remembering his record, you believe him. Grace is hardly to be expected in a man weighing over 200 pounds, but Gotch is more graceful than most athletes of much smaller proportions. There is no superfluous weight on him. Every ounce is necessary to preserve the symmetry of his massive frame and he carries it so that the fact is evident.

"This tour of mine will continue until April 1, when I will leave the stage to put the finishing touches on my training for the match with Hackenschmidt," he said. "I expect to defeat the Russian. I have never yet met a man whom I could not throw, and I have met the best in the United States. This work on the stage is giving me actual experience, invaluable for training, while I am not overworking myself. I will be down to the point where I will be at my best by the time my tour is over. I expect to be champion of the world after the Hackenschmidt match, but whether I am or not, I am going into the ring. I have been doing some work with the gloves all along, and I expect I will get along pretty well in the ring."

When queried as to his opinion of Fred Beell, he waxed enthusiastic.

"Let me tell you that Fred Beell is a wonder. He is the greatest little man who ever stepped on a mat. There isn't a man in the world his equal at his weight. His strength, skill and ability to cope with heavier men is wonderful in one of his weight and I with so much of a weight advantage over him, had three of the hardest matches with him I ever wrestled."

Gotch knows the wrestling game and likes to talk of it, for he loves it for sport's sake. But next to wrestling, he would rather talk of farming in general and his farm in Iowa in particular, than any subject one might bring up.

"Crops were great in Iowa this year," he said. "My farm will yield me a fine return and everybody in my vicinity is in the same position. Harvest hands were scarce this year, so I had to work a little harder than usual, but I enjoy it thoroughly and get more benefit from a day in the fields than I could in any other manner of training. I have seen a good many places since I have been wrestling, but none look any better to me than Humboldt, Iowa, and that farm of mine, with its wholesome air and its plentitude of hard work, is a real home."

JUDGE HAD HARD TASK

Court Sentences Two Men on Same Day for Murders.

Martin Munn and Peter Mathieson Are to be Hanged.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two men sentenced on the same day and within a few minutes to hang was the record made in the district court here Saturday afternoon when Judge McClenehan, following the findings of the juries in the cases of Peter Mathieson and Martin S. Munn, tried and convicted of murder in the first degree, ordered that they pay the penalty on the scaffold three months from date, the exact day and hour to be fixed by the governor. The trying ordeal proved almost too much for the judge, wearied by the late trials, and he was nearly overcome during the solemn ceremony. He retired from the bench for a few minutes, but soon returned to perform his duty.

When Munn was ordered to stand up and say whether he had anything to say why the death penalty should not be inflicted for killing August Franklin at Beaudette, June 14, Munn replied: "I am not guilty; that's all." E. E. Clough of Bemidji, attorney for Munn made a brief plea for clemency.

His remarks were brief and Judge McClenehan before he passed sentence on the accused man said that, while it was at times difficult to divorce sentiment and duty, it was necessary to do it and he would make no exception in this case. This being the case, further argument on the subject of leniency would be useless and as there were no special reasons why the defendant in this case should be entitled to special consideration he sentenced the defendant, Martin S. Munn to be hanged three months from date.

The court then called upon Peter Mathieson, who had been convicted during the day for killing Johan Johanson at Tenstrike last February. The nude body of Johanson was found in Gull lake, near Tenstrike and search was immediately instituted for his companion, Mathieson, who had left the country. Mathieson was traced by means of forged signatures on notes belonging to Johanson, whose name he had assumed. He was finally discovered in Portland, Or., and brought back for trial.

The defense given was that Johanson had been killed by the accidental discharge of a gun which Mathieson laid on the table. The testimony, however, developed that Mathieson had told several people that he killed Johanson and this went a long way in settling the jury's verdict.

Judge McClenehan did not mince matters in his remarks to Mathieson before sentencing him to be hanged, but said that the murder, he undoubtedly committed, was one of the most cold blooded and brutal that he had ever heard of.

WED AT HAYWARD.

Miss Nellie Walsh Becomes the Wife of Henry Hanson.

Hayward, Wis., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the prettiest of autumn weddings took place Saturday morning at St. Joseph's church, the Rev. Father Cassian Tritz officiating, when Miss Nellie Walsh and Mr. Henry Hanson were married at high mass. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants, ferns and autumn leaves. The bridesmaid, Miss Van Hackie of Stevens Point, preceded the bride to the altar, carrying a huge bouquet of American beauty roses. The bride wore white silk mull with the regulation veil and orange blossoms. The best man was John McHale of Ashland. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, Patrick Walsh. At noon the couple took the train for the Twin Cities. Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will be at home in Hayward after Nov. 1.

Noted Circus Men Have Formed Regular Trust in Business.

Baraboo, Wis., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Now it is the circus trust that confronts the people. The dream of Alf Ringling of Ringling Brothers of this town to become the modern P. T. Barnum, is about to be realized, as after repeated dickerings he has succeeded in acquiring the Barnum & Bailey circus and the W. F. Cody Wild West show, according to an announcement he has made. The transfer of the big circus will be made at Bridgeport, next month, when the Barnum & Bailey show goes into winter quarters.

The Forepaugh & Sells Brothers' circus, which is also owned by the Ringlings, and which heretofore wintered at Columbus, Ohio, will hereafter spend the time at Bridgeport, while the Ringling Brothers' circus proper will remain in Baraboo as usual.

MANY PUNISHED FOR BREAKING GAME LAWS.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to a report issued by the state game warden, A. W. Stone, for September, one violator of the game law was sent to the house of correction, one is spending twenty days in jail, another thirty days, and four more are each spending six. There were sixty-one arrests and twenty-four seizures during the month. The sale of goods from seizures amounted to $115.10; the amount of fines $1,293, and the costs $299.19. Up to date there have been issued 260 small game licenses at $10 each to non-residents, amounting to $2,600; twenty-four deer licenses at $25, and eighty-two separate licenses at $1 each.

LOCATED IN JAIL.

Well-to-Do Indian and a Former Prosperons Conductor in Hard Lines.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—While United States District Attorney Wheeler and a corps of federal marshals and deputies searched the city high and low for John Cloud, a wealthy Indian from Ashland county, who had been subpoenaed as a witness in the United States court, the man, blissfully ignorant of the confusion his absence had caused, was serving out a term of thirty days in the La Crosse county jail for vagrancy. In an adjoining cell was L. L. Rock of Janesville, a former prominent conductor on the Northwestern road, given the same sentence on a similar charge.

The story of the downfall of these two men, strangers to each other, but brought together as companions in misery, is interesting. Each had spent a strenuous night in seeing the sights of St. Paul, and by some strange peradventure both found their way, while under the influence of liquor, into the same box car on a southbound Burlington freight train, at Dayton's Bluff, a suburb of St. Paul.

They eventually reached this city where, after begging food and drink, they were arrested and sent up for vagrancy. The Indian is said to be possessed of $10,000, while the downfall of Rock is a surprise to his old friends.

WANT MANY MEN IN COPPER LAND

Jobs Going Begging in That Section These Days.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are men needed for various employment in the Copper country, according to an employment agent. He states that a number of jobs are open and demands are coming into his office day by day for more help. Only this morning he received a letter from the C. V. MacMillan Lumber company of Ontonagon, asking for fifty men. The agent expects to be able to engage that number and send them to Ontonagan at once. The request of the MacMillan company is not the only one received.

MANY PRESENTS FOR FOUNDLING

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unique among the functions of Marquette's present social season was the "shower" tendered a few evenings ago to "Baby Charlie," a jolly, grey-eyed little youngster who just a month ago was left on the doorstep of a fashionable boarding house tenanted for the most part by wealthy bachelors.

The father and mother of the infant are unknown, and it is a mystery what stress of circumstances caused them to abandon the child to strangers, but it is doubtful if there ever was a baby more blessed with foster parents than is this baby. Not only does he rule the Brennan home, but his domain takes in the entire vicinity. Two hundred invitations were issued to the "shower," and from 6 until 9 last night "Charlie," with his best bib and tucker on, was the center of attraction for scores of the leading people of the city. He got toys by the wholesale, clothes enough for a dozen babies, gold pins and many other things, and more notable still was the starting of a substantial bank account, which it is altogether likely will eventually grow to a sum well up in the thousands.

Curtis, Calumet, secretary; Isaac Frimodig, Calumet, treasurer.

The directors are: Andrew Johnson, Quincy; Frank Hildebrant, Houghton; John B. Curtis, Calumet; J. A. Campbell, Chicago; Charles J. Wickstrom, Calumet; W. H. Faucett, Calumet; C. D. Hanchette, Hancock; Joseph, Croze, Houghton; Silas W. Clements, Baraga; Isaac Frimodig, Calumet.

FREIGHT MOVING DECIDEDLY SLOW

Great Northern and Northern Pacific Having Trouble in West.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Freight is becoming badly congested on the Montana division of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific as a result of the boilermakers' strike and other troubles and it is feared that the conditions from the North Dakota line to the Pacific coast will be as bad as last winter when the western roads were all blockaded. Consignments of goods billed out of Chicago three months ago for Montana points on the Great Northern road have not yet reached their destination and there are many complaints about belated shipments that should have arrived six weeks ago or more.

From Jamestown west scarcely any freight has been moving and it is stated that the Northern Pacific decided to hold the through freight for a week if that length of time was necessary to relieve the conditions.

GETS SMALL DAMAGES.

Passenger in Wreck Secures $10 for Kink in his Neck.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. H. Kent of the Kent Realty company of this city was a passenger on the Great Northern train No. 5, wrecked on Wednesday morning near Franklin, Minn. Aside from a jolt that roused him from a sound sleep and made him, as he said, sit up and take notice, he was uninjured. As usual a claim agent for the company was on the spot immediately after the wreck and funny stories are told of quick settlements. One man got a kink in his neck, but thought $10 cash a liberal sum to settle the damage.

SETTLEMENT STANDS.

Widow of Man, Killed in Wreck, Can Compromise Damage Suit.

Rock Lake, N. D., Oct. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorneys for Mrs. Harry F. Adams of this place, announce that they have decided to allow the settlement of Mrs. Adams with the Great Northern to stand. Mrs. Adams settled her claim for the death of her actor husband for $4,300 without taking her attorneys into her confidence. Suit for $25,000 damnages, now pending in the United States court, will accordingly be dismissed.

HANNAFORD IN DULUTH

Is Optimistic Regarding the Outlook for the Railroads.

Does Not Anticipate Another Car Shortage This Winter.

J. M. Hannaford, second vice president of the Northern Pacific railway, was in Duluth today on important business in connection with local affairs of the road. Just what the nature of Mr. Hannaford's visit was he declined to state. He was in conference this morning with T. E. Blanche, the local general agent of the Northern Pacific, and also held a conference with E. C. Blanchard, local superintendent, on affairs that are of importance to Duluth.

Mr. Hannaford is most optimistic in regard to the railway situation in general throughout the country. He does not voice the sentiments of James J. Hill, who in a Chicago interview expressed the opinion that anti-railway legislation had effectually raised a barrier against the commercial progression of the railroads, but expressed the opinion that as yet railroads had not felt in any appreciable degree the so-called anti-railway legislation.

"It is rather early to predict what effect railway legislation may have upon the future policy of railroads," said Mr. Hannaford, "but as yet I fail to observe any bad effects that have resulted from the action of state legislatures and the laws passed by congress.

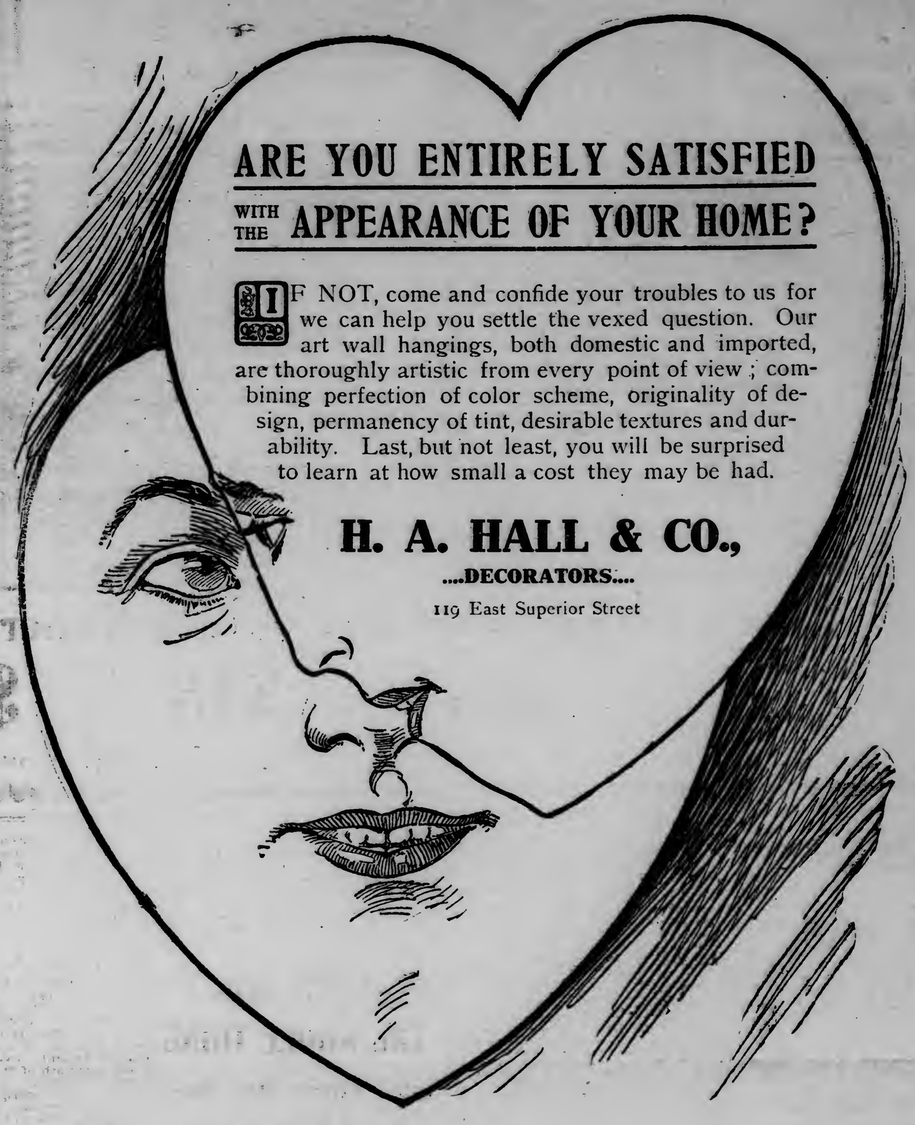

The Car Shortage.

In regard to the car shortage question, Mr. Hannaford expressed the opinion that the situation was much brighter than was generally believed. He says that the Northern Pacific has shipped 30 per cent more commercial coal into the Dakotas and the West generally than was recorded at a similar period a year ago. The heavy wheat hauling of the past few weeks has tended to cause a slight congestion in the car supply, but Mr. Hannaford believes this is only the usual temporary fall occurance and is not an indication of a car tieup this winter.

"Railways are generally prosperous," he says. "Business is good, as far as the railroads are concerned. Building operations have not been materially retarded by the acts of law-makers, and the railroads are going ahead with extensions and render less liable a recurrence of the serious car blockade of last winter."

In fact, Mr. Hannaford seems well pleased with railway affairs in general. He fails to see the ultimate decline of the efficiency of the common carriers, as pictured by certain Eastern capitalists, under the present rate laws and railway legislation, and seems inclined to believe that railroads will adapt themselves to the new conditions and at the same time continue a policy of progress and extensive growth.

MARKET IS STAGNANT

Copper Shares Very Quiet With Little Change in Prices.

The Metal Makes New Low Mark for Present Decline.

A deadly calm reigned over the stock market today, and the close in nearly all of the issues, listed and unlisted, showed little changing from the opening prices. There was some activity in Amalgamated, under news of a favorable decision in the famous smelter smoke case, but the advance was nominal. On the New York metal exchange, there was a further reduction of ¼ cent a pound on the price of copper, making a new low record for the present movement. Lake Copper was quoted at 14¾ and 14½ cents and electrolytic at 13⅝@14¼. The news gave an air of depression to the market, but did not induce a further decline.

North Butte opened at $47, advanced to $47.50, declined to $46.87½ and advanced at the close to $47 and $47.50. Amalgamated opened at $68.75, advanced to $69.62½, dropped to $69 and advanced at the close to $69.12½. Anaconda opened at $36.50 and closed at $37.25, with light trading. Calumet & Arizona opened at $107, dropped to $106.50 and closed at $107. Butte Coalition opened at $15 and closed at $15.12½.

In the curb market, Greene-Cananea and Superior & Pittsburg were fairly active, with but little change in price. Superior & Pittsburg opened at $9.50 and touched a high mark of $9.62½. Greene-Cananea opened at $7.75 and touched $7.87½ as a high mark.

There were sales of Nipissing at $6.75, Denn Arizona at $4, Globe at $6.50, Butte & Superior at $1.50 and Black Mountain at $5.50, $5.62½ and $5.25.

Keweenaw was quiet at $5.50 and $5.75, Hancock at $5.75 and $6, Warren at $3.25 and $3.75, Carman at $2.37½ and $2.75, and Calumet & Sonora at $6 and $6.50.

H. W. Fisher of Martin Pattison & Co., received word from Bisbee this morning to the effect that the Shattuck-Arizona mine had resumed shipments of ore to Globe. Mr. Fisher says that shipments at the Shattuck have been curtailed owing to washouts on the Southern Pacific, rather than that by the depression of the metal market.

Mr. Fisher says that the rumored troubles with water at the Denn-Arizona property is only temporary, and that is nothing more than a species of difficulty that besets miners almost anywhere from time to time. He says that several pockets of water in the caves leading from the shaft were encountered, but the engineers have the water under control and that trouble is now over. He declares that the rumors concerning this incident have been greatly exaggerated.

SWALLOWED A VALUABLE AGATE

An insane immigrant held up by Immigration Agent Dean is carrying around a $40 agate in his stomach.

While the immigration inspector was standing on the wharf a friend approached him and showed him a valuable agate picked up on the north shore. "I just refused $40 for it," said Mr. Dean's friend, "because I think I can get more."

The inspector looked at the stone, and handed it back to the owner. The insane man then asked for it, and the man jokingly handed it over. The immigrant placed it in his mouth and began chewing it. While the inspector and his friend were laughing at his odd antics, the agate slipped down the man's throat.

"He's swallowed my $40 agate," screamed the friend. "What shall I do?"

"Get an emetic and wait," said the inspector.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT FOR LAND

Another contest case was started in the Duluth United States land office this mornign, it being a three-cornered fight over a piece of land in one of the towns opened up last spring. It is entitled the case of George S. Hay and James C. Eddy against John Japel.

Japel made entries on the land at the time of the opening, last March, but the other two claimants allege prior settlement on the section, and, therefore, claim prior right. Eddy claims two of the forties in the section entered upon by Japel, and Hay claims one of the forties. Each of them claim other lands not involved in the contest.

During the afternoon several witnesses for Hay and Eddy were examined, and this afternoon the witnesses of Japel will give their testimony. Capt. Smallwood is representing Hay and Eddy, and L. H. Corcoran is conducting the case for Japel. Register Engel expects the case will be concluded this afternoon.

Three cases have been set for tomorrow for hearing before Register Engle. They are the contest of Clark B. Winchell against John Mattson; that of Albert M. Anderson against John Lilliquist, both of which was partially tried Stpt. 5, and was continued until tomorrow. The last one is a protest against a timber and stone entry.

Nearly a dozen cases have been set for this week altogether in the land office. Three have been set for tomorrow, three for Wednesday and three for Thursday, and so on for the remainder of the week. How many of them will actually be tried cannot be foretold, but as many as possible will be disposed of, as there is a big list of cases left for the month of October.

There was a total of seventy-five contests which were set for October, and about an equal number have been set for November.

SHORTS ARE SQUEEZED IN THE FLAX MARKET

Sensational Buying Sends the Prices Jumping Skyward.

Wheat Situation Very Bullish With Strong Foreign Demand.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 7.—One of the old time flax markets was seen in Duluth this morning, and sensational advances were reported.

It was evidently a case of squeezing the shorts, as the buying was largely for early delivery. The seed opened stronger, and advanced 6½ cents over yesterday's close during the day. It weakened somewhat at the close, but showed a clear gain of 4⅞ cents for the October option.

The buying was believed to be largely on the part of heavy short interests.

Wheat also had another advance.

"The question of where the wheat is coming from is beginning to bother the Northwest," said one of the local grain men this morning. "Figure it out for yourself. Last year there was but little export business from the Northwest, yet we were practically cleaned up on the spring wheat this fall. This year with a short crop, and an exceedingly heavy foreign demand, it makes one wonder where the wheat is coming from."

Wheat had a good advance in the American markets again today. The tone was firmer at the opening and with a good demand which lasted throughout the session, the prices were considerably over those of Saturday. The demand from abroad continues and considerable wheat was worked for export in the Duluth market, during the day. The foreigners look upon the situation as acutely bullish as the Australian and Indian crops do not promise much. The harvest returns have fulfilled the early predictions of a short crop for the Northwest. Liverpool closed 1¾d to 1⅞d higher, Antwerp ⅝c to 1¼c higher, Berlin ½c higher and Budapest ¼c lower.

The December option closed 2c higher in Duluth, 1⅜-½c in Chicago, 2c in Minneapolis and 1½c in New York. The May option closed 1⅝c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, 1¼-⅜c in Chicago and ⅝c in New York.

December corn closed ⅝-¾c higher in Chicago and was ¼d to ½d higher in Liverpool. December oats, closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was a firm opening in wheat with values at the immediate start ½d higher. The strength in American cables on Saturday was offset by the fact of the heavy world's shipments and for a time buyers were inclined to hold off. Later there was an advance, prices gaining sharply, showing gains of ⅝d to 1¼d, due to heavy local and outside buying on the continued unfavorable weather in India, strength at Berlin and the extremely bullish local sentiment. The spot markets were strong with offerings light and this added to the firmness. The undertone at mid-day was firm.

"Corn was steady and ¼d higher at the opening and later gained an additional ½d in the distant months. The market was dull, but advance in wheat helped to stimulate support."

Car receipts at Duluth were 528 against 388 last year, and at Minneapolis 270 against 681 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 798 against 1,069 last year. Chicago received 96 against 64 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,198,000 bus, last year 1,541,000 bus. Shipments 715,000 bus, last year 864,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 813,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 1,313,000 bus, last year 629,000 bus. Shipments 792,000 bus, last year 881,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 112,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Small Receipts and a General Good Demand Give Wheat Strength.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The wheat market today opened active and strong. The Liverpool market was reported up 1d because of the lack of rain in India. The bullish factors on the local market were small receipts in the Northwest and a good general demand. December wheat opened ½c to ⅝c higher at $1.02⅛ to $1.02⅝ and sold at $1.03. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 601 cars against 705 cars last week and 1,130 cars one year ago.

Prices ruled strong all day on a good general and export demand. The high point for December was $1.03¾. Late in the day prices declined slightly because of realizing sales, but the close was strong with December 1⅜@1⅝c higher at $1.03@1⅜c.

The strength of wheat and small local receipts caused a strong corn market. December corn opened ¼c to ½@⅝c higher at 55½@55⅝c to 55⅝c and sold at 59¼c. Local receipts 622 cars with 161 of contract grade.

The market was strong all day. December sold up to 59¼. The close was strong with December ⅝@¾c higher at 59⅛c.

The oats market was firm in sympathy with wheat and corn. The volume of trading was small. December oats opened ¼c higher at 53⅝c and sold at 52⅞c. Local receipts were 551 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of the strength of grain and 5c to 10c advance in the price of live hogs. January pork was up 2½c at $15.27½. Lard and ribs were also each 2½c higher at $8.80 and $7.95, respectively.

Chicago wheat better:

Wheat got on new ground today. Everything that came along appeared to be on the side of the buyers. The trade seemed enthusiastically bullish and this helped prices along. Northwest markets continue to lead the advance. St. Louis advanced cash wheat 2 cents, Kansas City claimed Minneapolis is buying hard wheat here. Then the export business began to come and this sustained the market within a little of the top prices up to the close. On such a market as this there is nothing to do but get in line, but use caution about getting long too much on a strong swell. Unless conditions change buy quickly on any fair break.

Corn—Local receipts were under the estimate. Public stocks in Chicago increased only 38,000 bushels for the week. World's shipments were larger. A group of strong houses were active on the buying side. Corn will not have any break while wheat is on the up grade.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Oct. 7.—The flour market is higher. Patents were marked up 10 cents per barrel by the millers today to keep pace with the advance in wheat. The demand has been sharp and has had an unsettled effect upon buyers. Business is active but shows evidence of conservatism today and it will take a steady or strong market to make present quotations attractive. Shipments 60,001 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.50; second patents, $5.30@5.40; first clears $4.10@4.20; second clears, $3.45@3.55. December wheat closed $1.10⅞; May, $1.14¼.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn. Oct. 7.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market for the week opens up very promising. A carload of farm mares were sold to farmers from near Washburn, N. D., who bunched a carload among them. Eddy & Helhumeou, loggers from Lake Linden, Mich., selected a load of big drafters. H. Herrick of Dyersville, Ia., shipped in a load of extra heavy drafters, every horse showed quality. All classes of drivers move slow:

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 7.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5 to 6 points in response to lower cables, but rallied immediately on covering and bull support with December showing relative firmness. There were rumors of a possible squeeze of December shorts, and that month sold about three points over January during the middle of the morning. The more active months showed net gains of 1 to 5 points shortly after the opening, subsequent fluctuations being irregular.

Cotton spot closed quiet; 15 points advance. Middling uplands, 11.90; middling gulf, 12.15; sales, 6,926. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: October, 11.01; November, 11.04; December, 11.22; January, 11.14; February, 11.17; March, 11.19; April, 11.22; May, 11.26; June, 11.28; July, 11.32.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Showed Firmness and Slight Revival of Activity.

New York, Oct. 7.—First prices of stocks were lower geenrally than the closing level of last week, although there was a sprinkling of gains. The volume of transactions continued small. Denver & Rio Grande fell 1⅛, Louisville & Nashville and American Smelting 1 and Brooklyn Transit and Pressed Steel Car large fractions. Third avenue rose 1⅞ and Great Northern Ore certificates ¾.

The market shifted about in an aimless fashion with evidence of weakness in the metal stocks. A demand for the Hill stocks improved the tone later, but the active features did not advance beyond Saturday's closing. The southern group of stocks were under pressure.

The rise of 2 points in Great Northern preferred was due to an extra dividend announcement and held the general list steady in sympathy. Northern Pacific rose 1. The firmness of call money discouraged and extended operations on the long side. Hocking Valley preferred rose 1. Bonds were heavy.

Leading stocks were neglected, the only changes of consequence occurring in the inactive quarters. Federal Mining declined 10 points.

Decided firmness pervaded the market and there was a slight revival of activity on the advance. The Hill stocks improved further and there was also some demand for St. Paul, Reading and American Smelting. Reading advanced 1, St. Paul 1½, Northern Pacific 1⅝, Great Northern preferred 2½, United States Pipe and Pittsburg Coal preferred yielded 1, Canada Southern 1¼, National Railroad of Mexico second preferred 1½, United States Rubber first preferred 1⅜ and Chicago Terminal 3.

The market closed dull and strong. Northern Pacific's rise reached 3⅝, Great Northern preferred 3¼, Pacific Mail 1⅝, Union Pacific and American Smelting 1¼ and Amalgamated Copper 1. There were fractional recessions to realize profits. Prices recovered again to the best.

Stock Gossip.

New York—Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks opened irregular and showed very little activity during the entire session except Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which were favorably affected by the extra dividend declared by Great Northern. The good rails all displayed strength before the close and acted as if they would respond readily to buying of any consequence. As we view it, the market is in a peculiar position. Prices for the better class of stocks are undoubtedly on an attractive basis. On the other hand the argument is offered that there are still several unfavorable features yet to be settled. It would seem, however, that we have had the worst for the present.

New York to Gay & Sturgis: The Lake Superior Co., limited, will on Nov. 1 pay stockholders of the Great Northern Railway company of record Oct. 15 a dividend equal to 1½ per cent of their holdings of Great Northern stock. This dividend will be paid coincidently with the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾, payable Nov. 1, of stock of Great Northern Railway company.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: A dispatch from Houghton says: "A Calumet & Hecla official, who has been giving considerable of his time and attention to the underground conditions at the Centennial, stated that he believed it would some time be selling at $100 a share, and earning good dividends on that basis. He said: "People are likely, in these times of market depression, to forget the possibilities of a property like Centennial. Our people are getting at that property in a very conservative way, but the Centennial will make a showing that will make everybody sit up and take notice, and the time will come before a good many wiseacres are aware of it."

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The rainy weather had its usual effect on the market today. Trade was depressed by it and although prices ruled firm at the same quotations as Saturday there was not as much activity in buying.

No advance in egg prices was noted today, although anticipated Saturday they would go up the first of this week.

The shipments of fall apples continue quite large considering the fact that as a general thing apples are not plentiful this year. The local market seems to be receiving its share thus far.

The following prices are quoted up to noon today, the list being supplied by the secretary of the exchange:
